"LET'S DO SOMETHING about the food problem," they said; and they did. 345 High Point College students fasted on Tuesday, December 4 so a $690 contribution could be made to the Urban Ministry of High Point. Three-fourths of the money went on to world hunger relief and one-fourth went to local relief.

For every student who pledged not to eat, the College agreed to forward $2.00 to Urban Ministry.

The fast was organized by Kevin Whalen, freshman from Whippany, New Jersey. The plan was approved by college officials and names were gathered.

Dr. Rozzelle, prominent Methodist minister

"INSPIRING, INFLUENTIAL, dramatic, a well read man, a servant of God" — all are descriptive of C. Excelle Rozzelle whose long, earthly life came to a close on November 14 of last year. Many Alumni and friends of the College remember Dr. Rozzelle for his presentation of the gospel of Jesus Christ in lively, reverberating tones of oratory. A person of exceptional ability, he never forgot personal dedication and was always available when his fellow man needed him.

Born in Mount Holly on September 22, 1891, he was the son of Ella Cannon and Augustus Caldwell Rozzelle. He received his education at Trinity College (Duke University), Vanderbilt and Emory Universities; High Point College awarded him the Doctor of Divinity degree in 1942. In 1920 he married the former Mary Lee Greene who survives him along with their daughter, Mrs. Raymond R. (Carolina) Simmons, his son-in-law, and three granddaughters.

He delivered his first sermon at Cotton Grove Church near Lexington when he was 17. His first pastorate was Hickory Grove Church near Charlotte when he was 21. While a student at Emory University he contracted tuberculosis of the throat. During his illness he went to Texas where he rode a 45-mile circuit, preaching in eight churches, from 1914-19. Of his illness he said, "I have outlived all the doctors who gave me up and all the insurance men who refused to give me insurance!" Upon his return from Texas, he served as principal of Mount Holly High School.

He served one pastorate in the N.C. Conference (at Chapel Hill, 1927-31) and was twice district superintendent (Thomasville and Winston-Salem). His pastorates in the Western N.C. Conference included Myers Park, Charlotte; First, Lenoir; Main Street, Gastonia; Wesley Memorial, High Point; and, Ardmore, Winston-Salem. In 1953 he was appointed Professor of Religion and Philosophy at High Point College, a post he held until 1957. Dr. Rozzelle's last speaking engagement on the High Point campus was on April 30, 1974 when he addressed the past presidents of the Alumni Association at a dinner honoring them. (A copy of his address is available upon request from the Alumni Office.)

For nearly 20 years he was a contributor to The High Point Enterprise writing "Sunday Sermon." An earthy man, his final editorial was entitled "In Praise of Sodium Chloride" (St. Matthew 5:13).

Memorial services were conducted at Ardmore United Methodist Church on November 16. The officiating clergymen were his pastors, The Reverends Gene H. Little and John W. Lockman '69, and Dr. D. Edwin Bailey. Burial was at Forsyth Memorial Park.

Accreditation continued after Evaluation by association

HIGH POINT COLLEGE has won re-accreditation as a member of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. The continued accreditation was announced at the annual meeting in Houston in December. College officials expected the favorable action.

The evaluation committee of the Association visited the College early in 1974 to observe operations of the academic, financial, physical plant management, and student personnel departments.

The committee's report described the overall curricular offerings as "commendable," and said there is evidence of "on-going review of the curriculum on the part of the entire faculty within each department."

The involvement of students in field experiences as part of the requirements in several departments was seen as "reflecting the desire of the College to achieve the purpose of encouraging students and faculty to take an active part in service serving the community."

The report recognized that the College must compete for new students with the "less expensive state schools, especially community colleges." The competition makes its admissions task difficult.

"There is no indication, however," said the report, "that the Admissions Office is deliberately lowering its standards to maintain adequate enrollment."

The visiting committee who observed the College is "interested in the total student and not a fragmented rank in class or the SAT score." New students are accepted on the basis of secondary school grades, SAT scores, and certain recommendations.

While the report said the present library building is "inadequate," the book collection and other resource items received no negative comments. The College has plans to provide additional library space.

History of College soon ready

"NO EASY TASK" is the title of the history of High Point College written by Dr. William R. Locke, soon to be available from the printer. The hardback volume recounts the numerous difficulties surrounding the founding of the College and its struggle to survive the Depression of the 1930's.

The history was commissioned in connection with the 50th anniversary of the college, founded in 1924.

Pre-publication price for the book is $4.95. A clip-out order blank is printed at the top of this page. Following publication and general release in the spring, the price will be $5.95. The book will be available in the college Bookstore; there will be a charge of $1.00 for shipping and handling mail orders.

In writing the history, Dr. Locke gathered records from the Journal of the Annual Conference, the minutes of trustee meetings, the Methodist Protestant Herald, and many other sources. He talked with a number of the first professors and students.

The volume is a limited edition and no additional printings are planned; orders will be filled as they are received.

College seeking $27,000 for Annual Alumni Fund

THE ANNUAL ALUMNI FUND for 1975 is underway with a goal of $27,000. All alumni are being given an opportunity to contribute to the Fund, now in its fifteenth year at High Point College. The first of two mailing pieces about the Fund is being sent to all alumni during January-February. It explains that the goal can be achieved through the right number of contributions in the right amounts.

Class Chairman and the Class Agents will contact alumni for the Fund. 75% of the classes are chaired. Many alumni and former students will hear from classmates for the first time in a long while.

Alumni Director Robert E. Williams urges alumni to remember High Point College during the concentration on Annual Giving "in a manner which has lasting value." The College continues to compete for a well-qualified student body, faculty, and staff. High-quality facilities are required to make an appropriate impact on those seeking Christian higher education.

Porter and Wilma Hauser '39 & '41, the first National Chairmen composed of a husband-and-wife team, are giving "excellent leadership" to the Fund, Williams said. "Their letter to alumni on behalf of the fund shows their constant interest in an institution which has been the launching-pad for so many good citizens in all parts of the world."

Gilbert S. Callahan '49, chairman of Advanced Giving, reports "splendid success" from alumni contacted during the fall. The Alumni Association is indebted to these leaders for their interest.

By December 31, 1974, the College had received $24,699.13 from 359 alumni, including both restricted and unrestricted gifts.

"What does this say to High Point College? In the midst of economic uncertainty, there are people who admire and appreciate the College. They are determined that High Point will continue providing quality education. You are invited to join them in their efforts," said Williams.

Panthers open basketball with wins and high hopes

THE PURPLE PANTHERS have had their best basketball start since the 1968-69 season as they broke for the Christmas holidays with a 3-1 conference mark and 6-5 overall. Wins over Atlantic Christian, Mars Hill and Elon, and a one-point loss to Guilford, have High Point College second place in the Carolina Conference standings.

A young ball club, the Panthers lose only Paul Cloud, Paul Mattox and Gregg Bennett this year to graduation. Sophomore lettermen Ray Coble and Pearl Shaw, freshman Sherman Johnson, and transfers Leon Dickens and Tom Jones earned starting roles before the holiday break, with Cloud and junior Mike Glover also seeing a lot of action.

Shaw, who was named to the all-tourney team in the Burlington Civitan Classic, leads the team in scoring in double figures.

The Panthers have high hopes for the conference title, which they last won in the 1968-69 season. The league tourney is set for February 26-28 in the Lexington YMCA.

TEAMMATES cooperating on a basket are Tom Jones (34), Brooklyn, New York, and Sherman Johnson (42), Walkertown.

Prospective students influenced by aid available

THE FINANCIAL AID PROGRAM of High Point College gave assistance by loan or scholarship last year to more than half the students. The availability of aid determined for many of them which college they picked to attend. Prospective students who will begin their college careers next fall are narrowing their choices this winter. They will be heavily influenced by the aid available.

The increasing number of requests for aid presents a growing challenge to the College. During 1974, High Point received funding in full or in part for six new named scholarships which will provide aid for the first time in the fall of 1975.

Numerous channels are open for alumni and friends to contribute to the financial aid of students. This assures not only that present students can remain in class but that future students may enroll here with the backing they need.

Gifts in any amount may be made to any of the College scholarship funds designated as memorials for the named individual. Each gift is acknowledged to the donor and to the family of the individual in whose name the gift is made. The monies received are added to existing funds already invested to provide income.

Some of the scholarships established to honor an alumnus, faculty member, or someone closely related to the College include these:

— Alumni Memorial Scholarship, in honor of any deceased alumnus, faculty member, trustee, or other individual to be memorialized;

— Louise Adams Alumni Scholarship, by the members of the Class of 1963 in honor of Louise Adams, teacher and friend;

— Lindley Memorial Scholarship, by the alumni in memory of Dr. Percy E. Lindley, whose spiritual and intellectual guidance meant so much to many students;

— David Culler Memorial fund, by the Class of 1963 in memory of their classmate who lost his life in service to his country;

— The Dr. Dan B. Cooke Scholarship, in memory of Dr. Cooke, former professor of education;

— Linley W. and Mary O. Gerringer

Scholarship; in memory of the Rev. Gerringer, a minister of the Methodist Protestant church who helped raise money for starting High Point College;

— Rik Highbaugh Memorial Scholarship, by friends of the William Highbaugh family in memory of their son;

— Leslie E. Moody Memorial scholarship, by the alumni of the human relations department in memory of Mr. Moody, who helped establish the humanics program at the college; and — Virgil Yow Scholarship, by members of his teams and friends of Coach Yow to honor his contribution to the athletic program of the College.

Each of these funds is open for designated gifts. Inquiries regarding memorial gifts may be sent to The Alumni Office or the the College Affairs Office.

Coach Hartman selected

BASEBALL COACH CHUCK HARTMAN has been named 1974's Outstanding Baseball Coach in North Carolina's college competition by the Professional Baseball Representatives.

The association, made up of scouts, former professional players, and college coaches, selects the top coach in high school, junior college, and senior college levels.

The High Point College baseball team finished last season with a 32-10 record. For the second time, Hartman took the team to the national tournament.

"This is an important award to me because it is given by professionals," Hartman said. "There is no popularity involved. They vote on qualifications. I felt I had a chance because we had an outstanding season." In addition to going to the finals, High Point won the district and area tournaments.

At the conclusion of fall practice with more than 40 players on hand, Hartman judged his men in fine form for the spring's activities. He said it may be his best club ever.

Annual college prayer breakfast brings friends to campus

185 LOCAL LEADERS AND FRIENDS of High Point College attended the annual Prayer Breakfast on December 16. Dr. H. Eugene Peacock, superintendent of the High Point District of the United Methodist Church, presided. Others participating in the program of carols, scripture, and prayer were soloist Mrs. John E. Sadler, Jr., Rutherfordton; trustee chairman William F. Womble, Winston Salem; and three area pastors, the Rev. Cornelius Holland, the Rev. Kirk Allen, and the Rev. Alfred Miller.

Trustees Holt McPherson and William Womble greet Sisters Raymond Coughlan (center) and Agnes Fleury, of Maryfield Nursing Home.

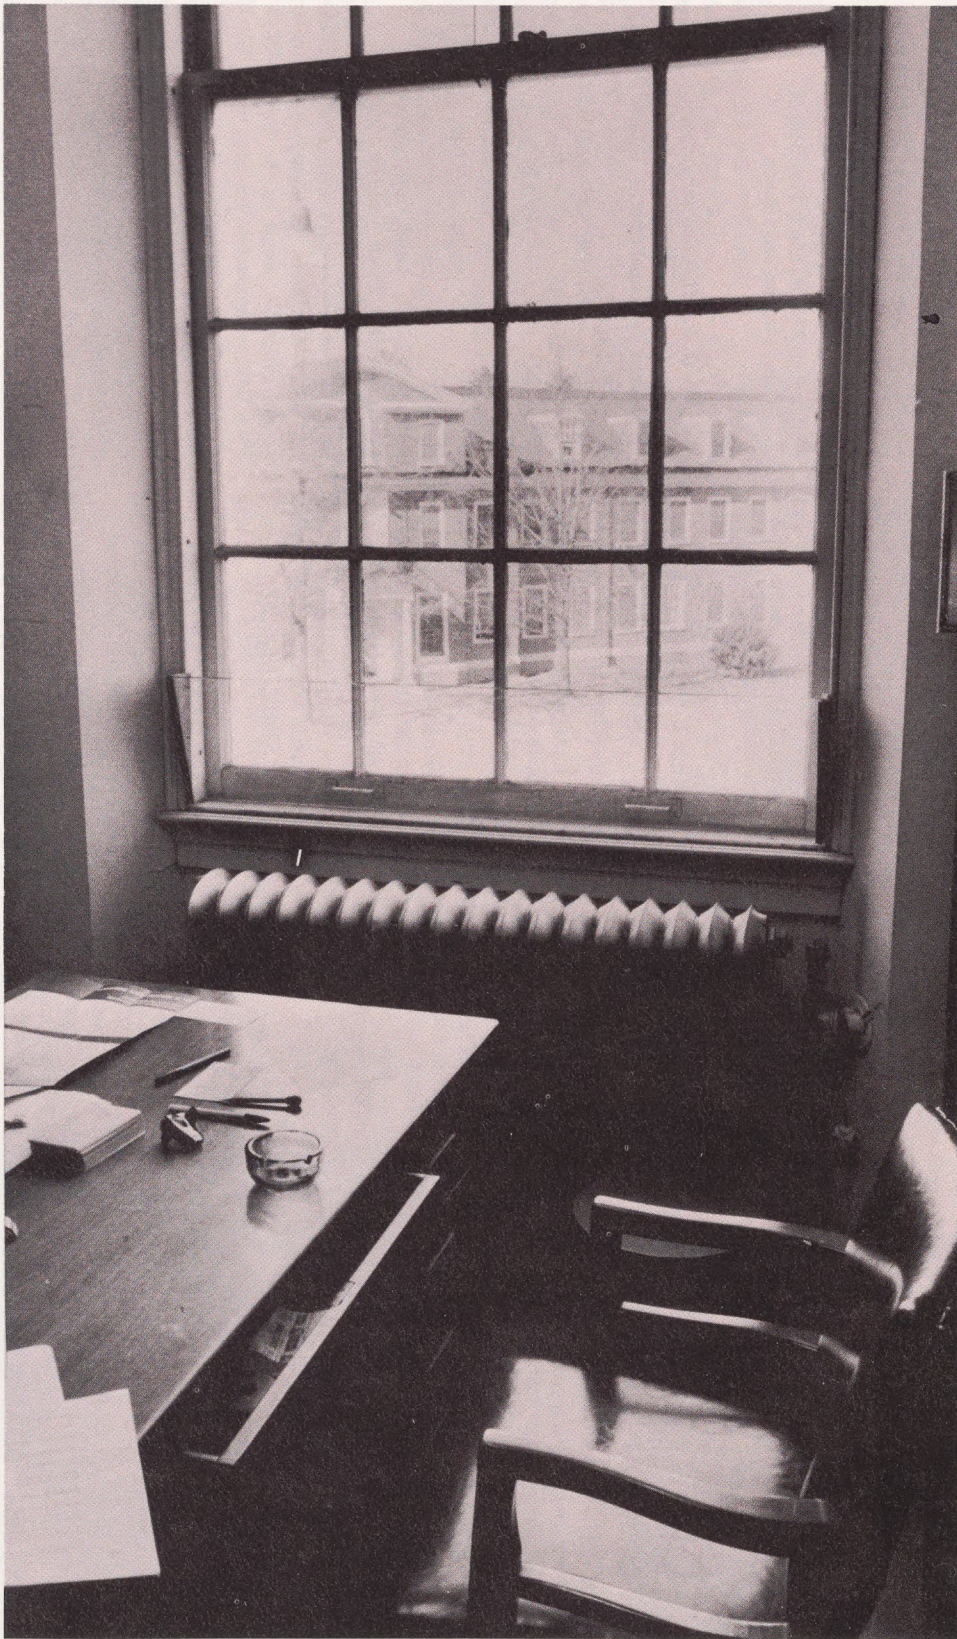

Homecoming on Feb. 8

HOMECOMING, as every nostalgic alumnus knows, is scheduled for February 8, about the time this newsletter is being printed.

So, watch the next issue of HIGHPOINTS for up-to-date photographs of classmates you remember from "way back when . . ."

HIGHPOINTS

THE PROFESSOR'S CHAIR, symbol of scholarship, teaching, and academia, must be filled by competent men and women devoted to high standards of achievement for themselves and their students. "To endow the chair" provides funds to guarantee competitive salaries which, in fact, keep the chair occupied by scholars of merit. The Alumni Association has established the Chair of Higher Learning to assist the College in its never-ceasing work of quality teaching. All loyal alumni and friends of High Point College are invited to share in the opportunity for strengthening the academic program by assisting in funding the Chair. (Full story inside.)

ALUMNI RETURNING to the College on February 8 had a variety of activities including an afternoon reception (above) at the home of President and Mrs. Patton and the dinner in the cafeteria (top photo).

VICKI HUNTLEY, a senior from California, Md., was crowned Miss High Point College during halftime of the Lenoir Rhyne game. (Panthers won, 78-72.)

FOR THE first time in years, the weatherman cooperated with a clear, bright day for the Homecoming events.

Gifts for Annual Fund

ALUMNI AND FRIENDS are demonstrating their support of High Point College through continuing contributions to the Annual Fund. Since its kickoff last July 1, the Fund has gained momentum.

By the end of February, $36,918.07 had been contributed from all sources for both restricted and unrestricted purposes. The total giving at this date surpasses several records of previous years. The goal for unrestricted gifts is $27,000; there is no officially-determined goal for the total fund. While High Point College continues to be financially sound, contributions are needed to offer additional scholarship aid to students, to keep faculty salaries competitive, and to insure the overall academic quality of the College.

The number of gifts continues to rise, with the present number commensurate with last year's receipts. Extensive planning has been made to insure the success of this year's Fund.

The incentive clubs for donors are beginning to show good results. Seven contributors have become members of the Fellows Club, giving their names and resources to strengthening the College. The standard of membership in the Fellows Club is a minimum gift of $1,000.

Members of the Lamplighters Club assist in the total program with gifts between $500 — $999. The Tower Club, whose members contribute $250 — $499, has given significant support, while the Centurion Club recognizes contributions of $100 to $259.

Fund chairmen Porter and Wilma Hauser '39 & '41, are pleased with the response of alumni and friends; continued support will assure the continuation of a quality program at High Point College.

College signs with Florida Tech

HIGH POINT COLLEGE and the Florida Institute of technology have inaugurated a cooperative program enabling High Point students to spend a year in Florida. Majors in certain applied sciences will take their key courses at the Melbourne campus or the Jensen Beach campus of the Institute, one of the nation's major universities.

It is believed the agreement is the first cooperative program of its kind between a liberal arts church-related college and a private technology university.

Florida Institute of Technology, founded in 1958, has 3,000 students. The university awards associate, bachelor, master, and doctoral degrees in a total of 54 programs. In addition to the main campus at Melbourne, adjacent to the space program at Cape Kennedy, the University has an 84-acre campus at Jensen Beach.

The new concentration areas available to High Point College students are environmental studies, oceanographic science, air commerce, computer science, photography, and applied mathematics. In each area, a student will complete two years at High Point College, move to Florida for the junior year, and then return to High Point for the senior year.

While at the Florida campus, students will remain regularly enrolled as High Point College students. No transfer of credits is involved. In each course of study, the student fulfills the general academic requirements of High Point College. The key topical courses are taken at Florida Institute.

Director of the new program is Dr. E. Roy Epperson, assistant dean of High Point College.

"We are truly expecting great things from this program" said President Wendell Patton. "It offers the best of two worlds to a college student who wants a full and comprehensive education. The student will have all the advantages of a liberal arts education in a church-related institution as well as the limitless opportunities of a great university."

High Point College students who are now sophomores will be able to enroll in the new program immediately and move to the Florida campus next September. The first graduates in the program will receive their degrees at the 1977 commencement.

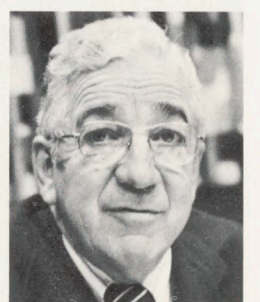

Alumni are invited to recommend prospective students to the college Admissions office.

Club supports athletics

THE PANTHER CLUB has contributed over $9,000 to the expenses of the athletic program and to improvements of certain facilities at the College. Headed by J. Ed Pleasants, president of NCNB, the Club has 127 members with 39 in the category of Grand Panthers for their contributions of $100 or more. In addition to membership contributions, the Club has given funds provided through a garage sale of obsolete college furniture, the sale of advertisements in the printed basketball program, and operation of the concession stand at some events.

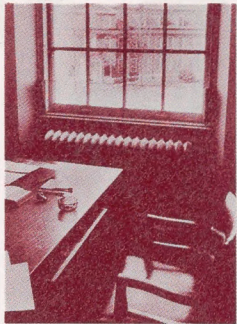

The Club has sold over 300 basketball season tickets this year. Other officers of the Club are Ed Turner, '51, first vice president; Frank Shaw, second vice-president, and Wesley Gaynor, '54, secretary and treasurer. The College is fortunate to have such a loyal group of supporters.

Alumni fund chair

THE ALUMNI CHAIR of Higher Learning has been established at the College by the Alumni Association. It will be endowed with $150,000 to be contributed by mid-1979. The income from the principal will be used to supplement the salaries of faculty members chosen as holders of the chair.

The Association had previously adopted a goal of $150,000 to be given over the next five years to the Golden Anniversary program. The executive committee, on February 8, channeled the gift to a specific purpose as requested by the Association. Director of Alumni Affairs Robert E. Williams commended the Executive Committee for the long-range goal and their concern for the academic program of the College.

The Chair will be supported by unrestricted gifts to the Annual Alumni Fund. Its primary purpose is to assist the College in recruiting and maintaining superior faculty members.

President Wendell M. Patton called the establishment of the chair "unique and distinctive. I know of very few colleges of our size where the alumni have shown such an interest in the financial aspect of the academic program. This chair will strengthen and enhance the future of classroom instruction and innovative programs at High Point College," he said.

Any faculty member is eligible for appointment to the chair; a single faculty member may not receive the designation for more than two consecutive years.

The amount of the supplement will be determined by the President, with consideration for the needs of the College, the base salary of the individual involved, and the competitive market in the respective teaching fields. Any unused income for a given year will accrue for future use, or it may be directed to the overall instructional budget.

The chair will provide additional incentive to faculty members as well as afford alumni contributors a direct insight into how their gifts are being used. Support of faculty salaries has long been a key to the strength of private and church-related institutions. Alumni support, with both gifts and active participation in the affairs of the college, are frequently the difference in keeping an institution healthy.

Spring sports open

WITH CHAMPIONSHIP HOPES in tennis, baseball, and track, High Point College closed out basketball for men and women with up-and-down records. The Panther men's team posted its first winning season since 1969 at 16-15 and came on strong to finish for runner-up honors in the conference tournament.

Pearlee Shaw and Tom Jones, a pair of 6-6 sophomore forwards, were named to all-conference teams. All five starters return for another season next fall.

The women, led by freshmen Dee Ann Clapp and all-stater Germaine McAuley, were just below the .500 level, but laid the groundwork for an outstanding women's program in the future.

Baseball hopes for the spring include a possible national championship, and the tennis team returns a host of veterans with sights on a high national finish next June in Kansas City, Mo. The baseballers, led by All-American candidates Danny Goins and Otis Foster, bombed Duke in a season-opening doubleheader, while the tennis team jumped off to a 2-0 record with wins over West Virginia University and Western Michigan. Both clubs feature impressive schedules filled with NCAA university division teams.

The Panther tennis team, which has been nationally ranked the past three years, has seniors on the roster for the first time in three seasons. Peter Ranney, Bill Ashley and Hector Villarroel, who play the top three singles, are seeing their final year of action this spring.

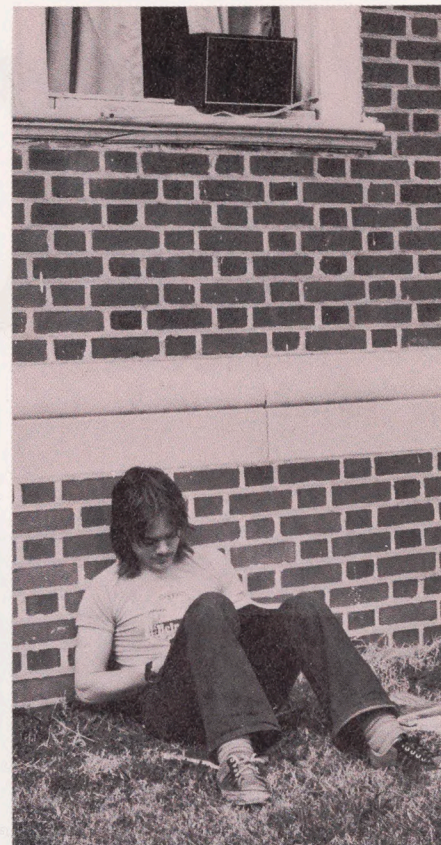

Track also should have a championship look with the high-scoring duo of Mike Hasty and Bob Haglegans returning for their senior seasons.

Already 1974-75 has been a championship year for the men's teams with a district championship in cross country, and conference title in soccer and runner-up spot in basketball.

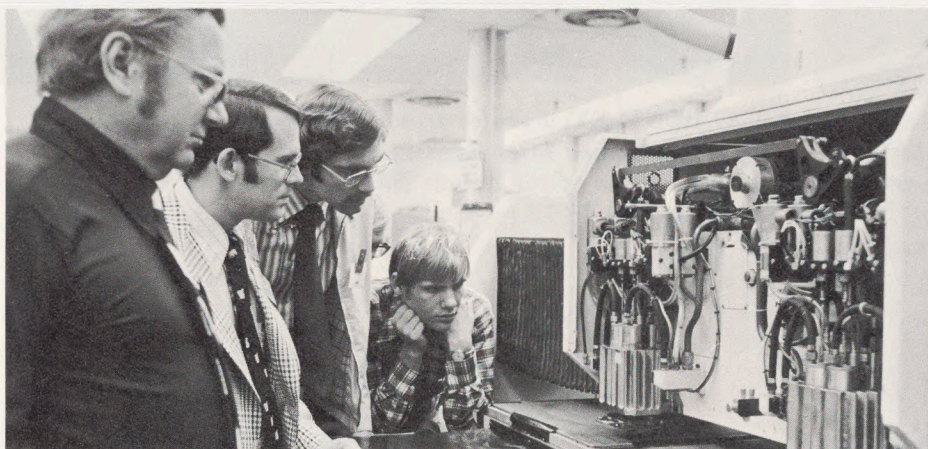

MARY LYNN SMITH VENUTO '50, McLean, Virginia, and her daughter, Paula, a freshman, have both lived in 110 Woman's Hall (above) — a generation apart. By special request and just for sentimental reasons, Paula was assigned the same room her mother had when she was a student. Mrs. Venuto visited her daughter and the old familiar room — not many changes — during Homecoming.

Lecture by Joyce Brothers fills auditorium

DR. JOYCE BROTHERS, nationally known psychologist, predicted the lasting stability of marriage in her lecture at High Point College on February 25, the first special event of the spring semester.

"People are turning to marriage as the only kind of stability that is left in the world," Dr. Brothers said. "This is one of the basic reasons why men and women are continuing to stay together."

She said the basic nuclear-type family, the model on which present marriage customs are based, would prevail, even though the statistics on marriage are currently "grim". She said four out of every 12 married couples will divorce or separate; six will remain together in a "utilitarian" marriage, and "true love" will keep only two of the couples together.

She gave the audience a true-false quiz about the nature of love, taken in good humor by most, who furnished their own paper and pen. The results: it's true that opposite personalities attract; it's risky to attempt avoiding this natural attraction of opposites; sentiment does have its place (rather than mere psychological analysis or chemical reactions) in male-female relationships; and men can tell more about a prospective mate by looking at their girlfriend's father than her mother.

In response to questions during an earlier interview on the campus, Dr. Brothers said she is getting new questions these days. People are seeking advice on how to cope with the economy. Some unmarried couples living together — and their parents as well — are beginning to wonder how their particular relationship is going to turn out. And a few letters are from bi-racial couples who have their own special problems.

But, "The greatest number of letters are from women who are complaining about indifference on the part of their husbands." She said the indifference could be expressed in a lot of ways.

At the conclusion of her lecture, she fielded questions from the near-capacity audience which took all but a few seats in Memorial Auditorium.

Chapters meet

Forsyth

The Forsyth chapter held its annual banquet at Konnoak Hills United Methodist church in Winston-Salem on January 30. Outgoing president Donna L. Stanley '63 presided.

The Forsyth Outstanding Alumnus award for 1974 went to Richard Budd '63. Program for the evening was "A

Richard Budd '63

Bavarian Holiday," given by Dr. W. Joseph May '41. (Dr. and Mrs. May went on the Bavarian trip sponsored by the Alumni Association last fall.)

The Rev. John W. Lockman '69 gave a memorial to three Forsyth alumni who died during 1974 — Mrs. Emil D. Jones, the Rev. William T. Ratchford, and Dr. C. Excellence Rozzelle.

Newly-elected officers of the chapter are Don C. Caudle '63, president; Bill Bigham '68, president-elect; Diane B. McGee '60, corresponding secretary; Mary L. Thompson '73, recording secretary; and John W. Lockman '69, treasurer.

Atlanta

Alumni in the greater Atlanta area will receive notification from the College the first week in May of the organization of a local chapter.

Plans now include an afternoon family picnic on Sunday, May 25 at the Antique Car Pavilion, Stone Mountain. The picnic will be followed by an organizational meeting and a college update by Dr. Murphy M. Osborne '58, vice president for student affairs and Robert E. Williams '59, director of alumni affairs.

Methodist Conferences

Plans are being made for chapter meetings of the two United Methodist Conferences in North Carolina which will be in session the first week of June. No later than the second week of May, alumni and lay members in these conferences will receive material pertinent to the events.

New chapters

The Alumni office is available to assist in organizing new chapters. Alumni are reminded to consider the possibility of a chapter in their geographical area where thirty or more alumni reside. The possibilities are unlimited for the different types of programs available.

ALUMNI ARE always welcome to visit the campus, especially when College is in session. The campus is usually vacant and all offices are closed during holidays; but even then, if you want to visit, notify the College and you will be welcomed.

NCATE examines college teacher training

THE TEACHER EDUCATION program of the College has been examined and evaluated by a team of visitors from the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education. The periodic review and favorable evaluation is required every five years for continuing the national accreditation, first granted in 1960.

The visiting committee's host was the education department of the College, headed by Dr. J. Allen Thacker. The committee talked with the departmental faculty, academic administrators, faculty in other departments, students in teacher education programs, local school officials, and teachers who supervise student teachers.

The committee was particularly impressed with the high regard for High Point College graduates by the local public school administrators and teachers interviewed.

A report of the visiting accreditation team will be sent to the national office of the Council for further evaluation; announcement of the Council's action will be issued prior to September, 1975. College officials expect routine approval.

STUDENT TEACHERS practice on each other (above) before going to public school classrooms as part of their teacher-training.

McCulloch dorm fire

ALL STUDENTS ESCAPED without injury when a pre-dawn fire in the attic of McCulloch Hall January 23 damaged the roof and several rooms on the end next to Robert's Hall. The blaze was extinguished by city firemen and the men were furnished other quarters for two nights.

Half a floor of Woman's Dorm was then evacuated by moving the women into vacant rooms scattered throughout other women's residences, and the move-weary men settled there.

The American Red Cross gave emergency aid as well as financial assistance to men who lost personal belongings. The damaged section of the dormitory is being rebuilt.

Hawk named officer

DR. DAVID HAWK, professor of sociology and head of the department at the College, has been named president-elect of the North Carolina Sociological Association. Both public and private institutions are members of the Association. Dr. Hawk has been at High Point College since 1971.

Division offices move

THE COLLEGE AFFAIRS division has become the newest tenant of Roberts Hall. Located for many years in an old house on the south corner of the campus, the division has moved into an office suite on the main floor of the administration building.

Making the move were Cletus H. Kruyer, Vice President for College Affairs; Robert E. Williams, alumni director; Raymond A. Petrea, director of information services; and their secretaries, Jeannie Hazzard, Kathy Parrish and Peggy Ingram.

Dr. Joe May to match gifts from Class of '75

DR. W. JOSEPH MAY '41, Winston-Salem physician and professor, received the Alumnus of the Year Award at the annual Alumni-Senior banquet on May 2. Miss Louise Adams received a plaque from the Association upon her retirement.

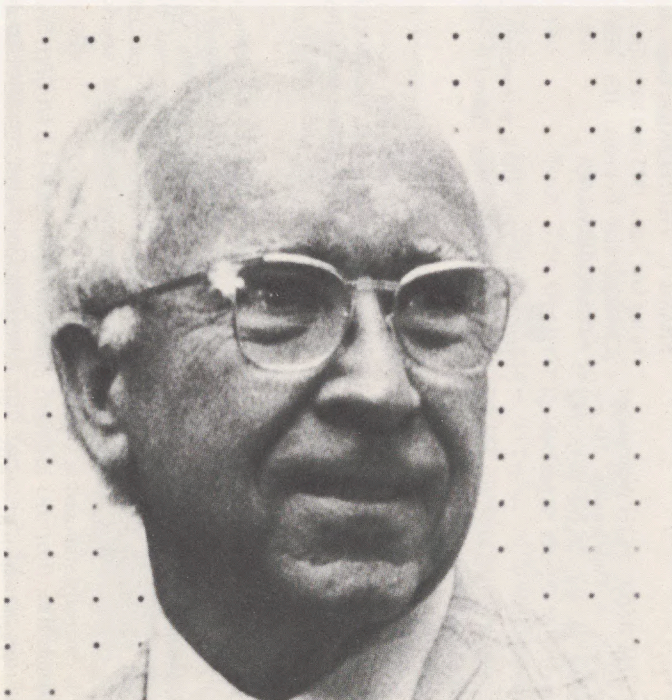

Dr. May, the speaker for the evening, is associate professor of obstetrics and gynecology at Bowman Gray School of Medicine, Winston-Salem. He joined Bowman Gray in 1957 and was selected to his present position in 1973. Dr. May is on the Forsyth county Health Planning Council and a member of the Piedmont Triad Regional Planning Council.

He was president of the Alumni Association from 1952 to 1954 and was chairman of advanced giving for last year's fund. He is chairman of special gifts to the alumni fund for 1975.

In his address, Dr. May issued a challenge to the graduating class. He promised to match the total of their gifts to the 1975-76 annual fund if more than half the members of the class make a contribution.

Miss Adams began her association with High Point College in 1933 and was associate professor of mathematics when she left the classroom in 1969 to become full-time assistant in the College Affairs division. She has been continuously active in the alumni affairs of the College and assisted in organizing chapters in Forsyth county, Alamance county, and Greensboro.

Fiftieth year of College ends with 237 graduates

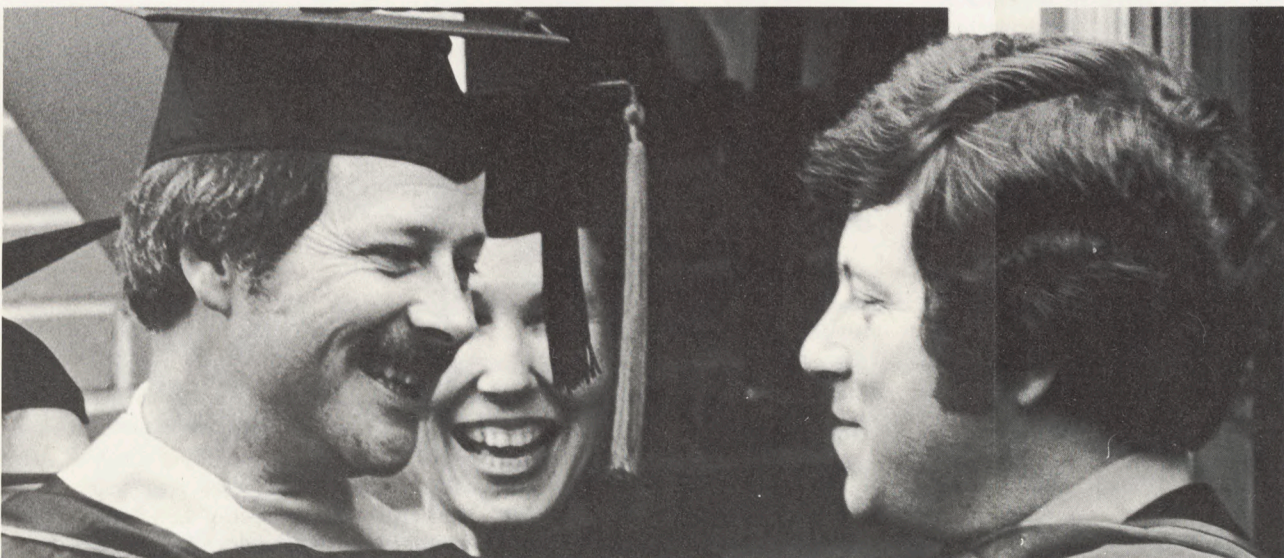

SENIORS Teresa Moran, Bayamon, Puerto Rico, helps Peggy Moorner, Morrestown, New Jersey with her gown while the faculty waits for ceremonies to begin. Both women were outstanding student leaders. Among many activities, Teresa was a Presidential Scholar and vice president of the SGA and Peg was an award-winning Tower Player.

VIP'S FOR GRADUATION included the two honorary degree recipients, the Rev. Jerry D. Murray (left), the Rev. John R. Sills, and President Wendell M. Patton.

WINNER OF THE FOY award William F. Cope (left) was selected by a college committee for his exemplary qualities as a faculty member. He's shown with Mrs. Carolyn Rauch and Dr. John Ward.

SPEAKING TO 237 GRADUATING seniors and nearly 2,000 parents, friends, and visitors, United Methodist Bishop Earl G. Hunt urged the degree candidates to "make sunrises" in their own lives and the lives of others as they assume responsibilities in the world.

Hunt was the principal speaker at ceremonies in the Alumni Gym on May 18. He encouraged the graduates to make sunrises in their own lives, the lives of others, in their communities, and in their impact on the world.

He said they would have to help others face the same problems they had so recently faced for themselves. "What is a constructive way to deal with drugs? Now that education is threatened with collapse on every side, what can you do to save education? What can you do to bring community to people of diverse orientation? What can you do to bind a neighborhood together?" he asked.

"When it comes to confronting our responsibility to make a better world, to assure society will survive for our children and our grandchildren, we've been dodging the issue. Sometimes I think the story of the latter part of the Twentieth Century will be written by historians in terms of our ability to dodge the problems — war racism, population explosion, disease, poverty, famine, ecological terror.

"You are going into society to do something about these problems and if you don't do it, you can't expect anybody else to attempt it," he said.

Later in the ceremonies, honorary degrees went to the Rev. John R. Sills, and the Rev. Jerry D. Murray. Sills is treasurer-business manager of the Western North Carolina Conference and Murray, formerly a district superintendent, is pastor of First Methodist Church, Salisbury.

Professor William F. Cope '63, assistant professor of sociology, won the John C. and Kathleen Y. Foy Distinguished Teaching-Service Award. The prize recognizes professional achievement.

Campus changes ahead

THE FRONT CAMPUS will have a new look when Montlieu avenue is widened and the intersection with East College avenue is relocated. Work by the City of High Point on the streets will start during the summer.

The bus stop shelter will be removed and the brick gateway will be rebuilt on the site of the shelter. The present drive into Robert's Hall from Montlieu avenue will be taken up. The new location of the gateway and drive will permit a direct crossing to the street beside Haworth Hall of Science.

The intersection of East College and Montlieu will be moved 100 feet east on Montlieu, giving the College additional space behind the library.

An original plan which called for removal of several trees along Montlieu near the library was later abandoned; the trees will not be cut. The bus stop shelter was built in the 1930's when large numbers of students used public transportation.

Other campus improvement have centered on the athletic facilities. The field house at Albion Millis stadium has been redecorated inside to provide more attractive quarters for visiting teams.

An all-weather track has been built around the main playing field in the stadium and the old bleacher seating has been removed. Track and field events have been held at Andrews High School in recent years.

Two new tennis courts have been added beside the existing courts near Alumni Gymnasium and the gym floor in Harrison Hall has been refinished.

Rehearsal preparation shows not all dramatics on auditorium stage

"YOU SEE the little black knob? Loosen it and turn the handle beside it. Will it turn?"

The stage of Memorial Auditorium is all but obscured by a massive built-up set suggesting stone walls and floors. It projects fifteen, maybe twenty, feet beyond the actual stage. The first row of seats has been removed. Only stage lights break the darkness of the house.

The student on the top platform of the straight-up ladder grunts and struggles with the little black knob on the overhead light.

"Hey, Lynn, what are we going to do for the . . ." comes a voice from on-stage. He is interrupted by a call from Lynn. "Can you move it yet?"

A blast of medieval-sounding music drowns his reply. Just as instantly it fades. People mill across the stage, uncertain about what they are supposed to do. Talk starts again, four or five voices at once.

"Hey, Lynn, wanta look at this light now?/ It's too hot over here. There's a little bump right there./ You're standing in a spill-over./ Is it too hot there?/ When're we going to gel those bulbs?/ What time is it?/ Soon as I get some gels./ Seven-twenty-five./ Is Tom Cope here yet?/ Not yet./ Where the (expletive deleted) is he?"

The Monday night rehearsal of "Lion in Winter," trying to get underway, is being delayed an hour to reduce the clash-time with a band rehearsal directly beneath the stage. In a studio at the end of the hall, a pianist is beginning a 17-page Beethoven sonata, warming to her artistry with increasing volume.

The actors gather in their "green room," getting themselves psyched up for the rehearsal. The banter is erratic, nervous, sometimes coarse.

Director Lockrow comes in and takes a chair where he can face the student performers, sprawled in a loose circle around the room. Lockrow, or Lynn, as he is usually called by his respectful charges with only an occasional "Mr.," is already into his remarks for the evening.

". . . and if you haven't figured out your exits, you better find 'em. We have a new stage crew out there tonight. Be patient with them. Not a word to them if you get stepped on. They'll change the set in 15 seconds. So you better know how you're getting out of their way. Now I want to see you thinking all the time tonight; I want your energy up, your output greater. I want to see you pick-up quicker on each other.

HP paper applauds sports

THE LARGEST CROWD to watch a baseball game in High Point in a long time was out at Albion Millis Stadium last Sunday. At stake in the game between High Point College and Guilford College was first place in the Carolinas Conference. High Point College won the game, 11-3. It is, in fact, the winner of nine games and loser of none in conference play this season. Overall, it has won 27 games and lost two. That is a good record for a baseball team in any league.

The success of the High Point College baseball team — it has participated in the national finals of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics two of the last three years — is but one part of the story in spring sports at the small college. The High Point College tennis team, the District 26 champion in each of the past three years, won 18 matches this season. In track, High Point College won eight meets and lost one during the season and will compete in the District 26 meet.

What is happening in sports at High Point College is pleasing to students, alumni, and fans alike. At a time when schools everywhere are wrestling with increased costs and declining revenues in their sports programs, High Point College appears to have achieved a rewarding balance. The sports program at the school is hardly over-emphasized; its athletic scholarships are minimal; High Point College has not fielded a football team in nearly 30 years. Its basketball team, which is the program's principal money-maker, has had its ups and downs in recent years, but last season showed signs of becoming a strong competitor again. Meanwhile, there is the steady improvement in the so-called spring sports — track, tennis, baseball, even golf — at the school, all a result of good recruiting and good coaching without the debilitating hoopla of the big time. It is a success story as refreshing as it is exciting.

THE LION IN WINTER was presented by Tower Players April 24-26 to enthusiastic audiences and excellent reviews. Director was Lynn Lockrow, instructor in fine arts (left and top). Leading roles were played by Pat Job and Peg Moorer (above), both seniors.

"I want to see some action and reaction. And everything that we have beat and ploughed into this has to come out right. You have three hard nights ahead of you. We can have it a little degree off here or there but by the last night, we'll have that down to a miniscule. We can do it."

The actors are solemn, intent; they are beginning to "rev up" within themselves.

"I want to see your stuff together. I want to see it come through every time, not 5 out of 7 or 6 out of 10 but every time, every line you're on stage. I want to see you go in every scene. Think. Let's roll it." He leaves, almost suddenly.

A senior actress follows Lynn into the hall. She makes a low-voice request. "Give us five minutes." He agrees. She turns back to the "green room" where the performers are on their feet.

"Want to do some Zen exercises?" More talk all at once. "Have you ever done the trust exercises?"/ We'll get passed around./ We can all work together."

They hold hands in a tight circle, passing a squeeze from hand to hand. More talk, some laughing. The room is electric.

"O.K. Let's get passed around. You first." One of the girls is in the middle of the circle, eyes closed. She drifts from side to side, kept upright by supporting friends. All work together.

"Let yourself go. Be limp. Trust us." The band downstairs sends great swelling chords through the floor. The Beethoven sonata is in full stride next door. The stage crew wrestles with equipment, switching lights on and off, testing communications.

Lockrow is in the dark part of the auditorium, a notekeeper with him, her pad sending up a glare from the makeshift light. He calls for an extension cord for his headset. No answer. He calls again. Lights dim. Medieval trumpets play loudly from backstage.

More confusion. "Too soon on the house lights. You've got to wait." More shouting. "Can I get an extension cord for my headset? Then I'll talk to you." The music stops; the tape is rewound. "Let's start again." "What does he want?" Lights go up and down. Actors wait, silent, tense. Voices talk of 50 feet of tape.

Lockrow has his headset on now, talking to the crew backstage. A call for quiet. Music plays and lights dim. "All right," he whispers into his phone. "Go, folks."

Actors appear, lines are spoken in an eleventh-century castle where the king and his family will quarrel over his succession. The rehearsal is started. By now, it's almost anticlimatic.

Dr. Boyd, biblical literature professor at the UNC-Chapel Hill, gave the annual Finch lectures March 19 and 20. His major talk given to a capacity audience of visiting Methodist ministers and students, was a plea for a sense of awe.

"Wonder is the ability to see every common bush afire with God and only he who sees takes off his shoes. The scientific method has its limitations. At that point we should start to wonder, for wonder is the beginning of insight."

Pierpoint is seen on national television as the CBS White House correspondent. He discussed the five presidents he has known, Eisenhower to Ford.

President Ford badly mishandled his first problem, the pardon of Richard Nixon; the question of Ford's ability to be President is still in doubt, he said.

Pierpoint said he sees more government, not less, in the future. "The government may tell a bank it cannot loan money to a company to build yachts for rich people. The money will be needed to build houses for the poor," he said.

Fellowship teams visit area congregations

HIGH POINT COLLEGE Fellowship Teams have brought the challenges of Christian living to numerous Methodist congregations this spring. On invitation, the students consult with young people and their leaders for one to three days. In keeping with their training, the teams assist in spiritual growth, worship, recreation, methods of drama,

High Point College named its business department the Earl N. Phillips School of Business Administration in recognition of his interest. He had contributed nearly a quarter of a million dollars to the program. He was a leader in numerous civic and social clubs and was Master of the Hunt at Sedgefield Country Club.

The funeral was held at Wesley Memorial United Methodist Church.

Navy Chaplain preaches to graduates

REAR ADMIRAL FRANCIS L. GARRETT told the graduating seniors in his baccalaureate sermon at Wesley Memorial Church that they were as well prepared as any group of young adults. He said they must also have enthusiasm in everything they do.

Garrett, chief of chaplains, United States Navy, is a native of South Carolina and a member of the Virginia Conference, United Methodist Church.

He used Gulliver's Travels to suggest the confrontations ahead of the seniors. "You must work very hard to live in the land of little things. Much of life is everyday, routine, ordinary. You must have the weapon of self-discipline to meet these routines," he said.

For living in the land of the big moment — choices for vocation, marriage, patriotism, honesty — they would need the weapon of courage.

He concluded by saying that if their lives were to achieve anything, they must visit the land of ideas. "We will stand or fall by our dedication to those ideas fundamental to mankind and to meet the needs of this journey you must have faith."

Garrett was introduced by Bishop Earl G. Hunt. Dr. Wendell Patton read the scripture and the College choir sang the anthem with Phyllis Baker and singing, art, curriculum and program planning, and organization.

The needs of each group are evaluated in advance and plans are made to meet the needs. Recent team visits have included Asheboro (Central), Thomasville (Prospect and Pleasant Hill), and Madison (Mt. Herman.)

History book on sale

THE LONG AWAITED HISTORY of High Point College is on sale to alumni and friends. Dr. William R. Locke, author of "No Easy Task," held two autographing parties in May, at Straughan's Books downtown High Point, and in the student center. The book has been favorably reviewed in the press and has met with high acclaim by all who have read it.

Dr. Locke's research is thorough, accurate, and highly entertaining as he covers the College from its inception in the minds of the founders until the early '70's.

"It's all there, the cow in the classroom, the early women's regulations, the bombing of Guilford College, the first woman to play college basketball, the bankruptcy, the quarrel, the accreditation, and much, much more.

"No Easy Task" may be purchased from Straughan's Books or from the College bookstore for $5.95 plus $1.00 handling if it has to be mailed.

Officers meet, plan alumni activities

MEMBERS of the Executive Committee discussed the role of the Alumni Association in an overnight workshop at Mount Shepherd Retreat Center in June. Eleven members of the executive committee attended.

Presentations and discussions centered on how the College can serve its alumni and former students as well as how the interest of alumni can be focused on the on-going life of the College. All present agreed that the Alumni Association has a continuing responsibility to foster good relations between former students and the College.

The division of alumni into "active" and "inactive" members received attention from the group. Some of those present felt the College should cease contact with alumni who indicate they intend to remain "inactive."

PARTICIPANTS in the alumni officers' retreat take time for an outdoor coffee-break. From the left, they are: Vice president for college affairs Cletus H. Kruyer; Executive committee member Rita Ward Needham '55, Thomasville; High Point Chapter Pres-

The category of "inactive" would include those who positively indicate their desire to be dropped from the mailing lists. The executive committee, in coming months, will be exploring ways to define "active" and "inactive" membership in the Association, and how names may be eliminated in the interests of economy and personal desire.

Alumni who wish to comment on the problem of whether "inactive" members should be dropped from the mailing lists are encouraged to write a Letter to the Editor, HIGHPOINTS.

College to join cluster designed by WC Methodists

HIGH POINT COLLEGE trustees have guaranteed the cooperation of the College in the new cluster concept designed by Western Conference Methodists at Lake Junaluska in June. The executive committee of the board accepted twenty per cent of the total operational costs of the office of executive director of the new Council for Higher Education. Organization of the Council is the first step of making the cluster idea a reality. To be included in the cluster are High Point College, Greensboro College, Pfeiffer College, and Brevard College.

The 1974-75 enrollment figures of the colleges showed High Point College to be the largest with 1,068 students. Pfeiffer had 900, with Greensboro and Brevard each registering just under 550.

Implementation of the cluster is expected to take several years with steps to full participation being taken voluntarily by the four colleges, all related to the Western North Carolina Conference of the United Methodist Church. Dr. Mitchell Faulkner, pastor of Myers Park United Methodist Church, Charlotte, has been named executive director. Faulkner received an honorary degree from High Point College in 1971.

High Point College's President Wendell M. Patton said the College is "ready and willing to share its successful experiences in innovative academic and student personnel programs with its sister Methodist colleges. We welcome the opportunity to receive and implement programs of the other colleges which would be beneficial to the efforts of Methodist higher education."

Dr. Patton said the High Point College trustees believe the College will be able to retain its own personality and identity. "The College does not feel threatened by the proposal," he said. "We are primarily interested in the continuation and improvement of all Methodist higher education. By sharing experiences and judgments with each other, all of us can meet a decade of expected change in higher education methodology."

Dr. Patton said High Point College would begin immediately to look toward the implementation of recommendations adopted by the church at Lake Junaluska.

They include:

- standardization of budgetary, accounting, and other information systems;
- development of a common calendar;
- cooperative admissions program;
- cooperative and joint publications, catalogs, and publicity materials;
- cooperative educational programs;
- special efforts to maintain institutional identity;
- shuttle transportation, special telephone service; and joint meetings of faculty, staff, and student groups;
- cooperative and joint meetings of the trustees of the colleges;
- consolidation of major administrative offices.

No long-range dates have been set, although the initial report to the Annual Conference suggested the major steps should be largely completed by mid-1979.

Summer enrollment

SUMMER SCHOOL began June 9 with 6 more students than were enrolled last year. 327 regular and special students registered for the first term. The second term runs from July 14 to August 15.

Regular college students in degree programs are in the majority; the remainder are special students taking courses for personal enrichment or teacher re-certification. Teachers and education-related courses include science curriculum models, environmental science, the metric system, social studies, theatre education, dictators of the 20th Century, children's poetry and art, and the preparation and use of audio-visual materials.

A history caravan led by Dr. A. Paul Gratiot visited Old Salem, Williamsburg, Jamestown, Yorktown, and Monticello.

OTIS FOSTER (above, at bat), junior from High Point, signed a professional contract with the Boston Red Sox in the first-round major-league draft in June. The 21-year old All-American first baseman had a collegiate batting average of .476. He is credited with 30 home runs, 79 runs batted in, and 13 stolen bases. He struck out only 12 times in 3 years. Boston scout Mace Brown said he was the "best right-hand hitter" he has seen in 29 years of scouting.

State gives approval for teacher education

THE NORTH CAROLINA State Board of Education has approved High Point College's teacher program for five years beginning with the 1975-76 school year. The program was reviewed by a team of visitors earlier this year. Approval of the teacher program is granted on recommendation of the College and on the basis of students having completed a program approved by the Board of Education.

For the last 5 years, an average of 100 High Point College students have qualified each year for teaching certificates from the state. Forty per cent of all graduates of the College have earned certificates.

The approved undergraduate programs include early childhood and intermediate education, business education, English, Spanish, mathematics, science, social studies, art, theatre arts, and physical education.

A self-study of the education department was made in preparation for the visiting team from the State department of education. The study revealed that 20% of the public school teachers in Guilford, Forsyth, Randolph, and Davidson counties and the cities of Winston-Salem, High Point, and Thomasville are graduates of High Point College.

Guidelines for the teacher-training program spell out the characteristics expected of the future teacher. These involve personal dignity including mental, emotional, and spiritual well-being; love of learning and high academic achievement; ability to reason and to solve problems scientifically; an ethical sense of responsibility for actions influencing others; understanding the factors that shape man's destiny; acceptance of the duties and responsibilities of citizenship in a democratic society, and other similar ideals.

Dr. Allen Thacker, now in his tenth year with the College, heads the Advisory Council on Teacher Education, the policymaker for the education of future classroom teachers. Dr. Thacker says the total resources of the College are used in teacher education. Fifty-one of the fifty-nine fulltime faculty members are involved in curriculum areas in which teacher-education programs are offered.

DR. MARYLIN KARMEL taught a summer school course in teaching children to appreciate and write poetry. At the conclusion, the class had an informal session (above) of sharing their own poetry with each other and visitors to the session.

Students assist in digging up 200-year-old grist mill on City lake

DIGGING UP THE PAST is exactly what several High Point College students and others are doing this summer along the shores of High Point City Lake. Under the direction of the High Point Museum, they are uncovering the old Richard Mendenhall grist mill located in the park in Jamestown.

The mill was abandoned more than 50 years ago after serving local farmers for nearly two centuries. General Cornwallis and his troops stopped at the mill during the Revolutionary War and ground their grain.

The "dig" is not easy to find unless you've been there before. A nearly-concealed path leaves the paved road through the park and seemingly ambles off through the woods. Almost at the water's edge where you might think you've taken a wrong turn, half a dozen people can be seen. They are down on hands and knees or bending over a bucket. Each is working with a small trowel or garden tool, scooping no deeper than a quarter-inch of dirt at one time, then sifting everything through their fingers. Mostly, it's just ordinary black dirt.

What do they find? Not much — yet. A few small items, a bit of rusty metal, maybe a nail, or a random sliver of long-lost machinery from the mill, a piece of glass, a wedge of china or pottery. The artifacts are saved and catalogued, the dirt being discarded. Then back to the hands-and-knees and the trowel. Some wear gloves; all of them wear clothes suited for the work. Your favorite laundry bleach is plainly needed there, there, and there.

Even the excavators don't know what they will eventually unearth. But since High Point Museum director John Bauchman, the course leader, had the site X-rayed, they're fairly certain that something important lies underneath. The students have the feeling that "someone has an idea of what's down below." Whatever they find becomes the property of the N.C. Archives and the local museum. A later exploration will include an Indian campsite and burial ground.

High Point College students registered for the summer historical archeological course include Robert A. Fuller, junior, Greensboro; Jon Haislip, junior, Chevy Chase, Maryland; Peggy Petree, senior, Greensboro; Dennis A. Wall, senior, Jamestown, and Neil Smith, senior, High Point.

Wall said they hope to find at least the old gears from the mill and any personal effects that may have been left by those who worked there.

The site is divided with stakes and string into grids about six feet by six feet. Each item uncovered is catalogued to keep it identified with the exact spot it is found. Each budding archaeologist is assigned a different grid area. As many as 28 people will be working at the excavation during the summer. Completion of the project may require as long as six years.

Fuller said the excavation will have to go down at least four inches before getting into anything actually old. The area was bulldozed in the late 1920's to build the city lake and the top several inches of the soil were literally rearranged. The present dig may be the site of a storehouse for the mill, with the mill itself being located on a spot now covered by the waters of the City Lake.

1050 for all term '75

THE COLLEGE expects to maintain its enrollment for the 1975-76 term beginning in September. College officials say they are pleased with the prospects that High Point College will not be among the many private colleges facing declining enrollments. Best estimates for the new term are that 1050 students or more will register.

All available dormitory spaces will be filled. McCulloch Hall will be ready for occupancy in September following a summer-long repair job. A pre-dawn blaze in January damaged several rooms but there were no personal injuries.

A few spaces are still available in women's dormitories but it is expected that last-minute registrants will claim these. More day students can also be accepted for most classes. The College normally has about 650 students who reside on campus with the remainder being day students living at home within commuting distance.

Applications from out-of-state students are on the increase, while the number of in-state students is showing a slight decline. Many private schools outside North Carolina have fees and costs that run much higher than High Point College.

Figures recently released show that since 1968 there has been an increase of more than 25,000 North Carolina students attending colleges and universities. In the same period, however, the 40 private or church-related colleges in the state have gained only 23 students. High Point is one of the few colleges throughout the state to maintain its enrollment under these adverse circumstances. College officials believe the enrollment will remain stable.

The satisfactory enrollment at High Point College has been credited to several factors. These include continuing alumni support, the healthy church-relationship, good relations between the College and the surrounding community, and the support given by business, industry, philanthropic-minded citizens, and foundations.

Letter to Editor

Editor of HIGHPOINTS:

I am greatly impressed with the latest edition (June, 1975) of HIGHPOINTS. I have been reading alumni newsletters for some thirty-five years but this must go down as the finest edition I have seen in that time. The style of printing, combined with the information contained therein, makes it a must for every graduate and friend of High Point College. Congratulations again on a job well done.

College and church plan clinic for youth

YOUNG PEOPLE who want to evaluate their career possibilities are invited to a one-day clinic at the College on October 18. Registrations are being accepted by mail.

Called the Career, Occupation, and Personal Evaluation Clinic (COPE), the sessions include a battery of psychological tests, a discussion with a psychologist, and an immediate evaluation. A written evaluation will be mailed to each participant.

Lanier's hymns published

THREE HYMNS by the Rev. H. Glen Lanier, '45 have been published by The Hymn Society of America. Publication came recently in a booklet of 12 copyrighted hymns offered to the nation's musicians as texts for celebration of the Bicentennial.

Lanier is minister of the Wilkesboro United Methodist Church. Several of his hymn texts have been published by the Society and many appear in various church hymnals. He has also had two books of poems published.

His hymns include "God, 'Neath Whose Hand," "America, My Homeland Fair," and "Lord of Nations, God Eternal." A sampling from the first title follows:

God, 'neath whose hand, our fathers crossed the sea,
Seeking a land of peace and liberty;
Give peace, O God, in this our troubled day,
Guide us, O Lord, in every future way.

O may this nation find her strength in thee;
Give us new vision; clear our sight to see Ourselves as brothers in one native land;
Unite our hearts that we may firmly stand.

Heal thou, our land of brokenness and fear;
O God, preserve this land which we hold dear;
Make her defenses strong through loyalty;
O make us brave, who trust, O Lord, in thee.

May we be great in more than armaments;
Our vict'ry more than skill in battlements;
May truth and justice be our mighty sword,
And brotherhood be more than spoken word.

Dr. William B. Matthews, a licensed practicing psychologist and chairman of the department of psychology at the College, is director of the Clinic. It is sponsored by the Western North Carolina Conference, United Methodist Church, Commission on Enlistment, Placement, and Certification for Church Occupations and the College.

Matthews said the clinic would be especially valuable for young people in high school who have doubts about their careers. The clinic will assist them in evaluating their strengths and weaknesses as they consider a future vocation.

Fee for the clinic is $50, payable at registration. The Commission has a limited number of partial scholarships available to Methodist youth. The fee will be deducted from the freshman year's tuition for students who later attend High Point College.

Additional information and a registration blank is available from Dr. Matthews at the College.

Contributions for center

ALUMNI AND FORMER STUDENTS whose children are past kindergarten age may have some items or equipment they no longer need. The Early Learning Center at High Point College needs certain furnishings and is soliciting the contributions of used equipment.

Dr. Allen Thacker, director of the teacher education program, says the Center needs a sliding board, riding horses or springs, sand for the sandbox, beach-type toys, and a basketball goal for the playground. It needs a piano, a classroom wall clock, and appliances for a demonstration kitchen. In addition, the center can use more children's books and records, classroom toys, and some area rugs that are at least 12' x 12'.

The Center, enrolling children 2-5 years old, provides a laboratory for students entering childhood education. Gifts are being sought in lieu of an increase of tuition.

Tuition aid voted by N.C. legislature

THE NORTH CAROLINA General Assembly included a sizeable increase in state aid to private colleges in the budget adopted in late June.

The legislature continued the funding for needy students attending private colleges and universities in the state and it added a second aid program. As in recent years, the funding will allot private colleges and universities $200 for each state student. The total amount will be distributed on the basis of individual need, however, so that some students will receive more than the $200, and some, less. The second program will offset tuition costs of all N.C. students in 1976-77 in the amount of $200 without regard for need while the former program continues.

Private and church-related institutions across the state hailed the increase as a recognition of the value of non-state-related colleges. For many institutions, the increase will permit more students to enroll. In turn, maintaining enrollment near "normalcy" will keep the institutions solvent.

The existing financial aid formula requires both the student and the college to prove that a student needs the subsidy and that he would not be able to attend the college of his choice without aid. Parents and students asking for aid are required to submit a form including income tax data, financial matters, and expected expenditures.

Administrators see the second year's increase as a mixed blessing. The individual student, rich and poor alike, will receive the aid regardless of financial circumstance. While the students from families of middle- and upper-income brackets will receive the additional subsidy, the colleges may not gain additional students because of the aid to those families.

Counselling available

ADMISSIONS DEPARTMENT Personnel have nearly completed their work for the September registration. At the same time, they have begun work to insure a full enrollment for September, 1976.

Robert A. Wells, director, said the department is available to counsel recent high school graduates still undecided about college attendance. The office is open for the regular five-day week with a counselor or assistant always ready to discuss the admissions program. Personnel will also be available on Saturday mornings for on-campus visits.

Alumni are reminded to encourage college-age young people to give consideration to their Alma Mater as they make plans for post-high school education.

Wells said the admissions personnel and other college officials are available to address groups of young people about college entrance. Teachers and youth ministers as well as advisors of any organized group of young people may contact Wells for program plans.

Alumni will receive the travel schedules of the admissions staff early in the fall. They may make plans at that time to assist young people in the area to attend a College Night. Alumni are invited to the High Point College display at a College Night and to meet prospective students.

Dramatists in outdoor theatre

HIGH POINT COLLEGE is well represented during the summer in leading outdoor theatrical productions.

A. Lynn Lockrow, instructor in fine arts, is technical director for the production of "The Lost Colony," at Manteo. Jim Shover, rising senior, Medford, New Jersey, is an Indian dancer. Shover also has walk-on parts as several other characters. Gayle Gulick, rising junior, Belvedere, New Jersey, has a stage part and he doubles as a technician for the story of the ill-fated colonists.

Pat Jobe, a junior, High Point, has a speaking part in "Sword of Peace," the story of Quakers at Snow Camp caught between their religion and patriotism at the time of the American Revolution. Richard Fulks, rising senior, Bethesda, Maryland, has a chorus part in the same production.

COLLEGE-BOUND High School students needing to improve their reading and study skills took a four-week course under Dr. William Deleeuw (above). The course concentrated on vocabulary development, comprehension, and reading rate.

Alumni set $76,000 fund goal for Bicentennial year

Alumni Chair
$36,508.57

Golden Decade
$21,510.02

Scholarships
$14,499.89

Other gifts
$3,469.42

$76,000 in '76 from 76% is the goal for the 1975-76 Annual Alumni Fund. The Bicentennial goal was set at the class chairman's dinner in August by the executive committee and the class chairmen.

The goal has four categories: The Alumni Chair of Higher Learning (Loyalty Fund — unrestricted gift), $36,508.57; Golden Decade Program, $21,510.02; Scholarships, $14,499.89; and other gifts of specific designation to the College, $3,469.42.

Class Chairmen and Class Agents will assist in securing the funds. Over 70% of the classes have chairmen for the annual program. Classes without chairmen are '27, '30, '34, '38, '44, '45, '47, '49, '52, '62, '64, and '73. Anyone willing to chair a class should contact the Alumni Office.

Chairman for Advanced Giving is Clarence C. Keever '46, president of Patrician Furniture, High Point. 500 alumni on the advanced giving list have received personal letters explaining the program.

National co-chairmen for the Fund are Mr. and Mrs. Herman E. Coble '27, '28, both long associated with the College. Mr. Coble received the first degree granted by the College and taught many years in the education department. Mrs. Coble taught in area public schools.

The Annual Fund program will formally begin on January 27 when class agents and the alumni office will send explanation of the needs of the Fund to alumni. Class agents will also make personal visits and phone calls to alumni urging support of the fund.

Significant support of the annual giving program will insure the continued performance of Christian higher education, especially during the Bicentennial year when the nation remembers its colleges and other educational institutions.

Returnees boost enrollment

FINAL ENROLLMENT FIGURES for the fall term show a total of 1,130 students attending the College.

The figure represents 62 more students than last year and 110 more than two years ago. Regular dormitories are filled to capacity. Several nearby houses owned by the College and formerly used as rental properties were converted to dormitories just prior to fall registration. President Patton said the enrollment is a year ahead of projections. The College had projected only 1,100 students this year but an unusually high number of returning students sent the enrollment figures ahead of plans.

A breakdown shows 287 new freshmen, 87 transfer, 678 returning degree students, 20 previous students returned after the absence of a year, and 58 special students. Division by sex is 642 men and 488 women.

Students from North Carolina are in the majority with 650. The remaining 480 come from 30 states and 6 foreign countries.

Dr. Patton said the increase was due partly to the economic value of a college education. "It is still true that for a lifetime income, the college graduate earns more money than the non-graduate."

The economic situation of many families seems to be easing so that college costs have a higher priority in the family budget than in recent years, Dr. Patton said.

President discusses religion in college

PRESIDENT WENDELL M. PATTON has invited the faculty to give thought in the year ahead to the place of religion in a Christian institution.

Faculty members prepared for the current year by attending two days of seminars just before students returned to the campus in September.

He said that compulsory chapel, required Bible courses, and rigid social regulations no longer mark an institution as "religious." He said public opinion saddles the Christian college with inadequate reasons for existing. Even though we insist on high moral standards, we do not exist primarily to be guardians of our young people, to shelter them from the realities of the world, he said. The educated Christian exercises critical judgment and manifests the ability to critically interpret and evaluate information.

The President said he believed the basics were "a college for education, a liberal arts college for liberal arts, and a Christian college for Christian education." To sell a college on some other basis is to operate under false pretenses, he said. "The thing that makes us distinctive is that while a Christian college cannot compartmentalize religion, we live in a secular society that treats religion as a peripheral concern or irrelevant to large areas of life and thought."

He suggested to the faculty that we have not dreamed large enough dreams. "Maybe we ourselves are confused about the values of education or have forgotten the redemptive impact of faith on culture," he said.

Board selects Utley and McKenzie as new trustees

ARTHUR M. UTLEY, JR., High Point attorney, and the Rev. G. Robert McKenzie, Methodist pastor in Burlington, have been named new trustees of the college. Election came at the fall meeting.

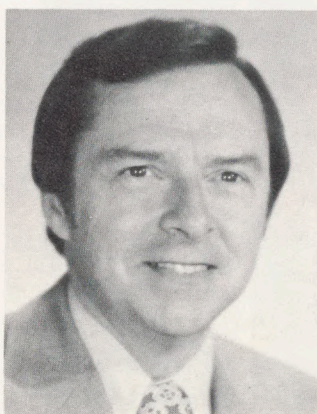

Utley is a partner in the law firm of Roberson, Haworth & Reese. He is attorney for the town of Jamestown and past president of the High Point Bar Association. He is a community leader, having worked with the United Appeal, Boy Scouts of America, Community Council, Heart Fund, Rotary Club, Y.M.C.A., and High Point Memorial Hospital. He is active in Wesley Memorial United Methodist Church.

McKenzie '51, has served the church as superintendent of the Elizabeth City district (North Carolina Conference), and as pastor of congregations in Elizabeth City and Kinston.

He is past president of Duke Divinity Alumni Association and vice chairman of the trustees of the Methodist Home for Children, Raleigh.

200 parents talk with faculty in annual campus visitation day

PARENTS DAY on November 1 brought over 200 parents of students to the campus for a first-hand look at the College. They met faculty members in the various departments, had lunch in the cafeteria, and attended a seminar in the afternoon. They went to a reception in the Campus Center and many attended a performance of "Born Yesterday," presented by the Tower Players in Memorial Auditorium Saturday evening.

Florida educator receives honorary degree

THE RECIPIENT of an honorary degree at the College's opening convocation on September 10 told his student audience that the spirit of free enterprise was the motivation for this nation's attaining the highest standard of living the world has ever known.

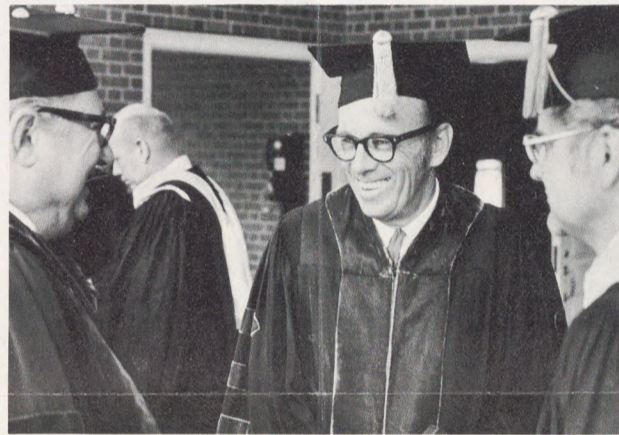

Dr. Jerome P. Keuper, president of the Florida Institute of Technology, was cited for his leadership in education. He founded the university in 1958 and now it is one of the largest private technological institutions in the country with over 3,000 students.

He told the students, "You are here for the very important and serious job of preparing yourselves for leadership in some form in the world of tomorrow."

High Point College and F.I.T. recently signed an agreement permitting HPC students to take a year's study in applied sciences at the Florida university.

Keuper was senior research physicist with Remington Arms Company before joining the Radio Corporation of America at the Missile Test Project on Cape Kennedy in 1958. He resigned as manager of systems analysis to devote fulltime to F.I.T.

DR. KEUPER (center) shown with Dr. Patton (left) and Dr. Epperson, is probably the only living founder of an accredited university still serving as president.

Divisional system adopted

THE COLLEGE HAS ADOPTED the divisional system of academic management replacing the pattern of departmental heads. Four divisional heads will oversee the operations of all departments of instruction.

The humanities division — English; modern foreign language; religion and philosophy; and fine arts — will be headed by Dr. Owen Weatherly.

The division of behavioral and social sciences — history, political science, and geography; education; human relations; sociology; and psychology — will be headed by Mr. William Cope.

The division of natural science, mathematics, and physical education — biology; chemistry; mathematics; health and physical education — will be headed by Dr. Roy Epperson.

The Earl N. Phillips School of Business Administration — business administration and economics — will be headed by Dr. Richard Bennington.

The change will allow easier management of interdisciplinary studies.

Majors pick careers in pastoral ministry

FIFTY STUDENTS have signed up to major in religion and Christian education, an increase of 12 over last year. The number is about evenly divided between those who plan careers in the pastoral ministry and as directors of Christian education.

Dr. Earl Crow, chairman of the religion and philosophy department, credits the growth of the department to recent church vocation seminars, faculty appearances, and increasing support among Methodist ministers.

"I feel our ministers are becoming more aware of the need to encourage young people at an early age to look to church vocations," Dr. Crow said. "High Point College has always played a major role in supplying fulltime workers to the Methodist conferences in North Carolina and this will increase in years to come," he said.

Students considering church vocations a few years ago gave most of their attention to teaching, or the chaplaincy, or some work other than the pastoral ministry. Now the trend is toward careers at the congregational level, he said.

Most of the men will go to seminary at Duke or Candler while most of the women will continue at the same places or Scarritt College. None of the women are planning to enter the pastoral ministry; two men are becoming directors of Christian education.

Long-range goal for the department is to have 75 majors within 3 years.

IN ADDITION TO his classes (below) Dr. Crow serves as board chairman of a social agency to assist unwed mothers.

Interim study-travel variety

SEVERAL GROUPS OF STUDENTS will combine travel and study for interim courses. Students take only one course during the January term.

Business students interested in a look at the heart of the nation's financial operations will spend a week on Wall Street, visiting a variety of trade institutions.

With the business students on the New York-bound chartered bus will be a group of theatre students interested chiefly in Broadway and off-Broadway productions. Both groups will be given tours of their respective districts by New Yorkers. Carolyn Rauch will direct the theatre students and J. Wilson Rogers, the business students.

A London, England tour will be directed by Mrs. Emily Sullivan, head of the English department. While chief concern will be historic places of literary value such as Old Vic or Drury Lane, the group will also visit the Stonehenge and Stratford.

Other trips will include Colombia for students of Spanish and a tour of Revolutionary War sites for history buffs.

State award to Dean Dull

DEAN DULL '52, principal of Parkview Village Elementary school, High Point, has received the Principal of the Year award from the N.C. Association of Educators. Students of the school decorated the halls, bulletin boards, and his office in celebration of the announcement.

After graduating from High Point College, Dean earned his master's degree in education from UNC-Greensboro. He taught five years in Guilford county before joining the High Point System in 1960. He was principal at Johnson Street Elementary school before moving to Parkview in 1970.

He has been active in the work of the NCAE and civic and community organizations.

Panthers in fall wins

PANTHER SUPPORTERS were pleased with the winning ways of the athletic teams for the fall.

The womens' volleyball team with over 20 victories swept the Carolinas Conference championship. The number of wins surpasses all previous Panther records.

The soccer team led by head coach Ken Chartier in his first year contended for conference and district honors. The season included a six-game winning streak when the Panthers defeated Belmont Abbey 1-0 and league rival Pfeiffer 3-2.

With their best runner sidelined with a leg injury for most of the season, the freshman-cross country team still posted their best overall mark in recent years. They were unable to win the district title for the first time in nine years.

Field hockey had a five-game winning streak on the way to the best-ever showing for the womens' sport. The previous record of six victories was surpassed at mid-season with promise of greater things to come.

Freshman in family tradition

BOBBY GREENE (center) and his father Garland Greene Jr. '53 discuss procedures for admission with Martha Harris, admissions counselor.

GARLAND BOBBY VESTAL GREENE III registered at the College as a freshman in September and carried on a century-old family tradition of attendance at High Point College and one of its forerunners.

Methodist Protestants in North Carolina ventured into higher education first in 1856 with the opening of Yadkin College. Bobby's great-grandfather, Edward Greene, graduated from Yadkin College in 1876. He wrote his name — still readable — on a window casing in the original building.

Bobby's grandfather, Dr. G.V. Greene, Sr., graduated from Yadkin College in 1910. After earning a medical degree, he returned to Davie county and practiced for 40 years.

Yadkin College closed in 1924 and the Greenes, like many other Methodists, transferred their sentiments to the then-new High Point College.

Garland Vestal Greene, Jr., Bobby's father, graduated from High Point in 1953. He played professional baseball several years before taking a coaching position with High Point High School. He is currently employed with American Lighting.

The Greene family owns the original Yadkin College as well as the site of a later campus. Hogsheads of tobacco are still on the second floor, abandoned when Edward Greene closed his tobacco factory in the old building.

Fund enjoyed by students needing money

THERE COMES A TIME in every person's life when there are no funds for specialities. A short trip or vacation, a present, or clothing for special occasions may be needed when the funds are gone. This is no longer a problem for High Point students.

A unique service called "Fun Fund" is available. A student can borrow as much as $25 and has up to 30 days to repay the money with a $1 service charge. A dollar-a-day late charge is collected up to 15 days.

Social functions require most of the money but other needs are in demand.

About 25 students obtain loans weekly. Several students may combine their loans for a big item, or a part-time student may request the help of a full-time student.

"This Fund tides them over until pay day or until they receive money from home. I've known kids to borrow money to buy their parents presents," said Dean Bill Guy.

"It's a great thing to supplement your income," said Mike Lyda, a sophomore from Charlotte. "If it were not for the Fund, a couple of times when I wanted to go home I would have been up the creek without a paddle," he said.

New faculty and staff

FIVE FACULTY MEMBERS and one staff member joined the college in September. They are Mrs. Carol A. Brantley, Lyman H. Rickard, Miss Frances J. Shambert, Dr. William H. Shirley, Dr. John F. Moehlmann, and Miss Diane Hanson.

Mrs. Brantley is assistant librarian and instructor. She graduated from Randolph-Macon Woman's College and earned her library science degree from the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill.

Rickard is an instructor in chemistry. He earned his undergraduate and master's degree from the University of Southern Mississippi.

Miss Shambert is a modern language instructor. She earned her bachelor's degree from Muhlenberg College and her master's degree from UNC-G. She is a candidate for the Ph. D. degree from UNC-Chapel Hill.

Dr. Shirley is assistant professor of history. He received his Ph. D. degree earlier this year from the University of South Carolina. He earned his bachelor's degree from Clemson University and his master's degree from the University of South Carolina.

Dr. Moehlmann is an assistant professor of English. He received his Ph. D. degree from the University of Tennessee last year. He earned his bachelor's degree from Lenoir Rhyne College and his master's degree from Appalachian State University.

Diane Hanson, Gainesville, Georgia, is assistant dean of students. She received her undergraduate degree and master's degree from the University of Alabama and has done additional graduate work at the University of Georgia.

Address by Dr. Davis

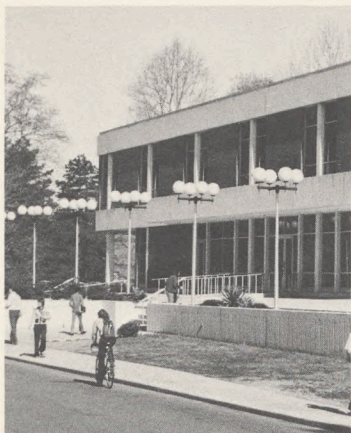

DR. VANCE DAVIS, assistant professor of religion and philosophy presented a paper at the Community College Social Science Association convention in Washington, D.C., October 29.

His paper was titled The Politician as Moral Leader in Early American Politics. Davis explained that in the country's formative years, political leaders considered themselves an important force in maintaining community morality.

In this issue

THIS issue of HIGHPOINTS looks back over the fiscal year just ended by recording the names of individuals and organizations who have supported High Point College with gifts.

High Point College is pleased with this record of support. In the face of widespread financially difficult times, High Point College has continued to operate in the black and to maintain a satisfactory enrollment.

This report shows that High Point College is solid, is in good hands, and has a promising future in quality education. Contributions to High Point College will continue to bear fruit for years to come, undergirding the education of young men and women who will take places of responsible leadership in our society.

A careful effort has been made to report the name of each contributor. Our sincere apologies to any donor whose name may be omitted due to oversight. Errors will be corrected in later issues of HIGHPOINTS.

The President Reports

A good year

"The 1974-75 academic session brought us a variety of topics in the headlines. Many good things took place at High Point College and I believe we can all be thankful for a good year. While the educational process was uppermost in our efforts, other facets of the total college program made progress; I'm pleased with the diligence and hard work of many people that made all this possible.

"Our special thanks go to the thousands of contributors who undergirded the College with their gifts. Their support made possible the advances which allow High Point College to maintain its reputation and integrity as a solid institution devoted to the education of young men and women. They will take their places as leaders and we have the responsibility to see that they are adequately prepared. The alumni, friends in the community and across the state, businesses, foundations, and industry have all had an important place in this great venture and we appreciate their assistance."

Wendell M. Patton, President

TWO academic innovations headed the changes in the curriculum at High Point College, Operation Resume and the Florida program. Both broadened the scope of the academic offerings and both have proven attractive to students. Resume, taking its name from the actual program, gave students whose college careers had been interrupted the opportunity to start again. Classes were held in the evening.

The Florida program, actually starting in the fall of 1975-76, opens a whole new area for students with interests in certain applied sciences. By taking the junior year at Florida Institute of Technology, students can secure majors in air commerce, applied mathematics, computer science, environmental studies, and oceanographic science, topics not ordinarily available at most liberal arts colleges.

Dr. William R. Locke completed his commissioned work on the history of the College, "No Easy Task," and had the pleasure of seeing nearly a fourth of the issues sold within a week of its publication. Dr. Locke was the featured speaker at several events throughout the year, sharing in advance of publication much of the material he had uncovered for the book. He spoke at the opening convocation, the trustees luncheon, and the local chapter of the alumni association as well as other meetings.

No one student pays the entire cost of his college education. Every student's tuition is subsidized by support from alumni, the Church, friends, and foundations. Of each unrestricted dollar given to the College, more than 30% goes to instructional costs with the remainder divided among the library, student aid, general administration and operation, and the auxiliary enterprises that combine to keep the College solvent. Every student is grateful for the assistance from others.

William F. Womble, a Winston-Salem attorney, was named chairman of the board following Holt McPherson's retirement as chairman. Charles E. Hayworth, president of Alma Desk Company, replaced Horace Haworth who retired from the vice-chairmanship. Roger Soles, president of Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company, Greensboro, became treasurer of the board. Both McPherson and Haworth were given emeritus officer status in recognition of their long leadership. McPherson continues as active trustee.

Emeritus status was also given to Dr. Dennis H. Cooke, president from 1949 to 1959, in recognition of his valuable leadership in a decade of tremendous growth and development for the College. Perhaps more than any other person, Dr. Cooke was responsible for channeling the College toward the accreditation it won during his administration.

The Mary Irwin Belk Dormitory was officially dedicated and named in ceremonies held immediately after the fall meeting of the trustees. Several members of the Belk family were among those in attendance.

Approximately 50 employers visited the College on Career Day to discuss job opportunities and vocational possibilities with seniors. The annual Career Day continues to assist students and the College in relating liberal arts studies to the needs of business, service agencies, and industry. With the same goal in mind, the Student Career Intern Program has been broadened to include all departments. SCIP allows a student to be fully exposed to his career choice and to work in that area before graduation.

Two scholarships were set up to provide financial assistance to High Point College students in the future. Mr. and Mrs. Robert K. Latta, High Point, established the Claude A. Swanson scholarship in memory of Mrs. Latta's father. Latta graduated from High Point College in 1956.

Gordon "Yogi" Yarborough, High Point, established the Lucile Craven Myers scholarship in honor of the public school teacher, also a graduate of High Point College, who urged him to continue his education until he graduated from the College in 1964.

The entire campus was aroused at 3 a.m. on January 22 when McCulloch residents discovered their dormitory afire. No one was injured but several men lost their belongings. McCulloch Hall is repaired and was ready for September occupancy.

Physical improvements have included the addition of two tennis courts next to Alumni Gym, the installation of an all-weather track at Albion Millis Stadium, and the refurbishing of the field house. Plans have been approved for the alteration of the campus entrance on Montlieu Avenue. The old bus stop shelter will be removed and the paved drive with the brick gateway will be shifted to the approximate location of the shelter. Work started during the summer and will probably not be completed until spring.

Two benefactors and supporters of the College, Pat Brown and Earl N. Phillips, died during the year. Brown's home on Gordon Road became the official residence of the College president several years ago. The Earl N. Phillips School of Business Administration and Economics is named in recognition of the support and interest of one of High Point's leading businessmen.

Students had opportunity to see or hear a wide variety of performers, lecturers, or artists throughout the year. Nationally-known lecturers included Dr. Joyce Brothers, Robert J. Pierpoint, Dr. Bernard Boyd, Dick Gregory, and Phillip Berrigan. The North Carolina Dance Theatre, the Winston-Salem Symphony Orchestra, baritone Theodor Uppman, the George Shearing Quintet, and the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra all appeared in Memorial Auditorium in concert. Visiting authors included John Beecher, Doris Betts, and Guy Owens.

Dramatic productions included "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown," and "The Lion in Winter." Both presentations won favorable reviews in area media.

Athletics also enjoyed a good season with the cross country, track, soccer, tennis, and baseball teams all winning championships. The basketball team won a number of key games and finished in the win column, 16-15, for the best record in six years.

A good mark for the College was realized in the amount of support from alumni, friends, businesses, and foundations. The following pages report the details.

The Alumni Office at the College managed several overseas tours for alumni with a total of 87 participants.

The academic year ended with the graduation of 237 seniors. Rear Admiral Francis L. Garrett, chief of chaplains, United States Navy, was the preacher for the baccalaureate service at Wesley Memorial United Methodist Church in High Point. The Rev. Dr. Earl G. Hunt, Jr., bishop of the Western North Carolina Conference of the United Methodist Church, was speaker at commencement.

Honorary degrees went to the Rev. John R. Sills, treasurer-business manager of the Western N.C. Conference, and the Rev. Jerry D. Murray, pastor of First Methodist Church, Salisbury.

Golden Decade receipts continue

GIFTS to the Golden Decade Fund for the year ended May 31, 1975 totaled $266,898.55. Receipts for the Third Phase Campaign stand at $690,427.49. Payments on pledges are being met on a timely basis in spite of the extremely soft economic conditions we have experienced recently. This is a testimony to the quality and character of the individuals, businesses, and foundations who have made a commitment to High Point College. Their generosity is a true investment.

The College is grateful to all donors, many of whom are in the habit of an annual gift.

The ten year pattern (1966-75) for total giving to the College including gifts to the Golden Decade has developed a broadly fluctuating curve. A smoothing of the curve indicates a positive climb in giving during that period.

Average annual giving for the ten years including gifts to the Golden Decade has been $619,948.

High Point College Roll of Honor for 1974-75

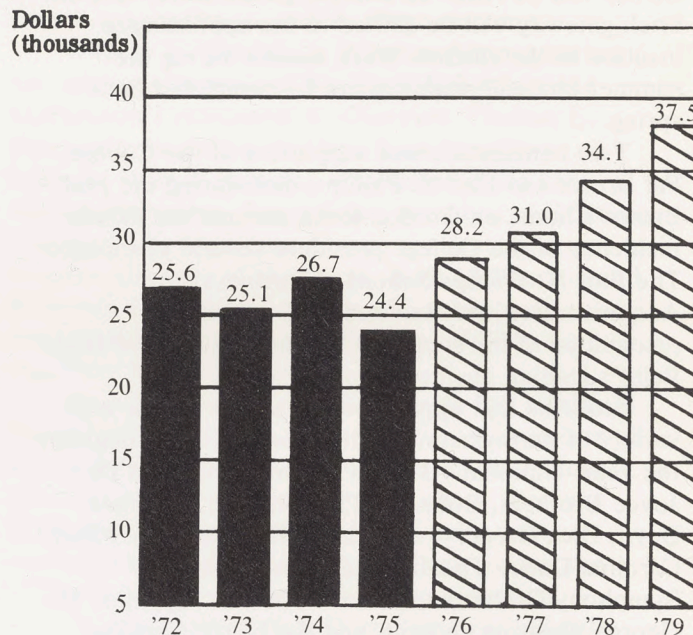

THIS is the report of the Annual Alumni Fund for the fiscal year June 1, 1974 — May 31, 1975.

The total number of Alumni contributors for the year was 1,511, compared with last year's report of 1,410. Alumni contributions in the current report total $50,683.68 and may be compared with $55,328.35 reported last year.

The average gift was $33.54 per Alumnus; 18.4% of our Alumni participated. (The College has 8,210 Alumni. The average alumni gift to Alma Mater at the national level is $69.15 with 17.7% alumni participating.)

Sustained and increased commitments on the part of each Alumnus are needed to help Alma Mater achieve her goal of quality Christian education. Each Alumnus has a personal stake in the future of High Point College since any added prestige which the College enjoys increases the value of the education the Alumnus received on our campus.

This graph projects Alumni goals and participation through the fiscal year ending May 31, 1979. These goals are in accordance with the goal of $150,000 to be collected over a five year period. The graph shows the goal of $28,200 for unrestricted gifts for '76 to support the Alumni Chair of Higher Learning. It does not show the $76,000 total goal adopted for 1975-76, including restricted and unrestricted gifts.

HIGH POINT COLLEGE has been fortunate in having willing leadership for the Alumni Fund. They have kept interest at a high level. The greatest asset of High Point College through the years has been its Alumni. Capable leadership and supporting Alumni have produced good results.

The 1974-75 Annual Alumni Fund was directed by several Alumni whose keen sense of guidance was felt by those working in the program. National leadership came from co-chairmen for the first time in our history. They are Porter A. '39 and Wilma Sink '41 Hauser, Charlotte. They live in Charlotte where Porter is head controller for Duke Power Company.

Chairman for Advanced Giving was Gilbert S. Callahan '49. He and his wife, Billie (Welch) '48, live in High Point where Gib is a sales representative for Endo Laboratories.

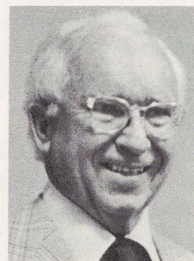

The Special Gifts Section was directed by Dr. W. Joseph May. Joe and his wife, Betty, live in Winston-Salem where he is associate professor of obstetrics and gynecology at Bowman Gray School of Medicine.

Another year of Alumni support is past, and the leadership of these dedicated Alumni is appreciated by The Alumni Association.

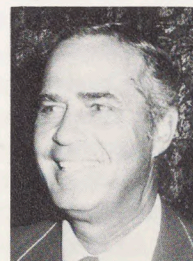

Without their leadership and interest in Alma Mater, our endeavors would have been far less reaching. Their talents are especially recognized during a period of economic unrest and uncertainty. Because of these, as well as each Class Chairman and Class Agent, High Point College is meeting the challenge of Christian higher education with the strong support of Loyal Alumni.

The Fellows Club

HIGH POINT COLLEGE is deeply honored by the support of individuals and businesses who make up The Fellows Club. Their exemplary contributions are a suggestion of the high quality of devotion and loyalty which mark our most significant assistance. These donors gave $1,000 or more each to maintain the academic stature of High Point College through a program of contemporary liberal arts. We are pleased to put them first in our roll of honor for 1974-75.

YOUR money won't get any smarter. But some young people will.

Every dollar makes a difference because tuition pays only about a third of the cost of a college education.

For the rest, colleges must count on gifts from individuals like you. From businesses. From everyone who realizes how much colleges benefit us all.

You know the value of college. And now you know its real cost.

Give to the college of your choice — High Point College. Now.

President's appreciation

THREE YEARS ago I became president of one of the most active Alumni Associations in existence. Each of you create this activity with your contributions to HIGHPOINTS, your attendance at College functions, Homecoming, and your support to the Annual Alumni Fund.

Your Executive Committee is constantly developing new and exciting activities which are of service to you. The Alumni Office is ready to serve you in any capacity possible. YOUR support, suggestions and contributions are always welcome, and we look forward to hearing from each of you.

As we approach one of the most exciting years in our country's history, it is my hope that we can accomplish the goals of the "Spirit of '76" as established by your Alumni Executive Committee and your Class Chairmen. When we look at our 8,210 High Point College Alumni, WE CAN ACCOMPLISH THE GOAL — "$76,000 in '76" with 76% of our Alumni participating!

This issue of HIGHPOINTS reflects the continued support of the Alumni during the immediate past fiscal year. My personal appreciation goes to those who worked and contributed to the program. Let us all capture the "Spirit of '76" with continuing support and interest for Alma Mater.

Wills and bequests part of good estate planning

MOST people want to do something worthwhile with their money while they live. Because people believe in education, High Point College has been fortunate in receiving gifts of many kinds, some designated and some not. Often overlooked is the opportunity to make a contribution to a specific memorial scholarship; the College is receiving more of these kinds of gifts through the years.

Another kind of contribution — the bequest — has been demonstrated twice during the past year. The College was named the recipient of a bequest from the estates of two individuals. The first bequest will establish a memorial scholarship fund and the second was designated for use at the discretion of the College. These gifts would not have been made if the individuals in each case had not planned for final distribution through a will.

It always comes as a surprise to learn that a close friend or relative made no provision for a final disposition. Still, many people do not have a will.

A properly drawn will can assure you that your property will be distributed exactly as you wish at the lowest possible tax cost.

A bequest to High Point College provides the donor a unique opportunity to assure the use of his money for a worthy purpose long after he's gone.

Good management of its business affairs is one of the strong points of High Point College; it has kept High Point College stable and financially sound.

The trustees and officers of the College are prepared to work with a donor's counsel or estate officers. A donor who wants to make a contribution for a specific purpose should consult with the Vice-President — College Affairs to insure that his wishes are thoroughly understood and carefully drawn.

Numerous opportunities for specific gifts abound, whether to capital expansion and development or for current operations that provide quality education in a direct and immediate way.
