HOMECOMING 1973

More than 275 alumni are expected to attend Homecoming activities at High Point College, February 10. HPC's annual Homecoming for alumni will feature several scheduled events including class reunions, a luncheon honoring a Hall of Fame sports figure, an alumni Executive Committee meeting, a president's reception for alumni and friends of the College, a banquet, a basketball game, two concerts, a coffeehouse and a dance.

The old Student Center will be the site for all-day registration of alumni. Early arrivals can pick up their name tags and basketball tickets starting at 10 a.m. Class reunions will be conducted on campus with directions being available during registration which lasts until 5 p.m.

Ten classes, 1928, '33, '38, '43, '48, '53, '58, '63, '68, and '72, will conduct reunions. Each reunion will be hosted by graduates from each of the classes, and refreshments will be served as alumni renew old acquaintances and make new ones.

Virgil Yow, former basketball coach and an alumnus of HPC, will be in attendance for a luncheon at 12 noon which is being planned in his honor. The luncheon will be held in the private dining room in the new Holt McPherson Campus Center. In 1960 Yow was named to the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics' Hall of Fame for his work and participation in sports activities. Yow, a 1930 graduate of HPC, coached the Panthers for over 20 years. The College won three basketball championships in the Carolinas Conference under his direction and guidance. The Panthers lost only one game during the 1941 season, and the team advanced to compete in the national finals in Kansas City. The other two championships were won in 1936 and '39.

From 1926 to 1930 Yow played basketball and baseball for HPC, and earlier he participated in high school athletics in Gibsonville where he was born. An alumni Executive Committee meeting is also scheduled for noon.

Dr. Wendell M. Patton Jr., president of the college, and Mrs. Patton will honor returning alumni with a president's reception between 3 and 5 p.m. in the new campus center. There will be opportunities for alumni to meet new members of the college's faculty and staff and to renew old acquaintances with former professors.

The annual Homecoming Banquet is scheduled from 6 to 7 p.m. in the cafeteria in the center. No formal program is planned. Reservations for the banquet can be made by contacting the alumni office in the College Affairs Building on campus.

A week of student and alumni activities will be highlighted Saturday night by a Carolinas Conference game with Lenoir-Rhyne. An overflow crowd is expected for the game which begins at 8 p.m. in Alumni Gymnasium. The gym's seating capacity is 3,000.

The 1973 Homecoming Queen will be announced at 7:45 p.m. before the game. She and the members of her court will be selected on a day after January 30 when Second Semester classes begin at HPC.

HPC was pitted against Lenoir-Rhyne during High Point's 1971 Homecoming. HPC won 82 to 76.

Four student activities are slated also during Homecoming Week at HPC. John Sebastian, founder, singer, writer and creative director of the Lovin' Spoonful folk and rock group, will appear in concert February 8. Appearing in concert February 6 will be the St. Louis Jazz Quartet. Both Sebastian and the quartet will perform in Memorial Auditorium, beginning at 8 p.m. each night.

February 9, a dance will be held at the Moose Lodge in High Point. The dance begins at 8 p.m.

A folk singer from Atlanta, Raun McKinnon, will appear at a coffeehouse in the old Student Center February 7 at 7 p.m. Admission to this event is free while tickets will be available at the door for the other events, all sponsored by the Student Union at the College.

The Rev. David W. Flude, secretary for coordination and interpretation of the United Methodist Committee for Overseas Relief, received a doctor of divinity degree from HPC, Dec. 20.

Dr. Wendell M. Patton Jr., president, conferred the degree to the Rev. Mr. Flude on behalf of the college. The citation to Flude said in part: "... you have served well the British Methodist Church in your native country, England, and the United Methodist Church in the United States . . . you have traveled widely in Asia, Latin America, the Middle East and Europe in your work for relief, rehabilitation, refugee resettlement and the renewal of life for untold numbers who have experienced the most extreme types of misfortune brought about by both natural and man-made causes . . ."

Over 225 were present for the second annual Community-College Prayer Breakfast to see the Rev. Mr. Flude receive the degree. The HPC Board of Trustees sponsored the prayer breakfast. Members of the board of trustees were introduced at the breakfast.

Several who attended the breakfast were conducted on a tour of the new Chas. E. Hayworth Memorial Chapel immediately following the breakfast. Student leaders at HPC aided with parking and the receiving of visitors for the annual event.

Mrs. Maggie Lou Barker and her husband are closing their interior decorating business. She was formerly an art instructor at HPC.

Allen Retires Second Time

It is with regret that we announce that W. Lawson Allen has retired from the College for the second time. After officially retiring from his duties as vice president for college affairs last May, he agreed to remain on special assignment with the College for another year.

"He assumed the duties of acting alumni secretary and special consultant for the 1972-73 academic year and has been doing excellent work in the areas of the alumni program and assisting the Admissions Office," said Dr. Wendell M. Patton Jr., president.

"His contributions to the College are numerous, and during his work with several colleges he has served in almost every administrative capacity in a college," added Dr. Patton.

Allen received the opportunity to manage the Sheraton Hotel in downtown High Point when the hotel was left without a manager on very short notice in late October. After due consideration, Allen decided to accept the offer and asked to be relieved of his duties with the College. Even though he is now employed on a full-time basis by the hotel, he still spends time, on his own, with the College to help carry out those programs already underway.

"We sincerely regret losing Lawson but wish him well in his new work," said Dr. Patton.

Personal interviews are being conducted with individuals in an effort to fill the position of executive secretary of the Alumni Association. Recommendations from alumni are welcome. Nominations and recommendations should be made to C. H. Kruyer c/o College Affairs at High Point College, High Point, N.C. 27262.

DEVELOPMENT ISSUE — FEBRUARY, 1973

Not the subject of WILLS Again!

Yes we are talking about wills and estate planning. The beginning of a new year is an ideal time to review your will, if you have one, and it is the time to have one written if you do not. Most people are inclined to ignore the need for and the value of having a will and having one that is current enough to reflect one's family and financial status at the time.

Why do we ignore doing something about this most important part of our financial planning? Many people think that they do not have enough assets to worry about what happens after their death. Others believe that making a will may hasten their demise and so they just put off doing anything about estate-planning.

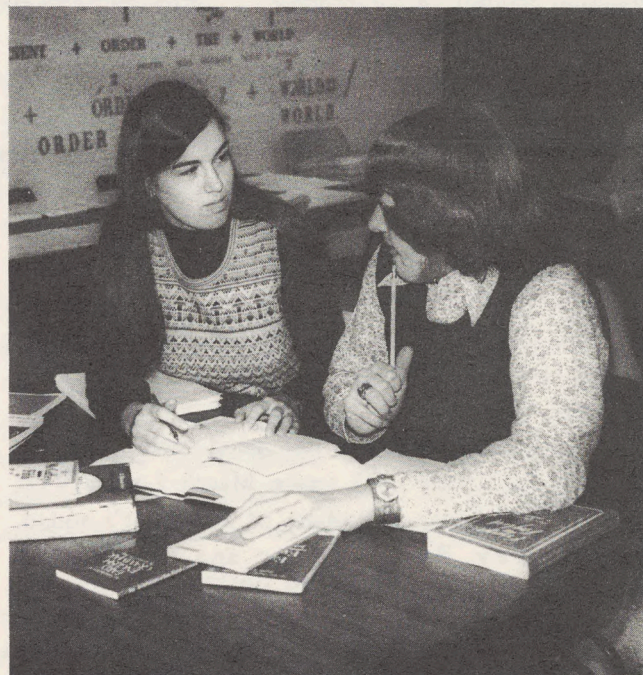

The best reasons for getting with it, and with your attorney, are: (1) A will allows you to determine just what will happen to the assets in your estate instead of having the court decide for you, if there is no will; (2) if minors are the survivors, their future guardians can be provided for in a will rather than leaving this important matter to chance. If a will already exists, updating it is important because families and financial conditions change and wills should be changed to meet these changes. Inheritance laws change also. In today's mobile society people move from state to state and wills need to be adjusted to satisfy the laws of the state of residence.

Why should High Point College be interested in whether or not you have a current will? First of all we hope that we are performing a service for the friends of the College by providing these reminders. Secondly, and admitting to being a bit selfish, we hope that those friends who do see possibilities for charitable gifts in their financial planning will consider High Point College. The importance of bequests as a source of funds for the College is indicated in figures recently published by the American Association of Fund Raising Counsel, Inc. showing that from 1961 to 1971 total receipts from bequests for charitable purposes increased from $650 million to $3 billion. Gifts from other sources did little more than double in the same period of time.

'Gifts to Old Ivy'

The Nov. 4, 1972 issue of Business Week devoted its column "Personal Business" to the subject of "Gifts to Old Ivy and How to Make Them Count Most." The article contained several good suggestions pertaining to charitable giving including methods, types and tax considerations. If you would like to have a print of this timely and informative article, our Development Office has them available. You can receive a copy by calling the College Affairs Office: 883-0726, or by sending us a card requesting that one be sent to you. We like to think that the interest which an important publication such as Business Week has shown in this subject is an indication of the importance which they attach to supporting institutions of higher education in America.

Even if you are not able to do High Point College a favor, do one for yourself and see your attorney about that will. Do not put it off.

From all reports received by the News Bureau, HPC's Interim Term was a success for many. Students seemed to enjoy their work with social agencies including YMCA, the complaints desk at City Hall and the minimum security unit at Sandy Ridge. Ecology class members and others filed favorable reports also . . . SPORTS: The baseball team will try to prove that their No. 4 national ranking among small colleges was not just good luck when the Panthers open their 1973 season March 5 with West Virginia University. Members of last year's squad, Bob Hickey, Ron Slingerman and Bill Hegland, signed pro contracts with Cleveland, Chicago and Houston, respectively. Area 7 playoffs may be held at HPC . . . Tennis season opens March 4 when the Panthers host West Virginia University . . . Track season started Feb. 7 with a five-way meet.

Businesses Attempt to Meet Their Obligations to Society

C. Marshall Lowe, director of the business course called "Corporate Social Responsibility," reports that the content of the course was well received by HPC students. He noted too that he heard several complimentary statements made about some of the speakers for the Interim Term class. Among the remarks made to those participating in "Corporate Social Responsibility" were the following.

Robert Leak, with the N.C. Office of Industrial, Tourist and Community Resources in Raleigh, called for striking a balance between government and industry if America's businesses are to meet the future needs of society.

Business conduct is influenced by the attitude of society, Leak said, explaining that public conduct is most often influenced by a minority rather than by the majority. "This happens because today the public is demanding speed from its institutions in dealing with social problems," he added.

Leak listed other methods a corporation could employ to be more responsible: create a healthy social environment, strengthen the corporation's public image, open up new markets while presenting the idea that these markets will be beneficial.

"Corporate social responsibility programs are more expensive than was first realized," he said.

"It's a frustrating business to try and solve social problems," he said as he explained that businesses are not equipped to handle the problems that now face them.

"Has government met its responsibilities," he asked. "Government has 'overgovernmentized' business," he retorted.

"Business and industry are trying to solve the problems, but they don't know what they need to do. We need to reexamine government's role and define businesses' responsibilities more in order to solve the problems."

Leak confessed that he did not know the answers. "I have tried to take a positive approach, however," he said.

But because of America's individual freedoms Leak expressed a belief that the problems which exist will not be solved. "Let the problems exist. I'll take freedom of the individual every time," he added.

Theatre Gets Major, Teaching Certificate

By a unanimous vote of the faculty and staff at the College, a theatre arts major was approved recently. The major will become effective fall semester of 1973.

In connection with the new major, several new courses will be added to the drama curriculum; another instructor will be added to the department; a teaching certificate will be offered in Theatre of the Arts; and more plays will be produced during the academic year.

When the theatre arts major is initiated, students wishing to obtain a high school teaching certificate may do so.

"Student enthusiasm in drama over recent years prompted the theatre arts major," said Sandra Epperson, HPC drama instructor. Mrs. Carolyn Rauch, associate professor on leave, will return to the College this fall. She is presently working on her Ph.D. degree in drama at Florida State.

Three new courses in drama will be offered beginning this fall, "Voice and Diction," "Scene Design and History" and "Literature of Theatre." The first two carry three semester hours with the last, six semester hours.

For the new major to be recognized by the American Theatre Assn., HPC must present four plays yearly.

The theater arts teaching certificate permits students to teach drama in high school.

Unethical business practices and the responsibilities of business to the consuming public were discussed by Eugene Hafer of Raleigh, with the N.C. Consumer Protection Division.

Hafer discussed criminal fraud and competition among advertisers and their advertising practices. His office investigates complaints and "tries to take quick action to prohibit deceptive acts," he said.

He spoke of "specials" and noted that occasionally items which customers thought were being sold at a reduced price were continuing to be sold at their "Regular Price."

The consumer protection specialist discussed briefly problems with Medicare, the wording of insurance policies, overhead costs and the cooperation between Better Business Bureaus and the N.C. Consumer Protection Division.

Writing Lab Offers Help In Several Fields of Study

"Compared to the writing labs at two of the universities in this state, High Point College's lab has better facilities, is better staffed and offers more help to its students," said Dr. William DeLeeuw, assistant professor of English and director of the writing lab at HPC.

HPC's writing lab is situated in a bright, multi-colored room on campus in Cooke Hall. The materials available to students include texts dealing with the usual grammar and punctuation but also covering subjects such as creative writing, reading for writing and the logic of writing. The writing lab maintains files with information on letter writing, particularly letters of application; information on report writing, with samples; information for English graduates pertaining to jobs they can seek other than teaching; sample bibliography forms; files of material taken from magazines of all readability levels which student teachers can use for bulletin boards or in other ways; and a set of master transparencies which student teachers can make duplicates of for use as a teaching aid.

The texts used in the HPC writing lab are programmed with answers so that students can work individually and at their own rate.

A folder is kept on each student containing the dates he has attended the lab, work assigned and progress noted.

Any instructor at HPC may refer a student to the writing lab for help and the lab welcomes all students who are interested in improving their writing skills. The lab also offers help in writing research papers in the areas of format, style, documentation and organization.

"We feel that the writing lab will make a tremendous amount of difference in the quality of writing done by HPC students if they attend regularly," commented Dr. DeLeeuw. "Last semester freshmen students who showed improvement in their writing but still had failing grades were given 'incompletes' instead of being 'failed,' in order to give them another semester in the writing lab to improve."

The lab is available to all HPC students between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. weekdays. The lab is especially intended for freshmen writers.

Dr. DeLeeuw wants anyone to donate sample business letters or other materials to the lab.

ALUMNI LOOK BACK AT GOOD OLE DAYS

Over 250 alumni attended class reunions and exchanged several anecdotes about life at the College when they were in attendance here, in addition to noting other changes made at the College since it was founded in 1856 as Yadkin College. Ralph Vance ('28) of High Point related how his father contributed money to build the College. Joseph W. Holmes ('28) of Burlington described the small physical plant of the College between 1924-28. "There were no sidewalks. We walked on planks," he said.

Among the accomplishments seen by him and other members of the "first full-fledged Senior Class" were the selection of the College's song and the formation of literary societies. The entrance-way to the College was also built by the class of '24. "We estimated that it would cost $175 but we ended up paying $900 to construct it," said Holmes, class president.

Effie Keck Nelson of Mebane told about her college days at HPC between 1924-28. She explained that she undertook as many subjects as "I could work into my schedule and that the academic dean would let me."

Work occupied the time of many of the earlier HPC students, but the leisure time that was available was fun for several. Holmes recalls when a group of HPC students were shot at for stealing turnips in the area. "We found out later that this was just a prank done by other students attending the College."

Mrs. Nelson recalls when students tied the first Dean of Women (Miss Mary Young) in her dormitory room and sang Christmas carols to her from beneath her window. She cites also the occasion when she served, in fun, her college roommate (Mrs. Bessie R. Walton) a sandwich made out of chickens' feet.

That's not all. She recalls in vivid detail an April Fool's banquet which the class of '28 staged for the class of '29. After serving the class, grapefruit cocktail, "the second course was chicken feed," she said.

Just about everyone could recall the incident of the cow being placed on the third floor of Roberts Hall, the administration building on the HPC campus, but Mrs. Tyre Glenn Madison of Jamestown noted a Halloween prank when a car was placed in the entrance-way and visiting room of Roberts.

Other graduates noted more changes since 1924. Mrs. Robert W. Barrett ('53) of Greensboro spoke of strict dress codes and dormitory sign-ins, lights out and lockup for women. But there were amusing moments in '53, too, such as the time when popular music was played in the bell tower in place of religious hymns. Or as in '63 when Mrs. Judy Longwith Healy of Severna Park, Md., and her peers rolled soft drink bottles down dorm hallways.

Regardless of the year in which they graduated, HPC alumni still agree on one thing. HPC is a friendly, down-home place to attend school. "It's still exceptionally friendly," said Clifton "Chip" Eisle ('72) of Cheverly, Md.

"I haven't been back in 20 years but it still looks great," said Bob Barrett ('53) of Greensboro.

"Because HPC was a smaller college than others I felt closer to faculty members and students," said Mrs. Harold Funderburk ('33) of High Point. Another '33 graduate, Tyree S. Lindley of Graham said: "There has been tremendous improvements in facilities. I am confident of its contribution to education."

"HPC is trying to make education more relevant," said Gloria Teague Best ('63) of Eden.

ALUMNI -- honors, new jobs, births

Look What '50 is Doing!

Alumni of other classes should take note of the fine challenge offered to the class of '50 by one of its members who wishes to remain anonymous. Any gifts made to the Alumni Fund by a member of the class will be matched, dollar for dollar, up to a total of $5,000. This is a fine gesture on the part of a loyal alumnus, and we hope that it will be an idea which will spread to other classes. We hope that the class of '50 will meet the challenge to the full amount.

Tax Reform: 'Revitalizing the Charitable Deduction'

Much has been written in recent months about the need for tax reform. One area which is being constantly bombarded is that of the charitable deduction allowed under present tax laws.

In our humble estimation, one of the better articles and proposals on an approach to a solution for this question bears a title corresponding with our headline above. The article was taken from the Report of the President, Alan Pifer, in the Carnegie Corporation's annual report for 1972. We have taken the liberty to provide excerpts from the article in order to share some of his thoughts with you.

For almost as long as the United States has had a constitutionally valid income tax, the American taxpayer has had the right to reduce his taxable income by the amount he gives to charity, the deduction was simply accepted as something that was naturally good, both for the taxpayer and the country. This hitherto well-accepted feature of the Internal Revenue Code has become the object of some sharp questioning, recently, to a point where its continued existence could be in doubt.

There is the disenchantment of a growing body of citizens with the entire tax system because of its regressiveness and hence inequity toward lower-income taxpayers. This and the fact that the majority of low and moderate income taxpayers now make use of the standard deduction on their income tax forms and are encouraged by government to do so, a special deduction for charitable giving is bound to seem to many taxpayers like a loophole designed principally to benefit the rich. The fact that tax savings involved in charitable gifts, stimulated by the charitable deduction, go to recipient institutions and not into the pockets of donors is easily misunderstood.

At a deeper level, however, it is possible that public attitudes, not just toward the charitable deduction but toward charity itself, may have undergone a transformation. To some Americans, charity has apparently become uncoupled from the notion of public benefit and tied to the idea of private advantage and privilege. To others, it is increasingly seen as anachronistic and even offensive in a society where the concept of citizens' rights to governmentally provided services is constantly expanding. What is clear, certainly, is that there is considerable public ignorance of the role which the charitable sector plays in our national life and a kind of pervasive indifference to its fate.

In addition to the specific criticisms of the charitable deduction, some tax reformers have a broad philosophical objection to Federal tax expenditures generally. They argue that the numerous features of the Internal Revenue Code which, for economic incentive and other reasons, permit corporations and

The first Jaycee chapter in a college or university in North Carolina is expected to be operating at High Point College next month, according to Jim Morgan, president of the High Point Jaycees.

If the plan works out, it could be a catalyst for the establishment of other Jaycee chapters on college and university campuses in the state, he said.

Thus, the College has another community service organization on campus. Charles Rabb, new director of student activities, advises the HPC chapter. Eight students attended a recent organizational meeting.

Colleges After More State Aid

Student bodies of private colleges and universities in North Carolina are seeking more state aid for higher education for North Carolina residents who are enrolled in private colleges and universities throughout the Tar Heel state.

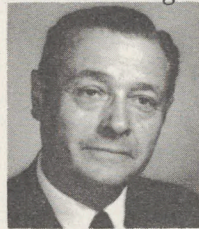

Joe Yacyshyn of Wilmington, Del., president of the Student Government Association at HPC, recently presented Governor James Holshouser a petition on behalf of the HPC student body.

The colleges want a yearly increase in state assistance from the present $25 per student to $200 per student.

"We believe it to be mandatory that there be a full utilization of available classrooms and residence halls in the private colleges and universities of North Carolina," says the petition.

"These expenditures would be far less than those required to enlarge the facilities of our state universities for housing and educating those students who might be forced to enroll in state supported universities."

He says the students need to observe their work more closely . . . Also, the College is featured in a new booklet published by the Council. The pamphlet is called "working artists".

Ministers Speak Out On Numerous Topics During Meeting Here

For the first time, Ministers Appreciation Day at the college was held in conjunction with the annual Finch Lecture Series. Bishop James Armstrong of the Dakotas area spoke to the visiting ministers on the contemporary church and resistance. During the day another seminar on the "Church-Related College" was conducted for the ministers who were from throughout North Carolina.

The ministers discussed with panel members several topics including the testing of a person's faith, what local churches are doing for HPC students, employment of students in local churches, liberal arts education, appropriations for Methodist colleges from the Methodist conferences, and the feasibility of classes at HPC for ministers.

"A church-related school has the responsibility to present Christianity in a vigorous, non-apologetic way," said Rev. Larry Wilkinson of High Point. "Church-related colleges have provided leadership, especially clergy and lay leadership, many of whom were educated in church colleges."

Revitalizing the Charitable Deduction

individuals to escape taxation, must rightfully be regarded as expenditures under the Federal budget-expenditures, however, which are not subject to the discipline of Congressional review and appropriations, A better system, they contend, would be one that achieved the same intended purposes by substituting for these tax expenditures direct appropriations, authorized under new legislation.

Whether antipathy or just ignorance and indifference is the more accurate way to characterize the current public mood toward charity, clearly the time has come when steps must be taken to rehabilitate and reinvigorate this basic concept in our national life. Wherever charity is misunderstood, efforts must be made to explain it. Wherever it is operating under a cloak of secrecy, it must be brought into the open. Wherever it is serving to perpetuate unwarranted privilege, it must be made more democratic. Wherever it is tainted by private self-interest, it must be purified. Wherever the arrangements of the tax system which support it can be made more equitable, this should be done. In short, if charity is to be uncoupled in the public mind from the idea of private advantage and privilege and reunited with its purpose of serving the general welfare—where it historically belongs—it must undergo further revisions and improvements and be brought closer to greater numbers of people.

Among possible revisions it would seem that none is more needed than changes in the charitable deduction, to make it more equitable to all taxpayers and to enable that the support of charitable organizations and institutions become a more democratic affair.

Pifer offers a plan which would tend to equalize the charitable deduction for all taxpayers at a 50% level and to apply the deduction even to those cases where deductions were not otherwise itemized.

Most fundamentally, reform of the charitable deduction would be a step in the direction of decentralization of decision making in our society and the encouragement of diversity in the ways we achieve our social objectives. In short, both symbolically and in real terms, it would help to reaffirm the nation's longstanding tradition of private initiative for the public good. We are at a point in our history when the continued existence of that crucial idea is being seriously challenged. If it should continue to lose vitality and eventually disappear from the nation, much that is of the highest value, not just to the few, but to all Americans, will be lost with it!

Copies of Pifer's article may be obtained by writing to Carnegie Corporation of New York, 437 Madison Avenue, New York, N. Y. 10022.

High Point Alumni Distinguish Themselves in Their Work

Donna Fargo, popular singer, has done it again. First she won the award for the best single of 1972 from the Country Music Association, in addition to performing on their awards show. Then she won a key Grammy for being the best female vocal performer in the country music division. The winning song, "The Happiest Girl in the Whole U.S.A.," was her first song and one she wrote herself. She also sang it on the Grammy awards show.

Formerly a Los Angeles school teacher, she majored in English at HPC. At the college she was Miss HPC and Miss Zenith. Earlier she was Miss Mount Airy High School.

"I loved everything I did at High Point College," she says. "And I met the greatest people there—people I'll always remember."

Donna has also recorded "Superman", "F u n n y Face", "Daddy", and "Would You Believe a Lifetime".

"I always wanted to do two things," she says. "I knew I wanted to be a teacher and I knew I liked music and wanted to do something with it.

"I believe that music has a tremendous influence on everyone, and especially young people. I hope I can always be a good example with my writing and not just think of the commercial value of a song. I love it when people tell me my song makes them happy," adds one of the "happiest girls in the whole U.S.A." and internationally recognized.

Gene Littles Night brought praise, gifts and much favorable publicity for High Point College. In addition Gene Littles Day was also proclaimed in High Point.

"His contributions to this franchise have been invaluable, both as player and as ambassador," said Carl Scheer, president of the Carolina Cougars who also honored Gene.

On hand to honor the All-American and last remaining original Cougar were members of Gene's family. They were flown in by the Cougars for the celebration. Gene is a native of Washington, D. C. On hand, too, was Mort Littman, who recruited Littles to attend HPC, and other special guests.

Gene says of the college: "I liked the place and the attitude that they wanted me to get a degree, which is what I was after anyway."

The community of High Point is paying for a vacation for Gene and his wife Rita to either Hawaii or Mexico.

"Gene may be the last remaining original Cougar, but he is first in the hearts of his friends and fans," said Mike Fleming, general chairman of the event. The comment brought a standing ovation from a crowd of 5,000 present for the occasion.

Banquet Honors Seniors

Ray Joseph Richards of 3821 Myrtle St., Erie, Pa., was named High Point College's "Alumnus of the Year" Wednesday night, April 25, at the annual Alumni-Senior Banquet.

Richards, '38, was recognized for his work on behalf of the Virgil Yow Scholarship which was initiated this year. Yow is well-known to many of our alumni as a graduate and former basketball coach at the College. He coached Richards and was named to the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) Hall of Fame in 1960 for over 20 years of work and participation in athletics.

Yow was honored February 10 during the annual Homecoming activities. Richards wrote or called many athletes whom Yow had coached to urge them to attend Homecoming.

"Almost singlehandedly, he encouraged their attendance at Homecoming," said alumnus Robert B. Rankin of High Point. "He even offered to pick them up and get them down here."

"In 1936 Richards was a member of the first Panther team which won the North State Conference crown. It was an eventful championship because it was the first championship that a basketball team had won for the College since 1930 when the Panthers were charmed with three consecutive championships.

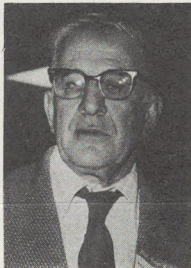

Richards was also honored for his contributions to the annual Alumni Fund drives. Ray coached a basketball team, too, in 1939 for a hosiery manufacturer in High Point. The team won the Southern Textile Basketball Tournament held in Greenville, S. C.

Ray was a teacher at Laurel Hill for three years. He now owns and operates a restaurant near Erie, Pa. Mrs. Richards is the former Thelma Comer of Dobson, N. C. and there are three Richards children.

In the annual balloting, members of the Alumni Association elected Dell Conrad Johnson of Winston-Salem, president for 1973-74. Other officers chosen are Lyles H. Kearns of High Point, vice-president; Gerry Rash White of Statesville, secretary; and Charles J. Fulp of Thomasville, treasurer. Two new members-at-large named to the Alumni Association's Executive Committee are Don M. Dwiggin of Winston-Salem and Gene Littles of High Point.

Dell Johnson teaches in the Winston-Salem Forsyth County System. She is a member of the Class of '61, has served as vice-president and secretary of the Alumni Association, was "Alumna of the Year" in 1972 and was Forsyth County's "Alumna of the Year" in 1966.

Dr. Earl P. Crow, chairman-elect of the Religion Department, addressed those attending the dinner

Sports Awards

The HPC tennis team is breaking records this year with the most number of wins, 22, and the most shutouts, 11. The Panthers have already triumphed over Richmond, VMI, Georgetown, George Washington and West Virginia. Outstanding tennis players are Peter Ranney, Hector Villorroel and Robert Goodie . . . The track team is highly rated this year. The team has won the district meet three times in four years . . . Pete Collins, a 6'8" junior, was named to the All-CC basketball team. He averaged 16 points and 13 rebounds a game . . . Named to "Outstanding College Athletes of America" were Bill Ashley, Robbie Cecil, Debbie Leonard, Tom Mackintosh, Emily Millis and Mike Turmala . . . Bob Davidson, cross country coach, and Ray Alley, tennis coach, were honored as "Coaches of the Year" during the annual awards banquet of NAIA District 26 . . . Alley edited the college's athletic yearbook which is being honored by NAIA as an All-American book.

Letters will be in the mail soon to provide details for each of these meetings . . . Alumni may go on the Bible Lands Pilgrimage and visit Rome during the college's Interim Term next year. The trip costs $699. Departure date is Jan. 9. Dr. Owen Weatherly is your guide . . . Playing important roles in Governor James Holshouser's administration are HPC graduates John Preston, '48, director of field service with the transportation department; and Robert Vaughn, '48, division 7 commissioner with the State Highway Commission . . . One of the founders of HPC is memorialized in the High Point Museum. He is James E. Millis . . . Trustee James H. Millis is now chairman of the board of the National Assn. of Hosiery Manufacturers . . .

Our Apologies to the Barretts, Baileys, Parrishes

The article titled "Alumni Look Back at Good Ole Days" contained two errors. The quote "I haven't been back in 20 years but it still looks great," should have been attributed to Robert Bailey and not Robert Barrett. The cutline at the bottom of page two should have read: The Baileys (not Barretts), left, reminisce with the Bob Parrishes . . . Please pardon our goofs in the last Alumni Bulletin.

OUTSTANDING Businessman, Minister Receive Honorary Ph.D. Degrees at Commencement

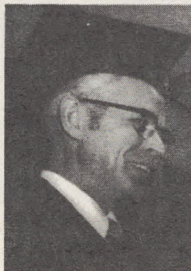

Two outstanding individuals, Roy Delbert Byrum of High Point and Carl M. Smith of Chapel Hill, received honorary doctorate degrees May 20, and Rep. Richardson Preyer of North Carolina's sixth Congressional District gave many personal views during the graduation exercises.

"I wish we had more meaningful jobs. This may be the most serious problem in our society today. Most jobs don't make much of a contribution to a liberated life style. About 95% of all jobs are hard work, often boring and often meaningless if we insist that they all have some great philosophical value. Any work is better than drifting rootless.

"Don't take one job because you think it has more social status than another. If you want to be a park ranger or policeman instead of a businessman, then do it. You will spend your life-time learning who you are. You are far more likely to learn it in a job than in a commune. Using your mind and imagination is why you have spent four years in college.

"New technology will make it more possible for us to choose conscious directions in which we want our society to go. It need not clash with idealism but can work with idealism."

In addition to awarding a Doctor of Divinity degree to Byrum and a Doctor of Humanities to Smith, the College also conferred 246 degrees to students. Byrum is associate minister of Wesley Memorial United Methodist Church, High Point, and Smith is active in the investment brokerage business. A Greensboro native and a High Point College graduate, he was a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives in 1971 and 1972. He is a trustee of the consolidated board of UNC and on the UNC-G board.

Roy Byrum

He headed the successful campaign to build an educational wing to University United Methodist Church, Chapel Hill. He served on several governor's commissions including those concerned with public health and environmental problems. He received a B.S. degree from the College.

Byrum was minister of education at Grace Methodist Church, Greensboro; and a pastor at First Methodist Church in Murphy and at Mayodan Methodist Church. He has been a naval chaplain, author of numerous articles and president of state religious groups. A 1941 graduate of the College, he received an A.B. degree from High Point.

Graduating from the College with highest honors were Mrs. Marlene Teresa P. Lovering and Frances Blair Wall, both of High Point; and Rosemary Ritter of Robbins. Philips H. Davis of Lexington graduated with great honors and graduating with honors were James McCloud and Catherine Parris Stevenson, both of High Point; Barbara Jean Maness of Cathage and Barbara J. Wycoff of Matawan, N.J. Lonnie Reece Beane of Asheboro graduated with departmental honors in political science.

Rep. Preyer made significant remarks about issues which confront all of us and gave his opinions on such current issues of concern as Watergate and on now familiar problems such as air and water pollution.

He cited an example of what one doctor is accomplishing as a result of advancements in medical technology. Because of technology David Henderson is eliminating worldwide the crippling disease, smallpox.

Preyer cited the opinions of Richard McKenna, a North Carolina author. "McKenna is telling us that what your particular work is won't automatically bring you happiness or unhappiness. If you approach life with creative energy it will make every aspect of daily living exciting and interesting.

"Graduating seniors are being exhorted to go out and save the world. But the climate of opinion has been, ever since you entered college," he told the graduates, "that you face a world of imminent doom, so you must wonder, 'why bother?'"

Carl Smith

Preyer recalled world events since 1969, the year that this year's graduating seniors entered college. He cited the student upheaval and riots of 1968 and the threats of a nuclear holocaust and annihilation.

"About the time you were sopho-

Distinguished Teachers, Staffers To Be Recognized Annually

A Distinguished Teaching-Service award will be awarded in 1974 to a High Point College faculty or staff member. The new award will recognize superior teaching and outstanding service during the 1973-74 academic year.

The award will be given on an annual basis and consist of a $1,000 savings bond and a bound certificate. The names of recipients will be included in annual Commencement programs at the College in addition to being permanently mounted on a plaque which will be on display at the College.

The award has been named "The John C. and Kathleen Y. Foy Distinguished Teaching-Service Award". The Foyes, who live in High Point, are funding the award, the first of its type at the College.

"The award will recognize outstanding classroom performance, interest in students as expressed through availability for advising, sponsorship of student activities organizations, community and church interest and activities, production of scholarly papers, articles, books, or monographs, evident interest in professional growth by attendance of professional meetings and participation in professional organizations," said Dr. Wendell Patton, College president, during 1973 Commencement activities May 20.

There are no restrictions on the use of the $1,000 prize, but the Foyes hope that it will be used to supplement the regular retirement plan for faculty members or for travel, study, research and other means of professional development.

A selection committee consisting of two faculty members, two students and two administrators will select a recipient each year to receive the award.

"I feel that teachers deserve high recognition for their work in the classroom and community," says Mrs. Foy. "They have a great challenge and responsibility in molding lives."

Foy served a number of years on the Board of Fellows for High Point College. A Reidsville native, he is director and one of the founders of Carolina Container Company, High Point. Formerly, he was president of High Point Paper Box Company.

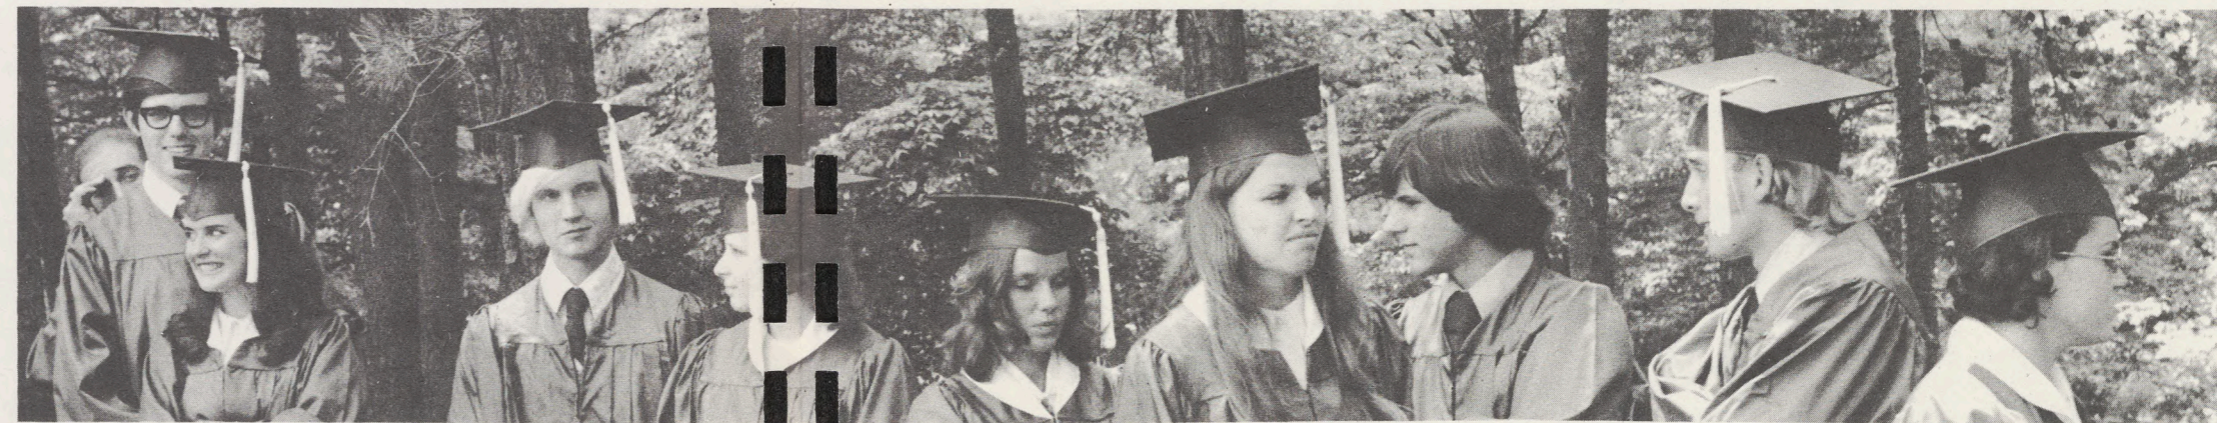

He is director of Blowing Rock's Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the administrative board of Blowing Rock Methodist Church. He is also an honorary member of the administrative board of Wesley Memorial United Methodist Church in High Point.

Mrs. Foy is from a prominent Shelby family. She taught school at Shelby High School and Ferndale Junior High in High Point. She organized a Reach to Recovery Program for the American Cancer

WAITING OUTSIDE Alumni Gymnasium prior to marching in the 1973 graduation exercises are students who will shortly become alumni of the College.

HPC Graduate, Native of High Point To Direct Alumni Assn. Activities

A Guilford County native, Robert E. Williams, will direct alumni activities beginning July 16.

The new alumni affairs director was born in High Point. Presently, he directs alumni activities at Hargrave Military Academy in Chatham, Virginia. Since 1965 he has also taught Bible and mathematics there.

In announcing the appointment, Dr. Wendell Patton, president of High Point, stated that "After a long search for the best individual to fill this most important position with the Alumni Association, we are pleased to have Mr. Williams return to High Point. His background and experience should serve him well as director of our alumni program which we want to be an example of the sincere interest which the College has in its outstanding alumni family."

An ordained minister, Williams was pastor of Mill Creek Baptist Church in Chatham and interim pastor of Straighstone Baptist Church, Long Island, Virginia and at Oak Level Baptist Church, Bassett, Virginia. He was ordained into the ministry on July 15, 1962 at Green Street Baptist Church, High Point.

He received a M.A. degree from Baylor University, a B.D. from New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary and a B.A. from High Point in 1959. From 1962 to 1964 he taught religion and mathematics at Chowan. At Hargrave he advised the Beta Club and the Academy's newspaper. He was in charge of all of Hargrave's news publications and was associate chaplain in charge of Vesper services.

In 1964 he directed the camp retreat of Pilot Mountain Baptist Association in Winston-Salem, and in 1962 was interim pastor of Fellowship Baptist Church there. He was a summer missionary in 1957 for the Home Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention. He worked in Saint Bernard Parrish in Louisiana and became the interim pastor of Reggio

New Trustee Joins Board

Corporate executive, Herman H. Smith of High Point is the newest member of High Point College's Board of Trustees. He was elected to the board at a meeting of the trustees prior to the college's annual Commencement luncheon on Sunday, May 20.

He is director, president and treasurer of McEwen Lumber Company in High Point and director, secretary and treasurer of Amos and Smith Hosiery Company in Pilot Mountain.

"Mr. Smith is a strong community leader," said Dr. Wendell Patton. "He's a great leader in both the church and in the community. We feel fortunate in having him join our board."

Smith is a director of the High Point branch of North Carolina National Bank and of Oakdale Cotton Millis, a trustee of High Point Memorial Hospital and a member of High Point's Rotary Club and Wesley Memorial Methodist Church. Currently finance chairman of the church, he has headed numerous building fund drives and has served as a steward of the church and member of its membership committee.

He is a past president of American Business Club in High Point and of Emerywood Country Club. He has been chairman of the local United Fund Drive. He is on the board of Maryfield Nursing Home and on the visitors committee of Davidson College. He attended UNC-Chapel Hill in 1922 and '23 and graduated from Eastman School of Business in Poughkeepsie, New York in 1925. Mr. Smith and his wife, Louise, have a daughter, Linda, and a son Randolph.

Baptist Church there in 1958. He is married to the former Hessie Lou Severt of West Jefferson, and they have a son Lewis Erwin Williams II. Robert Williams is the son of Lewis E. and Gladys P. mores and juniors, the focus shifted, and it was said that you faced imminent doom from environmental collapse. Here, too, the problems are serious, but we are finding not insurmountable. Last year for the first time in our nation's history we had less air pollution than in the preceeding year. It will be less this year." The same may become true of water pollution he noted.

"I suspect we will now be told that we face another kind of collapse, one arising out of the Watergate scandals — a collapse of all faith and confidence in our political process and the charge that we have degenerated into an 'end justifies the means' philosophy in our moral values.

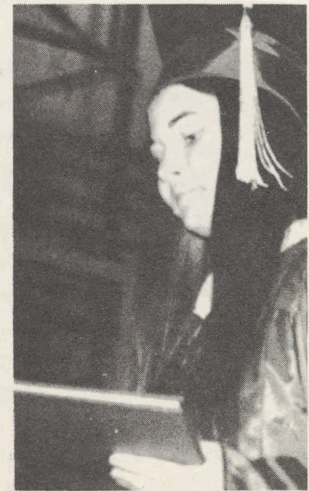

"This would be a serious mistake. I hope it won't turn you away from an active interest in politics. Those involved in Watergate were not practicing politics. They were making war, a special kind of war.

"Because there has been wrongdoing, do not leap to the easy conclusion that our institutions and American government are unworthy," he told the graduates. "This doesn't mean that you shouldn't criticize and question all of our institutions with all your vigor."

Citing Apostle Paul's belief of proving "all things and holding fast to those that are good", Preyer said further of Watergate: "Watergate has shown that we must compel our institutions to prove themselves. It has also shown that our free institutions, our systems of checks and balances, does work without fear of favor, and we should hold fast to those things that are good."

He called the techniques employed at Watergate "an aberration, a genuinely terrifying innovation, and not something embedded in the nature of politics.

"These have been heady, exciting, stimulating years — for the country and especially for you," he said to the graduates. He encouraged them not to be "fed up" and bemoan the "sad state of the world." Encouraging them to start immediately to improve on the present state of affairs, he added: "We have had some splendid talk, brilliant new ideas — but few results. Let's go to work."

Preyer noted that there are some problems in communication between parents and students. "Just when we think we are catching on to your language, you change it again on us. Having learned to use 'tell it like it is' and 'getting it together', we now find that all these terms are obsolete."

Welcome Home!

Bob Williams, Our New Director of Alumni Affairs

Robert E. Williams, a Guilford County native, is now directing alumni activities at High Point. The new alumni affairs director was born in High Point and is the son of Lewis E. and Gladys P. Williams. He took over the directorship July 16.

Previously, he directed alumni activities at Hargrave Military Academy in Chatham, Va. He has also taught Bible and math there since 1965.

In announcing the appointment, President Wendell Patton stated that "After a long search for the best individual to fill this most important position with the Alumni Association, we are pleased to have Mr. Williams return to High Point. His background and experience should serve him well as director of our alumni program which we want to be an example of the sincere interest which the College has in its outstanding alumni family."

"We are quite excited about this new opportunity," said Williams. "It is an honor and privilege to be associated with my alma mater. The opportunities are challenging, and they should be rewarding in the future."

He received a M.A. degree from Baylor University, a B.D. from New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary and a B.A. from High Point in 1959. An ordained minister, he was pastor of Mill Creek Baptist Church in Chatham; interim pastor of Straightstone Baptist Church, Long Island, Va. and at Oak Level Baptist Church, Bassett, Va. He was ordained into the ministry on July 15, 1962 at Green Street Baptist Church in High Point.

From 1962 to 1964 he taught religion and mathematics at Chowan College. At Hargrave he advised the Beta Club and the Academy's newspaper. He was in charge of all of Hargrave's news publications and was associate chaplain in charge of Vesper services. In 1964 he directed the camp retreat of Pilot Mountain Baptist Assn. in Winston-Salem and in 1962 was interim pastor of Fellowship Baptist Church there.

He was a summer missionary in 1957 for the Home Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention. He worked in Saint Bernard Parrish in Louisiana and became the interim pastor of Reggio Baptist Church there in 1958. He is married to the former Hessie Lou Severt of West Jefferson. They have a son Lewis Erwin Williams II.

Special Report

A report of contributions made by alumni during the annual fund drive will appear in the September Alumni Issue of the Bulletin. The report will include contributions made by members of the Centurion Club, classes, honorary degree recipients, miscellaneous gifts and corporate matching gifts to High Point College.

HPC, a leader in the field

The new Jaycee chapter at High Point College is expected to be the catalyst for the establishment of other Jaycee chapters on college and university campuses throughout North Carolina says Jim Morgan, past president of the High Point Jaycees.

The College has another community service organization on campus with approximately 20 students involved in Jaycee projects. Eight students attended the group's first organizational meeting. Charles Rabb, director of student activities, advises the chapter.

Morgan was recently named the outstanding young president in North Carolina during his term of office.

Degree Recipients Swell Alumni Rolls

In addition to awarding a Doctor of Divinity degree to Rev. Byrum and a Doctor of Humanities to Smith, the College conferred 246 degrees to students. Rev. Byrum is associate minister of Wesley Memorial United Methodist Church, High Point, and Mr. Smith is active in the investment brokerage business. A Greensboro native and a High Point graduate, Smith was a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives in 1972 and 1971. He is a trustee of the consolidated board of UNC and is a member of the UNC-G Board of Trustees.

He headed the successful campaign to build an educational wing at University United Methodist Church, Chapel Hill and served on several governor's commissions including those concerned with public health and environmental problems. He received a B.S. degree from HPC.

Rev. Byrum was minister of education at Grace Methodist Church, Greensboro, and a pastor at First Methodist Church in Murphy and at Mayodan Methodist Church. He has been a naval chaplain, author of numerous articles and president of state religious groups. A 1941 graduate of the College, he received an A.B. degree.

Nine Stand Out Academically in '73 Class

Graduating from High Point summa cum laude were Mrs. Marlene Teresa P. Lovering and Frances Blair Wall, both of High Point; and Rosemary Ritter of Robbins. Philip H. Davis of Lexington graduated magna cum laude and graduating cum laude were James McCloud and Catherine Parris Stevenson, both of High Point; Barbara Jean Maness of Carthage and Barbara J. Wycoff of Matawan, N.J. Lonnie Reece Beane of Asheboro graduated with departmental honors in political science.

Corporate Executive Becomes Trustee

Corporate executive, Herman H. Smith of High Point is the newest member of the Board of Trustees. He was elected to the board at a meeting of the trustees prior to the annual Commencement luncheon.

He is director, president and treasurer of Mc-

Ewen Lumber Co. in High Point and director, secretary and treasurer of Amos and Smith Hosiery Co. in Pilot Mountain.

"Mr. Smith is a strong community leader," said President Wendell Patton. "He's a great leader in both the church and in the community. We feel fortunate in having him join our board."

Preyer Discusses Issues of Concern

Rep. Preyer

Rep. Richardson Preyer (D., N.C.) made significant remarks at Commencement about issues which confront all of us and gave opinions on current issues of concern such as Watergate and on familiar problems such as air and water pollution.

He cited an example of what one doctor is accomplishing as a result of advancements in medical technology. Because of advancements in technology David Henderson is eliminating worldwide the crippling disease, smallpox.

Rep. Preyer called the techniques employed at Watergate "an aberration, a genuinely terrifying innovation, and not something embedded in the nature of politics.

"I hope it won't turn you away from an active interest in politics. Those involved in Watergate were not practicing politics. They were making war, a special kind of war.

"Because there has been wrongdoing, do not leap to the easy conclusion that our institutions and American government are unworthy," he told the graduates. "This doesn't mean that you shouldn't criticize and question all of our institutions with all your vigor."

Annual Award to Recognize Abilities

Beginning in 1974 a new award will recognize superior teaching and outstanding service by either a High Point faculty or staff member.

The award will consist of a $1,000 savings bond and a bound certificate. The names of recipients will be included in annual Commencement programs at the College in addition to being permanently mounted on a plaque which will be on display at the College.

The prize has been named "The John C. and Kathleen Y. Foy Distinguished Teaching-Service Award." The Foyes of High Point and Blowing Rock are funding the award, the first of this type at High Point College.

Joint College-University Venture Offers Exciting Possibilities

The Greensboro Regional Consortium for Higher Education of which High Point is a member will soon distribute a new brochure to explain to prospective students why the cooperative venture of the six colleges and universities will mean better educational opportunities for them if they enroll in either of the six institutions.

Each school, including Bennett, Greensboro, Guilford, A&T and UNC-G will receive 4,000 copies apiece from the brochure's first printing for distribution; in addition 5,000 copies of the pamphlet will be mailed from Greensboro to secondary schools throughout the world.

"We feel that the consortium itself is exciting," said Robert Wells, High Point's admissions director. "It offers new avenues for the student to pursue." In the planning stages are joint alumni trips to Hawaii and European countries, cultural programs and student personnel programs.

The Greensboro Chamber of Commerce's college and graduate development section gave $1,000 toward the cost of publication of the brochure.

The newly formed consortium has operated since January and provides for the cross-registration of students, thus allowing them to select classes at any of the colleges and universities while they remain enrolled as students in the schools which they first attended.

Other advantages to the student includes a financial one. Special fees such as lab fees which vary in cost from school to school are the only additional charges to the student attending another school.

"Any student at any one of these colleges can attend one of the other colleges at no additional fee," said President Wendell Patton.

Students attending other institutions will have library rights extended to them, but students must comply with the rules and regulations of the other colleges and universities when studying on their campuses.

Church-Related Colleges And A Large Dream

(Editors' note: The above title was used for an article in the July-September issue of the Higher Education Report of the Board of Higher Education and Ministry for the United Methodist Church. It was written by Fred E. Harris, Associate General Secretary, Division of Higher Education. The thoughts which Dr. Harris included in his presentation are timely. High Point College has been proud of its "Church-Relatedness" and most appreciative of the excellent support given by the United Methodist Church in North Carolina. This is a time when the colleges and the Church need this relationship more than ever and it is our pleasure to share the words of Dr. Harris with our readers.)

To some persons the proper moment to break the ties between the church and its colleges is now, and some use economic reasons for their proposal. They say that colleges cost too much to support and that the money supplied the colleges could be used elsewhere. Clearly, colleges are expensive, but the direct contribution made by most conferences represents only a small percentage of the total college budget. Clearly, too, the church dollar has other good investment opportunities. This has always been true and will continue to be.

However, the basic relationship between the church and the college is not economic. If it were, the ties would have ceased to exist some time ago. The dollars may seem a great deal to give; but, in terms of the need they help meet, the investment is not enormous. No, there is another line of relationship that sustains the giving-receiving relationship. This one relates to the mission of the church as expressed through its colleges.

Methodism has been historically committed to the development of the rational man. More than this, the church has been committed to the whole man— aesthetic, social, intellectual, spiritual, physical. Most liberal arts institutions express this concern for the whole man in a variety of programs, but few colleges have been as persistent as have Methodist colleges in pursuing all aspects of human development. This is a translation of the Christian concept of the value of man, but it is also an expression of the historical Methodist concern for the perfection of man.

The United Methodist colleges were not established as instruments of theological belief; yet they probably would not have been established in the absence of a deep concern for both the rational and spiritual nature of man. Delete from the history of Methodism the brilliant pages dealing with rational man and one raises a question about the very nature and purpose of Methodism. The dignity of man is the dignity of the whole man. And it is to the whole man that United Methodism addresses itself. The natural conjunction of the goals of United Brethren and Methodists created The United Methodist Church. The units were not only compatible with respect to belief, but their colleges also reflected a common understanding of the nature and needs of man.

Often the stated reason for proposing the separation of church and college is that the state is now ably serving the educational needs of the people. In a large measure this is correct. Few persons can fail to admire the great system of public education created as a base for the dream of democracy. But we live in many states — the concerned state, the insensitive state, the demanding state, the giving state, the custodial state, the imposing state, and so on. There is no given state and the state is not constant. Subjectively, we love and we hate; we accept and we reject, and we are the state. Even now Sweden prepares to force the closing of its private educational institutions.

Certainly the federal state we know best appears not to be searching for ways to accommodate the private church-related college, and who would turn the church-related college over to a state whose priorities and policies lurched unevenly in unpredictable directions, creating and destroying with an uneven blindness. Benign neglect itself is not neutral. Close down or tender to the state the hundreds of private, church-related colleges in this country and one creates a different country. Instantly. And value judgments must then be made. Many who devote their lives to the church-related college would claim a special consideration for the fact that, in the larger sense, they are serving a crucial public interest — one far more crucial to man's freedom to develop all his capacities than is served by some other more easily recognized and traditional public interest groups.

Separate the colleges from the church and each is likely to suffer with respect to mission. The church is whole with its colleges; the colleges are not whole without the church. The denominations that give birth to the special concept of educational service in the marketplace cannot safely deny their past. The marketplace would not be the same without the educational institutions of the church.

Life is a celebration — a spiritual, intellectual-social continuum. And it is in celebration of life that church-related institutions were established. It is in that celebration that they must live.

It is always a pleasure to express my personal appreciation to our Alumni, trustees, faculty, students, and friends for their vital and important interest in the College. Without such support, High Point College would not have the significant characteristics which she has in Christian higher education.

While we have just ended a good year in the College's history, our thoughts are now turning to an even better year with the approaching of the 1973-74 Annual Alumni Fund. We are grateful to every Alumnus who put countless hours into their assigned duties. You have the satisfaction of rendering service to your Alma Mater which, in many instances, went beyond the call of duty.

Alumni support through the Annual Fund is most important to all of us if High Point College is to continue its improvement in the various phases of her life and work. Financial pressures constantly bombard us. Yet, remember, your interests and gifts permit us to accomplish certain programs which otherwise would not be possible.

Please accept my sincere thanks for your concern to make a good College better.

This fall publication contains some of the most exciting information yet seen by our Alumni Association. New ideals and services will be in the offering with the assistance of our new Director of Alumni Affairs.

May I urge you to contribute information to the Alumni Office about yourselves in order that your friends will know where you are and what you are doing.

As you read through the pages of this issue of Highpoints you will find a report of the 1972-73 Annual Alumni Fund. Perhaps it does not reflect the most rewarding year, monetarily, but it does show that High Point College Alumni are interested in the future of their Alma Mater. I would like to express my personal appreciation to those of you who worked so hard to make this possible.

As your new officers are already planning ahead for future activities, especially with our Fiftieth Anniversary near at hand, we need your suggestions and ideas so that we can best serve you. Please let us hear from you in order that we can best fulfill your needs.

To Our Annual Alumni Fund Chairmen -- "Thank You"

Mr. Webster states that a chairman is "the presiding officer of a meeting or an organization or committee," but our National Chairman and Advanced Gifts Chairman for the annual fund in 1972-73 did more than preside; they worked and worked hard to make the campaign a success. Dr. L. B. Holt, Class of 1940, National Chairman and Michael B. Fleming, Class of 1949, Advanced Gifts Chairman, are prime examples of busy men getting the job done.

Dr. Holt, an internationally recognized eye-surgeon, practicing in Winston-Salem, North Carolina, has been an active leader in the work of the North Carolina Eye & Human Tissue Bank, Incorporated. In spite of his busy schedule he has always found time to give to the interests of the High Point College Alumni Association.

Mike Fleming, Secretary-Treasurer of Fleming-Shaw Transfer & Storage, Incorporated in Greensboro, North Carolina has been an active worker for the Alumni Association since his graduation. He holds the rank of Captain in the United States Navy Reserve and is a leader in community affairs in Greensboro.

We extend a sincere "thank you" to these two gentlemen for their excellent leadership and to the many others who worked so hard to make the 1972-73 campaign a success.

We Are Grateful

The generosity of the High Point Community and the members of the North Carolina Methodist Protestant Church made it possible for High Point College to open its doors to students for the first time in September, 1924. "There were four (4) buildings, a muddy campus and 122 students" according to an early report on the opening of the College.

As High Point College enters its fiftieth year, leading to its Golden Anniversary in September, 1974, there are twentieth-three (23) buildings, a larger landscaped campus and over 1,000 students. An added dimension, which is most important to any college, is a strong Alumni Association of over 7,500 members. The generous sharing by the High Point Community and the now United Methodist Church did not stop with their original gifts and many other individuals, corporations, alumni and foundations have been added to an ever growing list of contributors. The continued growth and progress of the College would not have been possible without this generous assistance. For this we are truly grateful.

1972-73 was another important year for the College in its relationship with its many friends. Total gifts for the year reached nearly a half-million dollars, the second highest total for gifts received in one year.

The endowment fund has grown steadily through gifts specified for this use and the income generated by this fund is a welcome addition to the monies available for scholarships and specific budget items.

During this Golden Anniversary year the final phase of the Golden Decade Fund Campaign will take place with a goal of $2,500,000. Funds from this campaign will be used for construction of a learning resources center, improvements and additions to the physical education facilities and additions to the endowment fund. We again look to our friends for support of this vital program dedicated to satisfying long unmet needs and for continuing annual support for the general operating budget.

The following are the financial highlights for the year.

The Finch Lectures:

OCTOBER 3

The featured speaker for the 1973 Finch Lectures and Ministers' Appreciation Day, to be observed at the College on October 3, will be Dr. Thomas A. Langford, Dean of Duke Divinity School and Professor of Systematic Theology. A native of Winston-Salem, North Carolina, and reared in Charlotte, North Carolina, Dr. Langford received the Bachelor of Arts degree from Davidson College, the Bachelor of Divinity degree from Duke University, and the Doctor of Philosophy degree from Duke University. He is married to the former Miss Ann Marie Daniel, and they are the parents of four sons: Thomas A., III; James Howard; Timothy Daniel; and, Stephen Hughes.

During his days as a student, Dr. Langford served as a student pastor of two North Carolina United Methodist Churches, the Huntersville Church and the Hebron Charge in Monroe. Later, he was assistant pastor of Mebane United Methodist Church.

Our featured speaker became a member of Duke University's Department of Religion in 1956, and in 1965 was elevated to the chairmanship of the department. This position he held until 1971 when he assumed the deanship of the Divinity School.

His fields of concentration are Contemporary Theology and Philosophy of Religion, and Twentieth Century British Theology. In these areas he is widely known as the recipient of several fellowships, as well as the author of a wide field of books and a contributor to numerous periodicals.

Dr. Langford has presented theological lectures throughout the United States during the past several years. More recently in October of 1972 he was guest lecturer at the United Methodist Annual Chaplains Retreat in Berchtesgaden, Germany and in July of this year he spoke to the Fifth Oxford Institute on Methodist Theological Studies, Lincoln College in Oxford, England.

At Duke University, Dr. Langford is active in student — faculty-administrative relationships and the Duke Alumni Association. Currently, he is chairman of the selection committee for the Dean of Trinity College, the undergraduate school of the University.

The Finch Lectures, delivered annually at High Point College, are made possible through funds given to the College by the Charles F. Finch Foundation of Thomasville, North Carolina.

The Charles F. Finch Foundation is a benevolent corporation, established by members of the Finch Family. In 1959 a gift was made to the College, the income to be used for the benefit of the Department of Religion. The faculty of the Department decided to use the income to bring to the campus each year a distinguished visitor to lecture in the area of current theology.

Ministers' Appreciation Day is an annual event at High Point College. The day is observed to recognize the clergymen of the United Methodist Church of both North Carolina Conferences.

The public is invited to attend the Finch Lectures which will be delivered in Memorial Auditorium on the College campus.

News from the Campus

Rankin Selected National Chairman

Robert B. Rankin, a partner in the insurance firm of Haywood and Rankin, High Point, North Carolina, has been selected by High Point College Alumni Association's Executive Committee as the National Chairman of the 1973-74 Annual Alumni Fund. Our Alumni will remember that Mr. Rankin served as president of our Alumni Association during 1969-71, after executing the office of vice president during a previous two years.

A graduate of the Class of 1938, he was a member of the Alumni Association's Executive Committee prior to being vice president, and in 1967-68 was chairman of the High Point phase of the Alumni Fund Drive.

In addition to an unwavering interest in his Alma Mater, Mr. Rankin is involved in several civic and religious activities which includes American Red Cross, High Point's Historical Society, and Rotary International. He and his wife are members of First United Methodist Church in High Point.

Class Agents Needed

Plans for the 1973-74 Annual Alumni Fund are now underway for this coming fall and spring. As a part of the program, class agents will be a vital part in accomplishing the various activities during the drive for the Alumni Fund. Class agents are requested to write personal notes to approximately ten assigned members of their respective class, asking those members to contribute a gift to High Point College. In some instances follow-up notes are desirable. (All materials are supplied by the Alumni Office to the class agents.)

If you would volunteer as a class agent, please contact the Alumni Office, and in turn your name and address will be forwarded to your Class Chairman.

"Camelot" --- November 1, 2, & 3

On November 1, 2, & 3, during Parents' Day Weekend, the Allen J. Learner and Frederick Loewe musical, "Camelot," will be presented by the College's Fine Arts Department. The performance will be each evening at 8:15 in Memorial Auditorium. Reservations are preferred. The production will be under the direction of Miss Sandra Lee Epperson and William K. Highbaugh, musical director.

In January, during the interim term, the cast will travel for three weeks in Western North Carolina.

Fall Session Now Underway

On September 2 new students arrived on the campus, and their orientation began that day and continued through September 5. During the orientation program which acquaints new students with the many phases of college life, English and foreign language tests were given on September 3, and the Class of 1977 registered on September 4.

Classes for all High Point College students began on September 6.

What About Scholarships?

Throughout the year many students and their parents look hard at the family budget, trying to determine just how they will meet the cost of a college education. In turn, our Financial Aid Office receives many inquiries about available scholarship money which can be used to defray some of the expense which the student will have during his stay at High Point.

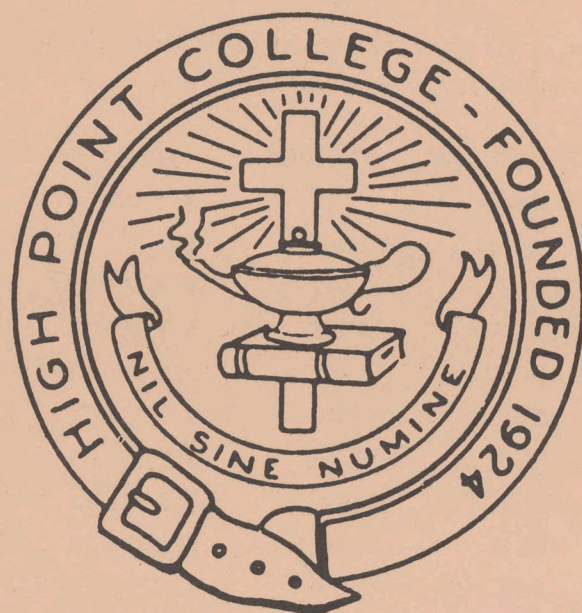

We are fortunate in that there are more than sixty scholarships available to our students in need of assistance. Many of these scholarships are endowed to insure their availability year after year. All scholarships have been established through the generosity of individuals or businesses having a desire to do something for someone else and in many cases to honor the memory of some loved person.

Many people are unaware that it is possible to contribute to a scholarship fund at High Point even though

Alumni Honor Roll

1972-73

The Annual Alumni Fund

On the following pages of this section of Highpoints, you will find the annual report of the ANNUAL ALUMNI FUND for the fiscal year, June 1, 1972-May 31, 1973.

The total number of Alumni contributors for the past year was 1424, compared with last year's report of 1521. Alumni contributions in the current report totaled $76,986.59 and may be compared with the $105,610.37 reported last year. The following material reflects an approximate $54.06 given by each contributing Alumnus. (The national average of colleges, universities, and pre-college schools is at a current level of $66.54.)

Alumni support is most needful if High Point College is to continue providing quality Christian higher education. The Alumni Association wishes to express appreciation to each contributor. With these gifts the College can accomplish several projects which otherwise would not be possible. You are encouraged to make your Alumni contribution annually.

The Encore Club

Alumni who have given to the College for at least two consecutive years are members of The Encore Club. Members of The Encore Club are designated with an (E) after their names in the following pages.

Centurion Club

The Centurion Club was established by the Alumni Association in 1964 to recognize alumni who contribute a minimum of one hundred dollars to High Point College during any one fiscal year. Non-alumni may become members by giving one hundred dollars, or more, to the Annual Alumni Fund.

The following 101 couples, or individuals, who comprise the 1972-73 Centurion Club were responsible for personal donations of $58,634.33 to the College between June 1, 1972 and May 31, 1973.

CORPORATE MATCHING GIFTS

University and college alumni in 452 leading companies and corporations throughout the nation have been given the opportunity to double their gifts to Alma Mater through a program generally known as the "corporate alumnus" plan. Under this plan many concerns match, dollar for dollar, alumni contributions made by their employees. In this manner, the alumnus can receive credit for giving double the amount he himself actually gives.

High Point College received $1,316.60 in matching gifts during the High Point College 1972-73 Annual Alumni Fund Drive.

Companies which matched employees gifts during the fiscal year ending May 31, 1973 are as follows:

Abbott Laboratories Fund
 American Home Products
 Burlington Industries
 Foundation
 Eaton Corporation
 Gulf Oil Foundation
 Hanes Hosiery
 Hercules Incorporated
 Jefferson-Pilot Broadcasting

IN PRAISE OF ALMA MATER

To Alma Mater sing we now;
To thee all loyalty we vow;
In knowledge, faith, humility —
Of thee we would be worthy.
Thy motto may we all obey,
nil sine numine

May we thy children learn to pray
And walk with Alma Mater.

When from these halls we must depart,
Nurtured in each grateful heart
Will be the warmth of friendly days
Enjoyed along thy pathways.
When on our ears thy name shall fall,
It will be a herald trumpet's call
To hail thee college, queen of all,
Oh well loved Alma Mater.

The mind's eye sees the campus green,
The mind's ear hears a sound serene —
A cherished hymn from bell tower rings;
Remembered be thy blessings.
Throughout our lives in accents clear
The chords of memory draw us near
To sing again a song sincere
In praise of Alma Mater.

— Lew J. Lewis

they may not have what may be considered ample money to establish an individual scholarship. Many contributors to the College will designate that their gift be used for the General Scholarship Fund or a specific fund which has been established by a group of individuals to honor a friend or associate whom they have admired. Among the type of scholarships are the following: Louise Adams Alumni Scholarship, Dr. Dan B. Cooke Scholarship, David Culler Scholarship, Rik Highbaugh Memorial Scholarship, Lindley Memorial Scholarship, and Virgil Yow Scholarship.

Giving for scholarship purposes is an excellent way to play a part in the work of giving direct assistance to a student who may not find it possible to obtain a college education without such assistance. Inquiries concerning scholarship funds at High Point College may be directed to the College Affairs Office.

Scholarships Awarded

As of August 15, eighty-nine High Point College students were listed as recipients of various scholarships for the 1973-74 academic year. HPC History Being Prepared

Dr. William R. Locke, recently retired chairman of the Religion and Philosophy Department, is currently writing a history of High Point College from its beginning in 1924 through 1974. Dr. Locke is pursuing historical research and plans to conduct interviews with people who have first-hand recollections of High Point College.

Concerning possible interviews, Dr. Locke said, "I want to talk to people who have memories as well as those who have things they want to tell. Also, I am desiring human interest and a record of the high ideals, personal contributions and sacrifices which have been made by church people and those of the community as well as those of the faculty and the student body." Dr. Locke urges potential interviewers to write him c/o High Point College, and he will arrange an interview with them.

Dr. Locke is seeking certain issues of the Hi-Po. "If anyone has copies of the Hi-Po from 1942-1957, please let us know about them," stated Dr. Locke. (It may be that our Alumni have some of the above mentioned copies. If you would be willing to share them for historical purposes, mail or bring them to Dr. Locke, c/o High Point College.)

An Editorial Advisory Committee is assisting Dr. Locke. The committee is composed of Dr. Harold E. Conrad, former Dean of the College; Cletus H. Kruyer, Vice President for College Affairs; and Robert B. Rankin, Class of '38, former President of the High Point College Alumni Association.

The retired chairman of the Religion and Philosophy Department is maintaining an office on the College campus in Hayworth Hall for the purpose of writing this historical work on High Point College.

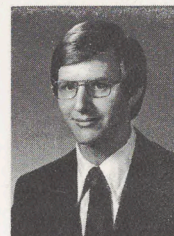

Bible Lands Pilgrimage -- '74

During the interim term in January '74 the Department of Religion will again sponsor a Bible Lands Pilgrimage. The travel arrangements will be handled by a reliable international tour company. This is an opportunity for the college family and its friends to visit the places where Jesus walked, taught, and lived His earthly life. On the tour, the Bible will come alive for you, and a renewed faith and enriching friendship can be yours.

If you are interested in the Holy Land tour, contact Dr. Owen M. Weatherly, % Department of Religion, High Point College for dates and prices of the tour.

Meet New Faculty Members

Several new individuals are on the High Point College faculty this fall. They are in various departments on the campus, and Highpoints uses this means of extending to each of them a welcome from Alumni and the High Point College faculty.

GEORGE DOUGLAS CARROLL, a native of Roseboro, North Carolina is an assistant professor of geography. He received the Bachelor of Science degree from Appalachian

State University, and the Master of Arts degree from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill where he is a candidate for the Doctor of Philosophy degree. Previously, he has been a science teacher at Jamestown and Mendenhall Junior High Schools in North Carolina. He is a member of the National Council for Geographic Education, the Association for American Geographers, Kappa Delta Pi, Alpha Chi, Sedgefield Civitan Club, and Jamestown United Methodist Church.

E. VANCE DAVIS has joined the faculty as an assistant professor of religion after recently serving as associate pastor of Central United Methodist Church in Asheboro, North Carolina. His former pastorates have included Quakertown United Methodist Church in New Jersey, and Highlands United Methodist Church in North Carolina. Dr. Davis was a member of the faculty at Union College (New Jersey) from 1970-71. His degrees include the Bachelor of Arts from High Point College, the Bachelor of Divinity from Yale University (Connecticut), and the Doctor of Philosophy from Drew University (New Jersey). Dr. Davis is a former member of the Highlands Rotary Club, and while living in New Jersey, he was a part of the Juvenile Conference Committee in Hunterdon County. Married to the former Miss Bettie Ferguson, they have two children.

Associate professor of human relations HAROLD E. FULLER JR., of Chester, Virginia, received the Bachelor of Science degree from Boston University (Massachusetts), the Master of Education from the University of North Carolina, the Master of Divinity from Columbia Theological Seminary (Georgia), and the A. G. S. and Doctor of Education degrees from the University of Virginia. Previously, Dr. Fuller was a counselor at John Tyler Community College (Virginia), and he has taught on the secondary level in South Carolina. A minister of the Presbyterian Church, his pastorates have included Tabb Street Church in Petersburg, Virginia, and Dallas Church in LaGrange, Georgia. He has served as a chaplain with the United States Navy, and Dr. Fuller is active in Kiwanis, American Personnel and Guidance Association, National Vocational Guidance Association, and American College Personnel Association.

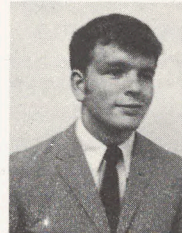

High Point's new chairman of the Mathematics Department is NELSON F. PAGE. He has joined the faculty as an associate professor, after being a member of the faculty at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro since 1967. Dr. Page received three degrees from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill — The Bachelor of Arts, the Master of Arts, and the Doctor of Philosophy. During 1963-66, he was a recipient of a fellowship sponsored by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration which was used in teaching and research at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Dr. Page is a member of Pi Mu Epsilon, American Mathematical Society, Mathematical Association of America, Common Cause, and the Environmental Defense Fund. A native of Salisbury, North Carolina, he is active in the United Methodist Church. He is married to the former Miss Betty Ann Lupberger, and they are the parents of two children, ages five and seven.

A native of Marion, Ohio, EDWARD J. PIACENTINO has joined the HPC faculty as an assistant professor of English. He comes to the College from Durham Technical Institute where he was an English instructor. He received the Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, the Master of Arts from Georgetown University (District of Columbia), and is a candidate for the Doctor of Philosophy degree at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Mr. Piacentino is a member of the Modern Language Association and during the summers of 1962-67 he was waterfront director and camp counselor at Our Lady of the Hills Camp in Hendersonville, North Carolina. He is married to the former Miss Bonnie Ross.

JACQUELINE PALMER, a native of Concord, Massachusetts is returning to HPC to be an assistant professor in physical education. During the academic year of 1971-72, she was a member of our faculty. Miss Palmer received her Bachelor of Science degree from the University of Bridgeport (Connecticut), and her Master of Arts degree from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. She worked for the Simsbury Board of Education from 1966-68 and was an associate counselor and graduate assistant at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro from 1968-70.

EDWIN L. PLOWMAN is a member of the Sociology Department. He received his Bachelor of Arts degree from North Carolina State University at Raleigh and the Master of Theology degree from Boston University (Massachusetts) where he is a candidate for the Doctor of Philosophy degree. A minister of the United Methodist Church he has served as a counselor and minister of youth activities.

An assistant professor of education, LAWRENCE H. SIMON, joined the new group of faculty members. A native of Camp Lejeune, North Carolina, he received the Bachelor of Arts and the Master of Arts in Teaching degrees from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He has taught with the Burlington and High Point City School systems, and more recently has been working on his doctoral program at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. Mr. Simon is a member of the Student Association of Graduates in Education and the National Education Association.

News from Alumni

Your Alumni magazine depends upon your contributions to keep "News from Alumni" interesting, up-to-date, and informative. You can help us further by being careful to include all the necessary information including employment, degrees, names, dates, present address, years of attendance or graduation, and by being sure that the material is typed or carefully written. Mail news items to The Editor, Highpoints, Alumni Association, High Point College, High Point, North Carolina 27262. Changes of mailing address should be sent to the above.

Dr. Wendell M. Patton addresses Newcomen Society Dinner.

Registration at Parents' Day.

Bishop Earl G. Hunt leads dedication of Holt McPherson Campus Center.

November 1-4 --- Significant Weekend At HPC

The weekend of November 1-4 presented significant opportunities in the life of High Point College. Some such opportunities are rare indeed for a small, four year Church related college. These occurrences were welcomed, and those leading the programs sought to execute them with fervor and zeal—maintaining the high standards of High Point College.

NOVEMBER 1

The Newcomen Society in North America honored the College's fiftieth anniversary year at their North Carolina dinner at Top-of-the-Mart in High Point. Dr. Wendell M. Patton, Jr., president of the College was the guest of honor and speaker for the occasion. The two-hundred and eighty-three persons in attendance heard President Patton recapitulate the basic history of the institution for the beginning through today. The theme of the address was that of tragedy to triumph as Dr. Patton traced a precarious beginning through a major depression, financial uncertainty, and difficulties incident to church union, all of which mysteriously led to the phenomenon that High Point College is truly a miracle in education.

The Newcomen Society in North America is a non-profit educational membership corporation with the expressed purpose of increasing knowledge and appreciation for the free enterprise system through studies of business, institutional, and industrial histories.

NOVEMBER 2

The Trustees of the College were on the campus for their fall meeting, at which time they visited regularly scheduled classes for any Friday. During their annual meeting, they re-elected their officers who are Holt McPherson, chairman; Horace S. Haworth, vice-chairman; Charles E. Hayworth, treasurer; Dr. Wendell M. Patton, secretary; and, Earle G. Dalbey, assistant secretary. The trustees approved a record budget of $2,883,000.

Robert T. Amos, Jr. and Robert B. Rankin, Class of '38, were elected trustees of the College replacing Charles Dunn of Raleigh, North Carolina who resigned his board membership, and Arnold J. Koonce who was elevated to the status of trustee emeritus. Amos is president of Amos Hosiery Mill, Incorporated, High Point, and Rankin is secretary-treasurer of Haywood and Rankin Insurance Agency in High Point. Rankin is national chairman of the 1973-74 Annual Alumni Fund at the College.

NOVEMBER 3

Parents' Day — 1973 was highlighted by the visit of Bishop Earl G. Hunt, presiding bishop of the Western North Carolina Conference of the United Methodist Church. After registration and a coffee hour, Bishop Hunt delivered an inspiring address to the parents at 10:15 in Memorial Auditorium at which time he told them how they could best assist their sons/daughters attending High Point College.

The dedication of the Holt McPherson Campus Center at 11:00 was presided over by Bishop Hunt.

At 1:30 p.m. the parents had an opportunity to meet with their son's/daughter's professors. "The High Point College Story," a slide presentation in conjunction with the Golden Decade program, was viewed at 3:00 in Haworth Hall.

A family dinner began at 5:30, students, faculty, staff, and administration in the Holt McPherson Campus Center.

NOVEMBER 4

Sunday morning worship services were held for parents and the college family at 11:00 in The Charles E. Hayworth Memorial Chapel. The Reverend Charles P. Teague, college chaplain, conducted the services.

On Sunday Evening at 6:30, the Tower Players presented their final production of "Camelot" which began on November 2. For three evenings the era of knighthood and chivalry came alive with the Fine Arts Department's production. Under the director, Sandra L. Epperson; musical director, William K. Highbaugh; and choreographer, Rita Hibbett, the Tower Players undertook a difficult script by Lerner and Loewe and performed well.

Golden Decade Of Progress

In 1962 a long-range planning committee composed of the Administration, Faculty, Trustees, Alumni, and students presented to the Board of Trustees a ten-year projection of needs. The plan was adopted, and the Golden Decade Fund was launched in 1964 to acquire funds to meet the needs.

The first two phases of the program produced funds to build a new science hall, an infirmary, a new dormitory, the chapel, and the campus center. All of these facilities are in operation and have added substantially to the service offered by the College to the student body and to our community.

In addition to brick and mortar, our endowment was increased and additional real estate, bordering the original campus, has been obtained.

On Tuesday, November 20, a Press Conference Luncheon was held in the private dining room of the Holt McPherson Campus Center to announce the beginning of the third phase of the Golden Decade Fund. The goal for this phase was announced as a minimum of $2,150,000. The priority projects are endowment, an addition to the library, and an addition to Alumni Gymnasium to provide for new physical education facilities.

In discussing the coming campaign, Dr. Patton stated that "High Point College has built a cherished tradition of service to this community and region, to young people, and to our democratic institutions. We honor this tradition and rededicate ourselves to the enduring values of Christian-centered education as we observe the fiftieth anniversary year of the College."

The fact that High Point College has done everything it said it would do at the beginning of the Golden Decade shows that it has kept the faith with those who contributed to the program. The College has demonstrated complete accountability and earned the trust of all those who have invested in it over the years.

Dr. Charles F. Carroll, a Trustee of the College and former Superintendent for Public Instruction for North Carolina, agreed to be the general chairman for the third phase campaign. His statement at the time of accepting the leadership position was as follows: "I agreed to lead the campaign to acquire these funds because I know the need is great and the goal attainable. Past performance convinces me that the money will be spent wisely and constructively. A concerted effort by all High Point College's friends and alumni can move the College ahead. The alternative is to stand still, and to stand still today is to fall behind."

It is hoped that as the Annual Alumni Fund gets under way that each alumnus will consider this a very special time in the life of our College and will participate in the giving program either through a gift, or increased gift, to the Annual Fund, or will make a pledge to the Golden Decade Campaign. We will make every effort to increase alumni participation this year in order to make it the most successful we have ever had in numbers of givers as well as dollars contributed.

Information on the Golden Decade Campaign can be obtained by writing to your Alumni Office.

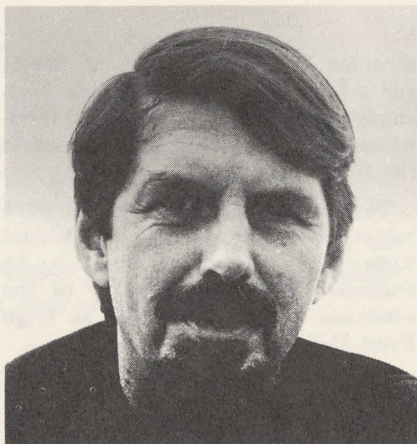

POETRY FESTIVAL: October 19-20

by Emily B. Sullivan,
Associate Professor of English

The Phoenix I Literary Festival, sponsored by the English Club of High Point College, was honored to present Mr. Robert Creeley for a Poetry Reading on Friday Evening, October 19, and for a poetry workshop on Saturday, October 20. Mr. Creeley, whose poetry has been translated into language all over the world, is rapidly becoming the leading spokesman for the younger poets who have dared break with dogmas of T. S. Eliot's objective, classical tradition. While retaining some of the crisp, clear images of the early twentieth century poetry, these new poets have looked inward to find expression for the most personal kind of experience. Mr. Creeley says, "I feel that one writes best in relation to local, personal circumstances. I have no sense of an audience beyond immediate friends, or those I might conceive of as such."

From the very moment Mr. Creeley stepped in front of his crowded audience in the Old Student Center on October 19 until time for his departure to Auburn University on October 21, he very openly conceived of all of his listeners as his immediate friends. It was as if he had always known each person in this audience and in turn each person had known him. He read his poems with the intensity of the moment in which he had first written the words. The listeners in this darkened room, lighted only by the flickering flames of a long fire, shared in the rhythm, in the movement, and in the emotions. The audience did not need to be told that a new voice was in their midst; they became part of that voice, of that world of total honesty, of stark simplicity; they shared in that momentary flash of recognition, of awareness.

The flight from San Francisco to High Point on that Friday had been an all-day journey, but Mr. Creeley continued talking with students until the clock had long since chimed midnight. Even so, he was again at the

Robert Creeley

Campus Center at 8:30 the next morning, ready for a community breakfast and for individual conferences with students from all over North Carolina: Charlotte, Reidsville, Durham, Kannapolis, Winston-Salem, Statesville, and from other nearby town. Each student came away from his conference with a gleam in his eye and with a sharpened impression of his own creative decisiveness. Mr. Creeley judged each poem with such fervor that additional awards had to be presented. Even late that night he could remember lines from some of these poems that had won awards. That afternoon he read again from his poetry during the award ceremony, and offered comments on his poetic credo before the festival concluded its workshop with the honoring of five young poets from Durham, Statesville, Charlotte, Winston-Salem, and High Point College.

Members of the Phoenix Club listened to Mr. Creeley until the small hours of Sunday Morning as he talked of Samuel Beshett, John Milton's Paradise Regained of Comus' morality, all intertwined with personal vignettes of Bobbi (his wife), of his New England boyhood, of Burma in World War II, where he lost his sight in one eye. Through all his sayings a driving intellectual honesty leaves his listeners completely demasked. His mind is like a prism; his words are completely chiseled. All who listened agreed with the young award winning poet from Durham High, who loudly and proudly proclaimed, "Mr. Robert Creeley is now my favorite poet!"

The touch of a poet on a student's mind will not soon be erased.

Good Prospects For The Panthers

Coach Jerry Steele, beginning his second year at the helm of the High Point College basketball team, sees many good things for the coming season.

Steele will have eight returning lettermen this year, including senior pivot-man Pete Collins.

Collins, the team captain, averaged sixteen points and thirteen rebounds a game last year. He has the potential to be one of the best players in the conference as well as an All-American candidate. It is Collins's performance as a player and a leader on which much of the Panther hopes lie.

Returning with Collins in the front court are 6-7 junior Bob Aylmer, who is likely starter at forward, Jeff Stewart a 6-7 senior forward, and 6-8 sophomore Dave Mengerling who will back up Collins at center.

Returning in the backcourt are 5-10 sophomore Paul Cloud, 5-10 junior Gregg Bennett, and sophomore Mike Glover who is 6-1.

Also returning is 6-2 sophomore Ron Schott who alternates at the guard and forward positions.

One can see why Steele has reason to be proud when they see the performance of his high school all-stars Ray Coble and Pearlee Shaw. Both are good bets to make the starting team. Coble as a 6-3 guard and Shaw as a 6-6 forward.

Steele feels that Shaw and Coble both need a little experience yet, but with time they have the potential to be standouts.

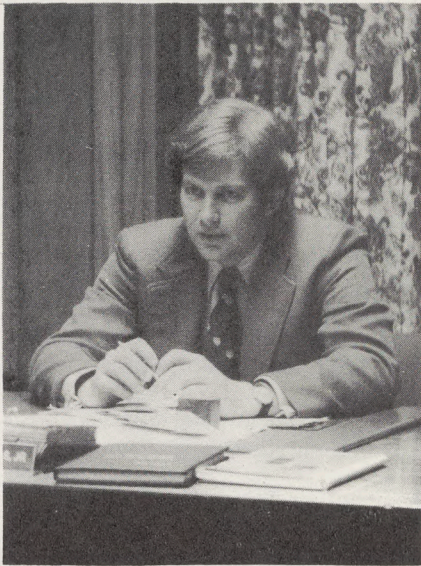

Palmer Junior College transfer Paul Mattox, a 6-2 guard, has also impressed Steele with his abilities. He averaged 19 points a game and had over 1,000 points in his two years at Palmer.

Pat Duffy is the other newcomer, and he could see considerable action as a swing man if he continues to improve.

When one looks at Steele's past record at other schools where he has coached, particularly Guilford College, it is easy to see that he knows what he is talking about. This could be the year of the Panther.

Alumni Assistance In Recruiting

Robert A. Wells, Jr., Director of Admissions

Through the years, High Point College has been fortunate to have a reliable and helpful Alumni to compose part of her constituents. Former Students and graduates of the College have a unique interest in the general welfare for the institution which in many instances has served as a stepping stone for further academic pursuits; for othess, the acquired education to High Point College has been sufficient for various occupations.

The Director of Admissions, Robert A. Wells, Jr., invites you to recommend good, qualified students who are capable of taking advantage of the multiple academic programs. Candidly, Wells has stated. "Securing reliable students through an interested Alumni Association is an overwhelming asset to any institution. High Point College is very fortunate to have students of former years who are willing to recommend their Alma Mater to those interested in a credible academic undertaking."

In the midst of an energy crisis, the Admissions Office is implementing several programs for securing students. One such method is that of the Alumni taking some initiative for the enrollment for the fall of 1974. Our Alumni will readily realize this importance for the institution when the consider the vast amount of travel our admissions personnel have been engaged in during past years. Obviously, such travel will be curtailed in the future.

You are invited to clip the card below and forward it to our Admissions Office, recommending those students you deem worthy of the academic pursuits available at High Point College.

HPC Complying With With Energy Crisis

High Point College has already taken action to begin complying with President Nixon's request to conserve America's energy and fuel resources. College president, Dr. Wendell M. Patton, sent out directives on Friday, November 9, requesting that the school conserve on the amount of electricity and other fuels used at the college.

"The college will make every effort to comply with President Nixon's request," said Dr. Patton.

Officials at the College are requesting that no College vehicle on trips anywhere, be driven in excess of 50 mph except for an emergency.

"The College will reduce the temperature in all of its buildings by 6 degrees," said Dr. Patton. "We will try to maintain a temperature level between 65 degrees & 66 degrees," he said. Further reductions, where possible, will be made during nighttime hours.

A road tour of High Point College's production of the popular musical, "Camelot", has been canceled as a result of the energy crisis. The College had planned to tour the show in January and to present "Camelot" at several public schools in Western Carolina. College officials have expressed regret of the cancellation of the road tour because of the quality of the program. However, it appears that with the impending gasoline shortage as well as the necessity of public schools to cut off heat during evening hours it would not be in keeping with North Carolina's best interests during an emergency situation.

Holiday Schedule Announced

The High Point College holiday schedule has been announced by Earle G. Dalbey, vice-president for Business and Financial Affairs. College offices will be closed for Christmas on December 24, 25, and 26. Likewise, the college administrative offices will be closed in observance for New Year's, December 31, January 1, and 2. If you should be planning to visit the campus during the holiday season please observe the above dates.
