◻ DEDICATION ◻

STEPHEN C. CLARK, prominent High Point realtor and developer, has probably done more toward the development and conservation of the natural beauty in North Carolina than any other individual in close contact with High Point College. Bits of his futuristic outlook may be seen in our own city, exposed through his developments in the beautiful Emerywood section.

As the trend of Mr. Clark's work suggested the theme of this book, we, of the Senior Class, take great pleasure in dedicating the 1931 edition of THE ZENITH to a gentleman, a friend, and a man held high in the esteem of his community.

THEME

*"Beauty is truth,—truth beauty,
That is all ye know on earth and all ye need to know."*

It is with the vision of these memorable lines from the colorful Keats before us, that we proceed into the theme of the 1931 edition of THE ZENITH. From the eastern coast to the mountains in the west we have brought you "Natural Beauty" spots of North Carolina. This scheme has been carried throughout the book, and it is our aim to create an undying respect for these great masterpieces of God's handiwork.

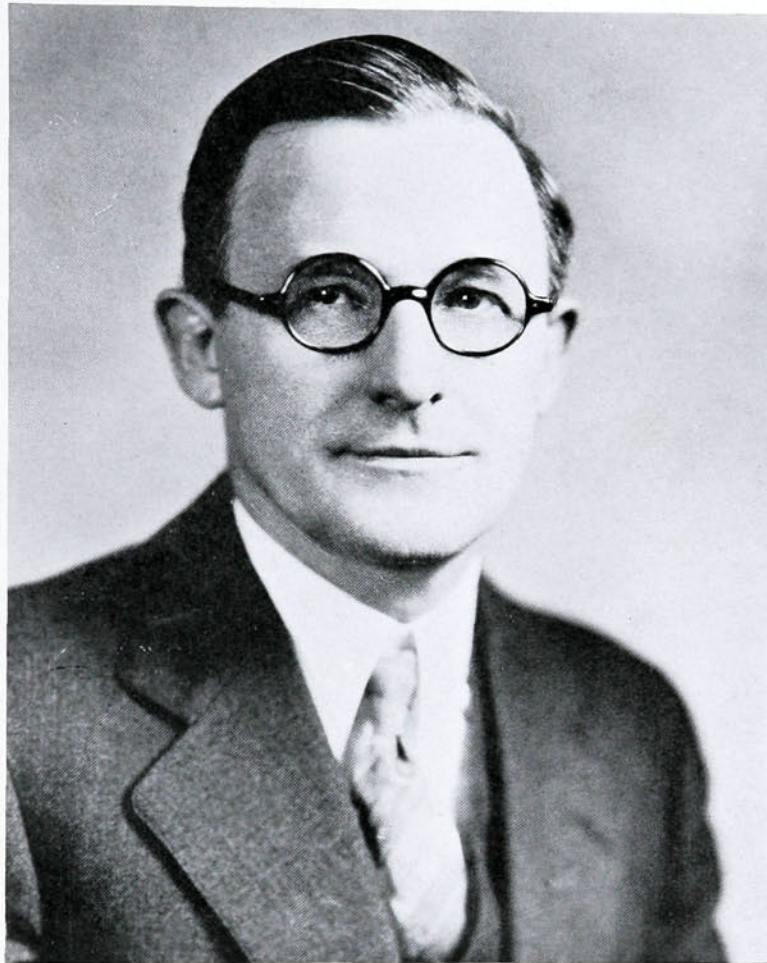

Perhaps you have seen most of these pictures in the realistic,—then this book will form a firm bond with that first meeting. Perhaps you have not seen these views before,—then the book will serve as a link with future meeting. If we fail in the original intent of the annual, at least we have placed in your hands a collection of priceless beauty that would make any of us proud of our homage.

The College Highway

HIGHWAYS are happy byways." In September, 1927, such a highway led boys and girls from various parts of the United States to High Point College, an institution offering a tour of four years to young people who wish to acquire a cosmopolitan view of life. With this well established company, our group of one hundred and six students began its tour.

The first road we were to travel was the Freshman Highway. Riley Martin was elected lieutenant, whose duties were to point out the interesting sights and to warn us when we were approaching bumps or danger. Not even the hold-up by the Sophomore Highwaymen frightened us, and in reality, we rather enjoyed their rough treatment. Nothing happened to worry us until we saw a sign in the distance that read "Final Examinations." Failure to observe this sign would have made it impossible for us to obey the second warning—"Narrow Passage—Road through to Sophomore Highway."

A three months rest was taken before we began the journey on this highway. The road proved to be broader, but still the surface was rough in places and the grade steep. Milbourne Amos was lieutenant this year. Once the crest of the hill was reached, the gliding on the other side caused us to forget all our difficulties except one—today that thought still enters our minds—what if we had glided into the wrong road, as some of our members did, and had missed the Junior Highway?

News had been received that the Junior road was beautiful and that many interesting attractions were in store for us. Our lieutenant, Clyde Pugh, a keen observer, saw a red light in the distance, which was a warning for us to stop. We were frightened for fear something had gone wrong, but it proved to be a halt in our frivolous life to enable us to make a study of the future. It was during this stop that one of our greatest desires was fulfilled—we received our class rings. Our journey was begun again, and with the rings sparkling on our fingers, we were ready for more excitement. A short distance farther in our travel we came to a little place called "Junior-Senior Banquet." We delayed here for a day and entertained the travelers who were leaving us at the next stop; and then our Junior Highway became the Senior Highway.

Under the guidance of Chester Smith, we entered this seemingly last broad stretch of the college highway. But as we advanced we found many narrow bridges over chasms, deep and wide. In extra curricular activities and in our scholastic work we were confronted with mysterious signs and beacons which were interpreted by our interested Traffic Directors, the faculty. As a token of appreciation to the authorities responsible for the college highway, we curbed the small stretch of highway in front of the college.

The donning of caps and gowns, and the completion of our annual brought a realization of the seriousness of the situation. "Commencement Town" loomed into view, and on the highway we found the sign—"Caution, Drive Carefully; Highway of Life Just Beyond." And in each face, with a little smile, a little pain that this town could not be again. You went your way, I chose my byway, and thus life went on.

LOUISE JENNINGS.

In Memoriam

We are proud to acknowledge
Tim Mitchell as a classmate and friend. For two years we were happy together in carrying out this friendship, and it made us glad to see Tim forging to the top. Suddenly he left us. But to no avail, for his undaunted spirit is still pushing onward with the Class of 1931—his class.

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever; its loveliness increases, it will never fade into nothingness."

[EDITOR'S NOTE]

SPEAKING one's mind is not always the correct thing, but I have reason to believe that Pugh has taken it upon himself to get a girl. He has shown entirely too much interest in beauty of late. I sincerely hope that others will get a similar inspiration from this book.

FOOTBALL

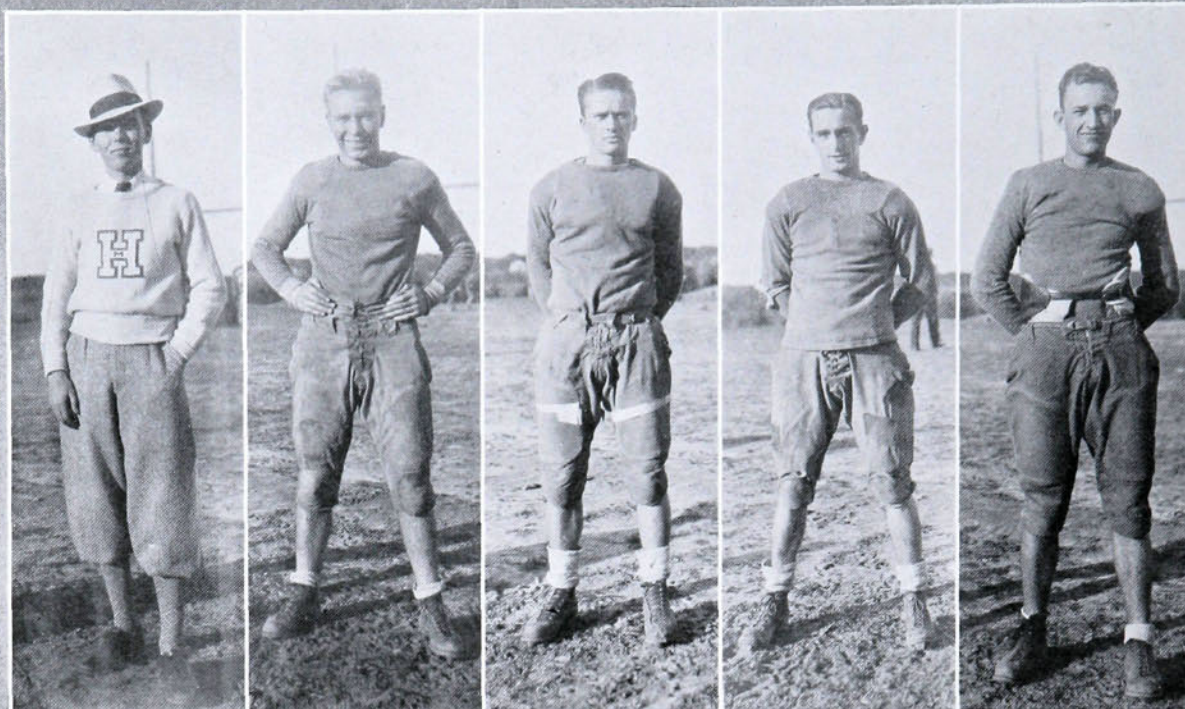

Julian F. Beall

Last year, Captain Beall, of the University of South Carolina, completed a brilliant career as a player and this year as Coach Beall, he came to High Point to guide the destinies of the Panthers of 1930-31.

Coach has definitely inserted his style into the team. This was apparent with the marked improvement shown in each succeeding game. Spring practice, and few casualties by graduation are the reasons why High Point expects its golden era of football to begin with the team of 1931.

Both on the campus and in the city, Coach has won a host of friends who admire him as a man and as a coach. A heavy schedule and no knowledge of the men to play under him confronted him at the start of the season. Undaunted, he plunged into the task with an aggressive spirit so characteristic of him.

PUGH

McKIBBEN

PIERCE

SWART

BULLA

PUGH

Chief of the staff of managers and trainers de luxe. Clyde looked after the wants and needs of the players in a very capable manner. He had a mighty hard season of it seeing to the money matters, free passes, entertainment of visitors, etcetera.

McKIBBEN

A real fight is the thing, was Mac's way of thinking. He roved from center to end and then to guard where he really found himself and played a scrapping good game from then on.

PIERCE

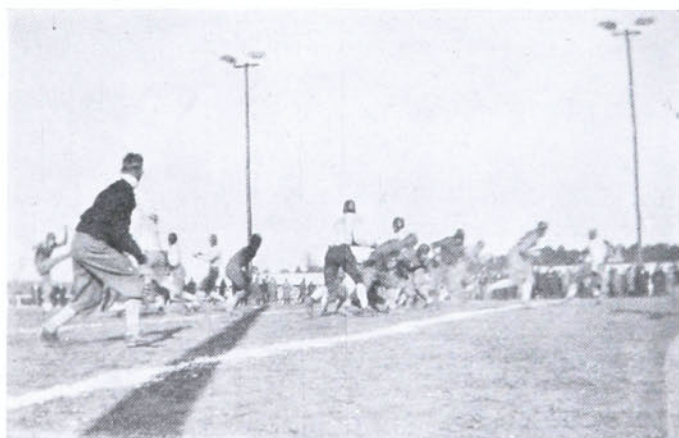

As quarterback or halfback, Jet was always the man on whom coach could depend to fill any void in the backfield. With the experience gained in this year's play this hometowner is expected to step into the job of running the team in 1931.

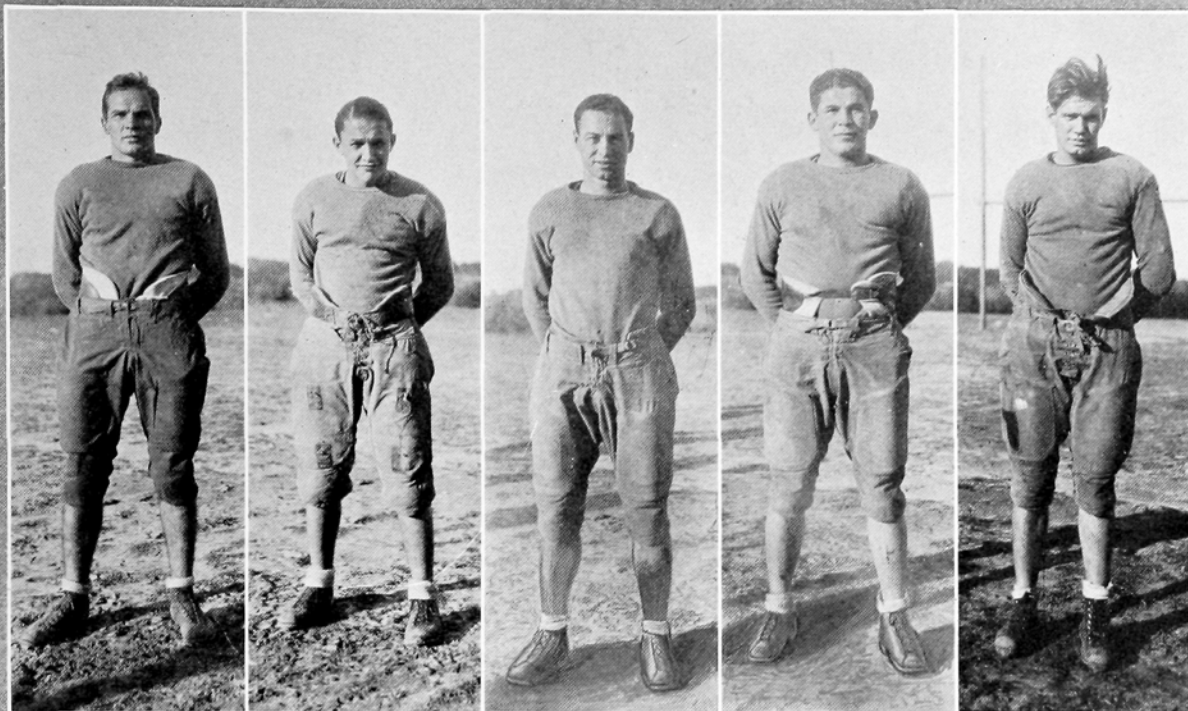

SWART

Casey started the season in great style and got better as the season progressed. His seventy-five yard return of a kickoff against Appalachian was the classic play of the season. Playing a slashing game, Ken often gave the opposition the impression that he was playing in their backfield and doing them wrong.

BULLA

Jumping from the local high school to the college and playing against a southern conference foe in his first game was part of the turbulent career of this freshman. He made good from the start in his first year.

POTTS

FURCHES

CRAVER

COOPER

POTTS

Mac was one of the hardest workers and surest blockers on the squad. Most everybody agrees that the reason he plays the game so well is because he really likes to play. His play characterized an aggressive spirit.

ROYAL

Ken started slow but ended the season as a veritable hurricane. Weighing only one hundred and fifty pounds, he could spot an opponent a few score of pounds of avoirdupois and still make the going tougher than most opponents like.

COOPER

Bill ran his girl down in tough scrimmages throughout the week and then turned both guns loose over the week-end against Purple and White foes. Rough and ready for anything they could give, he played consistently good throughout the year.

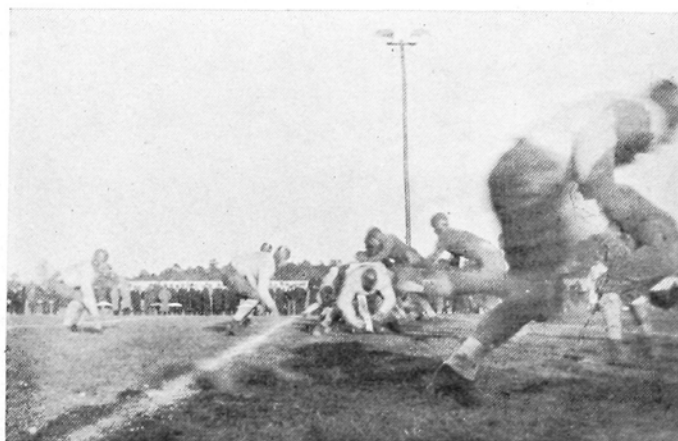

FURCHES

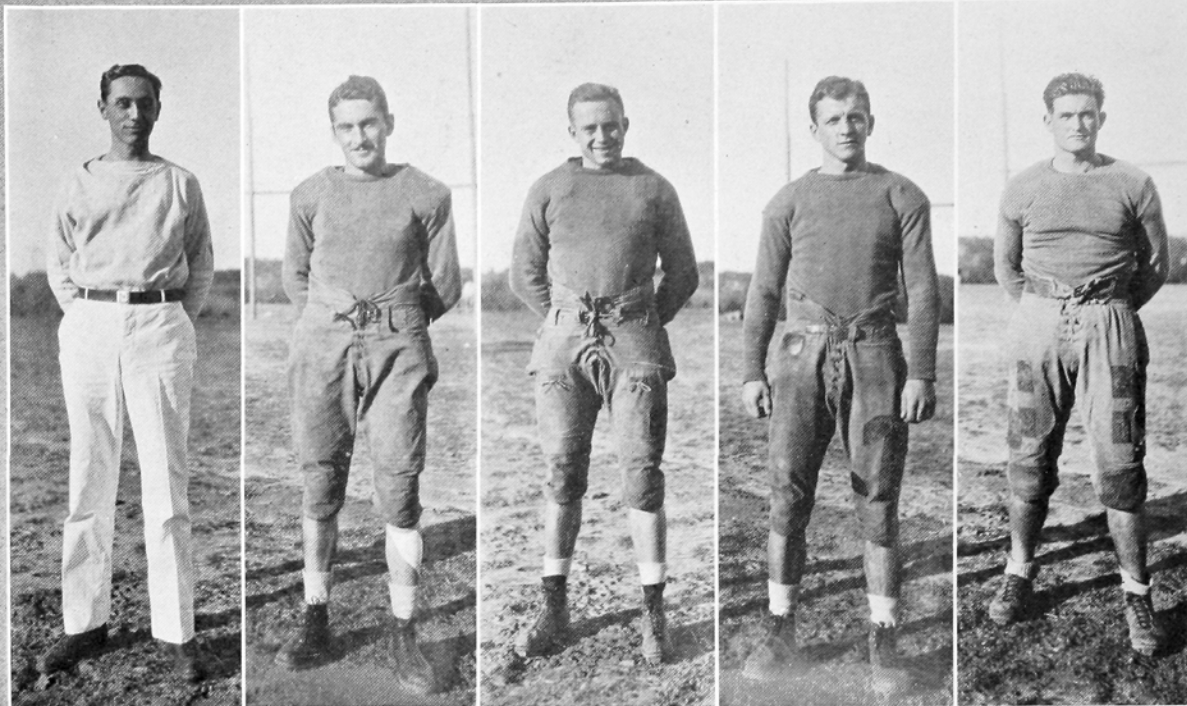

Playing every minute in varsity games was the record Henry made at his first year of pivot play. He started off sensationally and finished meteorically. Appalachian and Catawba will particularly remember this curly haired battler.

CRAVER

Joe, playing along side of his buddy, Furches, formed a combination that was not bested this year. In this his second year of playing football he missed a sum total of five minutes of play. Continuing in this way he will soon scale the heights to real stardom.

LEONARD

CAMPBELL

LITMAN

LUDWIG

RADCLIFFE

LEONARD

Taking orders from the chief of the staff and learning all about the business of managing a football team was Loyd's lot this year. Next year he graduates to the manager's position and should make a splendid one.

CAMPBELL

Hart was the engineer of the Panthers scoring play. Three times the play that Hart made up resulted in scores when they were most needed. Vicious tackling and hard charging featured the play of this diminutive back in his last year of college football.

LITMAN

Telling his opponents what he intended doing and then going out and doing it was Riley's forte. His spirit and leadership imbued his mates with confidence and kept them ever fighting. He was a good ground gainer and a pass catcher de luxe.

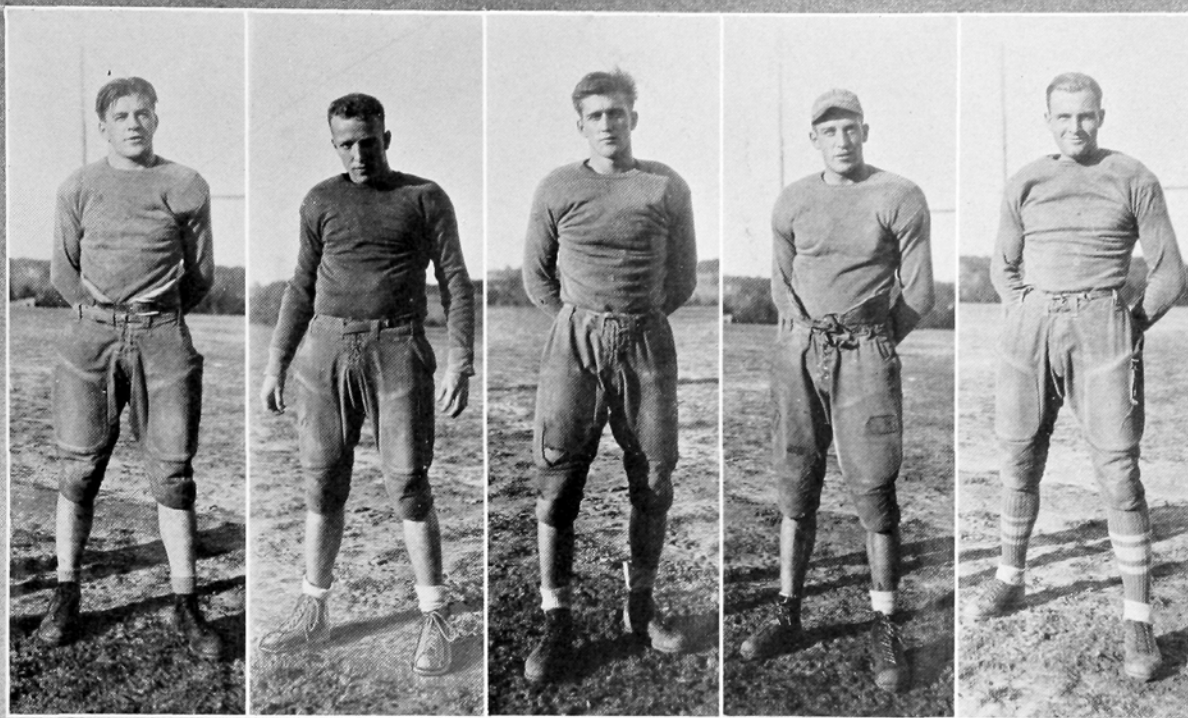

LUDWIG

Bill had a lot of duties and did them all well. Plunging the line and backing it up, passing and receiving, and blocking and punting were some of the tasks taken care of by this keystone. He always had a full afternoon of work ahead of him.

RADCLIFFE

Injuries kept Harvey from playing his best game. Toward the close of the season, however, his aggressive spirit brought out some beautiful line work that bodes ill for next year's opponents. Year by year this Morven man continues to improve.

WALTER

HELMICK

RONYECZ

Not a flashy type of player but very dependable was Zol. In the Lenoir-Rhyne game, High Point had no one in the lineup who could kick field goals consistently. In the huddle he said he could kick it and there-upon stepped back and placed the oval squarely between the uprights.

CORY

The newspapers described Bob as "the spark plug of the Panther offense." Some of the high lights of his play were: He was not out punted all year; ran eighty yards from scrimmage against Lenoir-Rhyne; caught a pass and went sixty yards for only Panther score in American U. game.

HELMICK

His first year of college was good enough to safely say that one end position will be looked after in a very capable manner for the next three years. Don had an exceptionally good day against Appalachian.

JOHNSON

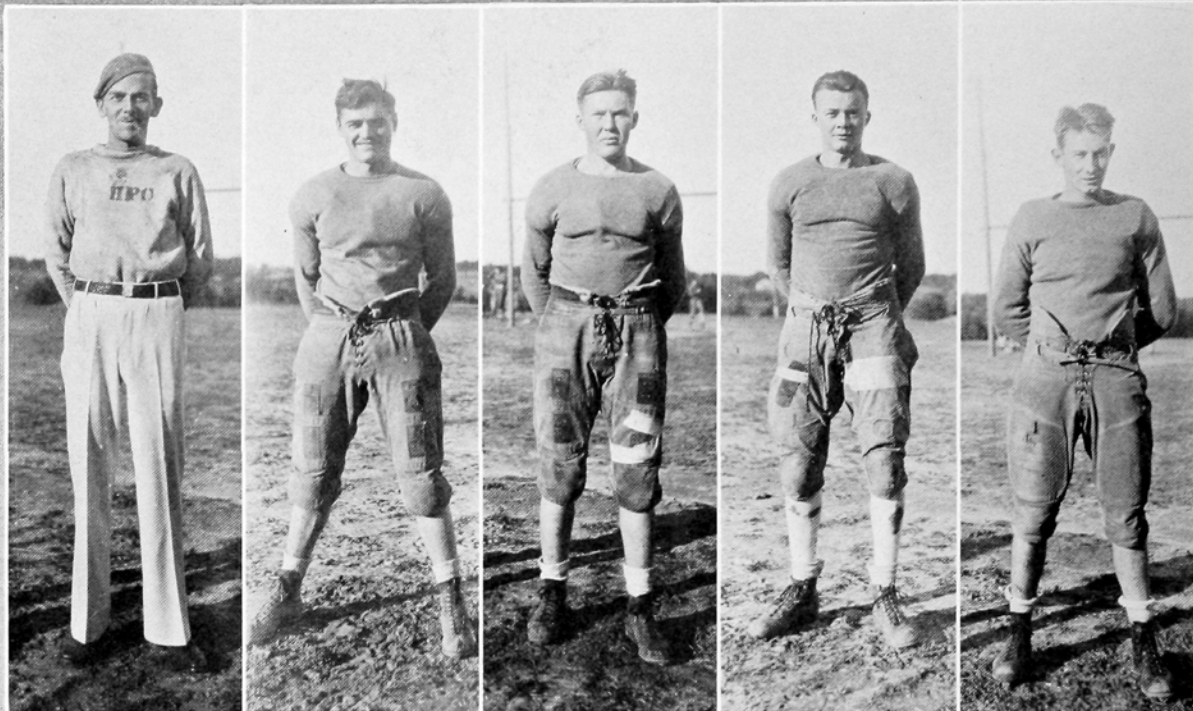

Captain-elect for 1931. Harry was the versatile back. He could do anything and everything he was called on to do. A brilliant open field runner, sure, hard tackler and a pass receiver extraordinary were some of the qualities that brought him the admiration of all who saw him perform.

WALTER

The gunner from Chicago who was the firing end of the Panther passing attack. Frank was the last of the Illinois boys to play for the Purple and White and kept his home state well represented. The Catawba game closed his eventful football career.

JOHNSON, T.

VITEK

PUSEY

BARKBY

JOHNSON, T.

Keeping the aggregation in shape was Talton's job. It was not his fault that the team had a poor season as he always had the boys taped up well both for games and practice sessions. He was one of the staunchest devotees of the team.

VITEK

Getting down to school after the season had started and winning a regular berth at tackle was the achievement of this prodigy of Ohio. His famous "every play like its at you" became the war-cry of the team.

WATSON

Roger changed his position this year, moving from guard to center. With the experience gained in this year's campaign he is expected to take over the center job left vacant by the graduation of Furches.

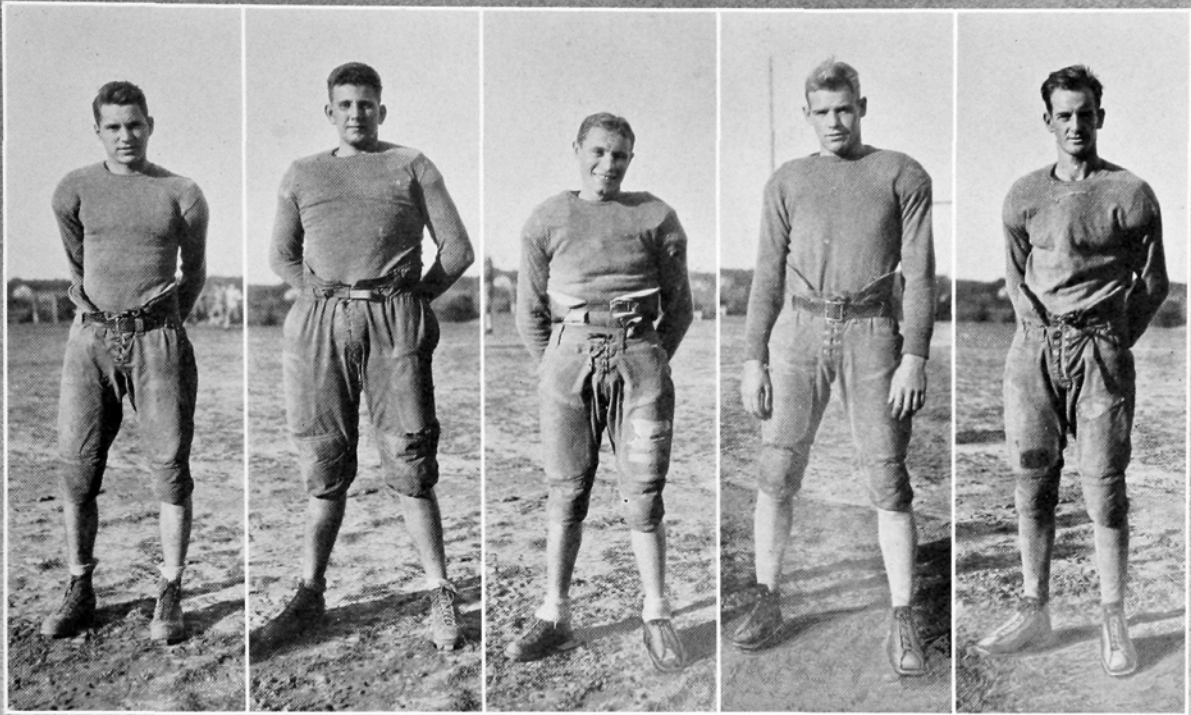

PUSEY

Seaford, Delaware, sent this red headed native son down to represent High Point in football. Although hampered somewhat by painful leg injuries, he gave his all in helping hold that line. Big things are expected of George next season.

BARKBY

A leg injury kept Buck on the bench at the start of the season but did not prevent him from playing a great game at the wind up. The Elon team particularly felt the full force of his tackling and blocking.

KISAN

SIMEON

WORLEY

DENNY

KISAN

An end, of whom much was expected. However, he received an injury that shelved him for the whole year. During practice he was a hard and conscientious worker and before his injury seemed destined to do a lot of playing.

ANDREWS

"Big Bear Mountain" was the sobriquet that described the largest candidate for a position on the squad. Tate picked up a lot of valuable knowledge that should make him an outstanding man on the team next year.

DENNY

"Zeb" was another of the Panthers who spent most of the time licking the wounds. For the few games that he was ready for, "Zeb" did outstanding work. The homecoming game with American University was his particular day for scintillating.

SIMEON

The big-little man on the practice field did not get much chance to strut his stuff in the games. Tony was handicapped by a small stature but he did not let this interfere with giving the big boys the works in the scrimmages.

WORLEY

A veteran of four years, the blond viking, was incapacitated about the middle of the season through some torn neck muscles. This completed a spectacular football career for the turbulent Worley.

Resume

The Panthers went down to Raleigh and took a 37-0 beating in the opening game of the year in North Carolina. It was also the first night game to be played in the state. The distinction of playing in the opening game of the season and of ushering in night football were about all the honors won in the contest with State. A scant three inches of terra firma was the margin by which Wofford tamed the Panthers. Next week it was just a case of too much Jimmy Green down at Clinton, S. C., where Presbyterian college holds sway.

October 18th was homecoming day, and a 6-6 deadlock was fought with American University. The Washington lads tied it up with just two minutes to play in the last quarter. In the next game Apprentice school, of Newport News, was given three quarters of a lesson in how to play the modern game of football. The fourth quarter—well, we lost, 13-12.

High Point opened the Little Seven race with a 20 to 0 win over A. C. C., but were on the short end of a fierce struggle over at Elon. The best game of the year was played against the strong Appalachian team. On a muddy field, the team beat the highly touted mountaineers, 13-6, and by so doing made amends for two previous bad showings at home.

High Point went in the lead twice against Lenoir Rhyne but each time the Bears fought back to even terms. The game ended in a tie score and it seemed about the best way for it to end, for if either team would have lost it would have seemed unjust. The finale was with the unbeaten Catawba team. The general consensus of opinion was that the team outplayed the Indians but were unfortunate in the breaks of the game. However, the Panthers had 0 points and Catawba had 12 when the final whistle blew.

All in all, two were won, six lost, and two tied. Not a very commendable record to look at, but if there were only about two inches less on a football field—but why make alibis—it was a very poor season and let's let it go at that.

BASKETBALL

LOUIS MCKIBBEN
Manager

Manager of basketball, the most ungrateful of jobs, was handled in a very capable manner by Louis McKibben. Maxwell Potts deserves high praise for his hard work as assistant manager. McKibben became manager in the second semester, succeeding Worley.

The basketball team entered the 1930-31 season with a reputation to uphold. For three previous years Panther teams had brought home basketball championships through wins in the North State conference league. Every game played in the conference was fiercely contested, but lady luck deserted the locals.

Had a few balls rolled in the hoop instead of hitting the rim, rolling around and then rolling off, fell the other way this might well be the story of a fourth championship team. As is, the Panthers finished far down the list in this year's race. Julian Beall, coach, watched his team play brilliantly in some games and poorly in others.

THE ZENITH

HASTINGS

FRANK WALTER

Captain of the team. This season closed four years of basketball for Frank. From the day of his entry at High Point college in the middle of the 1927-28 season he has played a prominent role in the success of Panther court squads.

RILEY LITMAN

Last year's captain and co-captain this year. Riley has played four years of scintillating basketball for High Point. In a cosmopolitan choice of North State conference coaches, he was chosen on the mythical all-star team. The graduation of Walter and Litman leaves two guard positions open that will be hard to fill.

HARRY JOHNSON

In stride, one of the best forwards in the Carolinas. A flashy dribbler and a dead shot, Harry was at his best in a close game and has pulled many a close game out of the fire for the purple and white.

WILLIAM LUDWIG

The irrepressible Bill cut a wide swatch in basketball channels this year. Always a good floor man he kept life in the team with his ever present fight-to-the-finish spirit. He also racked enough points to place him far up in the scoring column.

ALLEN HASTINGS

Al started the season slowly but gradually worked up steam until he was one of the most dependable men on the squad. He has a particular passion for beating Elon by firing the last shot that sinks their ship in the classic games of the season.

THE ZENITH

HENRY FURCHES

This year completes Henry's college athletic career. For two years he has been a dependable member of the basketball team. His aggressive spirit did much to keep the morale of the team at a high pitch. He was a most conscientious worker.

STEPHEN FORREST

The strapping center of seventy-six inches. Steve always managed to get possession of the ball from the tip-off and to bat in enough balls from under the basket to make him one of the most valuable assets of the team. His work throughout the year was very consistent.

ROBERT CORY

On his hot nights, Bob compares favorably with any player High Point has ever had. He turned in the most brilliant performance of the year in the Elon game when he counted eighteen points to do a lot more than his share to whip the Christians.

CHESTER SMITH

"Chet" was the best shot on the squad. He could left-hand them in from almost any position on the floor. His shots went through the hoop with uncanny accuracy, not even stopping long enough to say hello to the rim.

KENNETH SWART

"Ken" has shown the most remarkable advancement this season. Coming up from last year's reserve team to a place where he is looked upon as one of the mainstays for next year's team. And he still has two years to go.

Soccer

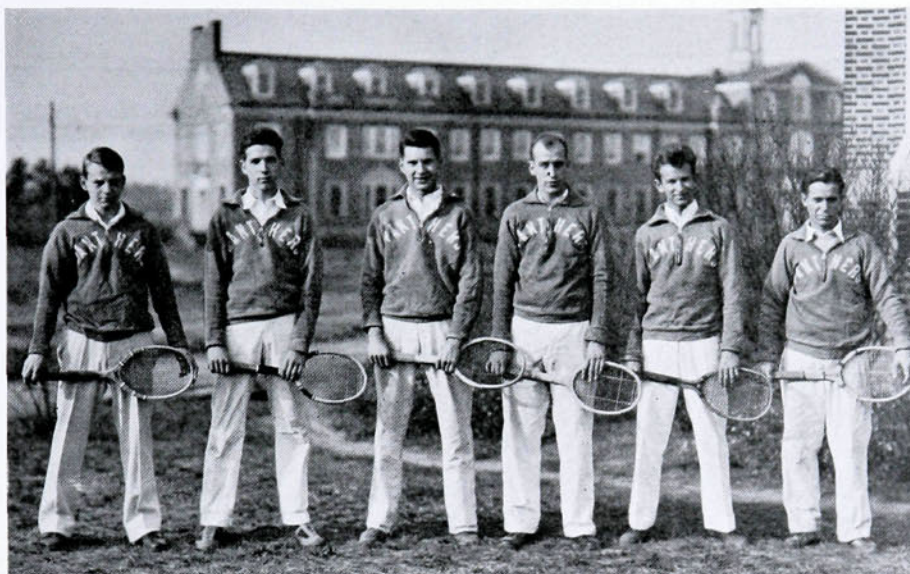

For the first time in High Point history a soccer team was organized. The team went through its season undefeated. High Point has taken the initiative in trying to form a soccer league among the colleges in the North State conference and in so doing deserves high commendation.

No small credit is due Mr. Hartley of the Y. M. C. A. for his work in forming the team. Chester and Carl Smith are due the major share of the honors for the good showing of the team.

Tennis

Tennis at High Point college reached its high mark during the 1931 season. For the first time the college athletic council voted an appropriation to this sport. Two new courts were built and more general interest in the sport was manifested than ever before.

In this sport several men deserve commendation for the work that they have done. Professor Yarborough, through his untiring effort, succeeded in getting the appropriation that made it possible to finance the work of putting in the courts, done so well by the college Y. M. C. A., of which Clay Madison was president. To Frank Walter goes the credit of initiating an annual tennis meet in the North State conference.

When the "Zenith" went to press the schedule of meets was only tentative. Dual meets were expected to be held with Catawba, Guilford, Appalachian, Lenoir Rhyne, and Elon. The net team also expected to play one meet here with Maryville and to participate in the conference meeting.

Track

Defending champions of the North State conference is the sobriquet that the track team had in entering the 1931 season. Last year the team completely overwhelmed all opposition in the conference.

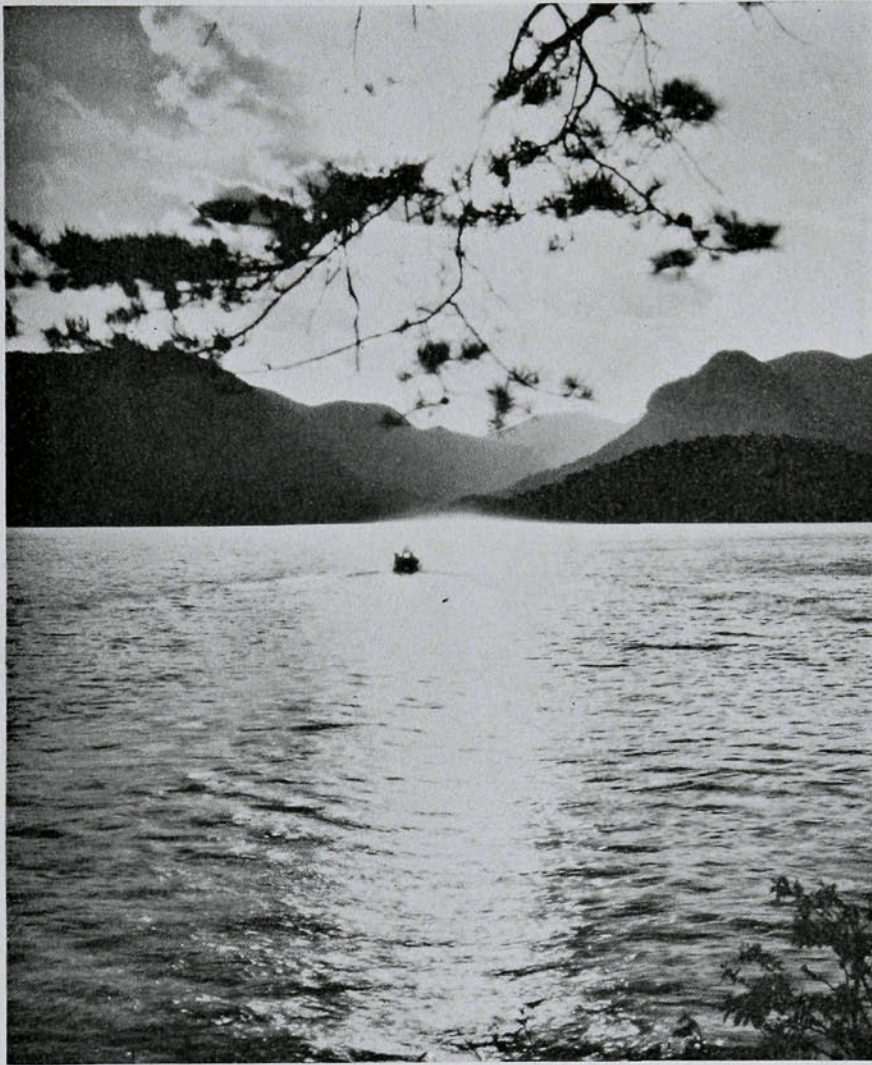

Several outstanding men were lost from last years' champions, however, and the team faced a strenuous fight to retain its lofty position. The schedule for the season was expected to be pretty much similar to the schedule of 1930.

Three prominent performers were lost to the cindermen when Mulligan graduated and Zacovic and Boone discontinued their work at this school. However, the Panthers still retained consistent first place winners in Simeon, Hughes, and Pusey. And with the experience gained in last year's campaign High Points' point getters, but not shining satellites, are expected to make a strong bid for stardom this year.

Track history at High Point runs parallel to the work that Mulligan and Pugh put into it as coach and business manager. When they entered school, there was no track team, when they graduated, track was one of the most popular sports on the campus. Mulligan, with customary ambition, succeeded in forming the team while Pugh, with his genius for getting money, was the financial backer of the sport.

This year the college athletic council took complete charge of sponsoring a track team. Heretofore the team was formed mainly through student initiative.

Utility Service and the Community

More than any other one factor, the quality of its utility services determines the desirability and attractiveness of a community for business or as a place in which to live.

In industry and in the home the application of electricity to industrial and household operations is multiplying the effectiveness of the labor of the worker and relieving the housekeepers of drudgery and fatigue. And while it increases the efficiency of the individual, it raises the quality of the work accomplished as well.

We invite attention to the standard of utility services in the cities in which we supply these essentials to modern living and modern business.
