Webster's dictionary defines a contrast as the difference or degree of difference between things having similar or comparable natures; a comparison of similar objects to set off their dissimilar qualities; a person or thing that exhibits its differences when compared with another. Life is full of many of these contrasts. From good and bad, right and wrong, practically everything has its contrast.

The students at this university encompass this concept. We each have different backgrounds, values, opinions, religions, ways of looking at the world around us. Together we make this university what it is. We provide and compare our experiences with those around us. We help each other to understand that contrasts enrich our lives and provide us with different ways of approaching the same idea.

From night and day, back and forth, up and down, near and far, old and new, we come together with a common purpose. We come to learn, grow, teach, and provide an atmosphere which enhances these activities. This is the one thread that ties each and every one of us together. We may be similar to one another, but we embrace the contrasts.

A Note from the President

Dr. Jacob Martinson

Congratulations to the Class of 2004. What a wonderful class you have been. You have a future ahead which we will watch with pride and interest. Some years ago, our daughter Beth, who was about nine or ten at the time, asked why she could not remain a child all of her life.

She loved her pets, her toys, her friends, and her games. She laughed and played and frolicked and enjoyed all the excitement of God's world. Of course, we told her that she need not worry about growing up because with the openness and love and expectancy and faith of a child, she could remain a child all of her life and grow up as well.

"May we never lose the child
within us."

President Martinson

While we graduate and become more sophisticated, may we never lose the child within us. We have been blessed with a beautiful undergraduate experience, wonderful friends, extraordinary professors, and a superb education. Now it is our turn to give to the world something of what we have received. Now we must become role models, mentors, givers and servers going forth and applying knowledge in service, but never, never must we lose the little child within!

Dear students and graduates, be sowers of hope and faith, builders of peace and understanding, and servants of God.

Jacob G. Martinson

Being a college student is busy and active - this is as clear as night and day. The students of High Point University were no exception; with dances, athletic events, club meetings, parties, and of course, classes; life could get hectic. During the day students juggle course loads and tests, practices and meetings. By night it was time for relaxing or cramming, snacking or chatting with friends. These are the things that make up college life. These are the things we remember.

Let's go to the Judges

Adam Canevazzi, President of Theta Chi, plays host during the Greek Idol show for the Lip Sync Contest. Paired together, Theta Chi and Alpha Gamma Delta placed 2nd overall in the Greek Week competition.

A One Woman Show

Christy Brown portrayed Emily Dickenson in The Belle of Amherst. Christy starred in this one woman show, but she invented and acted around a variety of imaginary characters. The audience got to enjoy the show up close, having Christy talk to them, and pass out cake and tea.

■ Starting at 8:00AM, a parade of vehicles swarmed the campus ready to tackle the day's activities. ■ Adam Canevazzi instructs a driver what he is to do next. With help from upperclassmen, new students were directed where to go and what to do. ■ Mike Tarara donned an interesting hat and aided Adam in the traffic process. ■ Unloading boxes from a trunk, the days activities have just begun. What a way to build arm muscles! ■

■ Working up a thirst, the many red wagons with cold beverages were in high demand as students walked up and down the many steps to their rooms. ■ Buying stock in rubbermaid tubs seems like a great idea! Many different boxes were used to transport items. ■ Senior Taylor Humphreys ponders the question "Should I be helping???" ■ Associate Dean of Students Rans Triplett, answers yet another question on move in day...but always with a smile! ■

■ One of the many lines to stand in, students wait to pick up their orientation packets. ■ Waiting for the new students, the student orientation staff have packets organized for easy access. ■ Adam Wright receives his instructions on where to go next. ■ Resident Assistant Jen Messick, waits to give a student a key to her new room. ■

■ Derek Weik overlooks what he has brought and wonders how he will fit all of his stuff into his new room. ■ After a long day, a new student relaxes in a pile of belongings. ■ Student Government Association Vice President Nicole Armer is pleased that everyone has settled in. ■ Tiffany Harris gives a celebratory toe touch! move in is complete until next year! ■

It was a sea of suitcases, microwaves, refrigerators and the like on August 23, the official "move-in" day for High Point University's largest class of freshmen and transfer students.

With a freshmen class of 480 and 155 transfer students, a plethora of items covered the grounds at HPU. This was a moment that some looked forward to, yet a time that some dreaded; starting college. It was a spark of independence for students, many were leaving home for the first time.

Students, parents and siblings alike were working together tirelessly to move in their belongings. The individuality of students was displayed by the wide array of items that were piled on the grounds. From George Foreman grills to a table made out of

Heartaches and Muscle Aches friends

Gatorade bottles, lava lamps and pink flamingos, the grounds were dressed with style.

Of great help were the upperclassmen from various organizations who formed the Orientation Committee. They donned the red shirts and were in high demand all day. As the heat and humidity began to take its toll on the day's arrivals, ice pops were distributed by Campus Crusaders and the red wagons offering cold beverages were greatly welcomed.

After trips to Wal-Mart, Target, Staples, and other local stores for those items forgotten, such as Ethernet cords, shelves and duct tape, the students settled into their new homes. By 7:00 that night, many students could be found at the exhibition soccer game where several new friendships were formed. Students now consider HPU their home and feel very comfortable in their new surroundings.

"We the students of High Point University shall seek excellence in the classroom, on the playing field, and in positions of leadership and service across our campus."

Orientation 2003 revolved around meetings, fun filled activities, and special events. After students settled into dorm life, the next step was to familiarize them with college life at HPU.

The general sessions that took place in the Memorial Auditorium centered on the hopes and aspirations that the High Point University community has for the class of 2007. Leonard Pitts, speaker at the third general session, spoke of "choosing sides to create a caring, open, and just community." He challenged us to leave our comfort zone, and join a "team" that allows for changes in your life.

Aside from the general sessions and hall meetings, Orientation 2003, consisted of regular ice breakers. The luau, karaoke night, the picnic, the magic show, and comedy night allowed the students to adapt to the college campus, meet their new friends, and be able to call HPU their home away from home.

■ Getting his groove on, Belk RD, Gary Wingfield, starts the luau with a bang.

■ Loosening up and already having fun, Monica Washington and Charles Cooper, dance until the rain comes down. (Literally)

■ Meeting new friends and joining up with old friends, Nicole Armer and Alumna Joelle Davis came to the luau to enjoy the fun atmosphere. ■

■ On August 30, 2003, HPU held the annual picnic to welcome incoming students. The picnic featured Fringe Benefits who provided musical entertainment. ■ Picnics are delicious food served outdoors, so as students enjoyed the open air, they also met new friends through simple conversation, such as "Can you please pass the ketchup?" ■ Members of ZTA, Angela Garvin and Jennifer Ridgeway pose for a picture and look forward to another year of wonderful friendship. ■

■ Ready to learn how to split rope in half? Let's do it with a little shake. ■ How many people do you know that can swallow fire? That's going to be painful in the morning! ■ All together now! The 80's band, The Breakfast Club, allows us to put some soul into our moves! ■

■ Karaoke allows us to laugh and be open about ourselves. Remember Mike Tarara, they are laughing with you, not at you! ■ For freshmen, Whitney, Heather, Renee, and Maggie, "Girls Just Wanna Have Fun" will follow them through the years at HPU. ■ Freshman, Leslie Eason shares her hidden talent on stage and wows the audience with her voice. ■

Students come together for fun and Let the Games Begin games and a little head to head competition

Derby Day is High Point's tradition of celebrating community. Sponsored by Greek Life, students form teams in their residence halls for friendly competition with the Greek societies.

The day's events include the mattress race, tug of war, hippity-hop, dizzy bats, and the water balloon toss.

Many of the teams that are formed for Derby

Day continue to compete as a team throughout the year in the intramural athletics program.

Food and drinks are served at the annual picnic, so that no one will compete on an empty stomach.

For freshmen, Derby Day is a chance to build a community on their halls. By competing and working together, any team can be successful!

- The Zetas get pumped up for the mattress race by pointing out the competition.
- McEwen residents stayin' on the ball!
- Kappa Delta's competing in the water balloon toss. ■ Supporters watch the water balloon toss. ■

- Taking a break in the shade, two students watch the games from the sidelines. ■ The Gams rest before their next event. ■ Lambda Chi Alpha discuss tactics for the mattress race.
- Orientation staff member and Derby Day judge LaShawn Elam watches the water balloon toss closely to make sure everyone plays fair. ■

■ McEwen residents get ready for the mattress race, some with apprehension and some with excitement. ■ A student competes in hippity-hop by bouncing around the circle one time and passing the ball to his teammates. The first team finished wins! ■ The Pikes run in the mattress race. ■ There is a setback in the race as Darrin Sita takes a spill. ■

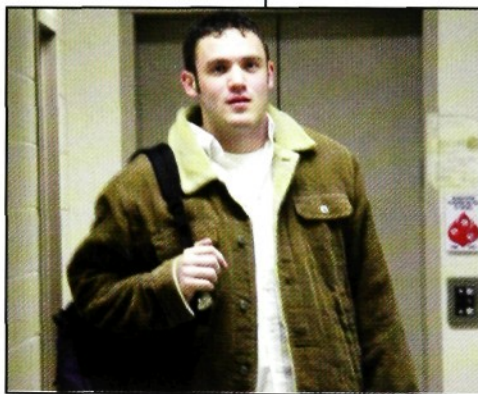

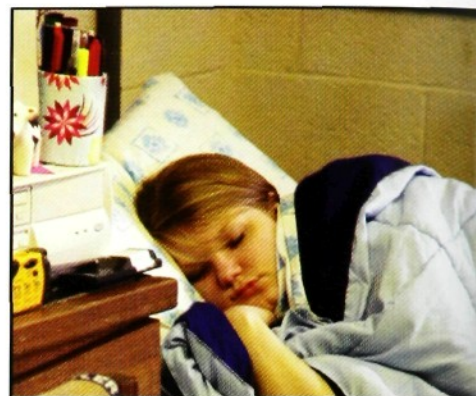

■ Yadkin R.A. Patricia Rothwell tosses the balloon while teammates look on. ■ A few of the Theta Chi's go to the sidelines for their own game of frisbee, while the rest of their team gets ready for the mattress race. ■ Associate Dean Rans Triplett takes a rest on the Hippity-Hop ball. ■ Keiron Guisard poses for the camera while Tim Hubbard tries to escape it. ■

■ Knowing that his big history test is coming up, Scott Thomas wants to get an early start on studying. ■ As a new week approaches, Elizabeth Imhoff knows having all her clothes clean will start her week out smoothly. ■ Comfortably conversing, Karissa Proctor and Cory Weed talk about their plans for the weekend. ■

■ Resting, Skye Hughes is getting a few more hours of sleep after a long night of studying. ■ Putting his feet up after a long practice, Luke Lemanski is finally able to relax in the comforts of his room. ■ Looking comfortable, Megan Pastor studies for her First Aid class. She is sure to get an A. ■

■ Getting a funny e-mail, Heidi must share it with her friend, Angie. ■ Concentrating hard on a paper, Renee Rylas prepares for an upcoming test. ■ Heading off to another day of class, at least John Vonnannon knows that he will be warm walking around campus. ■

Part of the college experience includes living in a dorm room. For some, it is the first time they have had to share a room, and it is both a learning and trying experience.

One of the biggest fears new students have is the roommate! It is scary to move in with someone you don't know, and it is difficult to share such a confined space. Gone is the privacy you may have been used to. Gone is the ability to do whatever you want in your room.

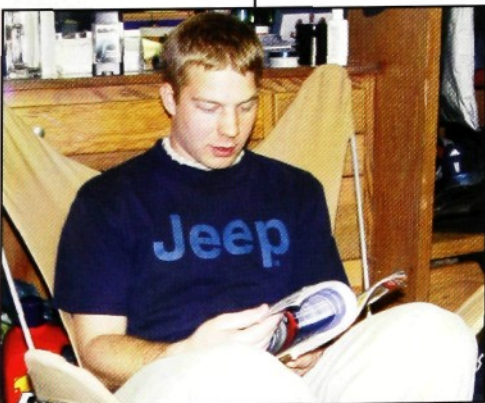

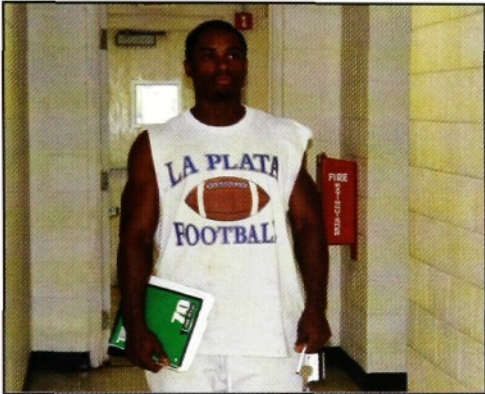

Sharing the Space

It takes compromise and respect to successfully live with another. You learn about your roommate's likes and dislikes, pet peeves and annoying habits. It is an intimate relationship, yet it does not necessarily mean that you consider each other close friends.

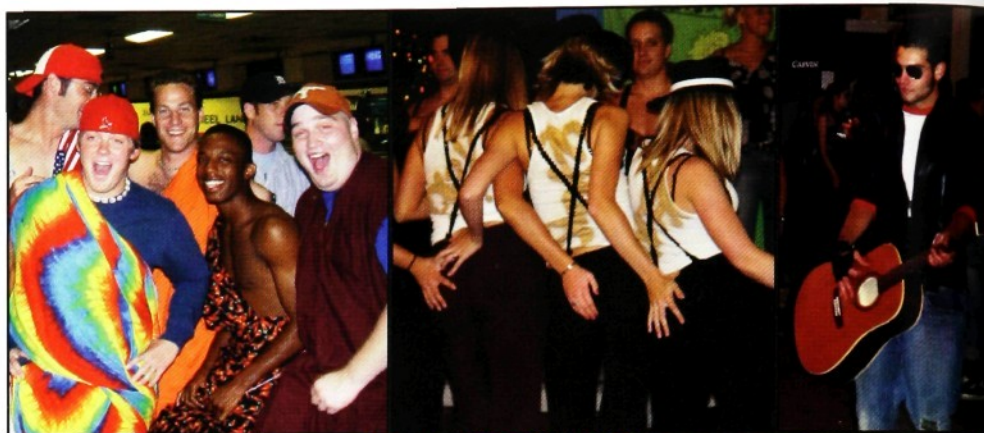

Living with a roommate, you may have arguments or disagree, but showing you are considerate and respectful will make the living arrangements easier. Tiffany Sinclair said, "Your roommate does not have to be your best friend, but you have to be able to live together."

room takes some adjusting

■ Strolling down the hall, Kelli Sampson heads to his friend's room to study. ■ Listening to music, Lindsey Hess is lost in her own thoughts. ■ Chillin', Teddy Gamache reads a magazine to calm his nerves before his midterm. ■

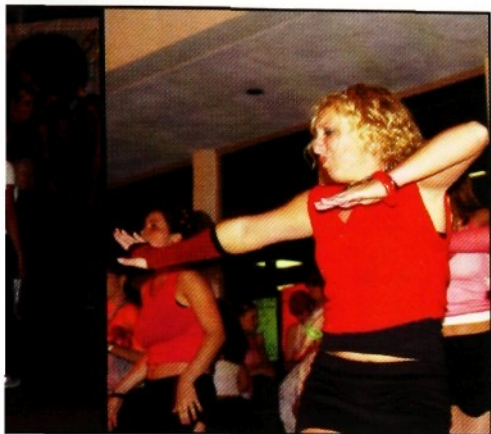

■ Theta Chi's looking good in their togas. ■ KD's shakin' it. ■ Brendan Donahue shows he has "faith" as George Michael. ■ Amanda Frisbee doing her Zeta best. ■

■ Kappa Delta's celebrate their win. ■ Phi Mu's and Lambda Chi's doing a line dance. ■ Erin Farrington shows off her volleyball skills. ■ Kevin Keefe and Danny Berg prove to be true soul men as the Blues Brothers. ■

■ The Greek God and Goddess Betsy Edwards and Patrick Warren (accepting for Jeremy LeMaster). ■ Mandy Kuhn and Shannon Shattuck getting "dirty." ■ Pikes and ZTA dance "old school." ■ Lambda Chi's show their country side. ■

■ Shannon Shattuck, Mandy Kuhn, Kristen Freiburger, and Nicole Armer in their togas ready to bowl. ■ Aerial view of the pizza eating contest. Kenny was the winner! ■ Jenna Hill and Josh Tennant getting down and "dirty." ■ Sarah Cxyz strikes a pose as Madonna. ■

Greek Week is dedicated to celebrating the benefits of fraternity and sorority life. The week is a time for the fraternities and sororities to team up and compete against one another.

The events for the 2003 Greek Week included the Crop Walk, a pizza eating contest, tug-o-war, kickball, toga bowling, volleyball, lip sync, and the homecoming parade.

Battle of the Greeks

Planning and preparing for all these events took a lot of hard work but in the end it was a success.

The pairings this year consisted of Theta Chi and Alpha Gamma Delta, Delta Sigma Phi and Kappa Delta, Lambda Chi Alpha and Phi Mu, and Pi Kappa Alpha and Zeta Tau Alpha.

The best part about Greek Week is getting to hang out all week long with each other and showing the best of what we are to the rest of the student body.

It was a close race but in the end the KD's and SIGS beat the odds and walked away as champions!

School Spirit floats through campus Panthers on Parade during the Homecoming Parade!

The annual Homecoming Parade took place on October 4, 2003 and proved not only to be a success, but fun for everyone who participated.

The themes of the floats ranged from the Zetas and Pikes 'Rockin it Old School', to the Theta Chi and Gams nautical theme. All the floats were intricately designed and built to impress.

The designs and spirit present created a wonderful, exciting atmosphere for spectators and participants alike.

Each year, the Homecoming Parade proves to be the perfect transition from Greek Week to the Homecoming Dance.

■ Zetas and Pikes truck down 6th Street, as they rock it Old School. ■ Blake DiCello is pulled along for the ride, but is it safe to be attached to the back of a boat? ■ Carrie Shank helps KD with their float's finishing touches. ■

■ Hey Pikes! Is that legal? Sam Closic, Matt Luongo and Jackson Newbauer cruise on the front of their red pick up truck. ■ Zetas flash back to the 80s, but stop to pose for a picture. ■ Adam and Lashawn sit in the back of their white convertible waiting for all the excitement to start. ■

■ Three Cheers for the Zeta girls Kelly, Candice and Shannon. They can't hold in their excitement any longer. ■ The Theta Chi's and Gams cause an uproar as they sail down the road. ■ The Kappa Delta's shimmer and shine 'til the end. ■

■ Tim and Christie ride in style even though the parade has come to an end. ■ Kia Westbrook and Taylor Humphreys light up the atmosphere during the parade. ■ T.J Barrett exhibits an immense amount of enthusiasm for the Homecoming Parade. ■

Students get decked out in dresses and formal wear to hit the town

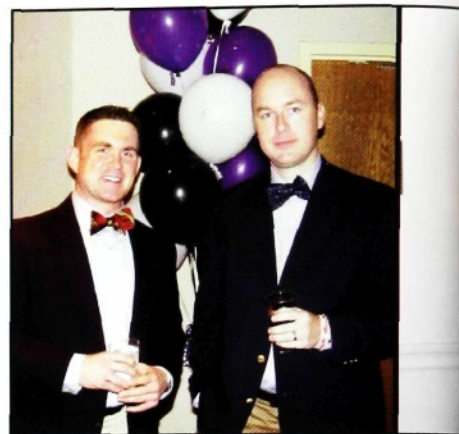

As the sun sets on October 4, 2003, dresses and suits began to appear instead of the usual jeans and t-shirts. Students were ready for the Homecoming dance held at the Radisson Hotel.

After last minute dress shopping, friends got together to ready themselves for the night. Jemissa Hess said, "The best part of Homecoming was doing hair and makeup with friends beforehand. At the dance it was fun to see what everyone was wearing."

Alumni, students, and faculty were able to enjoy great music and food from 9p.m. till 1a.m. The Radisson catered the event providing hors d'oeuvres and drinks.

The highlight of the night was crowning Laura Humphreys and PJ Daniel the Homecoming Queen and Big Man on Campus.

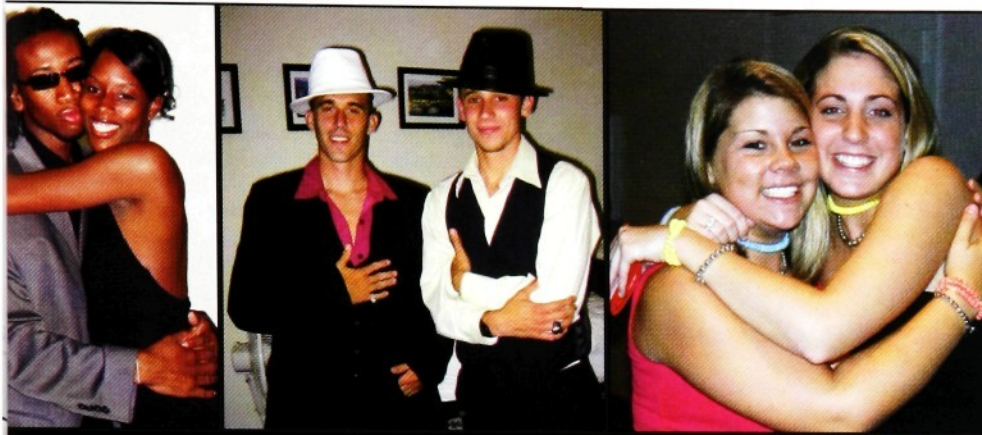

Homecoming is one of the few dances that all students are invited to attend. It also gives alumni a chance to come back and catch up with old friends.

■ Forming a welcome wall, Kim Soban, David Gouge, Roger Clodfelter, and Gary Wingfield patiently await the oncoming ambush of parents. ■ President Martinson kicks off the Saturday morning brunch with enthusiasm. ■ Dr. Goedeke meets and greets the parents of his ADV students. ■

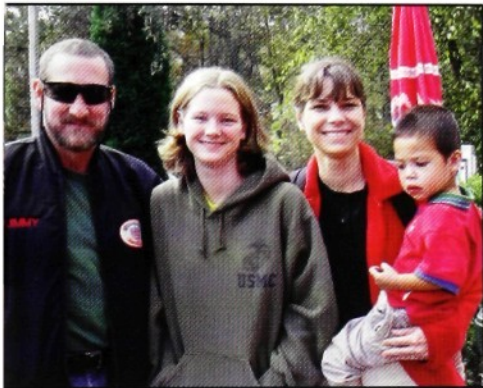

■ The Cunningham and Howell families join together for a delicious and appetizing meal. ■ These parents decide to give the school food a try. ■ Sharing a mother/daughter moment, Stephanie Sauder and mom smile graciously for a picture. ■

■ Contemplating what to get from the buffet, Dr. Kathleen Carter pauses before making her decision. ■ Students aren't the only ones running for a cause, this dog can't wait to begin. ■ On your mark, get set, GO FAR! The race has begun and everyone starts strong. GO FAR (stands for girls and guys out for a run) is 5k race to promote health and wellness with elementary age students. ■

■ Coming together for a family picture at Family Weekend, Claire Davis and her family eagerly anticipate the upcoming events for the day. ■ At their table during the International Food fair, Mariko Ito and Miki Ikeda await the groups of people that will taste and enjoy their heritage. ■ The baseball team shows their support at the final girls soccer game in the Big South Conference tournament. ■

A full schedule of events awaited family and friends as they arrived for High Point University's Family Weekend, November 7-9 2003. Meals were planned to entice families to dine in the cafeteria such as candlelight dinners, special brunches, and breakfast with the President.

The International Club hosted a food fair on Saturday at which everyone could sample foods from many different countries.

Family Ties

Families were entertained throughout the weekend by the Tower Players production of "Children of Eden," the student art exhibit, and the women's soccer tournament finals.

Faculty members were on hand to meet and mingle with families of their students.

The weekend culminated on Sunday with a special service held at the Hayworth Chapel.

Families of High Point students got a chance to see just how special life at the University can be.

■ The men of Theta Chi walk in the name of hunger. ■ Even the Alpha Gamma Delta dog wants to lend a paw to stop hunger. ■ Dillard Munford takes time to chat with friends. ■ Conversing about their walk, Laura Humphrey and Holly Bailey enjoy a beautiful day. ■

■ The Pikes know how to fire up the grill and get everything started. ■ How many Pikes does it take to grill a hot dog? ■ Walking causes quite a thirst in these guys. ■ Kristin Via and Katie Estler of Phi Mu understand the mechanics of a proper assembly line. ■

■ Alpha Gamma Delta and Theta Chi gear up for Greek Week. ■ The Phi Mu sisters helped distribute drinks to all the participants. ■ Phi Mu sisters Elaine Monroy and Virginia Provencher share a friendly hug at the end of the walk. ■ Volunteer Center Director, Cliff Smith, takes time to take a picture with his friends Kelly Rushin, Elaine Monroy, and Kieron Guischard. ■

■ The Zetas show their support for feeding the hungry by putting a strong foot forward. ■ Adam Canevazzi and Jay Bozman take out the trash. ■ Theta Chi Fraternity volunteered to clean up after the event. ■ Theta Chi brothers enjoy the beautiful fall day. ■ Two of the Pikes take time from cooking to sword fight with their spatulas. ■

Since 1983, High Point University has been a sponsor of the Crop Walk. The walk is a 3 mile journey that starts and finishes at HPU.

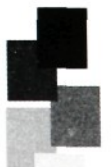

Held to raise funds and awareness, the Crop Walk fights hunger both locally and globally. This year the High Point Crop Walk had a record 600 participants.

Walking the Distance

Annually, the HPU Volunteer Center coordinates the efforts of the Greek community to facilitate the event, while local businesses donate food and beverages for the participants.

Church groups, civic organizations, and High Point students alike unified to show the power of a caring community. This year participants enjoyed beautiful fall weather and left knowing that their efforts made a difference.

Weekly
coffeehouse provides musical backdrop for coffee and conversations

For many HPU students, Hump Day Cafe is a preview of just how good the weekend will be. Free concerts and coffee brighten up Wednesday's and break up the monotony of the week.

Whether students use the time to showcase their own talents on Open Mic Night or simply sit back and enjoy performances by amateur musicians, Hump Day Cafe revitalizes the spirit and gives students just the inspiration they need to make it to the weekend.

The almost weekly performances are one of many services provided by the Office of Student Life. Whether students spend this time studying, drinking coffee, or simply enjoying good music, Hump Day Cafe is the perfect midweek distraction.

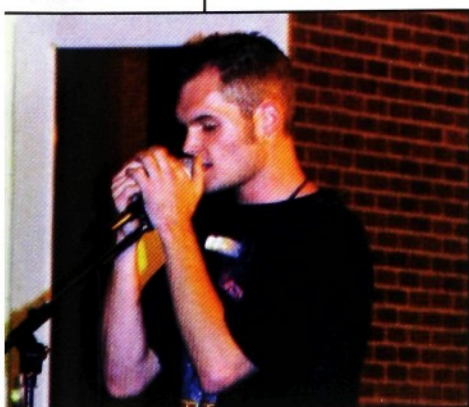

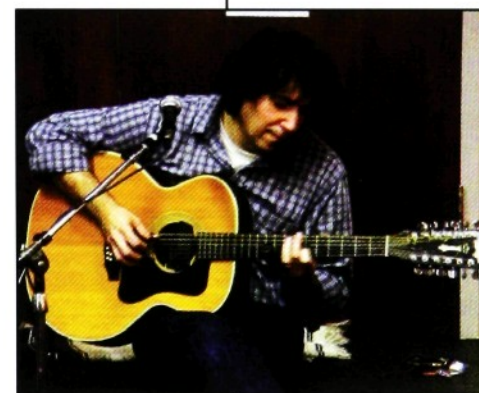

■ Steve Jackson smiles over his guitar as he launches into his first song. ■ Lost in the music, upcoming talent Dean Fields prepares to wow his audience. ■ Where would Hump Day Cafe be without Sara Hunt? Whether warming the crowd with a heartfelt performance or a hot cup of coffee, her presence is greatly appreciated. ■

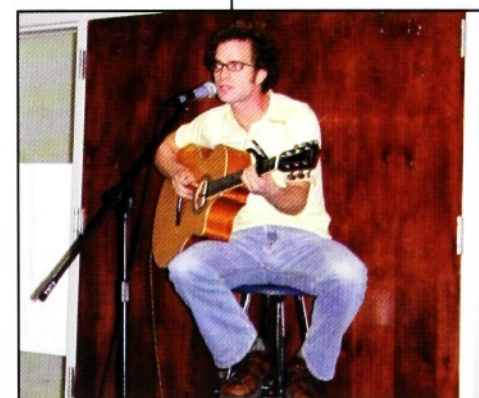

■ Intent on his drumset, this HPU student enjoys the opportunity to showcase his talent as a member of Distorted Views on Open Mic Night. ■ Students often use their time wisely while attending Hump Day Cafe. This trio struggles to focus on homework as Steve Jackson provides them with background music. ■ Taking his inspiration from the energy of the crowd in an open air and open mic performance, this HPU student, also of Distorted Views, thinks only of his music. ■

■ Richard Matteson finger picks his guitar for the audience. ■ Michael Gulezian sits upon the stage as he plays a song, creating a more intimate atmosphere for the audience. ■ Dean Fields' October performance was considered by many to be the best of the semester. His acoustic sound soothed the audience. ■

■ This HPU student and Distorted Views band member plays his electric guitar to the delight of the crowd on Open Mic Night. ■ Gracing the ears of the crowd, Gilbert Neil performs for the last Hump Day Cafe of Fall Semester. ■ Scott Thomas enjoys playing his acoustic guitar on Open Mic Night. Says Scott of this chance to perform: "I think it's great that the faculty puts a night aside for the students to show off their talents." ■

Traveling gives students a different perspective on the world and themselves

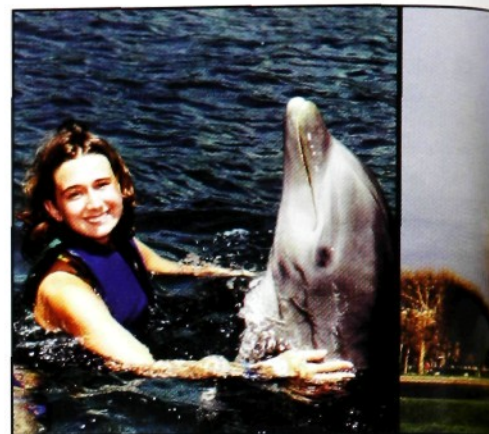

The world is slightly bigger than High Point, North Carolina. Every year, many students are reminded of this firsthand, whether they travel on their own or elect to spend a semester studying abroad.

Students return from another country with a completely different perspective on the world around them. By visiting another country, students are able to break preexisting notions of other cultures. Likewise, they can break the notions other cultures may have of Americans.

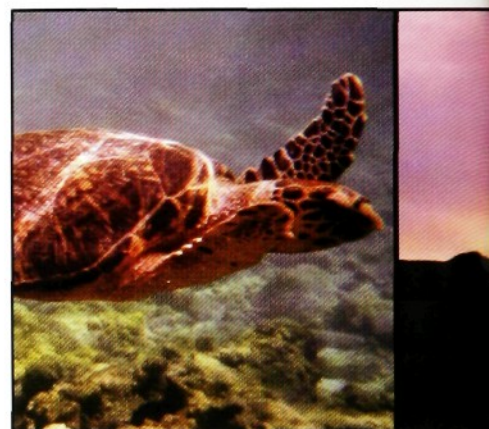

Driven to Explore

Experiencing another culture firsthand allows students to gain important lessons that could not be taught so easily within the four walls of an American classroom. Senior Craig Grunwald, who studied at Oxford Brookes University said, "It is important for anyone who hasn't traveled to experience a foreign country. You learn to respect other cultures and it is such a life changing experience."

Traveling provides a unique learning experience on the cultures and attitudes of other countries. The memories and life lessons taken from being in another country last a lifetime.

He reminisced, "You can stand alone there and hear absolute silence. You feel free. It's indescribable." ■

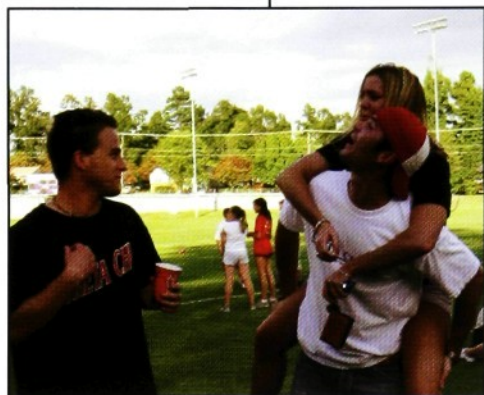

■ A sea turtle glides through a Mexican Reef. ■ Pinks and purples creep across the sky as the sun sinks into the horizon creating the perfect background for this Scottish tombstone. ■ Overlooking the Grande Canal in Venice, Tommy Evans and Melissa Caudill take in the beautiful view. ■ Crowded with tourists, the Rialto Bridge in Venice remains the heart of the city. ■

■ Swinging around on a Friday afternoon, Shannon McKenna tells Jennifer Sherman that all her classes went well. ■ Group discussions are always more fun. ■ Romance is in the air for Claire Davis and Josh Frost. He sure knows how to treat a girl! ■

■ Tommy Evans and Melissa Caudill enjoy the beautiful sea scenery in Tramore, Ireland. ■ Needing to be in class, both girls still have time to chat while walking. ■ The guys congregate outside of Finch Hall before the deciding what they will do this weekend. ■

■ Sweeping Katie Roberts off her feet, Matt Cahoon proves that he can carry the weight in the relationship. ■ Twins Laura and Taylor Humphreys show that brothers and sisters can get along. ■ Matt Carver and Cricket Indra enjoy a beautiful day outdoors. ■

Siblings, couples, and friendships are all intangible things that we need. They are the reason we get through the tedious aspects in life.

The simple joy of holding your loved one's hand, or crying on a friend's shoulder, or joking around with a brother or sister can give your life a deeper meaning.

We all want a story book romance, to find that one person that knows every ounce of your being. Being in a loving and supportive relationship gives

Through thick & thin

each person a strength that they did not know they had before.

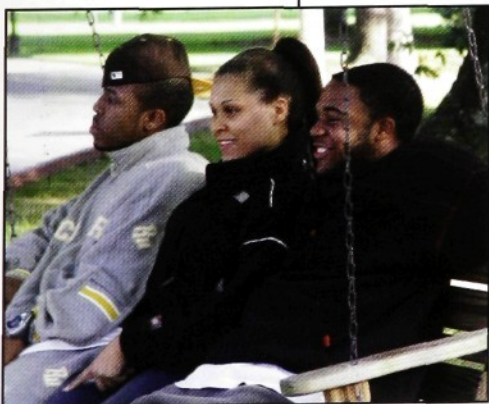

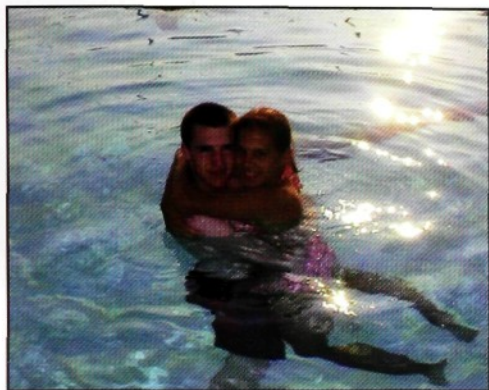

Friendships form through common experiences or interests. Friends are your security blanket when times get rough, and they are there to make you laugh when you want to cry. A friend is the one person you can always count on for support.

A sibling relationship is like no other. The competition that existed as kids, disappears to the loving and supportive friendship that comes only with maturity. You know that you will always be there for one another.

Relationships brighten our days, and allow us to enjoy every moment of our lives.

The
bonds
that us
together

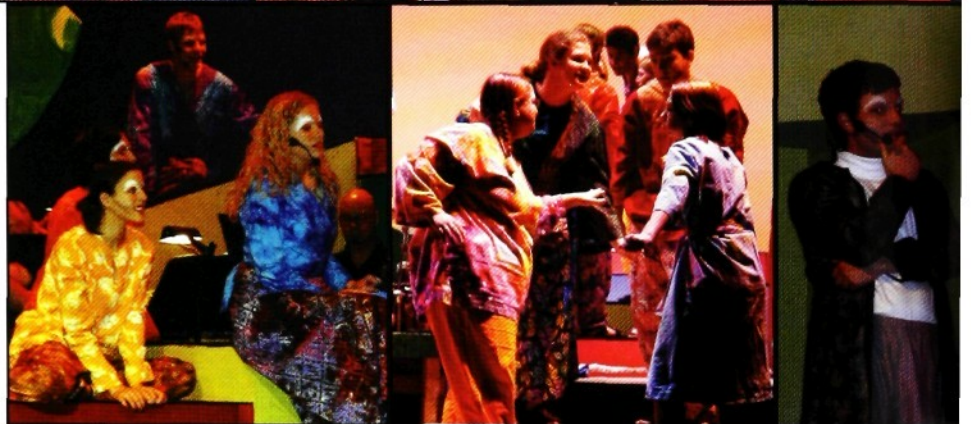

■ Embracing in the blue water, Nicole Beaudwin and Matt Downs know that there is no place they would rather be. ■ Shawanna Truelove and Daniel Duarte are getting ready to dance the night away at Homecoming. ■ Brandon Ingram, Jerome Bynum, and Lisa Toomer enjoy a beautiful day sitting on the swings. ■

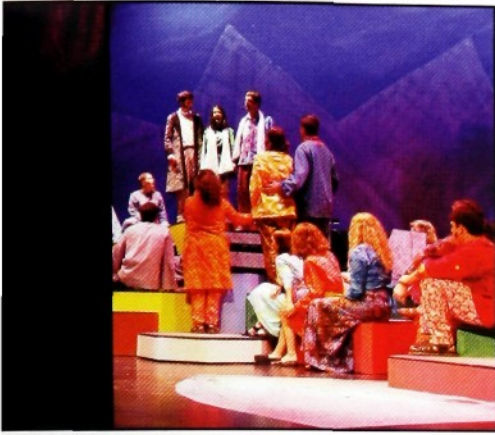

■ Adam and Eve reach for a cloud that is just asymmetric enough. ■ Noah's sons toil away as they finish building the ark. ■ A storyteller stands and admires all of what Father created. ■ At the end of the first act, Adam and Eve join Father and look upon all their children. ■

■ Storytellers look on in anticipation of what will happen next. ■ Storytellers shake their groove thang. ■ "I made all of this" and behold, it is very good. A proud Father looks at the cosmos he has made and his children beginning to explore it. ■ Father instructs Eve not to eat of the Tree. She listened well. ■

■ With the creation of the world came morning, evening, speeding comets, apple trees with dappled barks, granite mountains, fluorescent fish, and... ■ Adam and Eve share a moment of perfect love. ■ "And I will strike down upon thee with great vengeance and furious anger those who attempt to poison and destroy my brothers." Cain experienced the full wrath of Father's vengeance. ■ Father takes a break with some storytellers after recording the names of the animals. ■

■ The snake charms its way through Eden. ■ Storytellers sing about the generations from Adam all the way to Noah. ■ The animals scurried about on the stage as they are named. All but one makes it onto the ark with Noah. ■ "In the beginning, God created the heaven and earth, without form, void, darkness." ■

There was no curtain movement to signify the beginning or end of the play, only the entirety of actors walking on and off stage. The audience was given a plethora of color and sound. Music was not presented simply to label the performance a musical. Rather it was because the emotions of a character could not be put simply into spoken word and required greater felt emotion in music.

Children of Eden

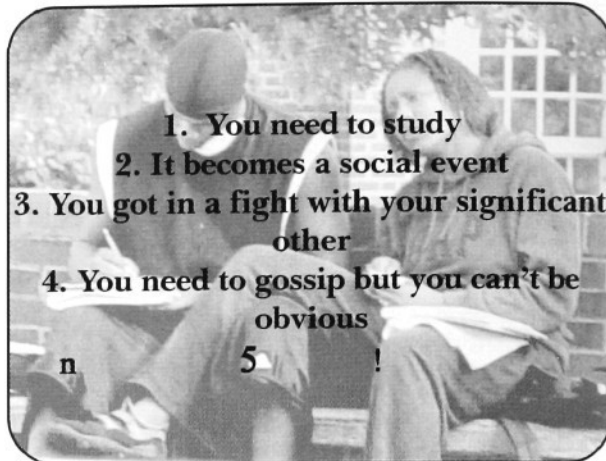

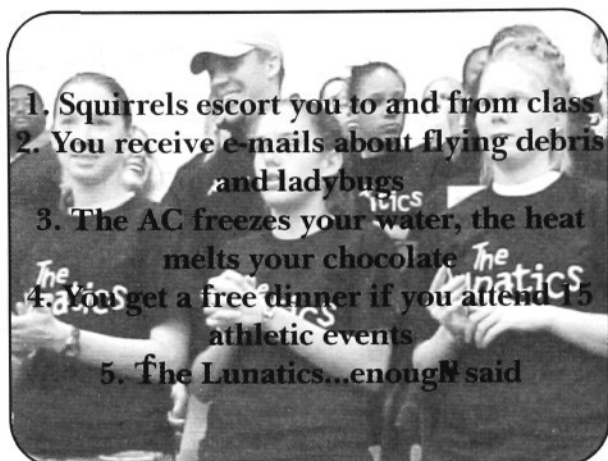

The connection was so pure among the actors that it produced a catharsis for the audience. The beginnings of both acts were filled with buoyant energy that burst from the actors and into the audience. The ends of the acts were filled with such emotion that permeated throughout the theatre, revealing, on both sides of the Proscenium, eyes welled and blurred.

The Tower Players ended the evening as they often do...with a standing ovation.

At High Point University

Students listen intently as Eleanor Clift and Tom Brazaitis speak during the Woodrow Wilson Fellows Lecture.

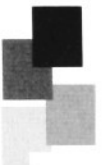

Alana Esposito and Jessica Wubbenhorst share a hug in the cafeteria. The Caf has always been a place to eat and socialize with friends.

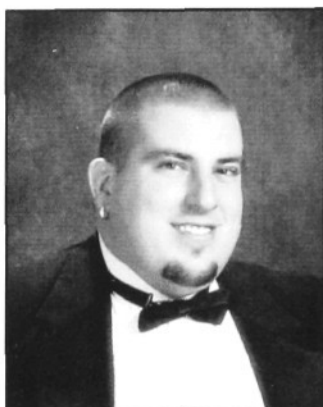

Megan Pastor walks through the Green-sward after class is let out.

Students at High Point University come from both near and far. Of the 2,789 undergraduate students, 113 come from foreign countries, 840 are from out of state, 1,836 are from North Carolina, and 347 are from High Point. High Point attracts many students because it is a small, private university, with a reasonable tuition. The diversity of the student body creates a unique environment on campus, and accentuates the contrasts one finds in the student body.

In Memory of

George M. Coggins

Professor of Business (1989-2003)

"On October 10th, 2003, a former faculty member and dear friend to so many of us, students, faculty, and staff members alike, died at his home in Lexington, North Carolina.

Dr. Coggins was a loving husband, father, grandfather, and an outstanding teacher in the Business Department. He was a Vietnam War veteran, having served in the Marines as a chief Drill instructor. He taught here in our Business Department for 14 years.

George Coggins retired last year, and was honored at commencement in 2003.

He was loved and respected. In 14 years, I heard not one negative word about him; he was a faculty giant and a debonair Christian gentleman, one in whom the word of God sparkled with graciousness and charm.

He was a former Marine and sterling business professor, and head of Campus Crusade, a special human being. I dedicate this message to his memory."

*- The words of President
Martinson at a memorial service held in October.*

"Everyone always seems to have that one professor they always look to as a parental figure. Someone that teaches them not only a classroom lesson, but a life lesson. Dr. Coggins played that role for me. Dr. Coggins truly cared not only for his students' success in the classroom, but for their success in life as well. I will always remember Dr. Coggins and the many lessons I have learned."

Meredith Mackoy
HPU Graduate 2003

"George Coggins' influence on the School of Business was profound. He touched the lives of those around him with his generous spirit as he selflessly gave of his time and expertise. All were touched by his spirituality. George will be remembered as a remarkable person, educator, and scholar."

Jim Wehrley
Associate Professor of Business and W. Roger Soles Chair of Management and Leadership

Athletics

At High Point University

Junior Jamie Vetten and Sophomore Erin Kelly compete at Appalachian State University's indoor track.

Adrian Hill, Jeff Fairman, and Niran Pillay receive their awards for placing 1st through 3rd in the 10,000 run.

Every athlete knows the taste of sweet success and the taste of bitter defeat. For, just like most things in life, there are ups and downs in competitive sport. This past year, our University has enjoyed immense successes. The men's tennis team, men's cross country team, and the women's soccer team each won the title of Big South Conference Champion in 2003. These successes merely created a thirst for more. However, without the downs in competition, one would not appreciate the ups as much. Each athlete and team has experienced a bad game, a bad season, or even a bad year. That is all part of life as a competitive athlete. But those experiences make the taste of victory oh so sweet.

Eye on the ball

Keith Wines, Alex Thompson, Matt Wood, and Kyle DeKlerk wait for the ball to be thrown into play.

Hoop it Up!

Freshman Timberley Jones takes the ball to the hoop.

Head in the game

Ready for action

Junior Danny Gathings boxes out Brent Petway of University of Michigan on a November 26th game played in Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Huddle Up!

The women's soccer team celebrate after winning the Big South Conference Championship against UNC Asheville.

Show Your Support

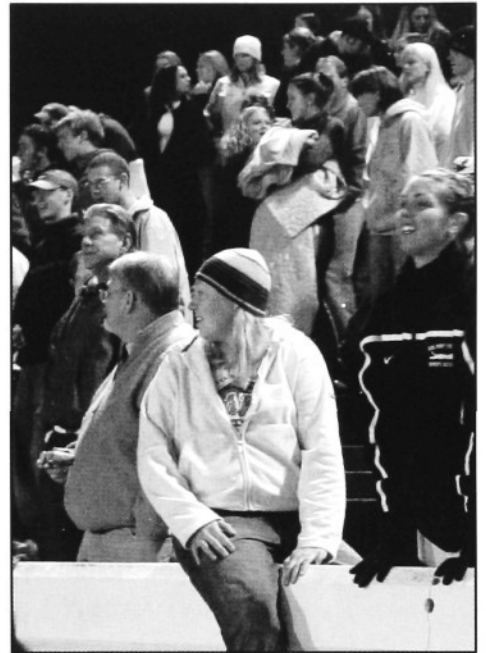

When the women's soccer team won the conference game in a shoot out, the fans stormed the field in celebration.

Fans cheer at a home basketball game. Many could be seen wearing their Lunatics t-shirts.

Cricket Indra, Nicole Beaudwin, and Tracy Warring show their support for the basketball team by wearing their Lunatics t-shirts. Every student who attended Basketball 101 received a free t-shirt.

Baseball players also enjoy the game.

Panther Fans

The moment the shoot out was won by the women's soccer team, will be remembered by all the fans who watched.

The fans watch anxiously as the women's final soccer tournament goes into double overtime.

The sisters of Alpha Gamma Delta cheer wildly for the home team.

The Wind Up

Effort shows on Kevin Burch's face as he throws a pitch from the mound.

Kevin was awarded the Big South's Christenberry Award for excellence as a student-athlete.

Diamond Days

Highlights

This year began with the arrival of Coach Bando's first recruiting class of 19 new players. Of those recruits two were former draft picks and four were junior college All American's.

Kevin Burch signed a free agent contract with the Baltimore Orioles and played his first professional season with the Sarasota Orioles in the Gulf Coast League.

Along with Burch, seniors Cronin, Chris Hyatt, Kemp Smith, and David Hilfstein ended their college careers with strong finishes.

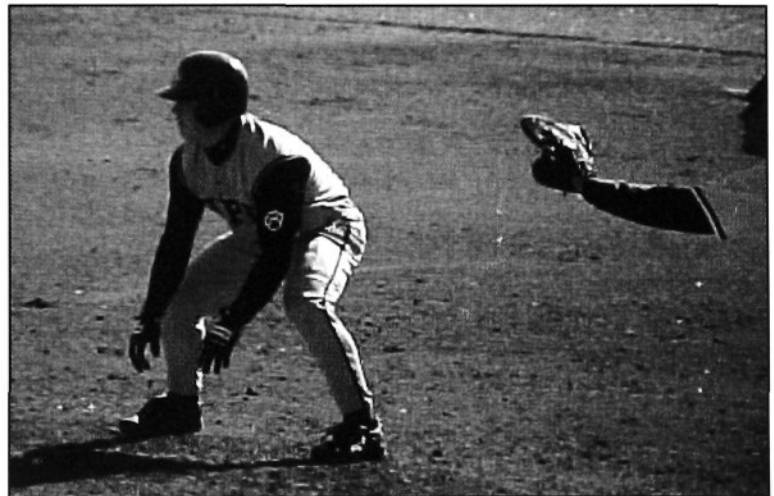

Batter Up!

Chris Draska scans the bases from the batter's box while he awaits the next pitch. Chris plays outfield for the Panthers.

Throwing an Out!

Colin Cronin makes the play throwing the ball to first to grab the out.

Ready to Steal...

Outfielder Matt Gorman leads off the base hoping to steal.

One Shot at a Time

Highlights

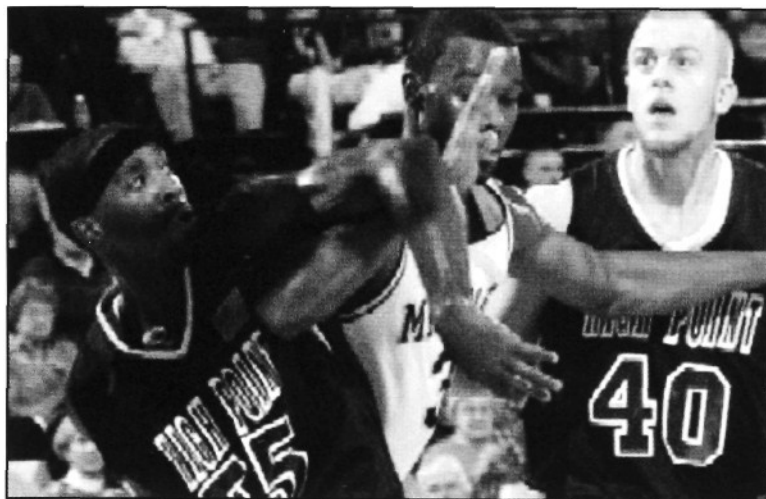

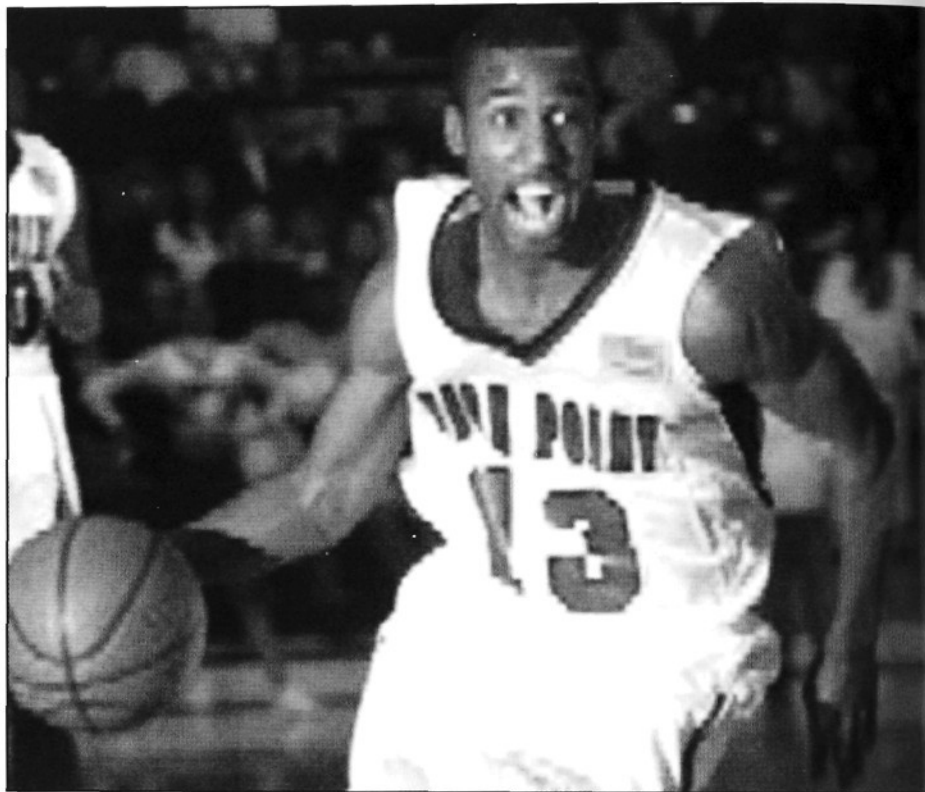

This season brought in a new head coach. Bart Lundy took a team that finished last in the Big South last year and turned them into one of the nation's most improved squads.

The High Point Panthers set school records for victories in a season and Big South wins since the Panthers joined NCAA Division I ranks in 1998.

Juniors Danny Gathings and Zion White developed into two of the Big South's best players.

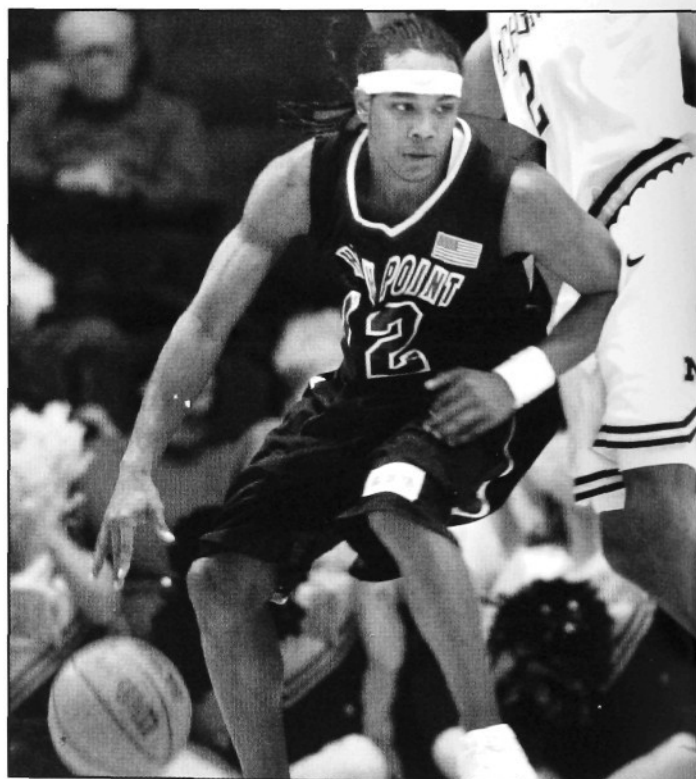

Get your game face on!

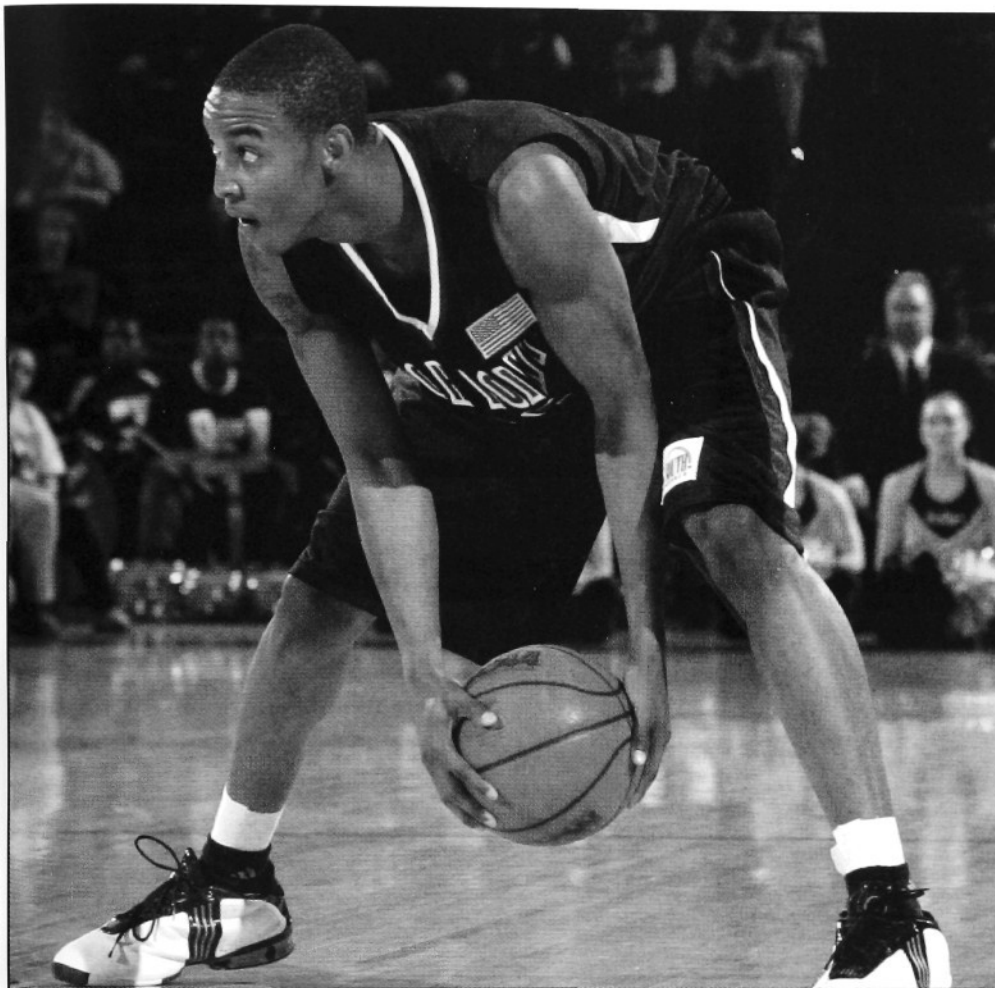

Freshman, guard, Landon Quick displays sudden emotion as he finds himself with an open drive down the court.

All about the defense
Junior Danny Gathings, and senior Brent Halsch, do whatever it takes to block their opponents from getting to a loose ball or becoming open for a pass.

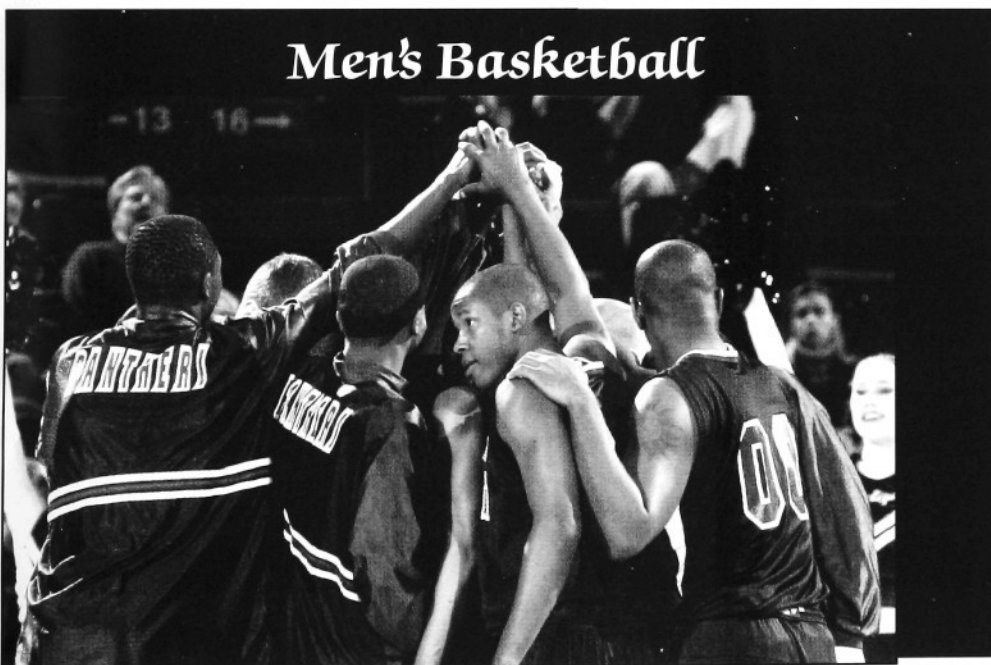

Focused on the Game
Junior guard Chris Meeks dribbles the ball through his Michigan opponents to open up the court for his Panther teammates.

Surveying the Court...

After taking control of the ball, junior guard Zion White takes a look around the court to find a clean pass to a teammate that has the opportunity to score.

As a team, we've improved in many ways. We are almost a whole new team this year. We had some early injuries during the beginning of the season. But as the season has progressed, we have really come together.

All Eyes on the Basket!

Junior forward Kate Jenner concentrates as she attempts to make a foul shot to bring her team one point closer to the win.

All About the Game Face!

Forward/Center freshman Timberley Jones uses her strength and skill to score another basket.

Patience is Key

Charlena "Shorty" Martin, a junior guard, keeps her eyes on the ball as she waits for the pass from her teammate.

Our fondest memory from this season has to be our cheerleading sleepover. Our night started by cheering on our men's basketball team to a victory over the Spartans.

Up for Anything!

When it comes to cheering for our team, the cheerleaders are literally up for anything. At games, they can often be seen doing stunts and formations that require some in-air time.

Shaking It!

To help get the crowd going, the cheerleaders perform a well-choreographed dance in front of the fans during halftime of a basketball game.

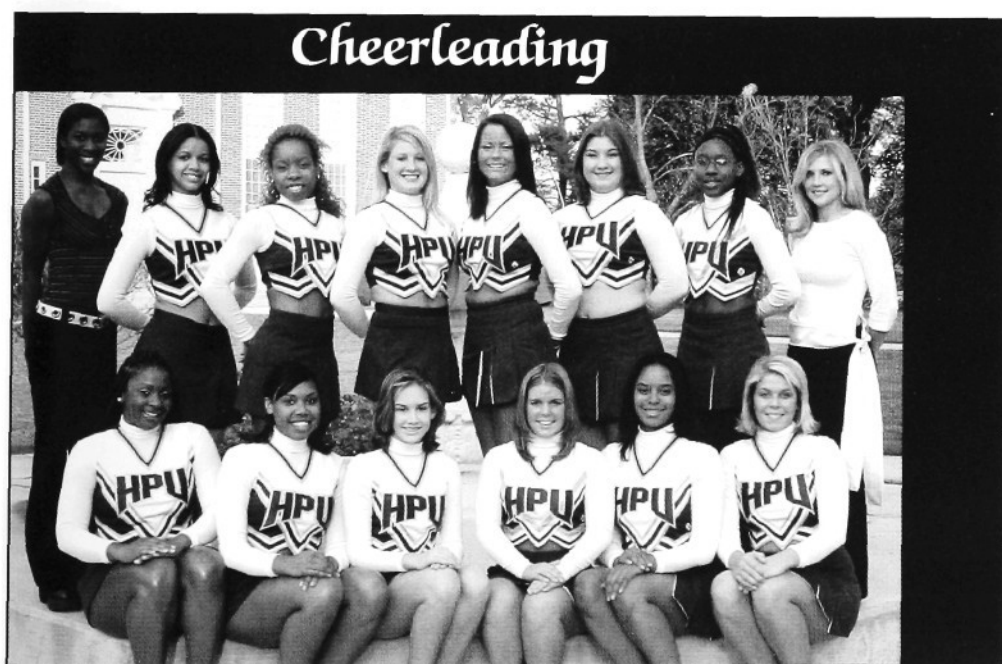

Out and About!

Cheerleaders here are shown at a Chic-fil-a restaurant to help gain community support for our Panthers.

Going the Distance

Highlights

The men's team won their second consecutive Big South Championship title as the women placed third on November 1, 2003 in Myrtle Beach, SC.

Jeff Fairman (4th), Bubba Hill (6th), Derek Naklusi (9th), Jemissa Hess (4th), and Melissa Caudill (10th) earned All-Conference honors while Kyle Lounsbury (12th) received the Freshman of the Year award.

Derek Naklusi, Jeff Fairman, and Jemissa Hess earned Big South Conference runner of the week awards for stellar first place performances.

On your mark...

The men's team concentrates on their race strategies at the start line of the Big South Conference meet on November, 1, 2003.

Staying strong

Bubba Hill stays focused as he rounds a corner during the 8k conference race. He placed 6th in the race.

Push it all the way!

Junior Melissa Caudill keeps her head up as she pushes each stride to a 10th place finish during the 5k conference run.

Par...Birdie...Eagle!

Highlights

The 2003-2004 school year is the first year for Women's Golf

The Men's golf team finished the 2002-2003 season 7th out of 8 teams in the Big South Conference

The Men's team posted a 5th place finish out of 10 teams at the Liberty/JAE Intercollegiate tournament in 2003.

Freshman Tim Deavers drives a ball off the tee and watches it soar through the air. Deavers joins the team with an impressive high school background.

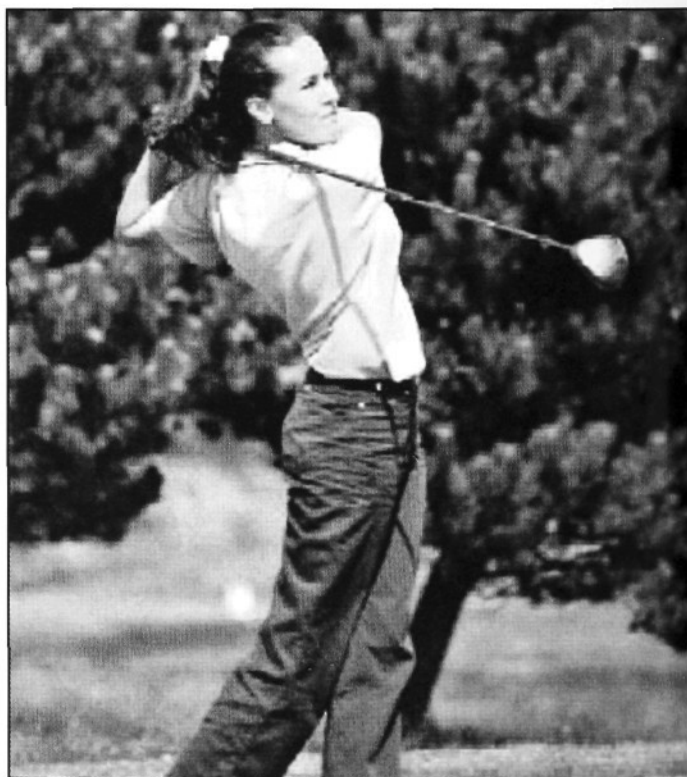

Freshman Jenna Kinnear putts for par and watches the ball roll to the cup with high hopes of making it in.

Kinnear's skill will help the women stand out in the conference.

Driving the ball down the fairway, freshman Kate O'Sullivan is also an asset to this year's team.

O'Sullivan comes from a very strong golf background, and looks to help the women succeed.

Chad Westfall on the putting green watches his putt follow through. Westfall is a senior who is a Millis-Scholar Athlete and has been a member of the golf team since his freshman year.

Name: Coach
Peter Broadley
(6th season)

According to Coach Broadley, the most memorable moment this season came when the Panthers scored the first goal against Wake Forest who was ranked 7th in the nation. That goal put High Point at 1-0 which then led to being down only 1-2 at halftime.

Their final game

Reason to be proud

Kenzo Tochiki, Luke Lemanski, Kevin Balkanloo and Richard Hanson were recognized for their achievements. Kenzo and Richard attained 2nd Team All-Big South honors and Luke and Kevin were named to the Conference's All-Freshman Team.

New additions

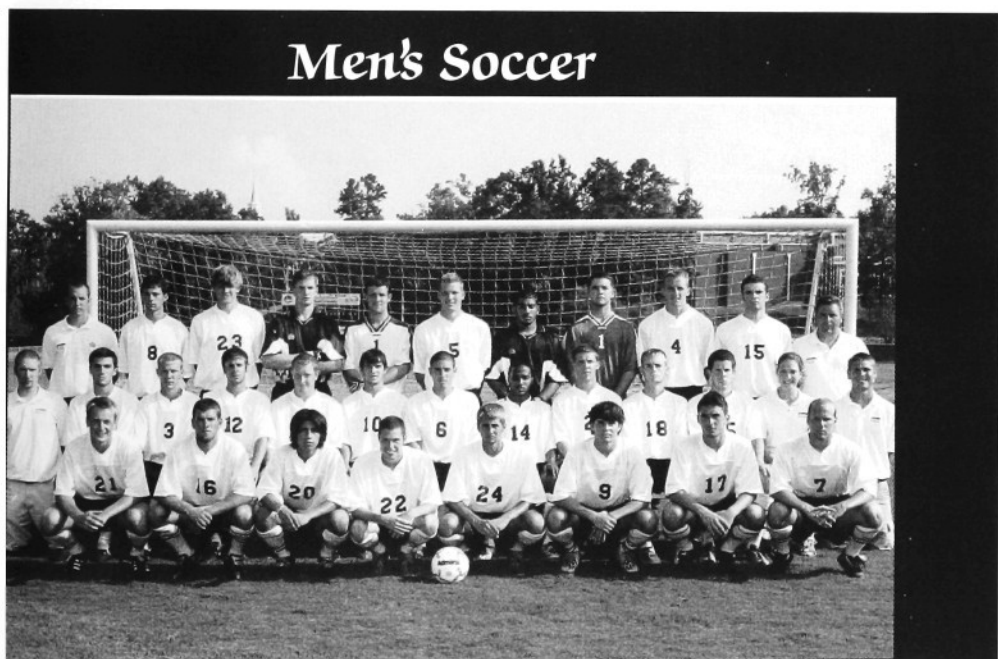

Freshman Luke Lemanski, one of 14 new members to this year's team, surveys the field as Kenzo Tochiki looks ahead to get ready for the next play.

Run for it!

Matt Wood runs after the ball to hopefully score a goal. Matt's determination and dedication were a wonderful asset to this year's team. His seniority and leadership truly helped the younger players and new members. Matt was someone the team could look to for guidance.

Howard ('04)

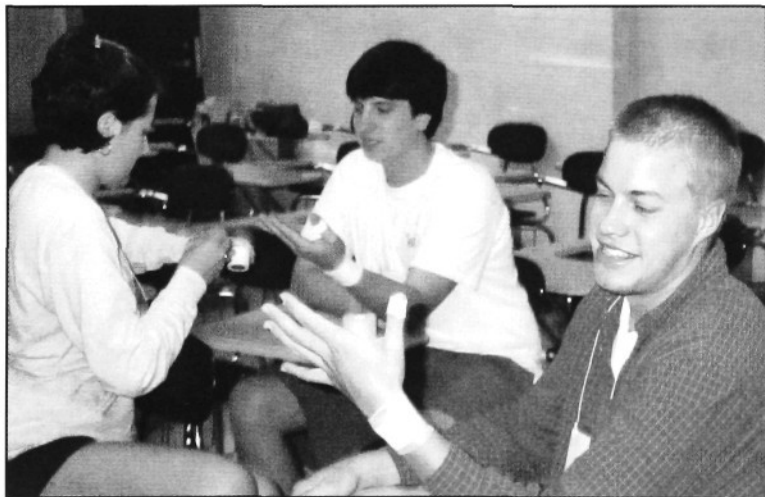

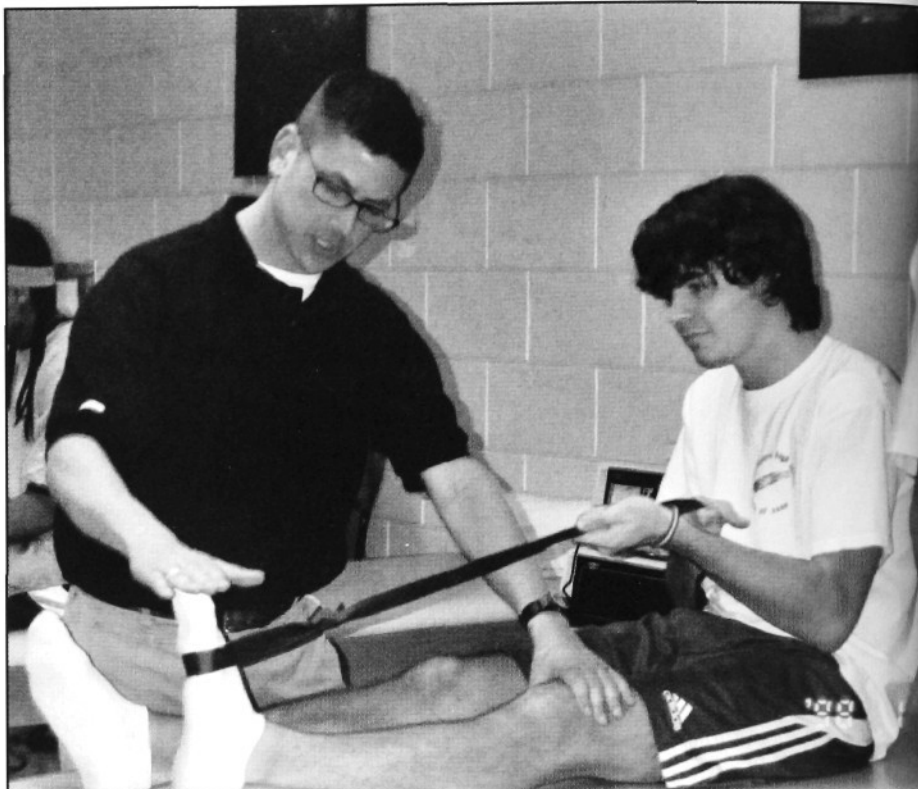

Alex is this year's Sports Medicine Club President.

Alex states,

"Our mission at the start of the school year was to expand upon the club, and I feel that we have accomplished our task through hard work and cooperation as a team. I am confident that our success will continue in the future."

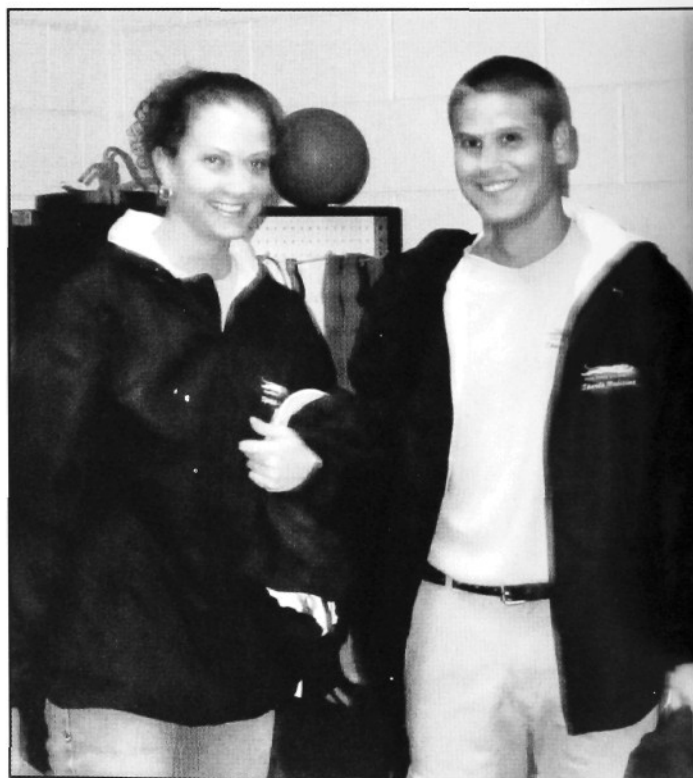

Assistant Professor of Sports Medicine, Dan Tarara, assists soccer player Lane Miller with strengthening his knee. The training room is filled with certified trainers as well as juniors and seniors majoring in the program.

During freshman comps, students learn the basics of taping and wrapping. Matt Cahoon admires his tape job as Megan Pastor finishes taping Ryan McCrea's hand.

Juniors Holly Bailey and Jeremy Dicus prepare to head out to the field for men's soccer practice. In the athletic training program, juniors are assigned a team where they gain first hand experience to prepare them for their senior year as well as a future in athletic training.

Senior, April Church, prepares to rip the tape as she wraps an athlete's ankle. April is very dedicated to her major and is always willing to help those in need.

This year's Sports Medicine Club had a goal to become active on campus and in the community. They reached their goal with the following activities:

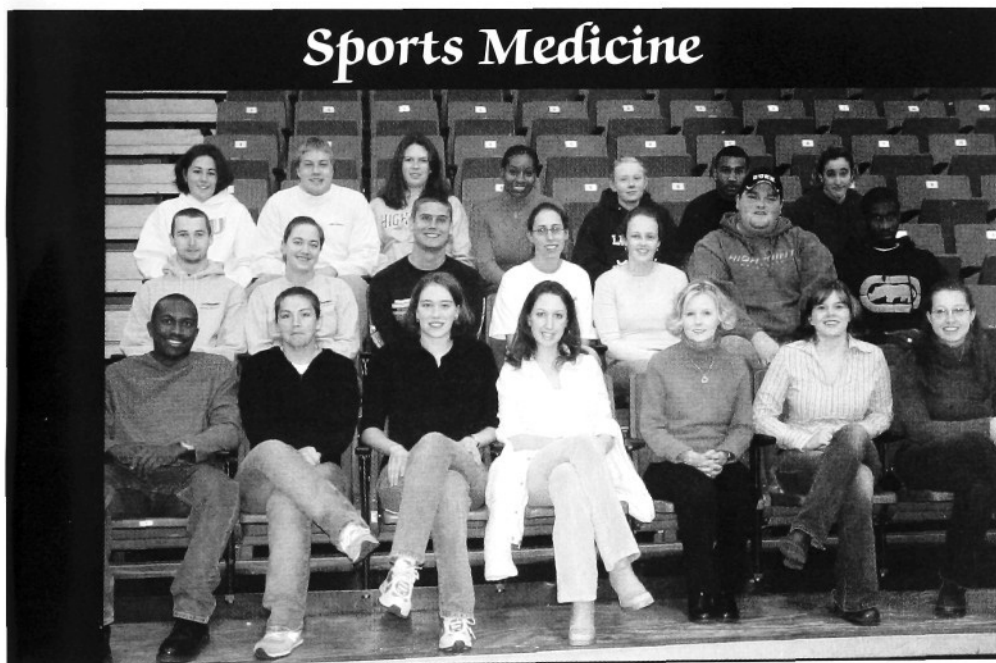

The club collected over 150 varieties of canned food and non-perishable items for the Father's Table during the Thanksgiving Holiday season.

In partnership with Toys for Tots, Sports Med Club members held a toy drive during the Christmas Service in the Chapel and collected over five boxes of toys.

In March, the club will hold a symposium. It will include a membership panel, guest speakers and various hands-on activities. A large amount of planning has gone into the symposium to make it a huge success.

The Greek community shares one central philosophy: we are stronger as a group than we are as individuals. As students look to form bonds of friendship between old and new members, many find a home in the greek community. Be it working with a local girl scout troop, raising money for the fight against juvenile diabetes or just having a great evening at a spring semi-formal, the greek community always makes an impressive show of strength and ultimately leaves the campus and the community a better place to be.

Lambda Chi Alpha

This year, the brothers of Lambda Chi Alpha were involved in many different events, both on and off campus. One of the main things that they do is go to the Father's Table, where they help provide food for needy people in the High Point community. Lambda Chi also try to spend as much time there as possible. They hold annual food drives which raise money and food for the Open Door Ministries. The food is donated to the Father's Table. Another big event is the annual Rock A Thon. During this event each brother takes turns rocking in a chair for four hours at a time for a total of forty eight hours. The Rock A Thon is held to raise donations for the American Cancer Society.

The brothers of Lambda Chi Alpha also do many things on campus. One of the brothers is the co-president of the Sports Medicine Club. Many of them are involved in the Interfraternity Council (of which one is the secretary). They are also involved in intramural sports. Even though they don't always win, they always have fun.

Always a
Pike."*

The Delta Omega Chapter is the oldest greek letter fraternity at High Point University as chartered on February 7th, 1953. Pi Kappa Alpha was founded on March 1, 1868 at the University of Virginia. They are composed of more than 200 chapters across the United States and Canada and have over 200,000 initiated members. The Pikes are consistently the largest average chapter size of any international fraternity.

Pi Kappa Alpha awards more than 100 annual scholarships. Prominent Pikes include: Dr. Stephan Convey - Chairman of Convey Leadership Institute, S. Truett Cathy - founder of Chick-fil-A, Jon Stuart - The Daily Show host/comedian, Bobby Bowden - Florida State head football coach, and Tim McGraw - married to Faith Hill...enough said.

Pi Kappa Alpha is dedicated to enhancing the collegiate experience while providing lifelong opportunities and rewards. Pikes consist of scholars, athletes, and gentlemen: their legacy demands nothing less than excellence.

Theta Chi

Theta Chi National Fraternity was founded on April 10, 1856, and the Epsilon Alpha Chapter of High Point University was founded on December 10, 1954. Their motto is to "Extend the Helping Hand." Since founded, the brothers of Theta Chi have been very prevalent in campus activities including S.G.A. executive officers, class officers, RA's, club representatives, University Ambassadors, and of course intramurals sports.

2004 marks the 50th Anniversary Celebration of the Epsilon Alpha Chapter at High Point University. 2003-04 was a great year for Theta Chi. They placed second with Alpha Gamma Delta Sorority in the Greek Week competition. In November, Jay Bozman, Adam Canevazzi, Taylor Humphries, Joshua Jackson, and Steve Zarrick teamed up to place third in this year's College Bowl competition. The annual See-Saw-Athon was a great success and raised money for American Diabetes.

College life is enhanced by the participation in a club or organization. There are so many to choose from, for a variety of different interests. Students go back and forth from classes to dorm rooms to practices, the cafeteria, and club meetings. These things define college life. Organizations give students who share similar interests a chance to meet and spend time together doing what they enjoy. Whether it is art club, international club, yearbook or newspaper, student government, or a singing or theater group - the organizations enrich students' life on this campus.

Sophisticated Ladies

Bringing a new sorority to life

The Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority Incorporated is a new greek organization on the HPU campus. The organization was started in 2001-2002 school year by an ambitious group of ladies who wanted to enrich the campus by adding another organization that embodies sisterhood. The organization has survived the many pitfalls that surround a young organization to test their endurance on a college campus. The ladies of Alpha Kappa Alpha have taken these obstacles in stride and are increasingly becoming known on the HPU campus for their ability to prevail and excel as an organization. The ladies of Alpha Kappa Alpha persistently move ahead with their quest through their volunteer efforts and their goals to promote sisterhood not only in the black community but for all women on the HPU campus. This year the last of the founding ladies will be graduating, but they are proud of what the organization has become in such a short time and hope that the organization will continue to grow long after they have gone on to become professionals, wives, and mothers.

High Point University is fortunate to have a myriad of vocal groups that range in style from a capella to gospel, from choral to Broadway.

Students in search of variety can choose from the Toccatonotes, Cabaret, Genesis, the University Singers, and Chapel Choir.

While it is common to find any of the groups performing in the Wednesday chapel service, it would not be uncommon to find them out in the community entertaining civic, church, and social groups. This year, the Toccatonotes rocked orientation, Genesis and Cabaret wowed the Presidential Scholars, and the Chapel Choir and University Singers inspired us all during the Holiday season.

Magnifying Go Tell It On The Mountain, Michael Maykish successfully captures the meaning of the song.

Shining like a star, Amanda Troy truly hits all the right notes and leaves the audience applauding for more.

The collaboration of the University Singers and Chapel Choir makes the holiday concert a success.

Making a Difference

Four Groups One Goal

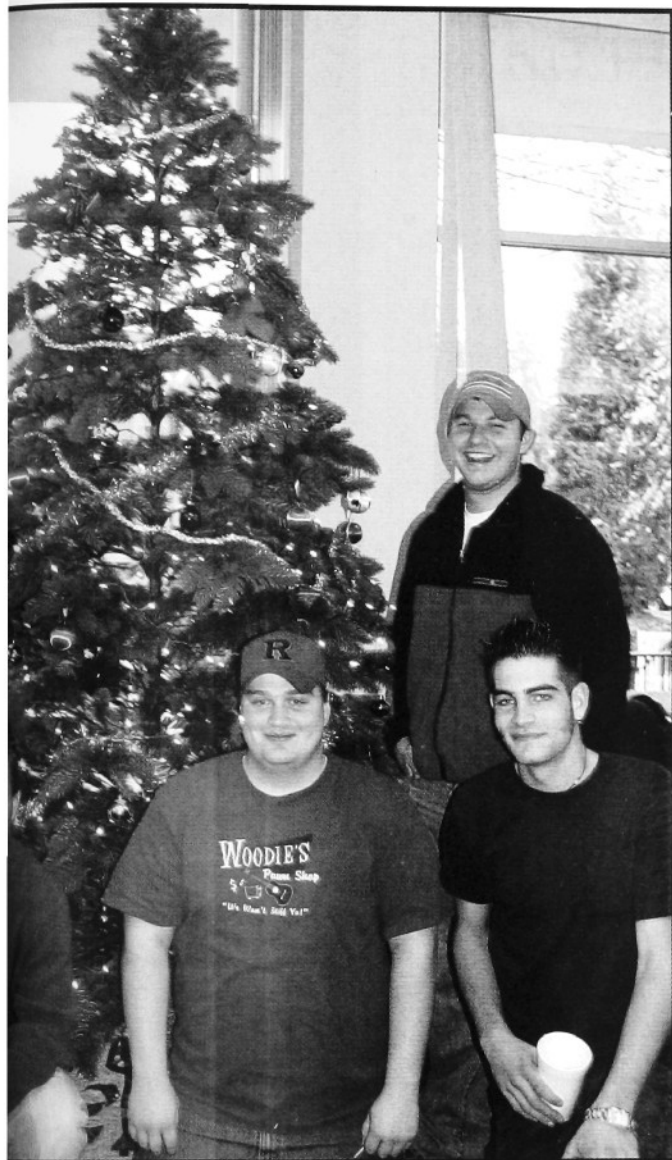

The Interfraternity Council is the representative governing body that oversees the University's four fraternities: Pi Kappa Alpha, Lambda Chi Alpha, Delta Sigma Phi, and Theta Chi. Their purpose is to foster and promote positive relations with other greek organizations, the student body, faculty, and administration.

This year IFC hosted cookouts for freshmen, sponsored an alcohol education speaker, and decorated the Slane Center for the Christmas season. In addition to their on-campus activities, the men of IFC began a new relationship with the residents of the Wesleyan Arms Retirement Center.

Every month the men host bingo night at the Center and have sponsored both a Christmas Party and Valentine's Dance for the appreciative residents. This new friendship between town-and-gown has proved rewarding for everyone involved.

In February, six members of IFC attended SEIFC, the Southeastern Interfraternity Leadership Academy in Atlanta, Georgia. The conference emphasized greater campus involvement, civic responsibility, and long term growth.

Not content to rest on their accomplishments, the men of IFC are already hard at work preparing for their role as co-sponsors of next fall's Derby Day and Greek Week.

Going Global

International Club enhances worldly perspectives

Through the year, the club sponsors a number of events designed to bring a little bit of international flair to the students of HPU. This year, the club hosted a well-attended international food fair during family weekend, held several dinners highlighting various indigenous cuisines, and sponsored trips and excursions throughout the South East.

Ultimately, the International Club successfully encourages a close unity between students from around the globe and a better appreciation of other cultures within the entire High Point community.

The Great Outdoors

Provides adventures for willing students

The Outdoor Activities Club (OAC) is a student run organization that coordinates and plans exciting outdoor adventures throughout the school year.

Experienced thrill seekers and novices alike share in the adventurous world of rafting, rock climbing, and camping. The OAC also sponsors short hikes in the nearby mountains of North Carolina and Virginia.

Excitement and adventure, however, are only half of what OAC is all about. The OAC also emphasizes the delicate ecology in which we all live. Students and faculty who participate on OAC adventures are thrust headlong into the wonders that nature has to offer. They are reminded perhaps of the words of William Wordsworth when he wrote,

"Therefore I am still a lover of the meadows and the woods. And mountains; and of all the mighty world Of eye, and ear, both what they half create And what they half perceive; well pleased to recognize In nature and the language of the sense, The anchor of my purest thoughts, the nurse, The guide, the guardian of my heart and soul, All my moral being."

Not Just An Ordinary Year

Recording the moments that make the year

The preservation of these memories is the purpose of this book.

The Zenith's style for this year's book was traditional. The theme Contrasts can be found sewn throughout.

Melissa Caudill, the editor in chief, said, "I hope that the students and staff can instantly see how much work went into this book.

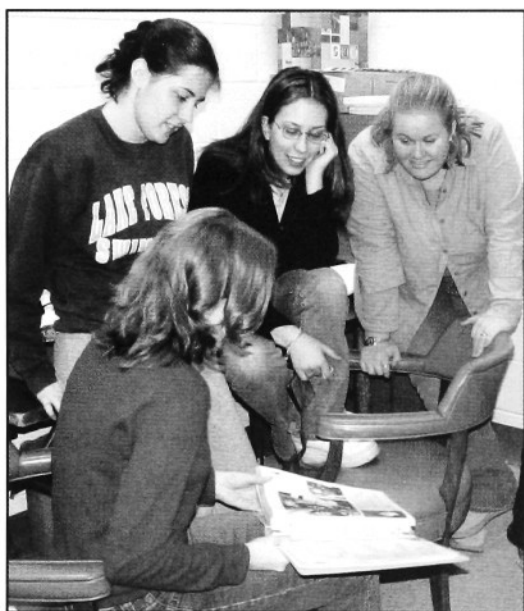

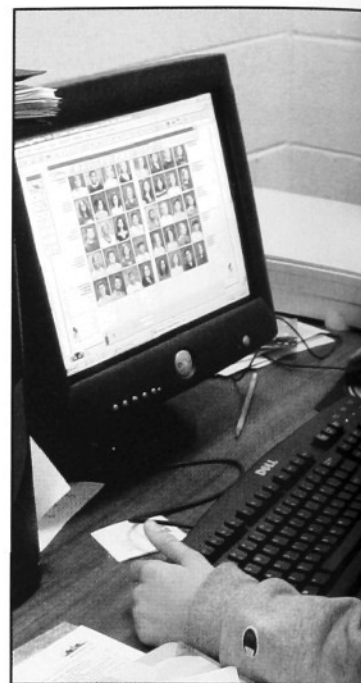

I feel that it is an immense improvement over past years, and I hope we can continue to improve and grow as a staff."

With the help of Roger Clodfelter, the Zenith's advisor, Melissa built the staff from scratch by bringing in students with various talents, interests, and goals for this yearbook and the future ones to come.

After weekly laughter filled Tuesday meetings, many late nights, four completed deadlines, and some setbacks in between, the yearbook staff has accomplished its goal with pride.

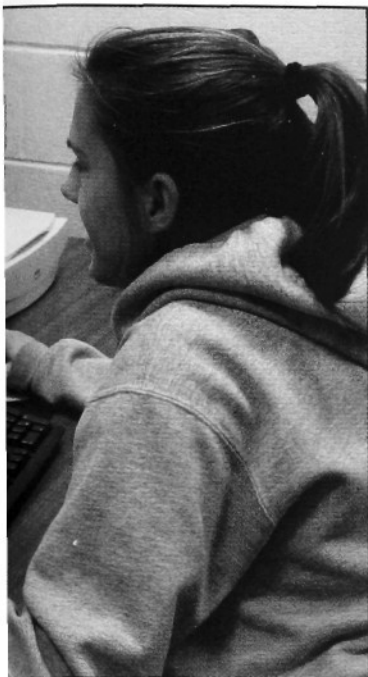

Nicole Beaudwin looks over the portraits pages to correct any errors.

Already preparing for next year's yearbook, Melissa Caudill, Megan Pastor, Sara Cunningham, and Jen Howell look for ways to improve and formulate new ideas and concepts.

The Zenith's own photo girl, Katie Clain-Stefanelli, takes another picture for the yearbook.

Extra Extra!

The Chronicle records the news at High Point University

The members of the Chronicle staff have one thing in common, the desire to produce a campus newspaper each month. Being a part of this team is completely voluntary and takes a special person to give up the amount of time it takes to contribute to the newspaper.

The section editors, also known as layout artists, devote at least 8-10 hours an issue, granted everything flows perfectly.

Each member of the Chronicle's staff has an opportunity to explore their interests in journalism and perfect their own voice.

The writers are the backbone of the paper because of their strong commitment to write a story is critical to publishing each issue.

The quality of work from the staff is always unique and refreshing, with each issue providing an array of viewpoints on a variety of topics.

RA's are always there to help

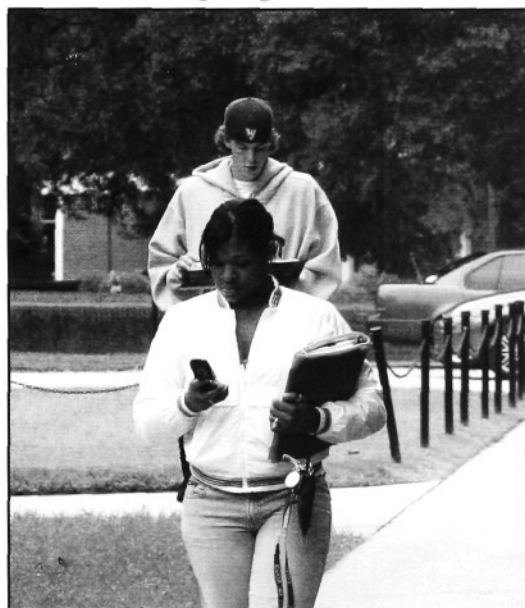

Resident Advisors, commonly known as RA's, are an integral part of everyone's college experience. Making the transition from home town to college campus can be difficult for some, yet exhilarating for others. Either way, the RA is often the first friend a new student makes. The RA's are chosen each spring through an intense selection process designed to find the students best suited for this special responsibility.

Once selected, RA's arrive weeks early each August to receive training in CPR, first aid, conflict resolution, crisis management, and community development. As the year progresses, RA's can be counted on to step in when needed, help with campus events, sponsor hall, social programs, and serve as the link between students and administration. While their work often goes unnoticed, the RA staff typifies life as a student leader.

RA's Jenn Messick and Adrianna Cowne arrived early to manage freshmen check in at the women's complex.

"Where did my RA say that building was again?" "Let me call her."

Giving is the Gift

The volunteer center brings smiles

The Volunteer Center at High Point University serves as a liason between the students of HPU and the citizens of the entire High Point community. Specifically, the Center pairs the volunteer efforts of students with local civic and charitable organizations like the Red Cross, Big Brothers and Big Sisters, Open Door Ministries, and local elementary schools.

By coordinating student efforts with local needs the University makes positive and consistent contributions to our community. This year the Volunteer Center partnered with the greek community to produce one of the most successful CROP walks in recent history, and The Center continues to host four Red Cross blood drives each year. Two of the most anticipated events of the year are the Center's Holiday Carnivals. At Halloween and Easter, HPU students don costumes, hand out candy, and play games with several hundred local school children. The simple fact that the Volunteer Center is run entirely by students makes all their involvement all the more amazing.

Makin' It Happen

The Student Activities Board provides students with fun and entertainment

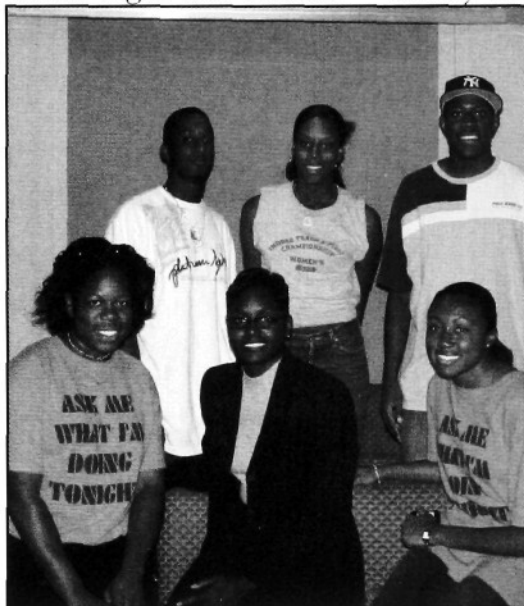

Each year the Student Activities Board is charged with the difficult task of creating a calendar of events designed to please our diverse student body. From Orientation to final exams, SAB provides a range of activities to alleviate the stress of the daily grind. In addition to the traditional favorites like movie-night and cosmic bowling, this year SAB hosted a comedy series, laser tag, a Reggae Festival, and an MTV Basketball competition, among others. Each semester SAB focuses their energy on a week of concentrated activities. Fall Week featured comedians Chocolate and Coco Brown, as well as Wacky 3-D photos and wax candle-making. Spring Fling featured novelty signs, key chains and High Point's favorite comedian Shang.

The Student Activities Board is open to all students and welcomes new ideas and contributors.

Rolling Out the Red Carpet

Students go Hollywood at the third annual SnowBall Dance

One of our newer traditions at High Point, SnowBall, continues to grow into a favorite student event. Designed to ease the winter doldrums, students dress up, brave the cold weather, and heat up the dance floor.

This year's SnowBall paid tribute to the glamour of old Hollywood. Students were given star treatment as they walked down the red carpet and entered the ballroom to find all the glitz and drama of an old Hollywood film premier. Old images of Hollywood stars were incorporated into the table settings, serving buffets, and even projected onto the large walls of the ballroom.

The evening culminated with the introduction of the Winter Court. Making their way into the spotlight were Nicole Armer, Michael Ashton, Ryan Bess, Adam Canevazzi, Sam Closic, Sarah Czyz, Betsy Edwards, Angela Garvin, Chris Michener, and Shannon Shattuck. In the end, the students crowned Angela Garvin as Snow Queen and Michael Ashton as Winter King.

Contrasts create a unique environment on this campus. They allow us to better understand others, and ourselves. When we learn how great the contrasts can be in those around us, it gives us a more worldly perspective, and an accepting attitude for that which is different. Though each of us have our own experiences and history, there is one that we share. We embrace the contrasts, however, we exult this similarity.

WE are High Point University.

Colophon

This 80th volume of High Point University's Zenith was printed by Taylor Publishing Co. The book's representative was Susan Saxon. Most of the photos were taken digitally, and all the pages were submitted on disk. Pages were laid out using PageMaker 7.0, photos were enhanced using Adobe Photoshop 7.0. The theme and cover design were created by Melissa Caudill. Cover photographs were taken by Roger Clodfelter and Katie Clain-Stefanelli. The cover is glossy lithograph. The fonts used throughout the book were Seville - for the copy, Embassy for subheads, and Genesis for headlines. Portrait photos were taken by LifeTouch. Most all other photos were taken by Roger Clodfelter and Katie Clain-Stefanelli. Many thanks go to all the individuals and groups who provided photographs.

Note from the Editor

Working as this year's Editor-In-Chief has been both a challenge and a joy. First, I would like to thank the staff for all of their hard work, and for helping me to achieve what I envisioned. Without you this book would not have happened!

And many thanks go to our Taylor Representative, Susan Saxon, for all of her help and quick solutions to problems. To the editorial board - Roger Clodfelter and Rans Triplett - thank you for your excellent grammar and eye for mistakes! And finally, to Roger Clodfelter, thank you for beginning a new era with me. I appreciate your support and honesty and look forward to working with you again.
