Tryouts for the Freshman Follies of '58 will be opened to all new students at 6:30 p.m., Oct. 22 in the auditorium. All acts must be limited to a length of five minutes, but there is no limitation as to the type of act. This information was given out to all interested freshmen and transfer students by the planning committee at a meeting held Oct. 14. Also given out at that time were application blanks to be filled out and returned to Helen Clay or Tom Warren, co-chairman of the committee, before Oct. 21.

The Freshman Follies of '58, an annual event sponsored by the SGA, will be held at 7:30 p.m., Oct. 30 in the auditorium. It is hoped that the services of Shrimp Flynt may be obtained as Master of Ceremonies. Prizes will be awarded to the first, second and third place winners.

PARTY DATES SET

Frats Make Plans For "Rush" Week

by BILL DAMON

At the last meeting of the Inter-Fraternity Council President Maury Beauchot announced the dates for the formal fraternity rush week and explained the new rushing rules. Formal rush week will begin on Wednesday, October 22, and will terminate with a silent period on November second and third.

Each social fraternity has been designated one night each for a stag party in the following order:

Wed., Oct. 22—Lambda Chi Alpha.
Thurs., Oct. 23—Tau Kappa Epsilon.
Fri., Oct. 24—Theta Chi.
Mon., Oct. 27—Sigma Phi Epsilon.
Tues., Oct. 28—Pi Kappa Alpha.
Wed., Oct. 29—Delta Sigma Phi.

On Saturday, November 1, all the fraternities will hold date parties for the entertainment of the rushees.

SILENT PERIOD

Silent period has been delayed from midnight Saturday, until noon Sunday, November 2, and will last until six p.m. on the following day. Rushees will be able to receive their bids beginning at 8:30 a.m. on Monday, November 3, and are required to return all of them, signed, by 6 p.m. of the same day.

The new rushing rules that are now in effect allow open "oral" rush by fraternities. Previous to this year no more than four fraternity men could be with any rushee at the same time. The new rules lift this ban but do not allow any bids to be sent out or any closed fraternity parties with rushees in attendance until the specified time during rush week. Fraternities violating these rules will be suspended from pledging privileges for a period decided upon by the IFC.

COLLEGE RADIO PROGRAMS SCHEDULED

Beginning Wednesday, October 15, at 4:00 p.m., over Radio Station WHPE, the radio production class will present the first episode of a serial which will continue for several weeks. Built around four college boys, the story includes incidents which could very well happen on our own HPC campus.

Directed by Miss Jane DeSpain, dramatics professor, the cast includes Larry Williams, Jerry Ledwell, Jack Benfield, Preston Reece, Jane DeSpain, and Jesse Hill.

IN ASSEMBLY

Bishop's Company To Appear

A unique stage production will be presented November 5 at mid-week assembly in Memorial Auditorium by The Bishop's Company, only touring repertory company of its kind presenting drama-in-the-church productions with professional actors.

No elaborate stage settings are used. Both the audience and the actors will visualize the various locales in which the scenes of the play are set.

Asking the audience to share in the creation of the play is part of the technique of The Bishop's Company in promoting the return of great drama to the church. The lines and action are presented by the cast, but the audience moves along with ease from landscape to village or city as the story unfolds.

The Bishop's Company has been in continuous production since October, 1952. The Company is now on its fifth coast-to-coast tour and has received praise from religious and theatrical circles alike for its work in bringing back to the churches the art of the drama. During the 1957 summer season it appeared for two weeks at the Princeton University Institute of Theology and expects to return to the Institute during the summer of 1959.

From its repertory of plays of literary and social significance, the play to be presented here is Alan Paton's "Cry, The Beloved Country."

"Cry, The Beloved Country" is the Constitution To Get Changes

A special Constitution Committee, appointed by the Executive Council of The Student Government Association, has presented a new revision of The Student Government Constitution for student approval.

The major changes which the committee has suggested include a bi-cameral house and a revision of the present Executive Committee. The Constitution Committee, which spent two days in reviewing and changing the document, consisted of Charles Johnson, Harold Wright, Pat Ray, Fred Barber, Peggy Davis, Sylvia Holt, Bobby Yates, Patt Olmsted, Fred Handy, and Elmer Hall.

APPROVAL URGED

Fred Barber, President of the Student Government Association, urged student approval of the new revision. Barber explained yesterday that the changes were badly needed to "bring our Constitution up to date."

"The Constitution has long been in need of several minor changes," Barber said, "And I hope that every student will read the new revision before it is presented for approval."

Barber further stated that the present Constitution was passed in 1954, and had met little change since that date.

The new Constitution will be presented in the Student Legislature on Tuesday, October 21, and upon approval by the Legislature will be presented to the student body during Assembly on Wednesday, October 29. A two-thirds majority vote of the student body will be required for passage.

MAJOR CHANGES

The Constitution Committee called special attention to the two major changes in the document. Under the present S.G.A. Constitution all legislative powers are given to the Student Legislature, whereas the powers are divided between a Student Senate and a Student House of Representatives in the new revision, similar to the form of government used on state and federal levels.

The second major change, Committee members explained, adds the Day Students' President and the dormitory presidents to the Executive Committee, which now consists of the four officers of the Student Government Association.

Other changes in the present document may be found in the election procedures, where a petition will be required for nomination of officers in the spring elections.

Gifts donated by High Point merchants will be presented to Miss High Point College and the four runners-up.

Along with the talent presented by the fifteen finalists will be that of Betty Lane. She will also appear in her official gown which she wore in Atlantic City in September. Judges and the price of tickets will be announced at a later date. The affair is sponsored annually by the KENITH as a money making project.

Across The Desk

HI-PO RAISON D'ETRE

Traditionally the HI-PO has carried the motto, "The Voice of the Students." How and to what extent the motto is realized in this publication depends naturally on the editor and staff.

Any newspaper exists to inform its readers of events and activities of importance. A college newspaper, in addition, has the task of maintaining an independent and accurate organ of student expression.

The editorial and feature page aims to stimulate and guide student thinking and to interpret events and actions collegiate or national. This page must be subjective; by reflecting the opinions of a few it is hoped that the interest of many will be stimulated.

The problems met in publishing a college newspaper are seemingly endless. If the HI-PO is to achieve its goal it must have the interest of our entire campus. The staff asks your criticism, your patience, and, above all, your support.—E.O.H.

AMERICAN PARADOX

In an era so concerned with introspection, one cannot help but ponder the tragic irony of the present American educational predicament. Glancing at a recent leading newspaper we see our dilemma dramatically spelled out in boldface heads, "U. S. MUST NOT TOLERATE LAXITY IN EDUCATION," and across the page in distinctive balance, "GOVERNOR CLOSES SCHOOLS: WILL NOT COMPROMISE."

The first article by a government educational consultant just returned from Russia, warned that the future belongs to the educated, that the communist educational process is already pragmatically superior, and that America must re-evaluate, perhaps reform, its own system if democracy is to continue to exist. The other article related how a well-known Southern governor had cast his lot with segregation at the cost of his state's educational system. Both items rate front page; both reveal America to the world and to itself.

As Sputniks, Explorers, and Strontium 90 force themselves into the American scene, the nation's educational system achieves a new importance. Consultants, committees, and congressmen philosophize on how we can catch up with the Russians. Money is allocated, schools are consolidated, and teachers begin to buy new cars.

The South, emerging from two centuries of feudalism and dragging a distinctive cultural lag, strives desperately to face the demands of a new era. Southern leadership in many cases refuses to face reality. Faubuses and Almonds dogmatically move ahead with their "separate but empty" school policies; Kasperites and Grand Kluds, incite hate and violence; and in the midst of all the hubbub a little Tennessean who can't understand things like tradition, state's rights, and segregation asks his dad why his school was blown up last week. And his dad doesn't answer because he isn't exactly sure himself.

It's trite but true, time waits for no one. America has never been pressed for time as it is today. Our nation has no time to waste arguing a question that was settled almost a century ago. Scarlet O'Hara, Uncle Remus, and Jim Crow belong to the past. We need not sit in judgment upon that era; we need now simply to recognize its departure.

Irresponsible leaders have chosen to sacrifice the public school system before an altar of ignorance. Public education so tremendously important in the light of the present East-West conflict is discontinued indefinitely, and a growing generation is denied the traditional American right to a free education.

Foresight not hindsight is the demand of responsible leaders. Duty declares that we safeguard our South, our America, and our democratic ideals everywhere by committing ourselves to the future, not the past.—E.O.H.

FRED BARBER

ON CAMPUS

It was 9:30.

I crushed the butt of one well-consumed Winston under my foot, took a deep breath, and opened the door to the College bookstore.

The jabbering and yelling of a hundred voices greeted me as I managed to squeeze myself far enough into the noisy mob to allow the door to close behind me. The valiant attempt of a blaring jukebox was almost lost in the mass confusion and noise. A heavy cloud of tobacco smoke hung in layers from the low ceiling, and joined with the pungent odor of several flavors of Faberge to practically obliterate any effects from my fresh dose of Old Spice.

The floor was crowded with people, and the well-carved booths that lined the walls were jammed to overflowing with crew neck sweaters holding cherry cokes. I pushed my way through the babbling voices and drifting smoke, squeezed into a corner booth, and lit another Winston. I inhaled a deep breath of impurity, leaned back, and watched.

The only thing held in common by the masses who jammed the bookstore was that they were all students. Around the room were lonely faces, proud faces, eager faces, confident faces. Seated in the booths were homely and attractive coeds, all smiling and waiting as the campus Don Juans made their rounds. The attractive girls were confident and patient, and the homely ones excited, hopeful, and sometimes disappointed.

My gaze suddenly fell on a freshman boy standing with a group of students against the counter across the room. Each of the students stood with a coke in one hand and a cigarette in the other. The group was laughing and talking, telling jokes and complaining about professors. The freshman boy seemed to join in the laughter of the group, but he was continuously glancing at one of the booths, and it was obvious that his thoughts were far away from the jokes and conversation.

I followed the boy's gaze and discovered a small freshman girl seated with a group of coeds. The coeds were excitedly talking about new movies and current fashions while they ardently chewed gum and sipped cokes. But the small freshman girl was conscious of an occasional glance from the freshman boy, and once when their eyes met she smiled before quickly looking down at the table top and turning her attention back to the female conversation.

Soon the crowd of students began drifting toward the door, and the bookstore clock indicated that it was almost time to close. I stuffed the remains of the Winston into an overflowing ashtray.

As I stood to leave, I looked back at the booth where the small freshman girl was sitting. The freshman boy had gone over to her booth, and while he talked the small girl smiled up at him. Suddenly the girl gave an affirmative nod of her head, stood up, and together the couple left the bookstore.

I walked out into the cool freshness of the night. Above me the sky was clear, and scattered stars permeated the darkness with their brilliance. The air was crisp and clean. It was a good night to be alive.

I smiled to myself, lit a Winston, and walked away.

CHARLES JOHNSON

Top of the Tower

The other day I walked into the bookstore and purchased the usual cup of coffee. After sugaring it well and stirring it equally well, I looked around for my compatriots in philosophical griping. I saw Patric Fitzgerald and Gerald Fitzpatrick sitting in the corner booth moodily discussing something over their coffee. I walked over and sat down with them, and not a word of greeting passed between us. It was as if they expected and accepted me into their presence and conversation, knowing that we thought enough alike for either of the two others to pick up on an intercepted expression or conversation with a minimum of confusion.

I had anticipated a discussion of the newly proposed constitutional changes. To my surprise I found that my anticipation of a political debate was not to be satisfied immediately. In fact I was so startled by their discussion of a general philosophy that I sat listening for the better part of an hour before I ventured to speak. As I sat down Gerry was saying . . .

Gerry: The nobility of man is innate. Even the basest of persons has qualities hidden within his personality which, when brought to the threshold of action, are admirable in all men. This thought is substantiated by the adject conitriton of some of the foulest of murders, the maternal devotion of some of the least moral of mothers, or the patriotic fever expressed when least expected by some of the most cowardly of men.

Pat: You qualify these examples by inserting the word "some" in each case. What of he cases in which there is no contrition, maternal devotion, or patriotic fever?

Gerry: That seems to be a rather semantical objection, but I'll try not to deal with it semantically. In cases which do not exhibit these noble actions, and I believe they are rare, the action has been suppressed, for some reason, back through the threshold to the level of thought. The reason for the suppression is most likely due to the fact that the person lacks some

So What...

Getting out this publication is no picnic. If we print jokes, people say we are silly. If we don't, they say we are too serious. If we clip from other newspapers we are too lazy to write it ourselves.

If we stick close to the job all day, we ought to be out hunting up news; if we get out and try to hustle, we ought to be on the job in the office. If we don't print all contributions, we don't appreciate genius; if we do the paper is filled with junk.

If we make a change in a fellow's write-up, we are too critical; if we don't we are asleep. Now, like as not someone will say we swiped this from another paper.

WE DID!

"Brothers! Quiet please! The rushees are here."

of the other noble aspects of man's innate nobility.

Pat: Doesn't this very lack belie the fact that man's nobility is innate?

Gerry: Not at all. You see, the noble aspects of man's character and personality are relative, that is, interdependent. The lack of one quality frustrates the expression of another and so on until you have a complex system of checks and balances among the noble aspects of a man, the total of which is the man as we see him.

Pat: I see. But if that is true, why doesn't each man appear in the same light to all men?

Gerry: The interdependency of these aspects is not limited to the individual. There is a relativity of character and personality among individuals just as there is a relativity of the expression and suppression of nobility in the individual.

Pat: Then one can say that all things in human relations are relative.

Gerry: I like to say that all things in human relations are relative; nothing is absolute, but the nobility of man is innate. This means that while character and personality are relative within and without man, and while no basic standard can be absolutely defined; the nobility of man's nature is innate to each person. This means that while no man can be perfectly noble, nor the absolute paragon of nobility in his own eyes nor in the eyes of his fellowmen, it does not preclude striving for the absolute.

Pat: How so?

Gerry: According to this philosophy no man is baser than his fellowman, and conversely, he is no more noble than his fellowmen. This means that if each man strives for the absolute in himself, he may reach closer to the absolute in relation with his fellowmen. However, if there be one of his fellowmen baser than he, he can never reach the absolute, but if there be one of his fellowmen more noble than he, he can attain that man's degree of nobility. So if each man strives for the absolute, he unwittingly aids his brother to attain the absolute. Hence, all things are relative; nothing is absolute, but the nobility of man is innate.

Pat: I see, it is a paradox that can be resolved only when man realizes that he is his brother's keeper.

Gerry: That is one way of stating it, but so stated it is over simplified. Stated that way the whole philosophy smacks of materialism when actually it involves all phases of man's existence, or I should say, co-existence. Basically man's existence and co-existence evolves in two spheres. One is mental, and the other is physical. Here again each is relative to the other, and nothing is absolute. So each man must strive in both spheres to attain the absolute.

Pat: As I see it, man may never attain the absolute.

Gerry: That may be true, but as long as each man strives for the absolute, all men will benefit. It is the striving that is important.

Pat: Aye, there's the rub. Not all men strive for the absolute.

Gerry: The reason that all men do not strive for the absolute is that some men do not understand the relativity of the expression and suppression of their own noble aspects. Some men falsely believe that they can ignore some of these aspects and cultivate others. They do not realize the best of these aspects is no better than the worst of them. And so we are back where we started from.

Pat: It seems that each man must be educated in such a way that he will understand himself not only as he is, but as he should be. Only then will he be able to become educated in such a way that he will understand his fellowmen as they are and as they should be. It appears, then, that ignorance is the only unpardonable sin, for without ignorance the other sins could not exist, according to this philosophy.

Me: There go the bells. Let's go to class and get some of that education.

tender, tragic story of a white man and a black man locked in the grim-mest of human emotions. Beyond the intense and insoluble personal tragedy is the story of the beautiful and tragic land of South Africa.

The hero of the novel and of this play is an old, humble Zulu person from the hills above Ixopo in South Africa. He sets out for Johannesburg in search of his only son. Finally he finds the boy in prison, the murderer of a white man who had devoted his life to the betterment of conditions for the black race.

In the scenes between the native father of the murderer and the English father of the murdered, the story reaches a height of tragedy seldom equalled in contemporary fiction. It is more than a story, it is a profound experience of the human spirit.

Many who have read the novel will want to see it come alive in the skilled hands of The Bishop's Company.

H. P. C. Inaugurates Cross-Country Track Team With Meet At Pfeiffer

Dean and Vert
Cross-Country Runners

Vert, Dean Star

On October 23, the High Point College Cross-Country Track Team will hold its first meet with a strong Pfeiffer College team at Pfeiffer. In accordance with the rapid development of the college athletic program, Dr. Gil Hertz has organized a new cross-country team which will hold its initial meet against Pfeiffer. On November 4, at 3:30 p.m., the High Point Thinslads will be host to Pfeiffer on the Blair Park Golf Course for another cross-country track meet.

Mickey Dean and Dick Vert, two stalwarts of last year's track team but inexperienced in cross-country running, are supposed to lead the Panthers over the three and one-half mile grind. Dean is the 1958 North State Conference half-mile Champion, and Vert last year led the Panthers in the one and the two-mile events. Supporting these two are Tommy Hanner, Pete Sturm, Jerry Webster, Zane Daniels, Don Simmons, and Willard Formyduval, the latter known for his cross-country antics in tracking down bears.

Dr. Hertz has stated that this Fall inter-collegiate sport will be mainly used as a conditioner for the Spring Track Team, but if the team is successful in its first two competitive efforts, they will enter the four and one-half mile State Cross-Country meet which is open to all schools in the state, being held at Raleigh on November 10.—S. H. P. C. Athletic Department Adds Hood To Staff

Miss Nancy Hood, who is originally from Knoxville, Tennessee, is the new instructor of physical education for women at High Point College. Miss Hood graduated from the University of Tennessee with a B.S. degree in 1956 and received a masters degree in August of 1958. When asked what she has done since receiving her masters degree, she replied, "I finished in August and slept until school started."

As for future plans, she said that she planned to teach physical education as long as she is physically able, which she estimated as one more year. During this year she plans to begin an extensive sports program for women's intramurals. This program will include basketball, volleyball, softball, badminton, singles and doubles, tennis singles and doubles, ping-pong, and track. She seems to feel that good publicity will be very valuable in making this program a success.

In the summers Miss Hood has been working as waterfront director in a Girl Scout camp and hopes to work her way up to the position of camp director. Her main desire is that the camp she directs be in or near the mountains.

Pat Hester commended Miss Hood by volunteering, "She is doing a good job and is very conscientious in her work." Everyone seems to feel that she will realize her aim of instilling a strong women's intramural program. Miss Nancy Hood is a welcome addition to the Faculty of High Point College.—C. L.

WORLD SERIES!

Well, the Yankees have done it again! Making the biggest comeback in the World Series in over thirty years, the New York Yankees have again become the World's Champions, making a complete hoax of my prediction last Spring. I picked the San Francisco Giants to beat the Yanks in the World Series.

The Yankee heroes are too numerous to count, but such men as Gil McDougal, Bill Skowron, Elston Howard, and Mickey Mantle stood out. However, I would say that as much credit should go to "Bullet" Bob Turley as to anyone. It was Turley along with fireballing Rhyne Duren who silenced the big bats of the Milwaukee Braves.

Yankee manager Casey Stengel now says that he believes the Yanks could do pretty well in the National League. This remark came as a result of a remark made by pitcher Lew Burdette of the Milwaukee Braves. At the close of the regular season, Burdette, famed Yankee killer of the '57 World Series, made the statement that he didn't believe that New York would do so well were they in the National League.

The biggest flop of the World Series? Whitey Ford, New York pitcher who failed to complete a game in the Series after having won over twenty games in regular play, is rated as the biggest flop of the Series. Tony Kubek, also of the Yankees, because of his offensive play rates a close second to Ford. Standing out for the Braves was little Warren Spahn who pitched his heart out trying to beat the Yankees.

PICTURE OF A CHAMPION!

Intramural champion for the 1957-58 school year was the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity. Last year the Pikas took first place in basketball and softball along with several minor sports to walk off with the intramural championship. With such boys as Phil Crockett, Dale Swearingen, and Luke Livingston, the Pikas managed to do very well in each division of the intramural program. The organization giving the Pikas the most competition last year was the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity which placed second in the total number of points.

THIS YEAR!

The race for the intramural championship this year promises to be close and hotly contested. With such men as Dale Swearingen, Bill Tyson, Murphy Osbourne, and John Lewis having graduated, many of the fraternities are having to do a lot of rebuilding. Tau Kappa Epsilon, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Pi Kappa Alpha, and Lambda Chi Alpha offer the best prospects with the possibility of a strong contender in Kappa Chi.

In football this year the Tekes and Lambda Chis are the pre-season favorites to finish on top of the heap. Had last year's strong independent team, the Bulldozers, entered a team this year, it might have been rated as a three way race. Lambda Chi, last year's co-champions with the Bulldozers, again offers a strong team, but Teke has come up with a big and tough line. Surprisingly this year's freshman team seems to be well organized and may give some of the favorites a tough fight. Also, Kappa Chi seems to be doing pretty well as of now.

Intramural Football Begins With A Bang

The intramural football season got off to a roaring start last week with six games being played. Last year's co-champion, Lambda Chi Alpha, won two games as did Kappa Chi, the campus religious fraternity. Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity and the Freshmen have played only one game with both teams coming out on the long end of the score. Delta Sigma Phi, Theta Chi, Sigma Phi Epsilon, and Pi Kappa Alpha have all lost one and two games.

The intramural season will last until the middle of the first week in November. Games are played on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays with two games going each day. Although two teams have been picked as pre-season favorites, the season is far from over and it promises to be one of the most interesting ones in recent years.

HUDGINS REPORTS ON SCANDANAVIAN CARAVAN

by BILLIE PAISLEY

From June through August Dr. Walter Hudgins toured with the Scandanavian Caravaners through Germany, Switzerland, Italy, France, England, Finland, Sweden, Denmark, and Norway. In each place Dr. Hudgins lived with the families of that country and sharing in the customs, such as breakfasting on eels, cucumbers, and goat cheese.

Dr. and Mrs. Raymond Smith were counsellors for the group of ten. With the exception of one junior from Davidson College, all were college graduates. Each person represented a different field of work, such as business, religion, nursing, children's work, and drama.

Dr. Hudgins feels that the people were best reached through music. The group organized a choir. However, Dr. Hudgins was only permitted to do the "boom-da's" in such songs as "Sarasponda." The type of song best liked and most requested by the people were our Negro spirituals.

Less than one per cent of the population of these countries belong to the Methodist Church. These Methodists are very radical and are looked upon as a sect. Due to the influence of the American Caravans they have, in part, broken out of their mold. The Western North Carolina Conference is now helping to build youth camps in Norway. Previously camps were thought to be heathen.

Dr. Hudgins stated: "I wish each student could have the experiences of the trip. It not only serves as a broadening of the perspective but also as a deepening of Christian commitment. I shall be pleased to talk to anyone about the possibilities of participating in the Scandanavian Caravan."

Baptist Students Charter Buses For Crusade

The Baptist Student Union is sponsoring a trip, which is open to all students on campus, to attend the Billy Graham Crusade in Charlotte.

After calling the Charlotte office, we were informed that only general admission tickets were available, through October 19. Because of the great response by the students to attend the Crusade, it has been decided to plan our trip for October 23. Having been assured of the extension of the Crusade, we are making reservations, therefore assuring seats for everyone.

Four buses have been chartered with a sufficient number of faculty members sponsoring each one. All girls living on campus have special late permission to attend the crusade.

The fee of two dollars covers the trip to and from Charlotte. There is no admission charge. There will be some B&U member in the foyer of Robert's Hall everyday at 10:30 beginning October 17 through October 20 to collect your money and issue tickets. The deadline for payment is October 20.

If you have made reservations and find you cannot attend, or have any questions concerning the trip, please contact Kathy Traywick or Bob Williams.

Featherstone Finds HPC Friendly

"Have suitcase, will travel" is the motto of several students at HPC. One of these students is Norma Featherstone who came all the way from Honolulu. She has the distinction of being the student who came the farthest distance.

Norma was born on a trip while her parents, who were then living in Pennsylvania, were visiting her grandmother in Old Forge, West Virginia. Since then she has lived in North Carolina, Virginia, California and Texas. Her father's occupation is the cause of her frequent moves. He is a free-lance commercial artist. Her mother, incidentally, is a nurse.

The decision to come to HPC was made by Norma. This 17-year-old freshman chose this school because she was looking for a small college in this area and she felt it met most of the qualifications she desired. Norma feels that "High Point is as friendly as Hawaii."

Norma will probably spend four years in this country and then return to Hawaii, or wherever her parents are living at that time. This is definitely a stone that will gather no moss!

Constitution Gets Student Body Vote

Without a dissenting vote, the new revision of the Student Government Association Constitution was unanimously accepted by the Student Body in a business meeting at assembly on Wednesday Fred Barber, Student Government president, presided over the meeting. The motion that the revision be accepted was made by Charles Johnson. There was no discussion on the motion.

The new constitution was approved by the Student Legislature on October 21, after a few technical changes had been made which the Legislature deemed necessary for an effective government. The major change made by the Legislature was the deleting of section F of Article VII, which allowed for the fining of an absent member from a legislative session. The delegation thought that this should be included in the By-Laws of the separate houses rather than in the Student Government Constitution.

The two primary changes under the newly approved Constitution include a revision of the Executive Committee, to which will be added the Day Student President and the presidents of Woman's Hall and McCulloch Hall; and a bi-cameral legislature.

Within the next two weeks each of the four classes will elect three representatives to the Student Senate. The Senate will be composed of twelve senators and the vice-president of the Student Government Association, who will automatically serve as President of the Senate. Those persons who are now members of the Student Legislature may be elected to the Senate, but new representatives must be chosen to replace them in the old Student Legislature, which will now be known as the Student House of Representatives.

Another change in the new constitution concerns the election of officers. Nomination for candidates for the offices of the Executive Council now have to be signed by one hundred persons. It is assumed that this change will lead to the formation of political parties.

Plans for the new constitution began last March during sessions of the High Point College Student Congress, with a bill presented for the junior class and Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity by Fred Barber and C. W.

Faulkner. From its acceptance in the Student Congress, the bill was included in the new constitution, and other changes were made by the Student Government Constitutional Committee.

MSF Presents Original Play

An original drama, "The Church on Trial," was presented at the regular meeting of the Methodist Student Fellowship held Oct. 31, at First Methodist Church.

The drama, written by Patt Olmsted, Elmer Hall, Harold Wright, and Walt Hudgins, portrays a courtroom scene in which Communism, Intellectualism, Secularism, Nationalism and a disillusioned Christian charge the Church with various crimes and faults. The portrayal ends as the silent Church is pronounced guilty as charged.

"The Church on Trial," was the initial step in a series of programs on the life and mission of the Church. The study will culminate at the annual fall retreat to be held at Camp Betty Hastings, Oct. 8 and 9. At the retreat, the Methodist group will evaluate the effectiveness of the present Church and seek to determine the role that the church should be filling in the mid-twentieth century.

All interested students are invited to take part in the retreat. Cars will leave from Roberts Hall on Saturday and will return in time for Sunday dinner. Persons planning to attend must sign the chart posted in the High Point College cafeteria.

Across The Desk

COMMENT ON PLEDGING

In a few days many men will be making decisions to join one of the six campus social fraternities. One who is contemplating entering Greekdom should seriously ask himself a few questions. Do you understand and accept the principles for which the fraternity stands? Are the brothers the kind of persons with whom you desire to develop deep and lasting ties? Are you willing to accept the responsibilities as well as the privileges imposed by fraternity life?

If you seriously ask and answer these questions and if your answer is affirmative, then you are ready to pledge. If not, for your own sake and the fraternity's, you had best wait.

As you wear the Pledge Pin of your own choosing, remember that it is more than a piece of metal with a splash of paint on it. Your Pin symbolizes your acceptance into one of the great traditions of American collegiate life. Wear this symbol with a feeling of pride and humility realizing the great responsibility it places upon your shoulders. The Brothers thought enough of you with your human weaknesses to extend an invitation to you to join them in a job which will not prove easy.

Your goal is to show loyalty to the cause which unifies them and at the same time to continue successfully in this academic community.

SING HO FOR SERENITY

Sing ho for the life of the modern collegian! There is something wonderfully serene in the attitude he assumes during those four years spent in the security of the ivied halls. Something that is really gratifying.

In the face of world-wide strife, our student has somehow attained an inner peace. While Arabs are carving their initials in each other and Governor Faubus is making a fool of himself, the student's soul is at rest.

"The world isn't really starving to death, you know; we're sending them money. I wonder how money tastes—American money that is washed down with jet fuel or something."

He sounds apathetic, doesn't he? He really isn't though. He has places to go and people to see, big problems to solve. Like what's the easiest way to get a three point? Or who is the best date in the freshman class? Or like how can I get a permanent chapel excuse?

But he'll solve 'em, these big problems. And even if he doesn't he can survive, because his soul is at peace. In the face of any dilemma, if his own hide isn't in jeopardy, he will sit leisurely on his ivy league buckle and say, "So what! tomorrow's Christmas."

Perhaps we should publish a commemorative stamp, praising this collegian. We shall have his picture on it, and beneath the picture we shall inscribe, "What, me worry?"

"Sing Ho for Serenity!"

A RAY OF HOPE

Today as the United Nations stands at the crossroads on its thirteenth birthday, it holds high a symbol which countless millions the world over are anxiously seeking, the symbol is hope.

Despite its many critics the U.N. can look back over the last decade to a proud and useful history. In an age of rampant nationalism and political intrigue, this organization exemplifies the truth that men can exist together under a representative government dedicated to the ideal that under law the world can be ordered.

As science shrinks our world and, indeed, our whole universe, nations of the world are forced to face up to the choice of the future—co-existence or co-nonexistence. To the peoples and nations of the world the U.N. continually holds out the hope that all man everywhere can realize in this age the prophecy of Isaiah: "And they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks, nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war anymore." May this hope become reality.

Enjoy yourself, it's later than you think!

ON CAMPUS

This was the big day. Low grey clouds shrouded the campus in an atmosphere of gloom, and a fine mist added a sharp edge to the cool November air. Small puddles of muddy water formed vague mirrors on the sidewalks. Rain-drenched leaves huddled in the corners of the brick buildings to evade the chilling wind.

The tall, lean student turned up the collar of his coat and paused to light a cigarette. He carried a textbook under his arm, and a small white tag on his coat advertised his name and the fact that he was a rushee. He descended the steps of Roberts Hall, hands plunged into his pockets, and walked to his dormitory room.

The student's classes were over for the day. All morning he had mechanically gone from class to class, and idly gazed into space during lectures. Studies were of little significance. This was an important day.

The student opened the door to his room and placed his book on the bed. He removed his coat, wiped the raindrops from his face, and stood staring from the room window. He inhaled a long puff from his cigarette and sighed in contemplation. Suddenly he reached into his pockets and pulled out several small white envelopes. One by one he opened them and read the attractively printed cards each contained. Methodically he replaced each of the cards in its envelope, and then sat down at his desk. Arranging the closed envelopes in a semi-circle on the desk top, he carefully studied them while absent-mindedly chewing at his fingernails.

The student thought back over the past weeks and remembered the many friends he had made. How would they feel when he made his decision? He knew that many of them would be disappointed. But would they all still be his friends? The student knew that things would never be the same. He knew that he must make a decision, and that his decision lay in the little white envelope on his desk.

Once again the student took the cards from the envelopes. He studied the names printed on each of the cards. What did the names represent? Not only was the student choosing a circle of friends, but he also knew that he was choosing a set of group ideals that would influence his life.

Suddenly the student picked up his pen and began marking the cards. He then put them back in their envelopes and left his room. His decision was made. He knew that he could only do what he thought was best, and choose that which seemed most important to him.

The student walked through the fine mist and small puddles of muddy water. A strange satisfaction and relief seemed to surge inside him, and he was happy. He had made his decision, and he was ready to turn in his bids.

Letters To The Editor

TO THE FACULTY, STAFF, STUDENTS, AND BOARD OF TRUSTEES:

The article "College President on a Tightrope" which appeared in the October 1958 issue of College and University Business, is to true that I want to share the following boxed insert from the article titled "The College President has a Great Life."

If he's under 45, he's considered impulsive and autocratic. If he's over 45, he's smug and lazy.

If he leaves a college in less than 10 years, he's a quitter. If he stays longer than 10 years, he doesn't know when new leadership is needed.

If he approves the expulsion of a student, he is an "old fogey" and "no friend of modern youth." If he disapproves the expulsion of a student, he encourages immorality and lawlessness.

If he spends much time at his desk, he ought to be out learning what's going on. If he spends much time out of his office, he ought to be at his desk attending to his job.

If he obtains a million dollars for a woman's dormitory, he is incompetent because the college has greater need for a men's dormitory. If he gets a million dollars for a men's dormitory, he should be fired because everyone knows that the housing of women is more important than the housing of men.

If he approves the purchase of band instruments, he is unfit because the science department needs microscopes. If he approves the buying of microscopes, it is obvious he cares nothing for the arts.

If he recommends promotion of Professor Jones to the rank of full professor, he clearly hates Professor Smith, who was merely elevated to the rank of associate professor.

If he writes for publication, he is stealing time from his duties. If he does not write for publication, he is no scholar and is failing in public relations.

If he accepts invitations to speak off-campus, he ought to spend more time on the campus. If he does not make speeches, he is insensitive to public relations and, besides, he's no good at public speaking.

If he takes a stand on a controversial matter, he is tactless. If he does not take a stand on a controversial matter, he is a coward.

If he talks much with his board members, he is an apple-polisher. If he seldom sees his board members, he is too independent.

If he is a bachelor, he ought to be married. If he is married, his wife doesn't know her place.

If his wife takes any part in the life of the college, she is butting in. If she is not active on the campus, she isn't doing her duty.

Sincerely yours,
Dennis H. Cooke

TOO MANY ORGANIZATIONS

Dear Editor,

We have on our campus an organization for every possible activity that a college community would be interested in. There are actually too many groups and clubs at High Point. If a person were to spend time meeting with each one of these groups in which he has interest, there would not be time for anything else.

I believe that some of these organizations could be combined to serve a dual purpose and to work on larger projects without losing any social opportunities. Also, there are so many different times involved that it is almost impossible to find any hour that is not taken up for one person or another by committees or meetings. These meetings often conflict with other groups.

Bill Baker

THAT $50,000 ORGAN

Dear Editor,

I think it is wonderful that the Western North Carolina Conference of the Methodist Church has begun a great campaign to raise three million dollars to aid their colleges. High Point College will benefit by this drive to the tune of $850,000. This college certainly needs new buildings and other improvements.

But I am still trying to understand why this college has asked the churches to give them $50,000 dollars for a pipe organ for the auditorium. Can't you just see the effect of this! High Point will be known as the school with the $50,000 pipe organ and students will come here because the school has a $50,000 pipe organ that will be played about once or twice a week.

I believe that the $50,000 could be better used by the school. This money could build a chapel, or increase the weak scholarship fund, or buy more books for the library. How long has a pipe organ been necessary for a good college program when more important things are needed?

I hope that we will wake up to the foolishness of asking hard pressed churches to give their money for something that is not really needed. If we do not wake up, I am afraid that many church members will.

Introducing 1958-59 Panthers

Purple Panthers

Sewell, Afendis, Beauchot To Star; Williams Is Big Question Mark

Preparations for the 1958-59 basketball season have begun on the High Point campus. The Purple Panthers opened practices about two weeks ago with thirty-five men turning out for the initial practice. Coach Virgil Yow, beginning his fifth year as the Panthers' head coach, greeted Danny Sewell, Maury Beauchot, Steve Afendis, and Ken Williams as the only four returning lettermen. Last year's edition of the Panthers was hit hard by graduation.

The nucleus of the 1958-59 team will probably be comprised of Sewell, Beauchot, Afendis, and Williams. Sewell, who was the leading scorer in the North State Conference last year and who was also selected as a member of the All-State team, was injured near the close of the season last year but has gotten his knee back into shape and seems to be in for another big season. If the Panthers are to stay in the first division this year, Coach Yow is going to have to lean heavily on Sewell, the six-foot-five-inch Junior from Kokomo, Indiana. Another bright spot for the Purple Panthers is the return of Beauchot and Afendis, two All-Tournament selections of last year's "cinderella" North State Tournament team which, to the surprise of everyone, took second place in the tournament. There are a lot of ifs in High Point's prospects for the coming hardwood season, and Ken Williams is one of the biggest. "Ken Williams can make or break this year's team," stated Coach Yow in a personal interview. If Williams uses his height to the greatest advantage, and plays the type of ball he is capable of playing, High Point may be hard to handle.

Another big "if" that will have a great deal to do with how the Panthers shape up this year, is how well either incoming freshmen or last year's reserves fill the reliable shoes of Bill Huegele, Bobby Pharr, Bobby Dunbar, and other now departed seniors. Among the new men who have shown much promise are Jo Guzinski, 6' 2", of Scranton, Pennsylvania; Zane Daniel, 5' 8", of Rutledge, Tennessee; Chalmous Sechrest, 6' 2", of Fair Grove, N. Carolina; and Wolfe Unger, 6' 4", of Spring Valley, N. Carolina. Up from last year's junior varsity team is Jack Short, Tommy Skidmore, and William Formyduval. Short, the sharp-shooting speedster from Williams, Indiana, should be a great asset to the team this year, and is a likely candidate for one of the starting guard positions.

All of the above mentioned freshmen were stars in their respective high schools and should be a big lift to the team. Joining the squad at mid-semester will be Wayne Cheek, the 6' 6" transfer student from the University of Richmond, who should give the Panthers some much needed backboard strength. Other men who may break into the starting lineup before the season ends are Jerry Webster, Ken Samuels, Ralph Roach, and George Srour. With only four veterans back, it looks as if Coach Yow will have a terrific job of rebuilding if he is to get his team into contention for the coveted North State Conference championship.

High Point Takes Pfeiffer College In Initial Meet

High Point College's newly formed cross-country track team won its initial meet against Pfeiffer College on October 23, by sweeping four of the first five places. Although the Panthers were running only four men in the meet, they still managed to completely overwhelm Pfeiffer. Mick Dean led High Point by taking first place in the meet. Following Dean were Dick Vert in second place, Don Simmons in third place, and Willard Formyduval in fifth place. The fine showing was a fitting inaugural to a new sport at High Point.

For its second test, the Panther Thincads will again tackle Pfeiffer on November 4. This will be a return match and should prove to be very interesting. At their next meeting High Point will probably have more men running. Also, Pfeiffer will probably be in better shape so they may possibly get a revenge win. At this time there are no other meets scheduled for the team, for it was not known at the beginning of the year how cross-country would shape up. The meet with Pfeiffer will be held at the Blair Park Golf Course.

A HI-PO OPINION POLL

HPC Co-Eds Discuss New Bookstore Rule

by JFAN RIDGE

Will it help or won't it? Is it good or will it hinder and bring about more problems? These questions, directed toward the new "bookstore rule", have been discussed and re-discussed by the co-eds of HPC.

This new rule forbids boys to come to the girls' dormitories from 9:15 p.m. until 9:45 p.m., unless the girls have date privileges.

The principal reason for this was to cut down confusion and disturbances each week-day night at this time. Another reason was that some co-eds couldn't follow the rules which were made for this brief intermission, and went into "off-limits" territory. If the new ruling is not complied with, there will be no future bookstore privileges at night.

Many opinions and views have been expressed on the matter. Here is the way some of the girls in North Hall feel about it.

Nancy Gillespie: I don't like it. Boys should be allowed to come over if they can observe the rules.

Judy Fisher: It certainly has cut down noise and confusion.

Pat Ray: I think it's good. The girls who are always in the midst of their studying aren't interrupted unless they knew ahead of time that a boy was coming. There has been no harm done as far as I can see.

Karen Combs: I think it's utterly ridiculous! What harm is thirty little minutes? Nobody studies during this time anyway.

Phyllis Minter: I'm definitely opposed. For three years I've been going to the bookstore at 9:15 and boys have been coming over then and it has never affected anybody. The girls need this break! We're old enough to know right from wrong and to follow rules and regulations. There is going to be even more confusion if this time is taken away.

Lillian Bullock: It's good to have the boys come over, even though the time is short. I would hate to see the half-hour taken away, because we need it, but I also hate to see it taken advantage of.

SCC Holds Retreat

On Thursday afternoon, Oct. 16, the Student Christian Council held its fall retreat at Spring Hill Methodist Church. The business session came to a close after discussion on two important recommendations:

Concern over the growing number, and the conflicts of meetings, of religious organizations on the campus prompted the council to ask the representatives from each of these organizations, except Kappa Chi and Alpha Delta Theta, to recommend that their group have only one meeting a month.

Also, concerned about the situation of a few people carrying all the load of responsibility and offices lead to the appointment of a committee of the Student Legislature representatives from the various denominational organizations to recommend to the Legislature that the present point system for officers be revised and enforced.

The vesper committee chairman reported a definite increase in attendance at Sunday evening vespers.

So far, $216.06 of the $700 goal for Kim and Bak has been donated.

Julie, a 17-year-old freshman from Knoxville, Tenn., sang "Young and Foolish" in the talent division. She has had a year and a half in voice instructions but does not plan a career in music. Julie, an Alpha Gamma Delta pledge, is majoring in elementary education.

The contestants were graded on beauty, poise, and talent by the judges, Mr. Holt McPherson, Mrs. N. H. Chiles, and the Rev. Haggai. Entertainment was provided by the Garnets Quartet, the Clubmen Combo, and Miss Evans.

Fred Barber, president of the SGA, has called a joint session of the Student Legislature for Nov. 25, at 6 p.m. in room 21 of Roberts Hall. At this business meeting the representatives and senators will outline legislation for the current semester, and begin plans for a code of law to be used by the Judiciary Council.

At present there is only one written law, that concerning the wearing of beanies. This year's legislation will formulate definite laws and determine the possible punishment for infractions thereof.

Following the joint session, the House and Senate will meet separately in order to elect officers. Don Drapeau, present presider pro tem, will preside over the house for the elections.

The vice-president of the SGA, currently Charles Johnson, is automatically president of the Senate. Thanksgiving Day = 1958

A PROCLAMATION

By the President of the United States

At this season of the year we are reminded that the course of nature has brought us once again from the time of planting to the time of harvest, and we turn to Almighty God with heartfelt thanksgiving for His enduring providence.

We are grateful for the plentiful yield of our soil and for the blessings of food and clothing and shelter that have succored us throughout the year. We rejoice in the beauty of our land; in every brave and generous act of our fellow man; and in the counsel and comfort of our friends. We deeply appreciate the preservation of those ideals of liberty and justice which form the basis of our national life and the hope of international peace. For these and all the many spiritual and temporal benefactions betokening God's goodness, we offer up our prayers of gratitude.

Let us be especially grateful for the religious heritage bequeathed us by our forebears as exemplified by the Pilgrims, who, after the gathering of their first harvest, set apart a special day for rendering thanks to God for the bounties vouchsafed to them.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER, President of the United States of America, in consonance with the joint resolution of Congress approved December 26, 1941, designating the fourth Thursday of November of each year as Thanksgiving Day, do hereby proclaim Thursday, November 27, 1958, as a day of national thanksgiving. On that day let us, in our homes and in our accustomed places of worship, give due expression of our thanks for the blessings which have signalized our lot as a Nation, and let us ask for guidance in our striving for a better world for all men.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Seal of the United States of America to be affixed.

DONE at the City of Washington this thirty-first day of October in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and fifty-eight, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and eighty-third.

UNC Takes Stand On Integration

CHAPEL HILL — The Student Legislature of the University of North Carolina recently adopted a bill "stating their opposition to discriminatory clauses and expressing their opposition to admitting any organization into the University in the future which has clauses discriminating on the basis of race, creed or color."

The vote on the bill was 21-16. The bill amends a resolution concerning the adoption of the National Student association's declaration on student responsibility and rights.

Student Body President Don Furtado commended the Student Legislature for its action concerning the bill. "I am quite sure that the Legislature will come under quite a bit of criticism for its action, but however, I feel it should be congratulated for its courage and willingness to state its opposition to discrimination within the student community."

Pointing out that UNC has always been a leader in the South academically and otherwise, he went on to say, "the admission of Negro students to the University has come painlessly and without reaction on the part of the students."

"Regardless of their personal views on the issue of segregation, the students, the faculty and the administration of the University have recognized their obligation to the laws of the nation and have, therefore, realistically met their obligations," he continued.

"I believe that this stand on the part of the official policy making body of the students is indicative of its maturity and responsibility," Furtado concluded.

PLEASE PASS ZHIVAGO

Almost without exception collegiate newspapers have given note and comment to the awarding of the 1958 Nobel Prize in Literature to Boris Pasternak for the controversial novel, "Dr. Zhivago," and to the Moscow-Nobel melodrama which followed. The HI-PO decided to join the Pasternak bandwagon hoping that some curious reader might be moved to encounter "Dr. Zhivago" in Wrenn Memorial.

Since the philosophy that created the novel is discussed elsewhere in this issue, we will make note only of the recent episodes accompanying the Nobel award.

Both America and Russia have made much of the "political implications" of the award. It has been a lively spectacle. Earlier episodes have been: Pasternak's statement that he was "immensely thankful, touched, proud, astonished, abashed," on receiving news of the honor; the proclamation that Pasternak is "the greatest poet living today" by the American press; Moscow's declaration that the award was a "hostile political act"; Pasternak's being declared a traitor and expelled from the Soviet Writer's Union; the awarding of the Nobel Prize in Physics to three Russian scientists; and the resulting organized expression of joy and satisfaction in the USSR that Soviet science should be thus recognized.

This deliciously confused plot grows more tangled each day. What will the Kremlin do now? Shall it send its triumphant scientists to receive the same medal that was awarded treacherous Pasternak? If Pasternak is allowed to accept his award will Moscow continue to tell its public that his novel is too offensive for Soviet distribution? In either event Moscow's face will be red.

Pasternak has opened a breach in the mind of Russia. He has sent a book against the walls of Jericho. Perhaps it can do what our bombs and diplomats cannot.—E.O.H.

THE INTANGIBLES

One phase of education that suffers a dire lack of emphasis and consideration on our campus is that facet of college life commonly referred to as a "broad" education, or those things not often obtained in the assimilation of facts from courses dealing in professional preparation. In this category we might place such intangible items as human understanding, cultural growth, and a comprehension of contemporary problems.

Despite the fact that most HPC graduates are adequately prepared in the mechanics and technical aspects of performing a job, this does not guarantee that these students are "educated," if the term be used in its broadest sense.

Understanding the society we live in, and appreciating the culture we have inherited, involves more than the retention of facts from dusty textbooks, and are too often disregarded and ignored in a college environment.

As students, we should learn to think, understand and appreciate, so that we might guard against our college's becoming a mass-producer of "clods."—F.R.B.

Letters To The Editor

A SUCCESSFUL PRODUCTION

Dear Editor:

Congratulations to Mell Busbin, members of the Zenith staff, the contestants, and all those who had any part in making the Miss HPC Contest the tremendous success that it was. From beginning to end it was a production that any college would be proud of. The entire program was well organized, publicized, and carried on. The talents displayed by the contestants showed that the girls had put a great deal of originality, time, and thought into their numbers. I feel that this program, which was well supported by students, faculty, and local citizens of High Point, was a credit to the school and one which we can proudly say was produced by the students—Sylvia S. Nicks.

From The Top Of The Tower

by CHARLES JOHNSON

"From Room 203 in the Hospital"

Lying there in the bed with a cast from my right toes to my right hip, I had a lot of time to think about many things. I was very pleased to see Gerald Fitzpatrick and Latic Fitzgerald come sneaking into my room before visiting hours. There was one thing that I particularly wanted to discuss with them.

After we had exchanged the usual hospital amenities, I said, "I understand that Suit hurt his leg after I left the game."

"He had a bad cramp," said Gerry, "but it wasn't as serious as your injury."

"Yes," said Pat, "but it could have been."

"I know," I said, "and then Dan Smith broke his arm pretty badly. Dan didn't have any insurance to cover his accident. Fortunately I do."

"Doesn't the school have a policy to cover injuries received during intramural ball games?" asked Pat.

"According to Dan the school will not be held responsible for accidents occurring during intramural games," Gerry said.

"Well, the varsity players have insurance through the school," Pat said. "Also, I understand that chemistry majors have a policy made available to them. Why couldn't school extend one of these policies to cover intramural sports. After all the intramural program is sponsored by the athletic department."

"That may well be," said Gerry, "but the school doesn't sponsor the individual teams. They do sanction them, however, and should be at least partially responsible for accidents incurred by their members."

Pat said, "Perhaps the school and the organizations sponsoring teams could get together and support an insurance policy to cover intramural participants."

"That sounds like a winner," I said. "The school could put up a third of the money, and the organization sponsoring teams could put up the other two thirds. The policy could be purchased through the athletic department."

Culture Corner

Although, as everyone knows, South Carolina's Charlestonians speak perfect English, residents of many other sections of the United States unfortunately do not. Ironically, these sloppy talkers from elsewhere complain sometimes that they cannot understand the pure and clear accents of our neighbors to the south and east.

To remedy this deplorable situation we offer important examples from "Lord Ashley Cooper's Dictionary of Charlestonese."

AIR—What you hear with, i.e., "Friends, Romans, countrymen, lend me your ears."

BECKON—Meat from a pig, often eaten with a-igs for brake-fuss.

BONE—Blessed event, i.e., "I was bone a Charlestonian." (A very blessed event, in the minds of all Charlestonians.)

BUM—An instrument of destruction, as the H-Bum.

CALLER—Part of a shirt that goes around the neck.

CANE CHEW—Aren't you able to, "Cane chew talk like a good Charlestonian?"

COAT—Where they got that jedge an' all, i.e., "Stannup for hizzoner, coat's in session."

FRUSTRATE—Tops; initial ranking.

HAIR—At this place, LACK—Enjoy, i.e., "I lack fried chicken."

MINUET—You and I have dined.

POET—To transfer a liquid, i.e., "Poet from the pitcher to the glass."

PRE-SHADE—Grateful for, i.e., "I pre-shade the compliment."

RAH CHAIR—Where you are at.

RUM—An enclosed space within a building.

SEX—One less than seven, two less than eight, three less than nine, four less than ten.

TIN SIN STOW—The foive and doyme.

WRETCHED—The long name for the nickname "Dick."

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

On The Pasternak Award

In the fury of political propaganda set off by the award of the Nobel Prize for Literature there is serious danger that the nature of Boris Pasternak and his work may be cast into the shadow.

What the Nobel committee has done is to pay homage to the individual as opposed to the mob. It has honored not only a literary talent but a philosophy of life and a life lived according to that philosophy.

The official Soviet detractors have said that in "Dr. Zhivago" Pasternak has betrayed the Bolshevik Revolution and provided his country's enemies with a useful weapon. Such rubbishy talk merely betrays how little these men understand what Pasternak is about.

It is true that he rejects "the modern coddling and worshiping of man," holding that such systems are based on a false premise and "pathetically amateurish." He has little faith in current practices of social betterment in Russia, but he concedes that there have been "wonderful, unforgettable" achievements in the care of workers, the protection of mothers, and the curbing of the money power. Of the Revolution itself and of Lenin, Pasternak speaks in terms of awe. His attack is against the miscarriage of the Revolution, against the "fanatical men of action with their one-track minds" who fill the world with fanaticism which "is worshiped for decades, thereafter for centuries." And he is repelled by the "revolutionary madness"—the mass guilt feeling which produced a compulsive desire to confess—even to confess false crimes.

Even these profound caveats are secondary, however, to the basic conflict between Pasternak and the order in which he finds himself. This conflict has to do with the nature of life and of living, of the relationship between the individual and society.

"Man," says Pasternak, "is born to life, not to prepare for life. Life, itself, the phenomenon of life, the gift of life is so breathtakingly serious. So why substitute this childish harlequinade of immature fantasies, these schoolboy escapades?"

"When I hear people speak of reshaping life it makes me lose my self-control and I fall into despair," he says. "Reshaping life! People who can say that they have never understood a thing about life—they have never felt its breath, its heartbeat, however much they may have seen or done. They look on it as a lump of raw material that needs to be processed by them, to be ennobled by their touch. But life is never a material, a substance to be molded. . . . Life is constantly renewing and remaking and changing and transfiguring itself. . . ."

Thus, Pasternak takes his stand and sets himself apart from the modern tendency, not only the tendency of his own country but the tendency of conformist, materialist America. The Soviet propagandists who suppose that Pasternak has merely stripped from Communist life its veil of sham and hypocrisy have missed the mark entirely. Pasternak's indictment covers the Organization Man as well as the Party Man.

"The fashion," he writes, "nowadays is all for groups and societies of every sort. Gregariousness is always the refuge of mediocrities, whether they swear by Soloviev or Kant or Marx. Only individuals seek the truth."

This is the heart of Pasternak. His lovers are concerned with "the riddle of life, the riddle of death, the enchantment of genius, the enchantment of unadorned beauty" and not

ON CAMPUS

Outside the car a bright sun was beating down on the brown earth, spreading the meager warmth of a prolonged Indian Summer. It was one of those days that fill you with vigor and gaiety; a day when the carefree excitement of nature lures you away from the hum-drum routine of campus life. It was the kind of day you like to spend riding and relaxing and smiling to yourself.

The beauty of an autumn countryside gripped me with a sort of poetic understanding. I drove along thinking how much I loved everybody and everything. How could war and hate exist in such a beautiful world?

Soft lazy music flowed from the radio, and I laughed and made easy conversation with the other occupants of the car. We drove aimlessly over the countryside, looking at the easy rolling hills of farmland, and at tall trees fast shedding their leafy indications of life.

Suddenly my attention was directed to a large, skinny mongrel dog running by the side of the road. A farm hand dressed in faded denim overalls and high-topped shoes threw sharp-edged rocks in the dog's direction, and the mongrel yelped as the stones struck his bony legs and back.

The other passengers of the car observed the scene with a great deal of amusement, and laughed jovially at the dog's plight. I joined the group in empty laughter, but my spirits were inexplicably dampened, and the dog seemed to personify the world's unwanted, rejected and misunderstood. I tried to push the incident from my mind, and returned my attention to the beauty of the rolling hillsides and the tall trees.

As we drove back into the edge of town, I noticed a small and dirty boy playing in a thin layer of sand that covered the sidewalk. The boy had carefully built a network of highways in the sand, and was lost in the majesty of his engineering feat. The boy had just fit into place the last section of a popcycle-stick bridge, when an older boy on a large bike rode over the construction, leaving the highways and bridge in shambles. The older boy rode away laughing, and the small boy cried in disappointment and grief.

I lit a Winston and turned up the radio so that the car was filled with the melodious strains of "Rockin' Robin."

Ain't this a hell of a world?

A GUEST EDITORIAL

Whazzit with What's What

(A committee of faculty and students recently named 17 students to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. High Point was entitled to 18 selections and only 17 were named, which we consider a good sign. Who's Who should be the most coveted honor that the college can bestow to its students. We cannot resist reprinting this editorial which appeared in Wake Forest's Old Gold and Black under the title "Whazzit With What's What."—Ed.)

"The College has been fortunate this year," the professor said as he reached for his copy of the Student Directory. "What's What, the authority on student leaders everywhere, has granted us 18 paragraphs on its pages, two more than last fall. The increased number of our outstanding students, of course, is due to our increased enrollment."

There was a buzz of delight throughout the group. "How nice of them to recognize us like that," one former What's What nominee whispered to another. "In my undergraduate days we had only 10 leaders on the campus each year." In a few moments the group was hard at work. Its duty was to select the 18 What's What in American Colleges and Universities.

"Of course," the chairman began, "there are a few obvious choices. Our student body officers, the publications editors and our All-American candidates in basketball and football, for instance."

The committee had quite a bit of difficulty remembering the names of all these worthies, but soon the dozen or so "automatic" nominees had been listed.

Then one of the older committeemen fished out a copy of the Dean's List. "We mustn't forget the academic side of student leadership," he cautioned, and soon only 6 vacant lines remained on the blank furnished by the publishers of What's What.

Another committeeman was deep in thought. "And there is the religious side of student life," he began. "I believe at least 10 per cent of our nominees should be church workers." Everyone agreed on this point, but a rather heated discussion arose as to how they could determine the two most pious students on campus.

"What about social life?" A young professor was speaking. "I think my fraternity men ought to be well represented." This suggestion, also, was well received, and in no time the list was filled.

"I think we have a good selection," the chairman said. "But can you think of anyone we may have left out? It's safer to include a few students who may not deserve it than to leave out one who does, you know." He said the last sentence slowly, as if he wasn't really sure he was right.

No one could think of another outstanding student, so the list was approved. "We'll probably have to meet again after the grades are checked to make a few substitutions," the chairman concluded. "Those who don't have C averages don't get listed in the book."

"Yes," a committeeman added. "What's What demands only the best."

Prayer of Thanksgiving

God of the Mayflower, I give Thee thanks for pain that forces me back into harmony with the core of my being. I give thee thanks for the blight of failure that has burned out of me all thought of easy victory; for mistakes of chartered courses that have made me lose all faith in myself. I give Thee thanks for disillusionment, disappointment, and despair which serve to clear the myopia of my dull vision. I thank Thee for the bitter wildness of strong passion and the power it gives when under pressure and control; for my imperfection which gives me incentive to strive for perfection.

God of the Puritan and God of the slave, I give Thee thanks for my surrender to temptation and the appreciation it brings to my encounter with my fellowman; for the weaknesses and failings of my neighbors and the joy of saying I understand; for my present shortcomings, sorrows and loneliness that drive me to a deeper sympathy for those at sea with me; even for ingratitude and misunderstanding so that service can be given without other reward than self-expression and Thy divine forgiveness. I give Thee thanks for the death of Christ, for it is this that drives me to do better. We pray in His name.

with the small worries of practical life—things like the reshaping of the planet." They live in the imminent presence of death. Tragedy is their chaperon. Lonely they live and lonely die. But in their life they are complete in themselves. They expect nothing and they are not disappointed. It is out of this solitary contemplation that Pasternak has gathered the strength to fulfill, as he says, his duty as a writer, to bear witness as an artist, to write of the times through which he has lived.

Perhaps, as Pasternak suggest, it is only when "all customs and traditions, all our way of life, everything to do with home and order, has crumbled into dust in the general upheaval and reorganization of society," only after the whole "human way of life has been destroyed and ruined" that we finally perceive "the naked human soul stripped to the last shred."

Such is Pasternak's message to the world—to his own slick technocratic society. It is probably only in the fire and stress of forty desperate years that this brave, resonant philosophy could be forged. Once again to Russia we are indebted for revealing to us the triumph of man over the world in which he lives.—From The Saturday Review.

Library Records Progress

by HENRY ELLEN ATKINSON

We students of HPC, with all of our studies and extra-curricular activities, never stop to realize the importance of our library. Not only is it a good place to concentrate on our studies, but it is a very good source for needed reference. Did you know that our library contains 38,800 volumes? Each year, at least 3,000 more volumes are added.

The library has really grown over a period of only ten years. In 1948, there were only 15,000 volumes. Also in 1948, the circulation per year was 11,496 books, and in 1958, this number has increased to 24,721 per year.

Of the eleven colleges in North Carolina whose enrollment equals that of High Point College, our library is open more hours per week, and ranks highest in its number of circulating books.

Plans have been made and bids are being accepted for the adding of a new wing behind the library. This will not only double the seating capacity, but will increase the volume capacity to 100,00 volumes.

Backward Glances

(Carole Overby, while rummaging through old HI-PO's on a journalism assignment ran upon these items of HPC history.)

The HI-PO began as THE TORCH in 1925.

The PANTHERS were 1936 basketball champions; the tournament was held in High Point.

Wrenn Memorial Library was opened in 1936.

The first college band was organized in 1935.

Before the efforts of the seniors of 1936, HPC had no paved driveways.

In 1933 one could purchase a bacon, lettuce and tomato sandwich in town for ten cents.

311 students was a record crowd at the 1935 registration.

The college band has presented yearly concerts for 21 years.

Dr. Humphreys accomplished a magnificent feat in 1937. He balanced the school budget from student income.

The student center was opened in 1942.

Methodist Retreat Report

by DORIS TALLEY

On Saturday, November 8, 30 members of the MSF left for Camp Betty Hastings for their annual retreat, planned under the direction of Patt Olmsted. Reverend Bill Buckley, associate minister of Wesley Memorial Methodist Church, served as the speaker for the retreat.

After unpacking, building a log fire, and exploring the surroundings of the camp, everyone joined in playing a softball game. This prepared each person for a spaghetti supper prepared by Lloyd Gims and Pat Moore. Discussion groups, led by Wilbur Jackson, Pete Peterson and Patt Olmsted, followed Bill Buckley's talk related to the mission of the Church in our present world.

Folk games, led by Betty Gray Dorman and Don Drapeau, bridge, refreshments, talking around the hearth of an open fire, and a little sleep turned the night into morning. Everyone awoke frozen, but happy as they struggled to keep awake during breakfast.

More discussion groups followed the summarization by Bill Buckley. A worship service planned by Doris Talley closed the retreat.

COLLEGIATE OPINIONS

Just Who Is Joe College?

(ACP)—Who is today's student? What does he believe? Hardly a magazine remains which has not attempted some definition of Joe College: 1958.

Here a college journalist outlines his ideas of what the student is according to what he feels.

SILENCE VERSUS SAPATHY

And then there's the story of the man who went to his psychiatrist. In the usual battery of Rorschach, T.A.T.'s and I.Q. Tests, the good doctor drew a triangle on a sheet of paper and showed it to his patient, asking "What does that remind you of?"

The man looked at it and answered promptly, "Sex."

The doctor got the same response when he had drawn a circle, a rectangle, and an ellipse, and said "Son, you need help."

"But doctor, the patient protested, 'You're the one that's drawing the dirty pictures.'"

This sort of suggestion analysis, in the age of the engineering of consent, the depth study, motivational research and the "p.r." man, has now been applied to (the student) in a somewhat dirty picture of apathy. He is, according to his critic, one of the beat generation, or the angry young men, or, as a recent issue of TIME puts it, one of the no-nonsense kids.

All of these accusations seem to point nowhere in particular except to those generalizations proffered by your grand-daddy and mine about "this younger generation." Today's students have been called the "silent generation" for their lack of literary champions, the loud and clear voices of earlier campuses, which were regarded as symbols of unity.

If this generation appears to have nothing to say, no radical philosophies to offer, perhaps those students of the past were too quick to voice their new-found theories. Their might have been the hasty sin of sapathy. The quick answer is not the forte of the student of today. He must retrench, for new ideas cannot grow without strong roots in the knowledge of the past.

Did vigorous outbursts of oratory and bravado from the ivory towers do much to change the word? Despite the righteous bonfires of the thirties, scrap metal went to the Orient, and American businessmen sold celluloid toys MADE IN JAPAN.

College students were expected to be noisy, zany, and idealistic; out in the cold, cruel world, they would soon learn to be realists. The occasional sparks of genius was an element treated as lightly as the hazing prank.

The great Albert Schweitzer, who seems to have achieved serenity in a world which had forgotten this gift, was once asked what he thought of the future of Europe. Schweitzer, musician, doctor, and theologian, hunched his shoulders and said: "My business is ethics, not prophecy. What's the use of talking about it? Perhaps all the talkers will be toppled in the end."

There is danger in silence which becomes a habit, wherein intellect atrophies. It is this problem with which critics of the college student are concerned. Although Amherst psychologist Robert Birney may be right in his statement that college students are "too concerned with their psychological well-being," it does not seem that the student's egocentricity stops there. His intellectual aims are searching for a credo which will serve our complex existence.

Must we then, accused of "sapathy," speak out to indict the future, when the past has proven successful in creating a world threatened by atomic destruction?

Presbyterians Attend W.F. Conference

Eight members of Westminster Fellowship attended the Fall Synod Conference of Westminster Fellowships at Camp New Hope near Chapel Hill, November 8-9.

The speaker for the week-end was Dr. William Oglesley of Union Theological Seminary in Richmond, Virginia. Dr. Oglesley's talks centered on the theme of the conference, "The Holy Spirit and Christian Witness." Discussion groups led by prominent adult leaders in the Synod followed each of the talks.

Many colleges in North Carolina were represented and the group engaged in recreation, informal talks, and fellowship.

Attending from HPC were: Louisa Oterson, Louise Harris, Diane Johnson, Liz Peterson, Joe Spangler, Ed McNatt, Otis Boroughs, and Wendell Kelly.

Tau Kappa Epsilon 1958 Champion; All-Star Football Team Selected

Ten Men Named

Three men from the champion Tau Kappa Epsilon team, two Kappa Chi, two Freshmen, one Lambda Chi, and one Theta Chi comprise the 1958 All-Star Intramural Football Team. The players on this mythical team were selected by their opponents on the basis of their outstanding play throughout the season.

The men selected for this honor were: Gilbert Baton, Al Bean, Corbin Cherry, Harold Wright, Marion Suitt, Ross Wingo, Ken Prosser, Tony Adams, Mickey "Scooter" Dean, and Don Workman. There are ten men on the team this year due to the fact that there were several men tied for the backfield selections. Baton and Bean of Tau Kappa Epsilon were the two big men on the Teke line which provided their team with the defensive prowess needed to win the championship. The other selection for the line was Corbin Cherry, who was the mainstay of a tough Kappa Chi line.

Ends for the team were Harold Wright of Lambda Chi, who played in Elroy "Crazylegs" Hirsch tradition, and Marion Suitt, the speedster for the Freshmen team. These two boys kept their opponents on their toes at all times by making what seemed to be impossible catches and by playing top notch defensive ball.

Two almost unanimous selections for the All-Star backfield were Ross Wingo and Ken Prosser. Wingo, who was rated as the passer in the league, led Kappa Chi to a successful season. Prosser, rated the best field general of the season, carried the Freshmen team to its most successful season in quite some time. Other selections for the backfield were: Tony Adams of Theta Chi, Mickey Dean of Sigma Phi Epsilon, and Don Workman of Tau-Kappa Epsilon, who all were individual stars for their respective teams.

INTRA-MURAL CHAMPS

Basketball Team Names Two Seniors Co-captains

Two seniors on this year's edition of the High Point Panthers basketball team have been selected as co-captains of the team. Steve Afendis and Maury Beauchot are the two men who are supposed to step into the hard-to-fill shoes of Bill Huegele, last year's captain.

Afendis and Beauchot, both mainstays of last year's second place Panthers, will be counted on heavily by Coach Virgil Yow both in leadership and in performance. In the past both of these boys have proved that they are top notch boys on the court, but will have a tough time filling the able shoes of Huegele.

Last year in the North State Conference Tournament, with Sewell unable to play at all and Huegele only able to go at half speed, both Afendis and Beauchot came through in fine style to keep the Panthers in contention until the last whistle was blown. These two showed such spirit, hustle, and ability that they were both placed on the All-Tournament Team. Needless to say, they were the principle reasons that the Panthers placed as high as second place in the tournament.

It is in keeping with the High Point College tradition that two such boys of leadership and ability should be chosen to lead the Panthers in this their final year of play.

PANTHER CO-CAPTAINS

Unscored Upon

Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity, showing a great defense and a fine offense, took first place honors in intramural football by tying Lambda Chi Alpha in its last game of the season. This was probably the most important game of the season for both teams, for had Lambda Chi won the two teams would have been in a tie for first place.

So good was the mighty Teke defense that no team scored a single point on them throughout the entire season. With such men as Don Workman, Bruce Miller, and Tom Skidmore in the backfield, they showed a very potent offense. Especially effective was a running play with Workman carrying. The only blemish on the Teke record was the tie with Lambda Chi.

Placing second in what turned out to be a torrid race, was Lambda Chi which also produced a good team. Taking third place honors was a very sound Kappa Chi team. Surprisingly the Freshman team showed up very well this year. In past years the freshman teams have not done very well because of disorganization, but this year managed to nail down fourth place in the final standings. Taking fifth, sixth, seventh, and eighth place were Sigma Phi Epsilon, Theta Chi, Delta Sigma Phi, and Pi Kappa Alpha respectively.

Tau Kappa Epsilon	6	0	1
Lambda Chi Alpha	5	1	1
Kappa Chi	4	3	0
Sigma Phi Epsilon	3	4	0
Theta Chi	2	4	1
Delta Sigma Phi	1	4	2
Pi Kappa Alpha	1	6	0

A WORTHY PROJECT FOR SENIORS!

While the senior class is thinking of a project, it would do well to consider the possibility of bringing paved tennis courts to the HPC campus. The old dirt courts behind the student center are definitely inadequate. They are uneven and are very seldom ever marked off. When it rains little rivulets are left all over them and they become so wet that no one can use them for several days.

Perhaps it might be said that the courts are not used often enough to warrant spending that much money. Anyone using this argument has only to stay out there one clear day to see that the student participation is very good indeed. It would be even better if the school had adequate courts. Or perhaps the students alone do not warrant that much attention.

If it is the general consensus that the courts do not need improvement merely for the benefit of the students, think how badly the college tennis team needs a good set of courts. For quite some time now the varsity team has been unable to function properly because of the condition of the college courts. This is not the fault of the administration for it has had to concentrate on much larger and, perhaps, more important matters. Be that as it may, for every match and every practice the team has had to go off campus. This keeps it from being able to participate as it should due to inadequate practice.

There are various other reasons that could be cited, but perhaps one of the best is lack of support and participation. With the team never holding a match on campus, there is very little if any support by the student body. If, with the advent of new courts, the team could hold matches on the campus, it would get more support from the student body, and more people might try out for the team.

It would not be necessary for each individual person in the senior class to shell out the money to pay for such a project. The actual work involved would be for the seniors to get out and contact some of the alumni and other interested persons. All that would be necessary would be to ask each person for a small contribution. Think about it.

CONGRATULATIONS!

The HI-PO sports staff would like to offer its personal congratulations to those boys who were placed on the All-Star team. This is quite an honor and each person deserved it. A special commendation goes out for all the boys who participated in football for their fine sportsmanship and great competitive play.

HPC Students Poll Negative On Organ

by PATT OLMSTED

A letter to the editor concerning the proposed $50,000 organ has caused a stir among the students. This reporter interviewed many students to obtain a cross section of the popular feelings. Following are some of these students' answers to the question, "What do you think about the proposed expenditure of $50,000 for a pipe organ?"

MARTHA TURNIPSEED: "I think it is unnecessary to spend that much on a pipe organ with all the apparent needs still existing. We don't use an organ enough to warrant such an expenditure."

DON NESBITT: "The installation of a pipe organ is a great necessity to this college if there is still enough money left for it after everything else that is needed is purchased."

BETTY GRAY DORMAN: "Music has a definite place in education but there are many other definite places for the $50,000 in the educational program of HPC. This money could be used for more urgently needed facilities on our campus."

KELLY JONES: "I can see places where the money could be spent more wisely. High Point College needs many more improvements before it needs an organ."

Other students expressed this same view, and in fact this reporter was unable to find a student who is in favor of spending $50,000 for a pipe organ!

S.C.C. News...

The Student Christian Council met at the home of Miss Bowman on November 10 with several important matters on the agenda.

The vesper programs have been planned through next March. The speaker schedule for the remaining part of November and December is: November 23—Dr. Peterson; December 7—Dr. Rozzelle; December 14—The Christmas Story read by Miss Idol, followed by Christmas caroling and refreshments.

Plans for Religion-in-Life Week to be held the second week in March were also discussed. The main speaker will be Rev. Carr from Durham. The theme for the week is the "Seven Deadly Sins"—Pride, Sloth, Gluttony, Hatred, Race, Lust, and Apathy.

Two resolutions were passed; one asking the authorities to include in the plans for the new chapel suitable room and facilities specifically for meetings of religious organizations; and the other asking the administration to return to the former arrangement for finances for the Student Christian Association.

Workshops Highlights NSCP Meet

Eight members of the HI-PO staff represented HPC at the North State Conference Press Association meeting held at Guilford College Dec. 6. Elmer Hall, Fred Barber, Lin Barbour, Patt Olmsted, Carol Chapman, Ron Wachs, Bobby Yates, and Bob Wienberry attended the meeting. Other delegates were from Guilford, Atlantic Christian, Appalachian, Lenoir Rhyne, and Western Carolina College. East Carolina and Catawba are also members of the association.

After registration Martha Hawthorth, editor of the Guilfordian, introduced the speaker, Mr. David Morrah. Mr. Morrah, a Greensboro Daily News humorist and frequent contributor to the Post Scripts in the Saturday Evening Post, analyzed four of the eight member college's papers. Mr. C. J. Key, a former editor of the Guilford paper and a former publicity chairman for the cancer drive, analyzed the other four papers.

Workshops were conducted in various journalistic fields such as news, layout, editorial writings, sports, and business. A special meeting was held for editors. Mr. Miles Wolff, Mr. Lane Kerr, and Mr. Irwin Smallwood, from the Greensboro Daily News spoke to several of the workshop groups.

After lunch in the college cafeteria, a report was made by Bill Noblett, editor of the Appalachian paper concerning his trip to an Associated Collegiate Press Convention in Chicago. In the business meeting, conducted by Noblett, conference president, it was decided not to solicit the membership of other papers but to wait until the conference is petitioned before considering what action to take on this matter. High Point was appointed to design a seal to be adopted by the Association to be used on letterheads and mastheads.

"TO BUY OR NOT TO BUY..."

Sororities To Vote On Buying Pan-Hel House

BY PATT OLMSTED
HI-PO NEWS EDITOR

Plans for purchasing a house to be used by the Sorority girls as a Panhellenic House, were presented for a vote by Mrs. W. T. Powell at a dinner meeting of the College and City Panhellenics held Dec. 2 at the Sheraton Hotel. The vote was postponed in order to allow the sororities to vote in their chapters first.

Mrs. Powell, chairman of the housing committee, said that the house which at this time seems the best suited for the intended purpose, is located on Montlieu Avenue between the Coble House and the new college parking lot.

This house, on sale for $18,500, has four bedrooms, two living rooms, a den, a dining room, a kitchen, and two and a half baths. In addition there is a maid's room above the garage.

The four sororities, if this house is agreed upon, will use the bedrooms as chapter rooms in which they will keep their files and equipment, in addition to using them for meetings and informal gatherings. The living rooms, dining room, and kitchen will be used for informal entertaining.

Financing of the project will be undertaken by each sorority and the City Panhellenic. Mrs. Powell said that the college, for a fee of $115 each month of the school year, will be responsible for the phone, electricity, heat, and water bills, and will paint the outside every three years and the inside every four years.

The property will be deeded to the college but an agreement will exist reserving the house for Panhellenic use only. The plans for a chaperone have not been formulated as yet, but it will be necessary to have a woman living in the house.

Mrs. Powell said that she realized the house under consideration is small and will involve some problems, but she emphasized that at the present it is the only one available which is convenient to the campus and suited for the use of the sororities.

If this house is selected it will probably cause the sororities to meet on different nights, since it will be inconvenient for all four to meet in the house at one time.

Furnishing of the chapter rooms will be left to the individual sororities. They will combine, through Panhellenic, to furnish the other rooms. It is hoped that alumnae will donate furniture in addition to their financial assistance.

After much discussion, generally in favor of the proposed house, the vote was postponed until Dec. 16.

The meeting was opened with some background material presented by Mrs. W. E. Linthicum, president of the City Panhellenic. The city group of sorority alumnae was organized in the spring of 1958 in order to help the College Panhellenic. Immediately the college group asked for help in obtaining a place to meet and store their equipment. A housing committee was appointed and they began their house hunting. In addition to Mrs. Powell, the committee consists of Mrs. Herman Coble, Mrs. Virginia Leonard, Mrs. J. P. Armstrong, Mrs. W. A. Tomlinson, Mrs. Wm. P. Green, Mrs. Hobart Bryant, and Mrs. Edgar Snider.

The following students are making the trip: Texie Ann Ayers, Maryette Brown, Dell Conrad, Don Drapeau, Charles Huff, Jack Jarrett, Tommy Liftis, Don Nesbitt, Sylvia Newton, Sandra Parnell, Marilyn Pickett, Lee Pollock, Charles Riddle, Anna Rogers.

Harrell, Jerry Kay, Betsy Kiker, Jerry Kivett, Arnold Lawson, Liz Peterson, Rhonda Robbins, Neil Stallings, Wini Stuart, Alice Swetland, Bob Williams, Earl Whitaker, Ross Wingo, and Lin Barbour.

Drapeau Is Named House Speaker

In a called meeting last week the Student House of Representatives elected officers for the remainder of the school year. Don Drapeau, former presider pro-tempore, was elected Speaker. Al Bean was chosen Speaker pro-tem, Janice Tutterow was elected Recording Clerk, Gilbert Beeson Reading Clerk, and Gilbert Beeson was also appointed Parliamentarian.

Drapeau appointed a Rules Committee and a Credentials Committee which were to present reports at the next House meeting. Al Bean, chairman of the Rules Committee, has announced that a slate of 20 rules of procedure have been drawn up by the committee, and are pending adoption by the House.

In a joint session of the House and Senate held prior to the House meeting, SGA President Fred Barber urged that the legislature give serious consideration to a new judiciary penal code which will be presented following the Christmas holidays. Barber further stressed that legislature members become more familiar with parliamentary procedure and maintain dignity in the legislative meetings.

MONASTERY OR COLLEGE

Less than a generation ago HPC students marched stoically into chapel services five times each week. Fortunately as the administration matured it realized that a college is not a church but an institution of higher education. The nightmare of forced religiosity began to pass and by 1930 the administration insisted upon only three chapel periods per week. After several years of growing pains the college adopted the present chapel-assembly compromise.

The monastery view is still very much embodied in the required Wednesday gathering. Protocol now requires a hymn, scripture, and prayer followed by anything from a lecture on the mysteries of the Antarctic to the selection of cheerleaders.

This awkward compromise makes for an inefficient and dull assembly. The college community needs a weekly assembly, but must it include a "worship" service? Student denominational groups and the SCA exist to offer opportunities for religious growth. Saint and sinner alike will admit that the mechanics that precede HPC's weekly assemblies hardly furthers the cause of religion on the campus.

In the interests of effective assemblies, sincere religion, and a better college we suggest the "opening exercises" be eliminated from the required assembly. E.O.H.

ECHOES OF YESTERYEAR

"The election of Marshals for the graduation exercises is creating much comment and discussion about the campus. Herman Coble, speaking in chapel in behalf of the senior class said that as the seniors had a little to do with the graduation that they should have a little to do with the appointing of marshals. Many ideas of appointing the marshals were discussed in chapel. Who shall elect, and who shall be elected seem to be the troublesome problems." (Hi-Po, March 23, 1927.)

Intramurals Everyone?

"He has no spur to prick the side of his intent but vaulting ambition which overleaps itself."

This, with apologies to Will Shakespeare, might well describe Dr. Gil Hertz and his ambitious intramural program.

Certainly everyone will agree that an intramural program is both necessary and desirable as a part of our extra-curricular activities. But as Dr. Hertz's intramural program is set up it requires as much time as all other activities combined, including studies. Dr. Hertz is well meaning in that he has set up an intramural program in which all students can participate. However, this program has many faults.

In the first place the program is too broad and as it is now arranged fraternity participation is almost mandatory.

In setting up this program, Dr. Hertz failed to realize that fraternities have other activities which require their participation. Most important of these other activities is the individual's scholastic work, which unfortunately must play second fiddle to intramurals.

I would suggest that Dr. Hertz return to the old but workable program of his predecessor. That is, organizing the program for four sports only: football, basketball, volleyball and softball. Under the present set-up we have horseshoes, foul-shooting, golf, track, badminton, ping-pong, and tennis in addition to the four major sports.

A well-balanced intramural program is important, but should be regarded in its proper perspective as one among many extra-curricular campus activities.

—Bob Wienberry.

On Forcing Standards

In a world of mass strivings for higher education and the raising of academic standards to meet the challenge of world citizenry, it is pertinent to realize that our college should strive to attain higher academic standards. This gives the intelligentsia of the student body an opportunity to develop their young critical minds into a creative, productive UNIVAC.

To make this clear, High Point College has raised its entrance requirements to include only discriminating students. The requirements for class preparations, which at one time were negligible, have now been increased enough to make class work the students' only concern, if done adequately and conscientiously. Some few professors attempt to make the responsible student aware of current community and world conflicts and initiate thought-provoking ideas in terms of resolving these conflicts. Finally, through the cooperation of the college administration students have been allowed to establish governmental proceedings through which students might express their creative and productive ideas.

However, does the raising of

(All letters to the editor must be signed; names will be withheld on request. Letters do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the editors.)

standards pertain only to students? It is evident that much effort has gone into these academic achievements for our college. This is good. But should such an ardent endeavor have been necessary? It appears that such achievements would have come through a natural evolution, without such effort, if those who influence the students would have first raised their own academic, social and ethical standards. If such a process had been employed, the student would not be confronted, as he now is, with such an abrupt change. He would have been provided a foundation on which to build the higher levels of academic, social, and ethical achievement now demanded of him.

—Harold Wright and Bill Baker.

FRED BARBER ON CAMPUS

It was September, 1978. John held his tall young frame erect as he walked down the long corridor of the college administration building. Although he avoided meeting the gaze of the students as they passed him in the hallway, John was nevertheless aware of their hostile glances and penetrating stares. "Liberty and justice for all..." John sneered as he thought of the mockery he was continually reminded of. The same liberty and justice were present here that caused the "White" and "Colored" signs to be hung over water fountains, on buses, and on rest room doors.

For John it had always been like this. He had never been able to adjust to this world which denied him—he and others like him—who were cursed by the wrong background and color, and were forced to assume the role of an inferior race. The bowing and cringing and being polite that was demanded of him infuriated John, but he knew that to rebel against racial authority was impossible, and he was forced to continue his existence in the caste of half animal and half human being.

John paused momentarily before the heavy office door and studied the gold plaque that read, "Dr. Joseph P. English, President." Fear and resentment caused an uneasy feeling in the pit of his stomach, and he hated himself for his lack of confidence. He took a deep breath, turned the knob, and stepped into the office.

Leather chairs lined the walls of the spacious room, with a thick carpet covering the wide expanse of floor. A secretary looked up from her desk as John entered, and her face froze in shocked distaste as she saw the color of his skin.

"I'd like to see Dr. English, please," John stood near the door and dared go no closer to the huge glass-topped desk. The secretary said nothing as she backed to the door of the inner office, still staring at John, and then disappeared. Almost immediately she came back into the room and announced that Dr. English would see him. John walked across the carpet to the inner office, and the secretary stepped wide from the door so that he wouldn't come near her as he passed.

Dr. English was seated behind his desk and made no move to rise as John entered the room. "Can I help you?" Dr. English smiled. A surge of anger swelled within John as he realized that the college president was addressing him as he would an illiterate child; but he forced a weak smile, and, still standing before the desk, he began telling of the purpose of his visit.

"I'd like to come to college here, Sir," John said. He went on to tell how it was financially impossible for him to go away to school, and how there was no other college near enough his home for him to commute. He told of his interest in science and of his desire to attend a college with a good science department.

Dr. English sat quietly for a long moment, gazing absently at a pencil he rolled backward and forward across the desk. Finally, clearing his throat with a low growl, Dr. English spoke. He explained why it was impossible to grant John's request. He told of the board of trustees' negative attitude toward integration, and of the bad publicity that could certainly come for the college if John were accepted as a student.

Disappointment and hurt grew and spread within John's breast as he listened to Dr. English ramble on with more excuses and apologies. Finally he could take no more, and with bitter tears filling his eyes he shouted: "Why don't you admit the truth? Why won't you say you're just like all the others... that you're prejudiced! You pretend to stand for freedom and democracy, but you're nothing but hypocrites! Do you hear me? Hypocrites!"

Dr. English rose from his chair and leaned forward with his clenched fists resting on the desk top. The veins in his neck and forehead protruded and his eyes flashed with anger.

"You people are all alike," he said. "You're always wanting something because you can't have it. Why don't you realize that times have changed? Things aren't like they were twenty years ago, and you may as well get used to that. This is 1978, and you're white, son! Can't you understand? YOU'RE WHITE!"

To Whom It May Apply

"Another fact that the universities are going to have to face up to very soon is that the whole moral temper of this age is different from that of the age just past; that mental attitudes expected of young people fifty years ago are non-existent today; that patterns of behavior universal then are nowhere to be found today; that 'ideals by which men lived' then are dead today; that appeals to elements of character that were effective then only create a laugh now; and that incentives that meant everything then are impotent now."

Panthers' Hopes Rest On Ability Of Dan Sewell

With the opening of a new cage season, a good many of the fans in this area will be interested in whether or not a certain junior from Kokomo, Indiana, will again be leading the Purple Panthers of High Point College in their drive for the North State Conference Championship. This young man is Danny Sewell who last year led the North State Conference in scoring with a 22 point average. Last year, as a sophomore, Danny emerged as the star of the team and was placed on the Associated Press State All-Star Team.

A great many of Danny's followers are wondering whether or not the knee which he hurt in the latter part of the season last year will bother him. This injury caused Danny to miss the North State Tournament in Lexington, and possibly caused the defeat of the Panthers by Lenoir Rhyne in the finals. Many people who attended the tournament felt that, had Sewell been playing in the finals, High Point would have emerged the winner.

After a slow start this year, Sewell seems to be gradually finding the range and is loosening up a little more. He made 18 points against Atlantic Christian and only 10 against Guilford, but against Pfeiffer he hit with an almost uncanny accuracy and collected 34 points. This is indication enough that he is improving. A great deal depends upon Sewell this year. If he can regain his old self-confidence, the Panthers may again be serious contenders for the conference championship. A boy like Sewell can make or break a team. His 44 points against East Carolina proved beyond the shadow of a doubt that the Panthers are going to prowling this year.

Basketball Team Makes HP Fans Dream Of Title

Led by terrific Danny Sewell, the High Point College Panthers took over first place in North State Conference play by sinking the Pirates from East Carolina by a score of 95-76. Sewell bagged 44 points in leading the Panthers to victory.

Sewell, scoring from all over the court, was the star, but the remainder of the tremendous Panthers played a brilliant game. Little Jack Short had a hot shooting streak going in the second half which kept the High Pointers ahead of the Pirates. He played an all around good game. Ken Williams played very well under the boards and Captain Steve Afendis was the big play maker. Most of Sewell's baskets were scored on passes from Afendis who was a steadying influence on the Panthers.

This victory gave the Panthers a 4-0 overall record and 3-0 in conference play to give them undisputed first place. It also gave Coach Yow the opportunity of keeping the red vest belonging to East Carolina's Coach Porter. He obtained the vest last year when High Point beat the Pirates in the second round of the North State Tournament.

While High Point was beating East Carolina, the Lenoir Rhyne Bears played Guilford and won by 43 points to chalk up its first conference win. The Bears, like the Panthers, have an overall record of 4-0.

In retrospect, High Point led by Sewell, Afendis, and Williams from last year's varsity, and Jack Short, up from last season's junior varsity edition, soundly beat Atlantic Christian, Guilford, and Pfeiffer. Then came the East Carolina game.

The Panthers were well tested when they played Atlantic Christian, but Sewell and Afendis managed to pull them far ahead by the end of the game. However, when they invaded Guilford College it was an entirely different story. Mid way of the first half, with the first string not clicking too well, Coach Yow sent in a second string consisting of a number of freshmen, and these boys carried the Panthers to a ten point lead at half time. In the second half all of the Panthers got cold except Ken Williams and big Ken kept them alive with five straight field goals. Although used sparingly, Williams has shown a vast improvement over last year. Also furnishing a much needed spark was Jack Short who was all over the court and ended up as High Points top scorer with 12 points.

Against Pfeiffer Sewell came alive for the first time and led the Panthers to a decisive win by scoring 34 points. However, not to be completely overshadowed by Sewell's great offensive effort was that man Short again. Short collected 18 points and played a generally brilliant game.

Captain Steve Afendis has been the most underrated player of the team as his play has been steady in all games. Coach Yow has brought into a unit a team which has the potential of being great and should have a good season's record.

ZAMBRANA - SOCCER PLAYER DELUXE

One of High Point College's most outstanding and modest seniors, Ben Zambrana, has yet another accomplishment to add to his fine record which includes being named to the Order of the Lighted Lamp, Ten Top Seniors, Who's Who, and the position of Junior Marshall. Few people know the fact that Ben was a very outstanding soccer player in his own country of Bolivia before entering college in the United States, and helped lead his high school team to the soccer championship of the nation during his junior year.

Soccer is to the South American as football, basketball, and baseball is to the citizen of the United States. Ben, as most boys there, began kicking a ball almost as soon as he could walk. When a ball wasn't available, which was not very seldom, Ben can remember having used a dried orange, or a ball made out of rags.

By the time Ben reached the sixth grade, he was playing for his class team. A short time later in junior high school, scouts became interested in his playing and asked him to play for one of the many independent teams in Bolivia. These clubs are sponsored by wealthy families and playing for one of them involves a great deal of honor and glory. The teams are set up to play in leagues similar to those set up in this country for baseball.

At the age of fifteen, Ben led his Paz Stadium, the equivalent of playing in Yankee Stadium.

During his junior year in high school Ben experienced one of his biggest thrills. He was attending the American Institute, one of the largest schools in Bolivia, when the varsity received a bid to play at La Paz Stadium, marking the second time that Ben had received this honor. Before 100,000 fans the American In-

INTRAMURALS FLOUNDER!

What is the scoop on the intramural program this year? It seems that to date the intramurals have not been running too smoothly. At the beginning of the school year Dr. Hertz, Intramural Director, presented the various team managers with a well planned schedule of the intramural program for the entire year. However, since that time the system has bogged down.

During the football season a number of problems presented themselves. The first major problem arose when a large number of the participants began to suffer from injuries. This brought up the question of an insurance policy which would cover the individuals involved in intramural sports. At the present time the college has no policy available which will cover injuries suffered in these activities. This is a serious problem and should be cleared up.

Appearing at the same time was the problem of inadequate officiating. Not that the officials were not good, but that there were several instances when there was no officials present. This could only result from negligence on the part of those responsible for furnishing officials for the contests. Are the remaining intramural sports to suffer from such negligence?

Now, however, another problem has arisen. The fraternities are raising a howl with just cause, over the number of volleyball games they are having to play in such a short amount of time. Also, they do not like the stitute squeezed out a 3 to 2 championship victory with Ben himself scoring a goal from the center forward position.

When Ben returns to his native land, after attending Duke Medical School, he hopes to sponsor a team of his own although he knows that he will not have the time to coach it.

An interesting side note to Ben's soccer career is the fact that although he participated in over 250 organized games in Bolivia, he has not even seen a game since coming to the United States.

idea of having to play some of the games in the afternoon. Previously all of the games were played at night. Many of the boys have to work in the afternoons and it works a hardship on the fraternities to get them out for an afternoon game. The problem of having to play so many games in such a short time is one which is not easily solved. Perhaps each organization should have been limited to the entry of only one team. However, it seems to be the opinion of the majority that when the entire program was set up there was too many activities included. The present program is without a doubt very well-rounded, but it has been said by various people that a person has to spend all of his time in the gym in order to keep up with all of the activities. Something should definitely be done to eliminate such confusion in the future. Perhaps we should go back to our old system.
