From The Development Office

In the past year, I have had many great experiences working at High Point University and with the Alumni Association.

I have handled a variety of tasks, from managing the University's Annual Fund to helping with press releases and being a guest writer for the High Point University Magazine. My job allows me to be involved with students and alumni alike. Through the people I've met, I have seen the past of High Point College and peered into the future of this great University.

Recently, I was given the privilege of taking a larger role in the production of this magazine. It is an opportunity I look forward to with immense affection and enthusiasm. This has been a quality publication, and I hope I can continue its reputation of excellence as assistant editor.

I began working as the Development Officer in the Office for Institutional Advancement in February of 1996. I am a 1995 alumna of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. I root for the Tar Heels and love the Carolina Blue, but I have a special place in my heart for HPU and the Panther Purple as I am a High Point native.

I graduated from the School of Journalism and Mass Communication at UNC-CH with a bachelor of arts in journalism in the news-editorial sequence.

Although I have a great deal of experience in public relations with internships in public affairs at a television station and with the Walt Disney Company, my first love is writing. I wrote sports stories for four years with The Daily Tar Heel and the DTH SportSaturday, covering anything from track and soccer to football and men's and women's basketball.

I am excited about returning to my writing roots here at High Point. I have many fresh ideas for the magazine, and I would love to hear from you about any ideas you may have or any comments you would like to share about the job we are doing. You may mail comments and ideas to my attention at the University or you may e-mail me at alawrenc@acme.highpoint.edu.

Two Panthers reach Hall of Fame

Being an effective broadcaster is one thing. Maintaining longevity in the industry is another. And being recognized for your accomplishments is definitely something special.

Charlie Harville, a 1939 graduate of the University, was recently inducted into the North Carolina Sports Hall of Fame. Harville served as the sports authority on WFMY Channel 2 in Greensboro, N.C. for over 30 years.

Harville began his broadcasting career as a student at then High Point College in 1938, calling baseball games for WMFR radio in High Point. He continued to broadcast football and baseball games until entering the Army Air Corps in 1941 to fight in World War II.

Joining an elite group, Harville is only the second sportscaster to be inducted into the Hall of Fame. Ray Reeves, a Raleigh radio broadcaster, entered first. "I am very honored to be only the second sportscaster inducted and the second High Point alumnus inducted," Harville said.

Former HPU coach and 1930 alumnus C. Virgil Yow was inducted into the Hall of Fame in 1989. Harville, who played football and served as a trainer for the Panthers and Coach Yow while at High Point University, said he was happy to be counted among such company in the Hall of Fame.

"I feel very honored to be in the same Hall of Fame with Coach Yow."

Another High Point alumnus and broadcaster has been racking up honors also. Max Meeks '49 began his work at WMFR radio in 1947. Meeks joined the numbers of broadcasting elite recently by being nominated for a Marconi Radio Award in the Personality of the Year category. The Marconi is the National Association of Broadcasters' highest honor. The award has long been recognized as the Academy Award of the radio industry.

Meeks is the voice behind "Max in the Morning," one of High Point's favorite sources for morning information. In addition to his local notoriety, the North Carolina Association of Broadcasters inducted him into its Hall of Fame.

First Watson Golf Scholarship awarded

The first Watson Golf Scholarship was awarded in January to Anthony J. "Tony" Romani, a senior and member of the Panther golf team.

The award was presented to Romani during halftime of the High Point University versus Pfeiffer University men's basketball game on Jan. 22.

Roger C. Watson '66, a golf course developer in Cary, N.C., established the fund in 1989. Watson had a stellar golf career at HPU and is a member of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics Hall of Fame.

Romani earned Academic All-America honors in 1996 and is a three-time Millis Scholar Athlete.

Nido Qubein honored with Ellis Island medal

Nido Qubein ('72), chairman of the High Point-based Creative Services, Inc., was honored with the prestigious Ellis Island Medal of Honor Award on April 14.

Qubein joined an elite list of distinguished fellow recipients at the Awards Gala, held in New York Harbor and featuring a presentation ceremony, formal dinner and fireworks display.

"As an immigrant and a person who deeply loves the United States, I am honored and humbled to receive this award," Qubein said. "I feel extremely blessed."

Created in 1986 to honor the ancestral and ethnic groups who worked so hard to help build this nation, the Ellis Island Medal of Honor is sanctioned by Congress as an official honor celebrating the spirit of pluralism and identity that characterizes the immigrant experience in America.

Among the celebrated recipients are U.S. presidents, major entertainers, top professional athletes, and other major public figures who have made a positive and lasting impact on our nation. The list includes such luminaries as Ronald Reagan, Bob Hope, Frank Sinatra, Muhammad Ali, Mickey Mantle, Coretta Scott King, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, General Colin Powell, and many others.

The addition of Nido Qubein's name to this esteemed roll is hardly surprising. The 48-year-old author, businessman, and motivational speaker par excellence has been honored with the Cavett (the National Speakers Association's highest award), Citizen of the Year in High Point (1995), Sales & Marketing International's Hall of Fame, and an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from his first alma mater, Mount Olive College — the only person ever to receive such an honor.

Outside of his busy schedule, Qubein is very active in philanthropy projects as well as church and community efforts.

"I came to this country with a single-minded perspective to be a productive citizen," he said. "Work is a privilege to me. I absolutely love what I do. I characterize myself as being tremendously blessed with a multitude of opportunities. And I've had the privilege of knowing so many wonderful human beings, from whom I've learned so much."

U.S. Senate Chaplain speaks at 1996 Prayer Breakfast

Dr. Lloyd J. Ogilvie, chaplain of the United States Senate, addressed 550 area alumni, friends, benefactors and ministers of all denominations at High Point University's 26th Annual University-Community Prayer Breakfast.

The breakfast was held December 13, 1996, and the cost was underwritten by Thomas and Buren Haggai. Dr. Thomas Haggai serves on the Executive Committee of the University Board of Trustees.

Dr. Ogilvie stressed in his address the importance of spirituality in the governance of this nation. Ogilvie, in his duties as the 61st Chaplain of the United States Senate, holds prayer groups and handles a constituency of over 6,000 people. He has published over 40 books, and operated a nationally syndicated radio show entitled "Let God Love You".

In addition to Ogilvie's message, Dr. Alexa J. Schlimmer, assistant professor of music, sang "People Need the Lord" and "O Holy Night".

Royalty on Campus ...

HPU senior earns Miss North Carolina crown

High Point senior Jennifer Roberts is a little tired these days.

The human relations major from Greensboro was crowned Miss North Carolina 1996. And being queen for a year takes more out of you than the beaming brunette originally expected.

"I'm exhausted," Roberts said. "It's more of a job than I'd ever dreamed it would be."

Roberts won her title in June of 1996, and it's been a whirlwind experience ever since - traveling across the state giving speeches for all types of groups, promoting family values, speaking to children's groups and competing for the Miss America title.

Learning independence was a crucial aspect of Roberts's experience, she said.

"I've learned to be more independent of my family because I have to travel by myself, write my own speeches and come up with new ways to entertain people and reach children especially," she said. "Definitely things I would of never thought of doing by myself."

Roberts has found being a correct role model to be both a challenge and an honor. "I have to be a great role model at all times especially around the children - what they see is what they remember," she said. "Everywhere I go there is someone who knows me, so I have to be at my best at all times."

Roberts served as Miss Thomasville, 1996 to qualify for the pageant and did a tap dance routine to "Devil with a Blue Dress On" for the talent portion of the competition. Her title earned her $35,000 in scholarship money.

Eventually Roberts would like to pursue her master's degree in communication and use the experience she has gained as Miss North Carolina to seek a career in the television industry.

Roberts will give up her title this June 28, but will take with her an air of confidence and a renewed sense of well-being. "If we all use the talents God has given us, we will each succeed in our own way," she said.

"The minute we try to be someone else is the minute we fail. Believe in yourself and be the best you can be."

University loses beloved former president

Dr. Wendell Melton Patton, president of High Point College 1959 to 1980, died October 7, 1996 of liver cancer. He was 74.

The Spartanburg, S.C. native was instrumental in the growth of the University. During Dr. Patton's tenure, the University built three residence halls, the Horace E. Haworth Hall of Science, the Holt McPherson Campus Center, the Charles E. Hayworth Sr. Memorial Chapel, the infirmary, a warehouse and a maintenance building.

The University also purchased surrounding land and increased its endowment under Dr. Patton's guidance. The Home Furnishings Marketing program and the Winston-Salem Madison Park campus were started under his administration.

Before coming to High Point, Dr. Patton held administrative and teaching positions at the University of Georgia, Lander College and Purdue University. He served as a staff psychologist with a New York firm and served as general manager and assistant to the president at Shuford Mills in Hickory, N.C.

EDP instructor named finalist for Presidential Award

Cheryl C. Kaufman, a summer school and evening degree instructor was named as one of three North Carolina finalists for the Presidential Awards Program for Excellence in Elementary Science Teaching.

Kaufman teaches "Methods of Science for the Elementary School", "Teaching the Gifted Child", "Introduction to the Gifted Child" and "Social and Affective Needs of the Gifted" in the University's education department.

The award recognizes teachers who possess characteristics of outstanding science teaching. Kaufman, who teaches the academically gifted at Jamestown Elementary School in North Carolina, was nominated by Jamestown Elementary's principal Phil Mobley.

Mrs. Cheryl C. Kaufman

HPU's president earns prestigious award

---

Dr. Jacob C. Martinson, president of High Point University, received the Francis Asbury Award from the Board of Higher Education and Ministry of the Western North Carolina Conference of the United Methodist Church.

The award recognizes distinguished leadership in fostering higher education and campus ministry.

During Martinson's tenure at the University, both the enrollment and endowment have more than doubled.

Department of Education professor retires

Dr. Warren Goodson "Bill" Anderson, Distinguished Visiting Lecturer in the education department, ended his prominent career last May.

Anderson began his stay at the University as an adjunct professor during the 1988-89 academic year and earned the title Distinguished Visiting Lecturer in 1989. He led a group of students who studied abroad at Westminster College in Oxford, England during the fall of 1995.

HPU vice president garners national award

Dr. Morris G. Wray, High Point University's vice president for Internal Affairs, recently gathered national attention as one of the nation's best advocates for freshman year students.

The National Resource Center for the Freshman Year Experience and Students in Transition along with Houghton Mifflin, Inc. selected Wray as one of the nation's Outstanding Freshman Advocates. Wray was honored Feb. 27 at the Center's sixteenth National Freshman Year Experience Conference in Columbia, S.C.

Wray was chosen from a select group of educators who try to make the freshman year transition more pleasant on their respective campuses.

University dean named to Chamber of Commerce board

Dr. Alberta H. Herron, dean of Graduate Studies, was appointed to serve a one-year term on the High Point Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors.

High Point alumnus Nido Qubein '70 was named Chairman-Elect of the Chamber for 1997.

Member of HPU's original faculty dies

Mabel Elizabeth Williams Hill died October 4, 1996 at Attic Angel Nursing Home in Madison, N.C. at the age of 97.

She served as a member of the first faculty at then High Point College as a professor of Latin.

Carrying a torch ...

HPU held ties to the Atlanta Olympics

From torch-bearers to medical assistance, High Point University's alumni, faculty and campus served the 1996 Summer Olympics well.

Two alumni bore the torch in the High Point area during its pass through North Carolina.

1995 Alumnus of the Year William Ervin '52 was selected to carry the torch because of his involvement in the Association for Retarded Citizens (The ARC) in High Point. Ervin joined The ARC in 1958 when he learned his then 18 month old son was born with mental retardation.

Since that time, Ervin has shown his continued commitment to his community by serving on the board of the High Point YMCA and on the Guilford County Mental Health, Mental Retardation and Substance Abuse Board. He also has served on the board to the United Way of Greater High Point and has helped with the Salvation Army's Boys and Girls Club.

Paul Lessard '80 also carried the torch through the Triad area. Lessard along with another man saved a woman from a car submerged in Hiatt Creek in 1993 and he founded the Lighthouse Project with part of the money he received as an award from the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission. The Lighthouse Project brings positive role models into the area to speak to students.

Torch bearers were not the only ones to serve the Atlanta Olympics. HPU assistant trainer Nancy Groh and her husband Chris volunteered as athletic trainers for the Olympics. They served as trainers for the men's and women's field hockey games at Morris Brown College and Clark Atlanta University.

Atlanta may have been where the games were, but High Point got into the action, as well. The University hosted four teams from the Dominican Republic. Judo, wrestling, weightlifting and track and field called High Point home for their pre-Olympic training site.

Senior Keith Corbett served as an interpreter and chief tour guide for the teams. The teams arrived on campus May 17, 1996.

*If you know of another alum who was involved with the Olympics in some way, we would love to hear from you.

HPU to make jump to Division I

High Point athletics will soon join the big time - NCAA Division I competition, that is.

During a May 28 press conference, University officials announced the school would join the Big South conference and begin the jump to Division I.

The Big South recently added former HPU rival Elon College after the University of North Carolina at Greensboro opted to leave the conference.

Big South Commissioner Kyle B. Kallander said the conference chose High Point because of its superior academic standing and its continued excellence in the Carolinas-Virginia Athletic Conference.

"The Big South's entire membership, from CEO's to administrators and coaches, all were very much in favor of bringing High Point into the league," Kallander said. "There is no question High Point will be a fine member for us, and will strengthen our league for many years."

The Big South is a good fit for High Point, University president Jacob C. Martinson said.

"We are genuinely enthusiastic about being affiliated with the Big South Conference," President Martinson said. "It is regionally based and the schools represented have characteristics and goals similar to those at High Point."

The move is an exciting one for the University, although HPU will not become a member of Division I until September 1, 1999. Men's basketball will have to wait an NCAA-mandated 10 years before it will be eligible for an automatic post-season bid in the NCAA Tournament.

Educating and Excelling

Alumni educators stand out in their profession

High school assistant coach starts basketball camp

Dana Frank Conte ('90), assistant coach at High Point's T. Wingate Andrews High School, has collaborated with Coach Kenny Carter from rival High Point Central High School to create Hoops & Dreams.

Hoops & Dreams is a scouting service for college coaches and a camp for female players to develop and improve their skills. The program completed its first season and will expand in 1997-98.

In addition to holding a developmental camp for women basketball hopefuls, the pair provide scouting reports and profiles for recruiters.

Randolph-Macon Women's College recognizes Ervin '67

Wayne D. Ervin, a 1967 alumnus, was recognized last fall for his exemplary teaching efforts by Randolph-Macon College of Lynchburg, Va.

Ervin, who teaches history and social studies at Brunswick High School in Georgia was given the Steinlein-Shapard Secondary School Teacher Award.

The award is given annually to a teacher who positively shaped the life of a Randolph-Macon student. Brunswick High School alumna Laurie Haman nominated Ervin for the award.

Haman praised Ervin for his dedication to his students and to their interest and understanding of the world around them. "Mr. Ervin's classes opened doors that most of us had never seen before," Haman said in her nomination form. "These doors, the doors of education and the desire to learn, will remain open in our lives forever.

"In a public education system that is under-funded and over-populated one teacher, Wayne Ervin, dared to make a difference."

Ervin has been teaching history at Brunswick High School for 21 years.

Nursery school and daycare founder honored

Henrietta Bundy Hester Harris ('46) saw a need 48 years ago and filled it. Harris was recognized in March by the Greensboro Commission on the Status of Women with their women of achievement Awards.

She was honored by the commission for her efforts in business through her Hester's Creative Schools and her Creative Center for Children. The schools provide daycare, kindergarten and elementary school to 900 children in Guilford County, N.C.

The award recognizes women who have participated in the shaping of their cities, states or country and continue to serve as examples to future women leaders. The award was given as part of Women's History Month.

3 honored during Homecoming 1996

The Alumni Association honored Charles C. Edwards, Jr. ('46), Grady Ruscoe Moore ('37) and Dennis G. Carroll ('74) during a luncheon in the Millis Athletic/Convocation Center Oct. 5, 1996. The luncheon was part of the Homecoming festivities.

The Association selected Edwards as the 1996 Alumnus of the Year for his commitment to scholarship at the University. Edwards endowed two scholarships within a year, each with gifts of $150,000.

The Charles Clifton Edwards, Sr. Scholarship was created first to honor his late father, the founder of the former Edwards Business College in High Point. The second scholarship, the Alice Stokes Edwards Scholarship, honors the memory of Edwards' mother and her commitment to the students of Edwards Business College. Edwards died earlier this year.

The Association recognized Grady Moore with the Distinguished Service to the University Award. Moore endowed the Grady Ruscoe Moore and Rosalene Ruscoe Scholarship, an award named for her and her sister, in 1986. Since that time, 34 students have benefited from the grant.

Education has always been an important aspect of Moore's life. She began her teaching career in the High Point City Schools in 1921, which included stints at Emma Blair School on East Russell Street and at Ferndale Junior High School. She earned her master's degree in English from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in 1940, and retired from teaching in 1966.

Dennis Carroll continues to be active in the education field, and the Association honored him with the Distinguished Service to the Profession Award.

Carroll serves as the director of teacher education, chair of the department of education and a classroom professor at the University. He taught at Ragsdale High School and coordinated the academically gifted programs for the Guilford County School System.

He continues to be a consultant for the College Board of the Southeastern Regional Office in Atlanta, a position he has held since 1981. Carroll currently serves as a school renewal facilitator for six schools seeking renewal by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

Carroll has held teaching assignments at many places such as: the North Carolina Governor's School in Raleigh, Western Carolina University, Wake Forest University, Florida Atlantic University, the University of Alabama, Augusta College and the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

North Carolina State University recognizes HPU alumna

1966 Alumna Carol Ann Pope was named an Alumni Distinguished Undergraduate Professor award winner for 1996-98 by North Carolina State University.

The award was created by NCSU alumni to reward teaching and to recognize that good teaching was as important as publication.

Pope currently serves as an associate professor of English education at NCSU. She mainly works with those students interested in teaching in middle schools. She also serves as an adviser to undergraduate students and those out in the profession.

Pope said she felt grateful for the award and for the preparation she received at then High Point College. "I am honored to have received the award," Pope said. "Although my teaching career actually began in the fourth grade, I learned much about teaching and learning at High Point College.

"I am grateful for my opportunities there."

In addition to her professorship, Pope serves as the chairwoman of the Conference on English Education of the National Council of Teachers of English.

University alumnus earns Fulbright scholarship

Douglas F. Challenger ('78) recently earned the prestigious Senior Research and Lecturing Fulbright Scholarship.

Challenger is an assistant professor of sociology at Franklin Pierce College in Rindge, New Hampshire. He will lecture at the University of Ljubljana in Slovenia within the former Yugoslavia on issues in classical and contemporary sociological theory and American political and social thought.

Challenger recently finished his first book, Durkheim Through The Lens of Aristotle: Durkheimian, Postmodernist and Communitarian Responses to the Enlightenment, published by Rowman & Littlefield (1994).

1990 alumna named Teacher of the Year

Janet Boyd Lancaster is a recent alumna of the University, but has already garnered teaching honors.

Lancaster was recently named the Thomasville High School Teacher of the Year and continued her honors by being named the Thomasville City Schools Teacher of the Year.

Lancaster graduated from the University in 1990.

Mardi Gras - Let the Good Times Roll!!!

Homecoming was held Oct. 4, 5 and 6 last fall. The following photo essay should prove everyone had good times on their mind.

Many alumni enjoyed reminiscing and catching up with old friends. The Classes of 1939, 1940, 1941, 1946, 1956, 1961, 1966, 1971, 1976, 1986 and 1991 all held reunions.

The Alumni Golf Tournament gave many alumni the opportunity to live out their PGA dreams.

HPU's royalty for the year were crowned at the Homecoming Dance at Market Square. Stephanie Catts, a senior, came home with the queen's crown, and Seth Carter, a junior, took away the Big Man on Campus title.

Students and alumni alike danced the night away and in the spirit of Mardi Gras, they let the good times roll ...

This year Homecoming will be Oct. 3, 4 and 5. Classes of 1939, 1940, 1941, 1942, 1947, 1957, 1967, 1972, 1977 and 1987 keep your eyes peeled for more information on your reunions at this Homecoming.

Stephanie Catts and Seth Carter beam after being crowned Homecoming Queen and Big Man on Campus.

The Homecoming Parade gave all campus groups a chance to show their Panther spirit.

All set to tee off... Alumni golfers enjoy a morning laugh before the serious competition.

Dean of Students Gart Evans and President Martinson vie for the Queen's attention.

The Senior Division champs show off their awards.

Steve Sharman models his "Longest Drive" award.

How many sorority girls can you fit into a Volkswagen Bug? Apparently the Kappa Deltas have a formula.

Alumni show the students how it's done.

The alumni golfers enjoy the buffet almost as much as the golf.

As young as ever... the Class of 1939 celebrates its 57th.

Mark your calendars for October 3, 4, and 5, 1997 for Homecoming 1997!

Men's and Women's Cross Country

Cross Country teams clean up conference

The men's and women's cross country teams continued their domination of the Carolinas-Virginia Athletic Conference (CVAC) this season.

The men's team won the conference championship for the fifth consecutive year with sophomore David Duggan winning the Individual Conference Championship.

Duggan garnered the Conference Runner of the Year honor, and head coach Bob Davidson took Conference Coach of the Year for both the men's and women's teams. Four runners took All-Conference honors: Duggan, sophomore Shon Hildreth, junior Christian Kell and freshman Mark Klamerus.

The women's team displayed their prowess once again by winning the CVAC for the fourth consecutive year.

Freshman Heather Bowers captured the Individual Conference Championship and the Conference Runner of the Year title.

Four runners on the women's team garnered All-Conference honors as well: Bowers, freshman Mindy Cox, sophomore Melissa Lansberg and freshman Katie Powers.

Panther volleyball nets CVAC championship

The Panther volleyball team racked up a perfect 9-0 conference record (26-6 overall) on their way to their second consecutive CVAC championship. Senior Lori Kuykendall displayed solid play in the tournament and was named Most Valuable Player of the tournament. Senior Tiffanie Wilson and freshman Tahirah Dock took spots on the All-Tournament team. Dock took the CVAC by storm and was named Conference Freshman of the Year. Coach Teresa Faucette took the Conference Coach of the Year award.

Four players garnered All-Conference honors: Kuykendall, Dock, Wilson and junior Holly Hendley.

Men's and Women's soccer post solid seasons

Both the men's and women's soccer teams finished fourth in the CVAC this season.

The women posted a 10-9-0 overall record, 7-3 in the conference. The men finished 7-12-0 overall, 5-5-0 in the conference.

Men's goalkeeper Skip Korotova took spaces on both the All-Conference and the All-Tournament teams. The men lost in the quarter-finals of the CVAC tournament.

The women posted a few highlights during the season.

Freshman mid-fielder Iris Eysteinsdottir from Iceland heated up the field in the conference regular season posting a 3-5-2 CVAC record, 6-9-3, overall.

Sept. 7, 1996 by scoring 4 goals versus St. Andrews. The feat set a High Point University record for most goals scored in a single game by an individual player.

Sweeper Laura Lamb and mid-fielder Marie Wilson racked up All-Conference honors, and defenders Kelly Ivey and Brandy Baughman took spots on the All-tournament team.

Two more teams will compete for HPU

Title IX should not be a problem for the University.

The dreaded rule most universities fear calling for gender equity in athletics programs will not cause headaches for HPU.

High Point added women's indoor and outdoor track to its list of varsity sports in February. The additions bring the total of varsity sports at HPU to 14, seven men's sports and seven women's sports.

Panther hoopsters net impressive seasons

Both the men's and women's basketball teams sliced through competition at the close of the season to earn post-season bids.

Led by 1996-97 All-American Karen Curtis, the Lady Panthers took the conference championship for the third consecutive year. The team finished 17-3 in the CVAC and 26-6 overall.

High Point University hosted both the men's and women's CVAC tournaments.

The Lady Panthers received a bid to the NCAA II East Regional tournament where they eventually lost in the finals to Edinboro, PA.

In addition to junior guard Curtis's All-America honors, she was named Most Valuable Player (MVP) of the Conference tournament for the third consecutive year and MVP of the NCAA II East Regional Tournament. Curtis set a school record, scoring 778 points in a single season. Curtis racked up All-Conference honors as well.

Sophomore guard Dee Pennix and junior center Jan Foushee were named to the All-Tournament team.

The men's team rebounded from a slow start to win the conference championship and to take advantage of a post-season bid.

The team posted a 10-8 conference record and an 18-12 overall record. They also went to the NCAA II East Regional Tournament eventually losing to Salem-Teykio in the semifinals.

Senior forward Brett Speight provided many highlights for the Panther faithful. Speight finished second on the all-time scoring list at High Point University with 1877 points and garnered All-Conference honors. Speight's play earned him recognition as the MVP of the conference tournament.

Junior guard Tracy Gross and sophomore forward Maurice Madison earned spots on the All-Tournament team.

Their legacy is the unmistakable Spaulding sparkle these four sisters bring to everything they do.

By Charles Lehman, CONTRIBUTING EDITOR

In the beginning, there was Carol. Carol begat Sandy, who begat...

Wait a minute. Better stop right there and catch our breath lest, in our haste to reproduce this tale of four sisters, we misrepresent the truth.

Actually, the story (which includes Elvis, Howard Cosell, a harrowing experience for a Korean War fighter pilot, plus an inimitable orange Gremlin) opens with Dick and Marie Spaulding. They begat Carol, and Sandy, and twins Janet and Susan, and brother Rich. Then, roughly 18 years after all this begetting began, the seven Spauldings, en route to Florida, made a stop on Montlieu Avenue at a picturesque campus punctuated by flowering beds, towering oaks, neoclassical architecture and bell-bottomed students.

The year was 1973, and neither the Spauldings, nor High Point University, would ever be the same.

During the next seven years, Carol ('77), Sandy ('79), Janet and Susan ('80) would study, and work, and play at High Point. They would all share a sorority, Alpha Gamma Delta. Janet and Susan, identical twins, would not only share a passion for sports but also a major introduced their freshman year, communications. They would all share a deep sense of gratitude, continually reminding themselves how blessed they were. And they would all share an orange Gremlin, known affectionately around campus as "The Spaulding Mobile."

"Everyone knew we were coming when they spotted The Spaulding Mobile, that's for sure," quips Carol, the original Spaulding, the trail-blazer, the pioneer. "It was certainly unique. I guess that Gremlin will be our legacy at High Point."

Not quite. According to those who knew them well during their Gremlin-transported college days, their High Point legacy extends well beyond that familiar car. In fact, their legacy is all about the enthusiasm, the intelligence, the passion and that unmistakable Spaulding sparkle these four sisters brought to everything they did.

"They were all go-getters," remembers Jill Beam Kougl ('80), Janet's roommate for three years and Carol's little sister as an Alpha Gamma Delta. "You just knew that whatever they wanted, they were going to go for it and get it. They were all extremely outgoing and very warm. You could sit down and talk with them for an hour and feel like you'd known them forever."

Clearly, that zest for life, that warmth, and that eagerness to seize an opportunity and make the most of it have served them well — at High Point and beyond.

"The Spaulding family is special, not only because of their friendship that is real, but also because of their talent and their contributions to society," says President Jake Martinson. "We are immensely proud of them and of their connection to High Point University."

Carol Ann Spaulding Eiseman ('77)

Carol, an elementary education major at High Point, has yet to work in an elementary school classroom. For pay, that is. She has served as a PTA president and been very involved in the education of her four children, ages 16, 14, 12 and 9.

Carol and her husband,

Carol

Sandra

Susan

Janet

Mickey, have built successful careers in the home furnishings industry, first in retail in Los Angeles and today as manufacturers' representatives, covering the metropolitan New York territory from their home and office in Oradell, N.J.

Carol unwittingly launched her career with part-time work, along with many High Point University students, at the massive International Home Furnishings Market that descends on High Point every April and October. What distinguished Carol's involvement in the market, however, was winning the Masland-Duran Scholarship during her sophomore year. For three years she represented the vinyl fabric manufacturer at trade shows in High Point and across the country.

The scholarship provided Carol the opportunity to meet a lot of top executives in the home furnishings industry. Near the end of her senior year, she was offered a job by one of them at Barker Brothers Home Furnishings, a 12-store chain in Los Angeles.

During her management training, she met Mickey Eiseman, who was teaching the class and whom she would marry the following year. (More about the wedding later.)

After the marriage, Carol chose to leave Barker Brothers to pursue an opportunity in the insurance industry. Carol was promoted and relocated to San Francisco, where the Eisemans began their family.

Carol left insurance and devoted the next eight years to staying home with her young children. By the time the youngest entered school, Carol was eager to get back into home furnishings. She accepted a position as a sales representative for the Wexford Collection, a California manufacturer of fine furniture. As Eiseman and Associates, she and Mickey lead a company that represents several furniture manufacturers in metropolitan New York.

Sandra Lee "Sandy" Spaulding ('79)

A flight attendant and instructor for 18 years, Sandy has made good use of the psychology and sociology lessons she learned as a human relations major at High Point. Like Carol, Sandy got her start with her future employer while she was in college through part-time and summer jobs. For Sandy it was with U.S. Air (recently renamed U.S. Airways).

U.S. Airways offered Sandy a full-time job as a flight attendant after she graduated. She was based in Boston from 1979 to 1981 and has worked out of Washington since '81, currently making her home in Alexandria, Va. Only once during her 18-year career has she seriously explored shifting careers. That was in '81, after taking courses in fashion management and merchandising. She decided to stay in the air. "I enjoy the fact that my job requires a high degree of self-motivation and expertise in time management," she says. "Working in direct contact with the public — and that includes all kinds of people in various states of mind — in a situation that is stressful to many, you must act and react constantly and confidently. Even after 18 years, I still get a lot of satisfaction out of my work."

Beginning in '83, Sandy was involved in the development and instruction of U.S. Air's flight attendant training program, traveling to conferences across the country to stay up-to-date on new procedures and techniques. She chose to abandon that career path when the company shifted its training center from Washington to Pittsburgh several years later.

Never one for a 9-to-5 job, Sandy also gets a lot of satisfaction from her flexible schedule, which has become especially sweet with her seniority, and her benefits. She has made the most of the many vacation travel opportunities offered by the airline. She skis regularly in Vail and Aspen with Susan, takes in many Broadway shows in New York, and attends the U.S. Tennis Open every Labor Day weekend with Carol and Janet — all avid players and fans.

Sandy is an active member of her church and actively supports both the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation and the Jimmy Fund for Cancer Research.

"These are two diseases that have touched the lives of my family and friends," she says.

Janet Marie Spaulding Frega ('80)

Janet never imagined when she began an internship with WGLD-FM in High Point as a communications major that:

- She would become the first woman sports producer ever hired by a radio network in the United States.
- She would produce Howard Cosell's afternoon show for eight years. ("I loved working with Howard. He had a side the public rarely saw — very nice, very down-to-earth, very helpful.")

- She would cover seven Olympic Games, including Sarajevo, Los Angeles, Seoul, Albertville and Barcelona on location, plus Lillehammer and Atlanta from New York studios.

- She would interview controversial Yankee owner George Steinbrenner, former Dodger manager Tommy Lasorda, Hall of Famer Rod Carew, Duke basketball coach Mike Krzyzewski and many other sports celebrities.

- She would be senior producer and on-air talent at the first all-sports radio station in New York, WFAN.

Impressed with her potential, her enthusiasm and her work ethic during a college internship, WGLD-FM's parent company, Mann Media, offered Janet a job upon graduation. As the station's traffic manager, she scheduled advertising and created a time log for on-air talent. She was promoted to the company's AM station, WOKX, as sports director. Because the station was an ABC affiliate, Janet covered the LPGA Henredon Classic, the GGO and NASCAR, supplying voice reports to ABC national sports broadcasts.

On a whim, she applied for a job with ABC in the summer of '82 and began working that December as the first woman sports producer in network radio history.

"Susan and I have always been really into sports, always had a real passion for it," Janet says. "But when I was growing up, women and sports just didn't fit. There was Phyllis George on TV, and that was it. It was very intimidating in those early days at ABC, working with all men. My boss was extremely supportive, though. He definitely didn't want to see me fail after going out on a limb to hire me."

Her 15-year run at ABC has been anything but a failure. She has reduced her network schedule to part-time since she and Bud Frega ('80) had their first child, Jenna, 2 1/2 years ago. They are expecting a second child in September. Bud is sales manager for a specialty chemicals company. The Fregas make their home in Oradell, N.J.

Susan Louise Spaulding ('80)

Janet's twin sister, Susan, also majored in communications, interned at WGLD, and was offered a full-time job at the station as receptionist and sales assistant when she graduated. In short order, Susan was promoted to account executive and eventually to sales manager at WOKX-AM, where Janet worked as sports director.

While they had much in common, the twins' careers in radio took off in different directions — Janet in sports news and broadcasting, Susan in advertising and management.

Susan transferred to a Mann Media station in Raleigh, WKIX-AM, as regional account executive. After 2 1/2 years in Raleigh negotiating advertising campaigns with local and national companies as well as advertising agencies, Susan joined the Associated Press in San Francisco. (Janet's boss at ABC strongly recommended her for the job.) As broadcast executive, she managed AP relations with radio and television stations in Northern California and Oregon.

From San Francisco, Susan took a similar position in Chicago, a larger, more competitive market. In 1991, she was promoted to regional radio executive and was responsible for marketing AP services to nearly 700 radio stations in Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin. That year she was named 1991 AP Broadcast Executive of the Year.

In 1995, nearly 20 years after she left home to attend High Point, Susan returned to her native turf with a promotion to manager of national radio sales for AP's broadcast division at the Washington world headquarters. She is responsible for marketing to radio networks and syndicated programmers throughout the United States, as well as to stations and broadcast groups in New York City. She resides in Chevy Chase, Md.

HPU — The Springboard

All four Spaulding sisters credit High Point for providing the springboard for their career success. They are convinced the small-college environment gave them more hands-on and leadership opportunities than they would have experienced at the larger universities they considered attending.

"As big fish in a little pond, you learn a lot of personal skills and leadership skills, you personally know a lot of professors, and you are able to test your limits," Carol says. "We all came out of High Point with a lot of self-esteem. We felt we could do about anything."

A Matter of Friendships

Beyond self-confidence and springboards to careers, the Spauldings left High Point with a bevy of close friends. That, they emphatically agree, is their greatest blessing. In fact, friends are the main reason the Spaulding train started rolling toward High Point in 1973, the main reason they were all Alpha Gams, and the main reason Spaulding weddings and Christmas parties at their parents' Maryland home resemble High Point reunions.

"Mickey and I were married at night, and all of our friends, especially our High Point friends, went to my parents house around 12:30," Carol recalls. "Mickey and I had reservations at a nearby hotel, but we didn't leave the house until 6 in the morning, and we had an 8 o'clock flight to Hawaii. That was my husband's introduction to High Point."

During her junior year in high school, Carol came to North Carolina to visit another university she planned to attend. After the tour, she drove to High Point to spend the weekend with friends from Potomac, Md.

"I just loved High Point," she said. "My friends were so positive about the college, and everyone made me feel so comfortable."

So the next year, during a trip to Florida, she brought the family to visit High Point and never considered going anywhere else again. Sandy, who was always very close to Carol and who had many of the same Potomac friends at High Point, followed two years later.

But the twins weren't coming. They were big sports fans and had their sights on a large university with Division I teams. However, after a visit with their sisters in March of their senior year, they decided on the flight home secretly to apply to High Point.

They all have nurtured the friendships that brought them to High Point, and the many more friendships they made in college.

"Susan and I had our friends, Sandy had hers and Carol had hers," Janet explains. "Over time, all of our individual friends became our collective friends. We've all stayed in touch with everybody through this extraordinary network that has been so much fun and meant so much to all of us. And it all goes back to High Point. We are truly blessed and extremely grateful."

One of those friends, Jill Beam Kougl ('80), asks that everyone close their eyes and visualize Janet in her perpetual red shorts as bat girl for the baseball team.

Colleen Blackney ('81), has maintained regular contact with all four Spaulding daughters since graduation. She is sales manager for SPI Polyols Inc., a manufacturer of sugar-free gum, and resides in Claymont, Del.

"There is without a doubt something very special about them," she said. "It's undecipherable and goes through all the siblings. The first time you meet them, they just embrace everyone genuinely and make them a part of their family.

"If you had to use one word to describe all the Spauldings, it is fun. They are so much fun. They just enjoy living, and they make everyone around them feel the same way. I never hesitate calling any one of them, no matter how long it's been, it's like you just talked with them yesterday. Call a hundred other High Point people, and they would say the same."

About Elvis, Mom & Dad

About Elvis. From 1969 to 1977, when all four daughters were enrolling at High Point University, Dick Spaulding handled transportation for the Elvis Presley entourage, traveling with the legend much of the time on his concert tours.

"It took as many as six airplanes to support him," Dick says. "I spent a lot of time with him. He was the nicest guy you ever want to meet. We had some great moments with a really neat guy."

Today, Dick and Marie Spaulding still make their home in Potomac, Md., where four daughters and one son grew up. (Rich, by the way, attended James Madison University; sells airplanes for A.I.R. Marketing, a U.S. subsidiary of the French company that manufactures the Airbus; and is the father of two children.) They met in the Air Force. He was a distinguished fighter pilot with numerous awards, including the Air Medal with three Oak Leaf clusters and the Presidential Unit Citation. She joined the USAF as a surgical nurse and went on to earn her wings as a flight nurse.

Dick was hospitalized after almost being killed during a Korean War mission when his oxygen supply malfunctioned and he zigzagged alone through the early morning sky, essentially unconscious. He doesn't remember Captain Clarence Bell picking him up by radio from a control tower and guiding him in for a safe landing. He lost an hour of his life that morning but stayed on with the Air Force Reserve until 1981, when he retired as a full colonel.

Dick was president of U.S. Air Leasing & Services for nearly 25 years, retiring in 1994. Today he is president of Spaulding Aviation in Alexandria, Va. Dick and Marie Spaulding celebrated their 42nd wedding anniversary in February.

Asked what it was like to have four daughters in a private college at the same time, he laughs and says, "That's why I'm still working 19 hours a day."

Dick and Marie remain some of High Point's biggest supporters. In fact, Dick delivered the commencement address in 1990. He left this message with the graduates: "If you ever see a turtle on a fence post, you know he didn't get there alone. We all owe gratitude to a lot of people."

Dick and Marie Spaulding — just as Carol, Sandy, Janet and Susan — are grateful to a lot of people, including their family of friends, faculty and staff at High Point. "The school was very good to them and to me," Dick says. "The girls were all comfortable there, and they did a great job. That was their launching pad. They got a good education and were very disciplined. They really have done well. We're very proud of them."

Now that's a legacy — the Spaulding legacy.

Founders Campaign

For High Point University

Setting new Standards...

The 1996-97 Annual Fund for High Point University reached new heights this year through the Alumni Phonathon.

The phonathon reached a pledge total of $131,520. The total is the highest ever raised through the phonathon in the history of the University. Previously, the highest pledge total was $125,000. New dollars in gifts and pledges doubled from last year to reach almost $50,000.

The phonathon has also set records in gifts received. To date, the phonathon has brought in over $150,000 and over $13,000 in matching gifts.

The drive was operated by trained student callers dedicated to the future of their University, and the record totals were made possible by caring alumni who are committed to the continued excellence of their alma mater. Most of the funds raised were designated unrestricted, which will be applied to the University's most immediate needs, like scholarships, library holdings, and other student oriented programs.

The student callers celebrated their success with an awards banquet at High Point Country Club last December.

1928 Alumna endows scholarship

An alumna of the first true class of High Point University donated her assets valued at more than $292,000 to the school.

Ruby Isley Parker, a native of Marshville, N.C., designated the proceeds from the gift to endow a scholarship at the University.

Parker graduated from then High Point College in 1928. The Class of 1928 represented the first students of the University to complete four years at the young school.

Wachovia Bank increases Founders Campaign totals

Wachovia Bank of the Carolinas boosted the Founders Campaign by donating $100,000.

Wachovia President Walter McDowell said High Point University stands as an educational beacon in the Triad.

"High Point University plays a critical role in the future of the Piedmont Triad region of North Carolina," McDowell said. "Its graduates make excellent employees and customers, and for this reason, the University deserves Wachovia's support."

The University is extremely grateful for the gift, according to President Martinson. "Wachovia has been a long-standing friend of this institution," he said. "We are honored by their commitment to this school and to its future."

The gift was designated for the Fine Arts Center.

Two $50,000 pledges boost Founders Campaign

Two companies pledged $50,000 each toward the Founders Campaign totals.

NationsBank of the Triad pledged $50,000 toward the expansion of the Haworth Hall of Science.

The pledge is in addition to the $150,000 already received from the corporation.

Thomasville Furniture Industry, Inc. has made a $50,000 commitment toward the building of the International School of Home Furnishings.

Payne estate boosts Founders Campaign

High Point University recently received $170,000 from the estates of Pearl and Paul Payne.

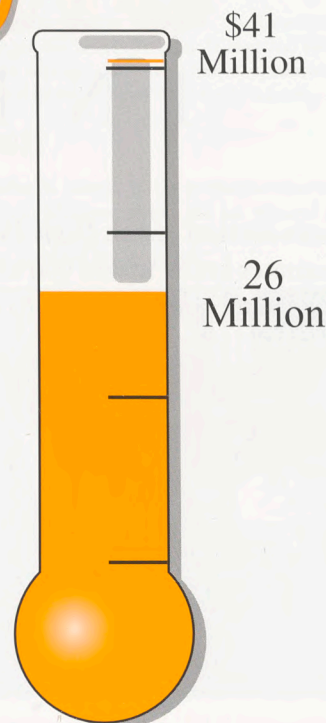

The gift brings the total gifts to the University from the estate to $1.34 million.

Pearl Payne, a 1929 alumna of the University, was a native of Davidson County, North Carolina. The Payne Health and Fitness Complex on campus bears her name. The Complex houses the University's natatorium, racquetball and handball courts, aerobics classrooms and the laboratory area for the nationally-accredited sports medicine program.

Miss Payne's gift was included in her brother Paul's estate. One-third of Mr. Payne's estate has been donated to the University.

Goal

New furniture scholarship offered

The International School of Home Furnishings will offer a new scholarship beginning the spring of 1998.

Marilyn "Toddy" Richman, of Chicago, endowed the William S. Richman Memorial Scholarship in honor of her late husband. The gift was made in conjunction with Richman's children, Daniel A. Richman, Elizabeth Richman Besser and Ruth Richman Kornbluh.

William Richman served as president of Stratford Company and the upholstery division of Mohasco Company. Richman was active in the American Furniture Manufacturers Association and the Home Furnishings Council.

Richman helped found the Upholstered Furniture Action Council (UFAC), an organization dedicated to ongoing research into more cigarette-resistant upholstery methods and encouraging voluntary compliance throughout the industry.

In 1979, he took over as chairman, a position he held for almost two decades. He helped the spread of UFAC into Canada, Europe and Mexico.

Wisconsin company pledges to furniture building

Richardson Brothers Furniture of Sheboygen Falls, Wisconsin pledged $100,000 to High Point University.

The pledge commemorates the company's 175th anniversary and will be used toward the building of the proposed International School of Home Furnishings.

The gift is designated for the furniture computer center.

High Point University is the only university in the nation to offer a major in home furnishings marketing. The major along with the interior design major attracts students from across the country. The program supports a cooperative relationship between the furniture industry and the University to generate well prepared and well educated individuals within the industry.

Anonymous donor pledges $1 million

An anonymous donor recently increased the endowment by donating $500,000.

The gift is the among the first against a $1 million pledge. A portion of the gift will eventually create a scholarship and the remainder is not yet designated.

High Point listed among best in U.S. News & World Report

For the second consecutive year, High Point University has been listed among the best colleges and universities in U.S. News & World Report.

The weekly news magazine listed High Point University second in its "Most Efficient Schools" category among regional liberal arts colleges in the South.

The rankings were determined by taking the academic quality of an institution divided by its 1995 expenditures per student.

Covington Scholarships continue to aid students

Nine students at High Point University benefited from the Jeneieve Armfield Covington and Susan E. Covington Scholarship this academic year.

The scholarship that aides students at both Guilford Technical Community College and High Point University, was created in 1988 through a trust from the estate of George Covington, former mayor of High Point.

This year's recipients are: Jeanine M. Adams, Amanda J. Johnson and Chanthasorn Sayaphet from Greensboro; Elizabeth A. Barger, Misty A. Blue, Alicia L. McCluney and Justin L. Minor from High Point; Nancy E. Gallimore and Ashley L. Reid from Jamestown.

Anonymous donor creates furniture scholarship

An anonymous donor donated $36,000 to High Point University.

The gift will be used toward the University's Davidson County Furniture Scholarship with a portion of the gift designated to the Campus Ministries program.

The Point and The Panther Pantry give students more choices

Renovations to the old snack bar in the Slane University Center and the addition of a convenience store offers students more choices on their meal plan. • The Point takes the place of the old snack bar. It offers many restaurant chain choices such as Blimpie subs and Krispy Kreme doughnuts. • The Panther Pantry provides an on-campus convenience store and is located next to the Campus Security office in Harrison Gymnasium. New additions also include an automatic teller machine for Wachovia Bank.

The Last Word...

In the coming months, you will receive information regarding the upcoming High Point University Directory of Alumni. This directory will be the most comprehensive reference of over 11,500 alumni ever compiled. The directory will include your name, address, class year, telephone number, email address and more. Additionally, the directory will be available in hardback, paperback and CD Rom. We hope you will want to be included in this publication scheduled for release in the Summer of 1998.

Another service I want to encourage you to utilize is SkillSearch. This career placement service will help to provide job placement and advancement opportunities for alumni of High Point University. This company will even assist you with your resume in addition to providing you information regarding your field of interest. So whether you are seeking employment or just curious about the possibilities, call 1-800-258-6641 and tell them you are an alum of High Point University.

If you have questions, I hope you will contact me. I may not have all the answers but I can certainly send you in the right direction.

E-mail me at cmrollin@acme.highpoint.edu or telephone 910.841.4531 with your comments or suggestions.

Alumni Services

Career service now open to HPU alumni

SkillSearch, a career advancement service, provides job placement and advancement opportunities to High Point alumni.

The national career networking service allows you to look for a job without anyone knowing. The company gathers information about you, creates an impressive resume and matches it daily with hiring companies that seek your qualifications.

The service is not only for those seeking jobs. The majority of subscribers to SkillSearch are happily employed, but they wish to keep abreast of potential advancement opportunities.

To join SkillSearch, you pay an initial subscription fee, with guaranteed satisfaction or a refund. For more information and an application, call 1-800-258-6641.

In search of all High Point University alumni

Since graduating, you may have tried to get in touch with an old classmate only to find that the last address or phone number you had in your telephone directory was out-dated! Well, your troubles are over. Soon an impressive directory of our alumni will be available to help you locate all your old friends.

The new High Point University Alumni Directory, scheduled for release in the Summer of 1998, will be the most up-to-date and complete reference of over 11,500 of our alumni ever compiled. This comprehensive volume will include current name as well as name when a student (if applicable), class year(s) and degree(s), address and phone number plus business information and more—all bound into a classic, library-quality volume.

The Alumni Office has contracted with the Bernard C. Harris Publishing Company to produce our directory and they will soon begin researching and compiling data for it by mailing a questionnaire to each alumnus and alumna. If you prefer not to be listed, please contact the Alumni Office in writing as soon as possible.

The new High Point University Alumni Directory will soon make finding an alum as easy as opening a book. Look for more details about the project in future issues of this magazine.
