HIGH POINT COLLEGE

HIGH POINT, NORTH CAROLINA

JUNE, 1930

To the readers of The 1930 Zenith

The campus is now green but when I came here it was covered with pea vines growing in red mud. Of course it wasn't attractive, but I, as well as you I guess, found something attractive enough here to bring me back year after year. Fellow class-mates, I congratulate you on having pulled thru. In a few years we will forget the things which actually hold us here and will look back on our college careers and believe that we were earnest students struggling for an education ~ some of you may have been but I strongly suspect that many of you just drifted in and are now just drifting out ~. Anyway this book in the first place is made for you as a record of your drifting. Secondly as a record of activities of the scholastic year and so to advertise to the outside world our college. Finally to give everyone the opportunity of seeing his name and face in print ~ Isn't it a wonderful glamour that hangs about the printed page!

Editing an annual is not always a pleasant task. We have been seriously handicapped by lack of support, coöperation, and by willful interference — but that's over with, forever we hope, and we hope you will like our book. We have tried to please you, but of course it is quite impractical to try to please everybody — we have turned down or dodged some propositions and requests which made us shudder at the brass of some people's children. We have arbitrarily changed some more or less established customs, OLAVA SHOLEM, We feel that we have produced a book of the highest quality at the least expense yet produced here.

CLASS POEM

*In the pocket on the green apron of a hill,
 Hints of an old-fashioned garden linger
 After man and houses choked the trickling rill,
 And Trade blotted Romance with its inky finger.
 There was only a small indenture in the ground,
 Yet brambles climbing up the scrubby plum trees
 Made a thick canopy for the quaint flowers that blossomed beneath.
 There were modest blue violets and coquettish pinks
 That laid a carpet for the tickling feet of the wandering dews.
 And bridal webs spun out from stooping limbs
 Held the warmth of strayed sunbeams.
 One autumn day when the air was still
 A lily bulb fell in the pocket of the hill;
 The soft black earth gave it a bed,
 And dried leaves rustled above its head.
 Rains beat down, and the bright sun shone;
 The life in the dry shell flickered alone
 When the fair maid, Spring, came to woo
 A blade of green cut through the dew.
 All through the year it jabbed the sky
 And yet it struck no passer's eye.
 The next spring found another spear
 And it grew tall for that whole year.
 The third May brought a pale green stalk;
 Two lovers saw it on their walk.
 The brambles dropped from the scrubby trees
 And rumors loaded down the breeze,
 Till May again.
 The stalks were lined with swelling buds,
 In June they broke like mountain floods.
 The pure white bells of the lily flung
 Fragrance on the air; and everyone
 Loosed its hold on the friendly stay,
 Then silently each floated away.
 The world paused not for the bursting flower,
 Yet breathed its sweetness in that hour.
 The perfume stole around the earth,
 It came back to its place of birth;
 And then it wandered on once more
 Now a lasting bit of Beauty's store.*

CLASS HISTORY

DURING the early days of September, 1926, a general stir was beginning to manifest itself around High Point College. Spiders that had spent the summer idly swinging to and fro in silken webs were ruthlessly destroyed; shades went up; windows were thrown open; the rank growth of weeds that had taken charge of the campus during the summer was being destroyed and new life was everywhere apparent. Why all this sudden change? High Point College was preparing to receive the largest Freshman class in its history. Then we came. From the East, West, North, and Sunny South. Our homes were in the far corners of American between which lay thousands of miles. And we, in our appearance differed about as much. But one and all we shook the dust of home from our feet, brushed the hayseed from our hair, and entered our new found home. When we had been herded into Roberts Hall and counted by the proper authorities we were found to be the same number as the good sheep that stayed in the fold, but in our case all of us presented a more or less lost appearance.

One of the first things to challenge our attention after registration, was Sophomore court. With fear and trembling we learned to sing "How Green I am" and to swear by the Sophomore colors. Then came college life with its routine of classes, math, history, English, chemistry, social hour; we enrolled in all, and perhaps enjoyed all, at least we are sure we enjoyed social hour. We soon learned a new song: "How Green I Am" and to swear at, not by, the Sophomore court.

Time passed quickly and we soon found ourselves Sophomores. This year we entered more fully into college life and college activities. The record that the members of the class of '30 have made is one of which we are proud. On the athletic field, in classroom, and society hall, we did our bit for our chosen Alma Mater.

One rainy day in the Fall of '28 we met again. We were a little older, a little more serious, a little more determined in purpose, and a few less in numbers. But at heart we were the class of '30.

The fifty-five Seniors who entered on the last lap of the journey, did so with a feeling of mingled joy and sorrow. During our three years stay here our fear and awe had changed to love and reverence. The Purple and White had become dear to us. We were glad that we were nearing the end of the journey, yet we hated to think of leaving High Point College and the associates of our college career. We began this year with the idea of giving the finishing touches. Not that our education was anything like complete, but that our college career must end. We made and carried out plans for our Senior gift to the college. We worked and played together, each bit of college life forming another link in the chain that was to make our college history. Junior-Senior banquet, society days, picnics—all form memorable links in that chain. In idle moments we made and re-made plans for the future, plans that we some day hope to carry out.

Our History—But why should I try to write our history? Is not each of us his own historian, writing in the pliant clay of the present that which will tomorrow be history, history written in the unchanging granite of the past?

"Nor all our piety nor all our wit
Shall lure it back to cancel half a line,
Nor all our tears wash out a word of it."

Let our record here be our history; we ask no other. Good or bad that record is now complete. You are the critics of our work. Do not judge it too harshly.

The hour of fate to those we love,
Each pearl that leaves the broken string

But those are stars that beam on high.*

COACH J. P. BOYLIN

COACH Boylin came to High Point in the Fall of 1924. In his five years as the Purple and White mentor he has produced five championship teams and has been recognized as one of the most outstanding coaches in the State.

“The man that built athletics at High Point College” is the most expressive way of telling who Coach Boylin is. He came to the school when they did not possess enough equipment to put a team on the field, when they had not place suitable to hold practices and since that time he has produced combinations fit to meet some of the best teams in the surrounding States. He has served as an inspiration to many of his players and not a player who he has ever coached will forget the whole-hearted trust that he placed in his teams.

Coach Boylin has been a winner while at High Point College and he has won; not only games but distinction through the many schools that have faced his Panther teams. He is feared by every coach whose teams have played his, and in closing might we say that we are certain that he will always win fame and renown for the sportsmanlike way that he treats all persons working under him. He has been a clean-playing, hard-hitting, aggressive man throughout his career at High Point College.

Ed is the grand old man of athletics at the college, having spent quite a few years in building up the sports department here. But joking aside, Ed has always been interested in athletics, and has never failed to do his bit. He held the office of football manager during the recent season.

Richard MacMannis

Although the football season was not very successful, MacMannis certainly proved himself a good captain and good sport in defeat as well as victory. Mac is a prince of a fellow and deserves much credit for the fighting spirit with which he led his team on the gridiron.

RESUME

EARLY football practice showed a great array of talent and the season promised to show another team of championship caliber emerging from High Point College. As the schedule progressed, many injuries kept the best men off the field and as a result the Panthers won but two games of their seven.

The 1929 grid campaign developed a large number of men for teams at the college for the future but not many of them were available for use during the season.

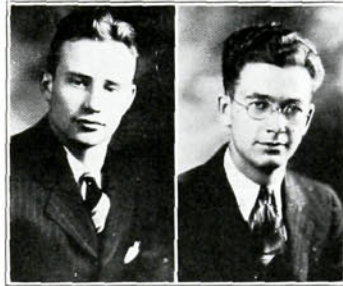

For the first time in the history of grid campaigns at High Point College, the 1929 Panthers did not win a single "Little Six" game. Of the seven games played, three were with S.I.A.A. teams, three with "Little Six" members as opponents and one game was played with the army team at Fort Bragg. The Purple and White Panthers were triumphant over Newberry and the Soldiers, tied a scoreless count with Atlantic Christian College and lost to Elon, Erskine, Wofford and Lenoir-Rhyne.

The college warriors have taken on a strong schedule for next year and a new coach is to take charge. With the men back that are eligible for competition, the new man should round a good team into shape.

BASKETBALL

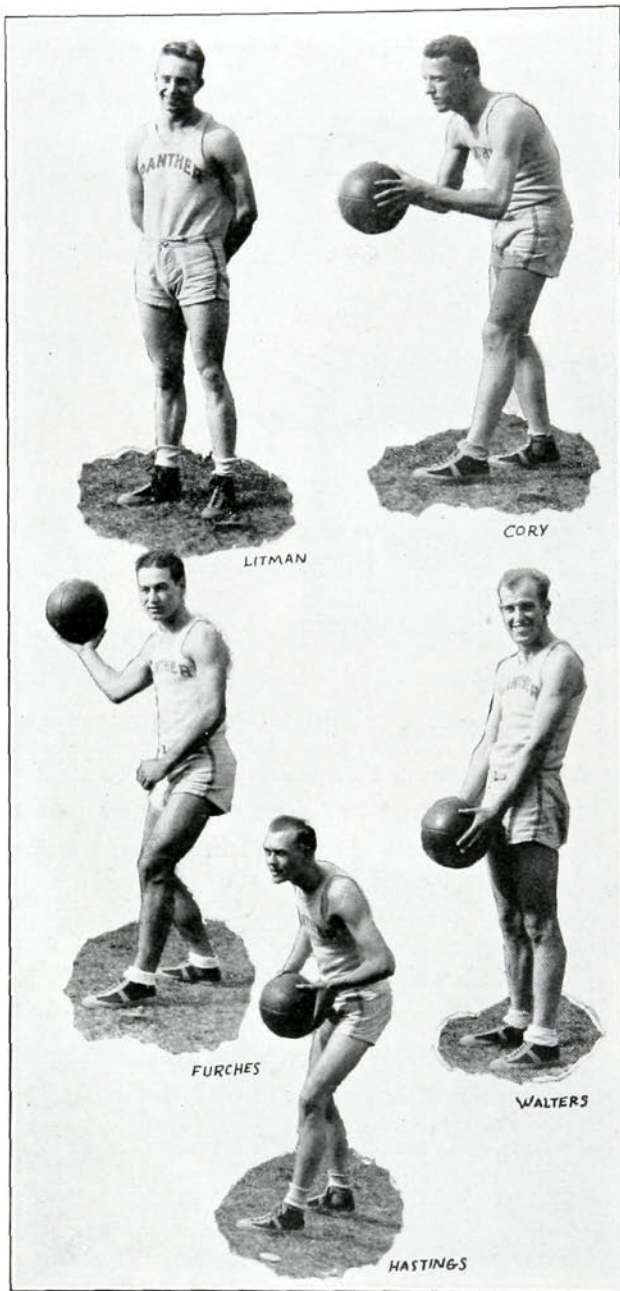

Riley Litman

Litman came to High Point from Uniontown, Pa., where he was a three-letter man. Since his matriculation at the local school he has taken an active part in football and basketball, receiving awards in both sports, and captaining the floor squad during the past season.

Charlie Brooks

It seems that Charlie is unable to stay away from athletics. He could not play during the past basketball season but devoted his energy to the managerial post, and it was certainly handled in the old Brooks manner. Thanks, Charlie.

Captain Riley Litman

Captain Riley took charge in place of Tim Mitchell and deserves high commendation for successfully guiding the Panther Pack to its third consecutive "Little Six" championship. He has been a great guard throughout his three years of varsity play and was classed as one of the best defensive men in the college circles of the state.

"Bob" Cory

"Bob" did not hit his stride until mid-season, but from then on until the final game he was one of the most consistent point-getters on the squad. His fighting spirit put plenty of pep in the quint on all occasions.

Henry Furches

The curly-haired lad made his debut at High Point last Fall, and since that time has been a very valuable man to Coach Boylin. "Hen" was the most accurate shot on the floor, and always played a good, clean game.

Frank Walter

"Screwie from Chicago" was one of the most deceptive cage men that has ever graced a local court. He can shoot, play a great floor game and come up smiling when the game is going at its most rapid pace. He will be a great man on the squad next Winter.

Allen Hastings

Living up to the promise shown in 1929 is exactly what "Al" did during the past season. Everyone looked for the slight Yankee to perform brilliantly and the lad outshone all expectations. An aggressive floor man, good shot, and a likable boy are the things that make Hastings ever popular on the court.

Nelson Van Natta

"Red" showed the Panther followers that a Dutchman can play the court game along with the best. "Van" did not show up till the second semester and had a hard time fitting in with the Varsity; and, as one coach has said, "He is a good man for any 'Little Six' team."

Harry Johnson

The little Keystoner with the deceptive fingers could dribble that ball through any defense, and it was largely through his efforts that the flag flies over H. P. C. again. Harry hits the hoop and can play a great defensive game. Along with eight others, Johnson will be back again next Fall.

Ralph Mulligan

Ralph has played on the Panther Varsity through the past four years and will be the only man to be lost to the squad next Winter. He led the 1929 Varsity to the title and has been one of the main cogs in winning the three titles. Ralph could always be depended upon to score a few points and to prevent his opponent from scoring any more. He was fast and could cover the floor like a flood-light.

William Ludwig

"Lud" was perhaps the most aggressive player on the squad, and kept up a fighting spirit when the going was the hardest. Playing his second year on the squad the blonde lad surpassed all expectations and was counted as one of the most valuable men on Coach Boylin's outfit.

James Zacovic

"Zac" came to High Point last Fall after a great career in High School, and was one of the few men to live up to the great name that he brought with him. He was topped only by Johnson for high scoring honors. Many of the state sports writers classed him along with the best in the state.

RESULTS

THREE men were lost from the 1929 Title winners and the Panthers had a hard time moulding a team into shape. After many weeks of hard work and constant practice Coach Boylin won the "Little Six" Title for the third time in succession.

Unlike the teams of the past, High Point College did not boast of a group of giants but swept their way through the schedule with a fast bunch of small basketballers. The 1930 cage quint is without a doubt the most aggressive and hardest playing team that has graced a Panther court in the history of the game at this school.

Twenty games made up the schedule, calling for games in various States. Twelve of the score were won and a number of victories were lost by a very close margin. Only one game was lost to a smaller conference team and that aggregation was defeated later in the campaign.

Perhaps the most outstanding features of the 1930 season was the miraculous recovery of the varsity after losing four games in a row. Along with it came the moulding of an almost perfect machine from a group of players that had never been under the Boylin system before.

Only one man will be lost from the varsity squad and all others will be eligible for competition next year. Unless some drastic changes occur in the near future, the Purple Panthers will claim another title in 1930.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

ROUGHLY speaking, the best players of this year's team have been Armstrong, Curry, and Fuquay. Thompson has done some good work and will be back again next year to do some more. The team has accomplished quite a bit which is largely due to these players. Doris Keener will be remembered as the "Lemon Girl" of the "Nike-Art" game in which incidentally the "Arts" ran the "Nikes" ragged. Little Paschall's enthusiasm and fast fierce attack should be mentioned as well as Joy Friddle who can always be counted upon to fetch a goal or a laugh.

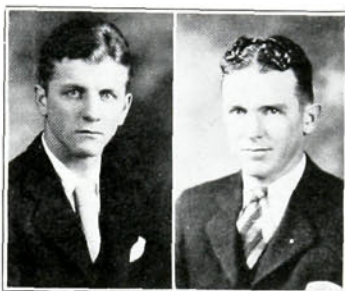

*Auld Nature swears, the lovely dears
Her noblest work she classes, O:
Her 'prentice hand she tried on man,
An' then she made the lasses, O.*

BURNS, Green Grow the Rashes.

BASEBALL

Captain Wade Fuquay

Wade has served as varsity back-stop for the past four years and all through his career he has been a hard-working player. In the smaller college circles of North Carolina, Fuquay is regarded as one of the finest catchers. He is one of the few men that have made the varsity grade throughout his four years of college ball and when the 1929 season was over his team-mates rewarded him for his earnest efforts and elected the Siler City lad to lead the present diamond squad through its campaign.

Manager William Ludwig

"Lud" served as a sub-infielder on the varsity nine last year and at the start of the 1930 season was appointed manager by the faculty chairman of athletics for his good work. He takes care of equipment in fine shape and it is reported that not a ball has been lost while he was on hand to see that they were hunted up.

1930 BASEBALL

EARLY season prospects show a greater array of talent out for the pasture game, this year, than has ever reported to Coach Boylin in the past. About thirty good men are working out every day and the contestants are working hard and steady for a position on the varsity nine.

In the past Coach Boylin has had to work with a small number of battery candidates but this year he has about seven fine hurlers on the squad. Every position has some two or three men trying to gain possession of the regular birth.

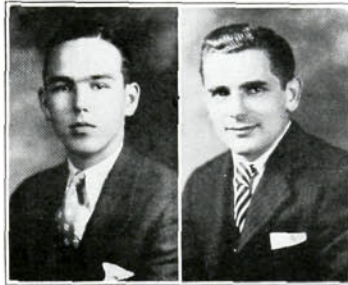

Contrary to past custom, this year's issue of the Zenith will not carry a complete line of squad and individual pictures. The pictures are to be made and will be filed away for the next issue of the annual. This arrangement is being made so that the book will be in the hands of the students when they leave school and so that each volume of the Zenith in the future will carry a complete line-up of pictures of the diamond squad.

A shorter schedule is being played this year in effort to give the men more time to work on their text for the Spring examinations. Only eleven games are being played and most of them are to be played on the home lot. In the past, the diamond squad has taken a trip through South Carolina during the Easter holidays. This trip has been abandoned for 1930, enabling the men to go to their respective homes and have a few days rest before the final burst of study for Spring finals. Immediately after the holidays the men are to set out on a campaign of games under the leadership of Captain Fuquay.

The 1929 season was very disastrous, not a home game being won. Several times with victory in their reach the men blew up and let the game slip through their hands. From the '29 team Captain Dixon, Brasseur, Robertson and Tim Mitchell were lost.

TRACK

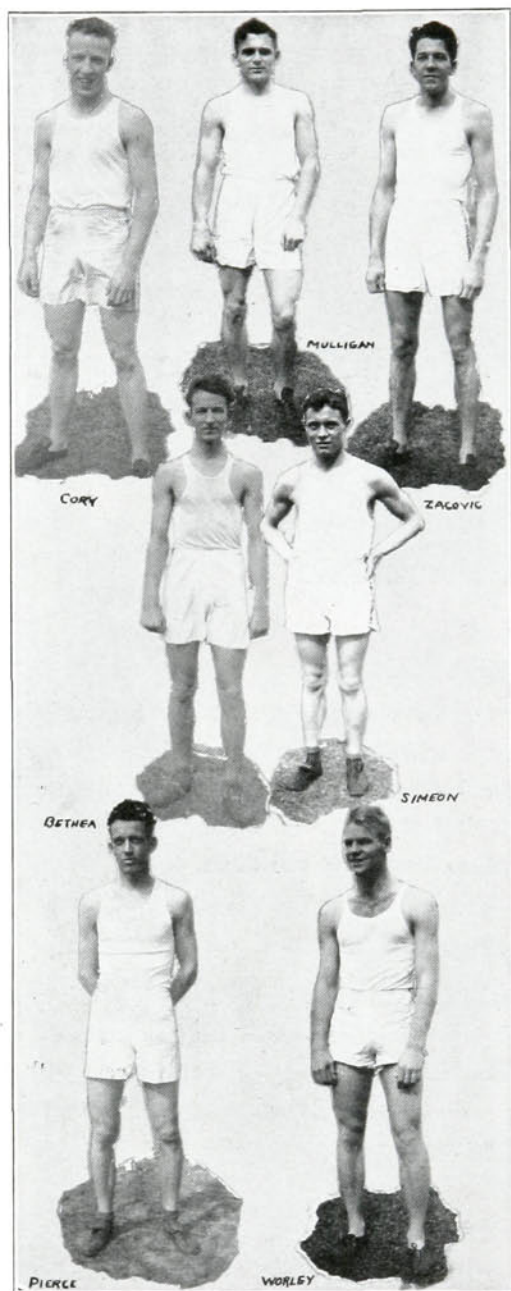

Captain Ralph Mulligan

Mulligan has lead the Panther cinder men for the past four years and again holds the fort as being the fastest hundred-man in school. It was largely through Ralph's efforts that High Point College has a track team. For two years he was the only point-getter on the squad, but at this late date of his career he has trained a number of men, who are gaining quite a reputation throughout the State.

Manager Clyde Pugh

Like Mulligan, Clyde Pugh has worked hard and long, trying to get a track team together at High Point College. Pugh is serving his second year as manager of the cinder boys and has been very successful in his efforts to obtain meets with a good portion of the "Little Six" teams. It was largely through his efforts that arrangements for the "Little Six" track meet were made.

Mulligan

Described by the press as a human dynamo, Ralph proved to be just that. The player-coach was the individual high scorer in the Little Six meet at Greensboro, winning two dashes and the broad jump.

Cory

Bob is a dash man who gives all the opposition a fit. He has proven a good man in both the individual events and in the relays.

Zacovic

This elongated star fell just one point short of equalling Mulligan's score at the Little Six meet. Zac is a pole vaulter, high jumper, and hurdler par excellence.

Simeon

Tony has a way of getting in the lead in both the 440-yard run and half mile and never relinquishing it. He has been one of the most consistent point getters on the squad.

Pierce

This boy manages to get away from lab often enough to get his body over the bar in the pole vault in order to pick up some points for the team.

Worley

Bill, always the hard worker, has been instrumental in the success of the track squad.

Hughes

Until Johnie came to High Point, we always counted the distance runs lost, but now before they start we feel assured we have the winner, and he is none other than the reliable John Hughes. He won both the mile and two-mile Little Six championship races.

Smith

Chet is a dependable half-miler, winning a place in the championship race.

Gasgow

This Castalia boy threw the javelin far enough to win second place in the meet, and this is only the second year he has tried it.

Leonard

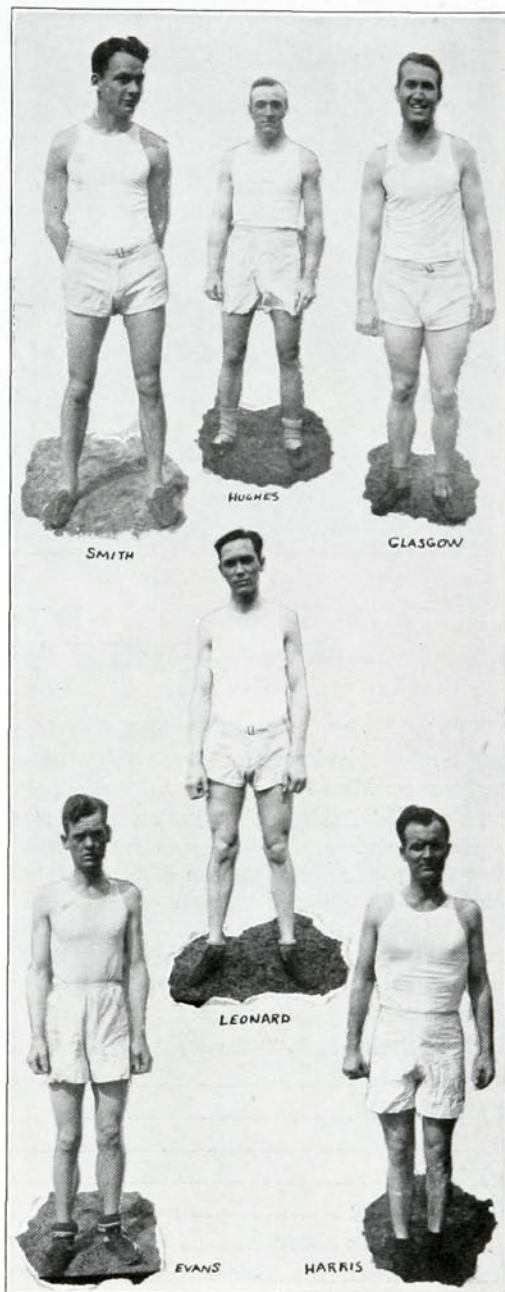

A new comer who has made a good showing for his first try on the cinder path.

Evans

Red really found himself and promises to give anybody enough competition for one afternoon in the middle distance events.

Harris

Barrett made a determined effort, but found the going a little too tough.

GIRLS' TRACK

GIRLS Track at High Point College is fast becoming one of the major sports under the direction of the Girls' Athletic Association, which was organized this year by Miss Henley and Allene Fuquay, it has grown rapidly.

The Girls' Athletic Association is of much benefit to the girls. Its purpose is to provide an organization by means of which students may receive the most wholesome and profitable education through athletics, by deriving physical benefits, social contacts, and training in leadership. It awards letters to those girls who win a total of five hundred points. Only three girls succeeded in winning one this year. The six major sports which they may win points in are—basketball, baseball, tennis, track, hiking, and swimming.

Below is the point system:

|--------------------------------------|------------|
| Hiking (Series 3, 5, 7, 9 mi.) | 50 points |
| (1) Basketball | 100 " " |
| (2) Baseball | " " |
| (3) Tennis | " " |
| (4) Track | " " |
| (5) Swimming | " " |
| Second team in above..... | 50 points |
| Tennis Tournament winner | 100 points |

ALLENE FUQUAY, President Girls' Athletic Association.

TENNIS

THIS is the first tennis team ever organized at High Point College. A lagging interest in this sport was manifested at the opening of the school in 1924. As the years went by the faculty and the student body became more "tennis-minded" until last year a tournament was held. It was due to the keen interest of the participants and of the students in general that led to the formation of a team to represent the school this year. The team is rather outstanding because of the number of states represented by its members. North Carolina, Illinois, Pennsylvania, New York and Delaware all have representatives on the team.

HASTINGS

F. ROBBINS

ZACOVIC

BROOKS

WALTER

Allen Hastings

Allen has found time to play both tennis and baseball this Spring, and do them both very well. He is perhaps the best court-coverer on the team.

Frank Robbins

By two years of diligent practice, Frank has risen from the ranks of just another tennis player to an extraordinary performer. This home-towner shows more promise of becoming a real star than any other man on the team.

Frank Walter

Captain and champion of the college in 1929. Frank was the one instrumental in bringing about the formation of a team. The "Little Six" tournament in Greensboro was brought about largely through his efforts.

James Zacovic

"Zac" keeps on adding to his laurels. Like Hastings, he goes in for two Spring sports and his exhibitions are beautiful to behold.

Charles Brooks

A veteran at the game, Charles can always be depended on to turn in a good exhibition of tennis. His excellent showing in tennis is just another reason for his outstanding record at High Point College.

IS DEDICATED TO

DR. PAUL S. KENNETT

MUCH credit must be given to Dr. Paul S. Kennett, who is responsible for the organization of the Forensic Council and who has worked diligently in bringing forensic activities to the fore at High Point College.

Perhaps the best tribute that can be paid to him is to say that the college can boast of a debating team that has been undefeated this year, and orators of unusual merit, some of whom have brought home trophies won in state competition in oratory.

ARMS CONFERENCE IS IN UPROAR

Speech Causes Disturbance

(By Russian Correspondent)

A bombshell was thrown into the midst of the London Disarmament Conference recently when Ivan Goup Comdownvitch jumped to his feet and announced his country's attitude toward the destruction of some of the horrible means of warfare now in use.

Not a sound could be heard over the entire room as the speaker rose. Representatives from Australia, New Zealand and the South Sea Islands pricked their ears attentively, as Comdownvitch began his oration in an impressive bass voice.

JANITOR RESIGNS TO BECOME PRESIDENT

The Honorable Edward White, C.S., familiarly known as Ed., who has acted in the capacity of Janitor of High Point College since the founding of the institution has handed in his resignation to the Board of Trustees to become effective at once, if not sooner.

When asked what he intended to do next year, he replied that he had been offered the position as president of this school and was considering very seriously stepping into the place just recently vacated by Dr. R. M. Andrews.

Mr. White is quite familiar with all of the details of the executive position as he and Dr. Andrews have been working together in running the college for the past five years, and he would no doubt be able to fill all the qualifications necessary for the office.

In an interview with the prospective president it was learned that he contemplated putting into effect quite a number of very necessary changes. The first of these, he avers, would be to make poker-playing the official game of High Point and to advise the Athletic Director to send challenges for games to Duke, Carolina and various other institutions of

DISCOVERY MADE AT ANNUAL BANQUET

It was disclosed at the recent banquet of the Juniors and Seniors, that Mary E. Young, the Dean of Women at High Point University is near-sighted.

It appears that the Dean has been trying to keep this a secret and had succeeded for the entire time that she had officiated here at the school until the annual event of the two upper classes.

The discovery was made while the popular matron was in the process of consuming her soup. It appears that she was about to consume a luscious fly which she mistook for a black-eyed pea that the amazing event was disclosed.

Up until the time that this fact was made known the students residing in the girls dormitory were quite docile, but since then they have become more natural in their actions due to the fact that the visits from the male members of the institution have increased several hundred per cent.

LAND TO BE DEVOTED TO TURNIP RAISING

A considerable portion of the college land will be devoted to the raising of turnips next year according to a report handed out by the Librarian. This will afford college students who do not play football an opportunity to work their way through college by farming.

The purpose of this new enterprise is to furnish the college with sufficient turnip greens to feed the students. According to "Ma" Whitaker, Chief Dietitian, this rare dish is so well liked by them that she finds it very difficult to keep an ample supply on hand.

THE HIPPO

We stand for:

The elimination of all deans.

Classes twice a week except on Sundays.

Credit for all extra-curricular activities such as poker-playing (On condition that the student wins) horse-shoe pitching, etc.

Subscription Rates

We'll pay you to take all the extra copies off our hands.

Address all communications to the Czar of Russia, if he is not available, call up the intelligence department.

Editorial Staff

We regret to say that the Staff was on an extended visit to Australia when this paper went to press and failed to leave their names behind them, hence it is impossible to reveal their identity.

LOGICAL REASONING

It has always been an irrevocable principle of The Hippo to stand up for the inalienable rights of down-trodden college students. Notwithstanding the exorbitant prices which are charged for eggs in this generation of conglomeration and congestion, we feel that studendous results are inevitable if the laboring man is not immediately taken care of.

Take the students of the past hundred years and the students of today and put them all together and what have you? We challenge our readers to answer us. According to the Literary Digest there are more students drinking whiskey in comparison to the number of sticks of Wrigley's chewing gum manufactured than ever before.

This leads us to a grave question; a question which has caused much discussion and controversy in intellectual circles. The problem is "Will the chewing gum lose its flavor on the bed-post over night?" We have sent a president to the Whitehouse. Will he decide whether or not one can get a job as typist if one cannot chew it right, or whether it can be grabbed by the tonsils and slung from one side to another? We doubt very seriously that he will ever stand by his party to that extent.

Perhaps the problem will never be solved. There is room for argument on both sides regardless of the fact that the burden of proof is becoming heavier and heavier. Since this is true our policy is to follow the advice of a great statesman of ancient Rome who said in his address to the Roman Senate "Cum granio salis." This, we believe is the only solution that will bring about harmony and discord among the great majority of the American people.

Harvey Young and Betty Bloom were married last week at the Yom Kippur Cathedral.

The bride was pleasingly dressed in a corsage of green peas and roses.

Refreshments were served in the form of Pomegranite punch, and corn-bread flitters at the groom's home in section A of the boys' dormitory.

Miss Nathalee Lackey, a charming young co-ed at this university, was visited by her betrothed, Mr. Simeon Edward Smith-Nygaard at a house party at her home in Falston, N. C.

The party was one of the high spots in the calendar of Social events of the year. Punch was served and a good time was had by all.

T. Olin Mathews and Joy Friddle are enjoying a fishing trip in the Maine Woods. According to a letter received from them the fish are in great abundance. All that is necessary is to catch them.

Correction

High Point College was recently accused that half the members of the football team were paid. We take exception to this however in saying that half the players on the football team are not paid.

THE DESERT INTRIGUE

Out of the darkness of the gray misty fog that had settled like some enormous clammy ghost on all of London a cry appeared from the distance in all its horror, and slowly the ship went down. No one thought about her there, hopelessly forlorn and bereft of all feeling. Notwithstanding his attitude the drunken old sailor appreciated the joke immensely.

It all came as a result if the unforgivable mistake of old Judson, who, ignorant of the entire situation, stood beaming as the continually shovelled in the coal. It seemed as though they would never stop shovelling in coal, but then that was part of the whole distasteful business.

Outside a wintry wind whistled and immediately Reginald came to his senses. Climbing up out of the dark recesses of the old dilapidated and abandoned mine, the problem came to him with such force that he was really frightened. But of what, he could not say. Perhaps it was the autumn leaves rustling noiselessly in the deep impenetrable forest; perhaps it was only the waves splashing upon the rocks that jutted out into the sea. Whatever it was it gripped his terror-stricken soul like some great octopus entwining him in its tentacles.

Suddenly the storm abated, and there followed such a calm that even the sea-gulls seemed motionless. Alighting gracefully from the plane which he had landed with the skill of a veteran, Andrews pulled out a cigarette and smoked it nonchalantly as the crowd gathered closely around him. Muttering incoherently to himself he repeated over and over again reminiscently, "Din, Din, Gungha Din, you're a better man than I am, Gungha Din."

Such a solution of the mystery was entirely unexpected, but the dashing young student, full of the enthusiasm of youth, laughed at them all and stalked carelessly out of the room. It had been a distressing occasion for all of them and an appalling gloom hung ominously over the room.

Nevertheless the time had come when they must part and Citronella, noting that the hands of the clock rested on the hour of two suggested that it might be wise for him to leave. It had always been thus, this coming and leaving, ever since he had known her, and it was quite obvious that he was becoming disgusted. However, this was life, and he resolved with a grim determination to take it as it came.

All of this was before the advent of the steam-boat, the automobile, and the radio. Now things were different. One couldn't realize how different it was until one had lived through it all. And yet, it was this difference that brought about the catastrophe.

Scotland was burning, but who cared about Scotland? Why not leave that to Scotland yard or the fire department; here was Venice to be enjoyed—Venice with its romance, its watery streets, its gay gondoliers, its happy youths and maidens laughing at life.

In the midst of all this swirling maelstrom the shovel broke, and the next day it rained. Needless to say, they were happy; radiantly, gloriously happy. As they looked out through the little curtained window across the fields of green grass, they realized that another day had come, and that they would go through life together, forever more unmolested.

learning in the state. He also thinks that scholarships should be given to men who excel in this sport. One other innovation which he intends to introduce is the serving of breakfast to the rooms of those students who find it difficult to rise in the morning at the sound of old "Yadkin." This service, he feels, would attract many new students to the school and thus the enrollment would be greatly increased.

Advice to the Love-Lorn

By Lizzie Safronia Clapsaddle

Dear Miss Clapsaddle:

I am a young girl, sixteen years old in my stocking feet, and am very very much in love with a handsome college boy, but my parents have forbidden him to call at the house. Shall I defy them and meet him in the corner drug store?

I weigh 135 pounds and am five feet, two inches in height. Do you think I should have my face lifted?

Do green eyes go with blond hair or should I consult our family physician? I am very anxious to receive an answer to this question as my boy-friend is very fond of green eyes and blond hair.

Signed a MODERN MAIDEN.

Dear Modern Maiden:

After very serious consideration of your problems I shall endeavor to advise you in the best way I know how and give you the following answers:

1. The Isthmus of Panama.
2. Yes, you should be very cautious of all tall dark men who are handsome.
3. Discovered in 1492.

Note: Miss Clapsaddle will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to problems of the heart.

Quite a furor was created on the campus the other day when a cow strayed onto the premises. It seems as though the discussion was aroused when it was learned that not a student knew what it was. Joy Friddle finally solved the problem. It seems that she knew what a cow was. Ma Whittaker had Ed. milk her before she escaped from the campus.

The Best for Less

Utility Service and the Community

More than any other one factor, the quality of its utility services determines the desirability and attractiveness of a community for business or as a place in which to live.

In industry and in the home the application of electricity to industrial and household operations is multiplying the effectiveness of the labor of the worker and relieving the housekeepers of drudgery and fatigue. And while it increases the efficiency of the individual, it raises the quality of the work accomplished as well.

We invite attention to the standard of utility services in the cities in which we supply these essentials to modern living and modern business.

A THOUGHT.

Do not wise in your own conceits.—ROMANS 12:16.

Never expect justice from a vain man.—Washington Allston.

THE RESIGNATION OF PROF. JOHNSON.

The second resignation from High Point college's small faculty group serves notice that the college next year will be without the services of a man of remarkable versatility and energy. We refer to the resignation yesterday of Prof. T. C. Johnson.

Quite possibly had Prof. Johnson waited he would have had nothing from which to resign. A committee, studying ways and means to reduce operating costs of the college, has prepared recommendations which include the elimination of the department of philosophy that he heads. Since the professor is the department essentially, the assumption is that the recommendations, if adopted, would entail severance of the connection of the man from the college.

Prof. Johnson's resignation is not exactly equivalent to quitting after being notified that he would not be reelected to a place in the faculty. Indeed it would not be that, necessarily, even had the trustees' favorable action on the recommendation been made, since it would not be apparent how remaining posts are to be filled. However, Prof. Johnson, in his resignation, frankly assumed that the committee's purpose was that he was to be eliminated in the interest of economy. He clears away any question about the future in respect to his connection there by announcing that he will step aside with the end of the year.

Undoubtedly the college authorities ought to work on both ends of the economic problem. They need to spend wisely and frugally as well as to increase their income. The latter end of it, however, is the more important end. A new college that matriculates 300 students and gets through a nine months' term on what those students pay plus some $15,000 cannot be said to be spending lavishly. High Point college cannot hope to reduce that hiatus between student payments and operation costs very greatly and keep it reduced. If it cuts sharply, the reduction of the character of its services will have its unfavorable reaction. The college should be enabled to spend not less than $25,000 a year in excess of its collections from students. Its backers probably should be willing and able to make that much of a contribution to the cause of public education.

But this is not intended to be a dissertation on the college's puzzle and policy. We are reflecting upon what the retrenchment effected by the elimination of Prof. Johnson's department costs the college rather than upon what it saves the college.

The saving chiefly, if not wholly, is represented by the professional salary of $2,700 a year.

It will cost the college the services of—

A press agent whose exceptional capacity for that contact has been trained to such a point that he could step into any newspaper office in the state and start to work immediately on any editorial job it has with some ease. His college copy gets favorable treatment in all of them.

A director of athletics whose abilities we are not able to estimate.

A coach of debating and oratory who must be credited with a very considerable responsibility for the amazing success of High Point college representatives in forensic contests.

A dean of men under whose administration campus discipline appears by the record to have been improved.

A director of college publications of unusual skill.

An instructor in journalism who has stimulated and improved expression of a respectable number of student writers.

A professor of philosophy of a quality not well enough known to the deponent for comment.

With it all, Prof. Johnson finds the time and the stamina to serve as supply pastor for one of the city's largest churches, and to respond to a steady flow of demands for his services as a speaker on various public occasions.

When better pay in one place permits Prof. Johnson to concentrate his activities, he will find greater happiness in his work. But what capacity for utility he displays under the pressure of circumstances!
