HPC Sets Enrollment Record

High Point College has broken another enrollment record for the fall term of 1964 with 1,096 students enrolled in the regular college and 451 students enrolled in the evening college, making a grand total of 1,547 students.

This means an increase of 100 students over last year in the regular college and an increase of 54 in the evening school.

Students in the regular college come from 24 states and six foreign countries, Bolivia, Central America, Cuba, Greece, India, and Sarawak. Students in the evening college come from Greensboro, Salisbury, Biscoe, and Martinsville, Va. The High Point and Winston-Salem areas provide the greatest number of the students.

High Point College was able to increase its boarding student enrollment this year by 96 with the completion of Yaddin Hall for women. The structure was completed by September 1 and was ready to receive the co-eds when school opened Sept. 7.

Plans Made For Literary Magazine

Helen Paisley, editor of the APOGEE, has announced that the group has made preliminary plans for the annual publication of the literary magazine.

Under the advisanship of Dr. C. E. Mounts and Mr. Raiford Porter, assisted by the English Department, the remaining staff, Liz Oldham, associate editor; Ralph Hoar, managing editor; Nancy Noblett, art editor; Floyd Green, book review editor; and Peggy Wiley, exchange editor, are now faced with the task of gathering sufficient artistic materials in order to present a magazine of quality to the students of HPC.

The staff encourages anyone with any artistic ability to contribute (in great quantities if possible) to the APOGEE. Materials may be given to any staff member or mailed to APOGEE at the campus post office.

Goals to be Set Higher at H.P.C.

On May 15, 1964 the Curriculum Committee, made up of faculty members, drew up a statement of the goals and objectives for High Point College. The following is the report which they submitted to Dr. Wendell M. Patton.

Sponsored by the Methodist Church, High Point College educates young men and women so that they may live useful lives and make worth-while contributions to society.

In addition to the liberal arts curriculum, the College further offers specialization in professional areas such as teacher education, business administration, and the sciences. Able students are thus prepared to attend graduate school or to take their places in their chosen careers.

The College, through cultural experiences and exacting course work strives to stimulate the love of learning and the expression of creative ability. It encourages its students in habits of original thinking so that they become men and women who have the courage of their convictions and question mere conformity.

Through its total program the College helps its students to develop Christian character. All relationships within the College community are to be maintained on a high level of ethical conduct, and the rules and practices of the College recognize the integrity and the dignity of human personality.

High Point College as a Christian institution must keep constantly in mind the goal of service. This goal means that the College, as a community of students and faculty, should take its place responsibly in the larger community of which it is a part, and that students should be inspired to go out from the College to pursue the highest ideals of service to the nation and to the world community.

Specifically with this philosophy in mind, High Point College strives to meet the following goals:

1. The development of the ability to read effectively, to write accurately, and to speak intelligently.

2. The broadening of the intellectual, social, and physical horizons of the students.

3. The stimulation and encouragement of students to de-

Campus Viewpoint

NEW SPARKS OF LEARNING

Our little Liberal Arts college is taking on many new aspects, some of which are effecting the academic pulse of the campus. Never before has the faculty, administration, and even portions of the student body felt the deep concern about the education which should be acquired at college. There is some evidence that can be pointed out quite readily.

This year the admissions standards have been raised; students appear to come to High Point College for a purpose. Even students entering the Evening College must be admitted for college credit on the same basis as day students. Many students were turned away because they did not meet minimum standards. This turning away of students also affected upperclassmen who did not make their average. Of special significance, to the student at least, the first High Point College convocation set the tone for the entire year; Dr. Keppel stated that the student's whole college career should be governed by his mind and that he must "Do as you will."

The addition of many new faculty members, freshmen and transfers to this campus has stirred up much enthusiasm for the coming year. If the enthusiasm continues, signs of new intellectual heights will surely be reached this year. You may ask how we can be so certain that a change is going to take place, and all we can say is that the signs are there.

Students, faculty, and administrators appear to have come to High Point College this year determined to seek the truth. Students have the opportunity to take on the challenge of the faculty and challenge our administration to reach for the best facilities that they can supply.

High Point College is far from being the best, most effective college in North Carolina, but at least we are realizing that changes should and must be made. There are many things which this college needs; more classrooms, larger laboratories, and better equipped dormitories. Of course, a larger, more accessible Student Center would be a great improvement over our present situation. However, these things all take time to plan and build and many of us will never see these improvements while we are students. But the administration is thinking about building these new facilities, and with the coming years who knows what buildings one might find standing on this campus?

Right now there are probably personal gripes which all of us have about various phases of our campus life. But these gripes should not become so large that the over-all view of our purpose here is clouded over. We are supposed to come to college to learn many things about life, love and the pursuit of truth. Let each one of us try to do his bit to make this year a profitable one.

THE CAMPUS SERVANT

by Phyllis Foy

As long ago as the 13th and 14th Centuries, daily, weekly, and monthly periodicals were printed for the purpose of informing the populace of major events occurring in their world, of uniting the people to a common course of action, and of bringing the population closer together through the means of mutual communication.

Centuries have passed since these journals were instigated, and with the centuries have come new and modern methods of printing and distribution. These journals which were once sought by only a few—those who could read, are now demanded by 180 million literate inhabitants of this nation.

In the United States the newspaper has become the voice of the people. This freedom of press is delegated to them by the Constitution of the United States, and they realize the importance of using it accordingly.

Likewise, HI-PO, a bi-monthly publication, is the voice of High Point College students. Its purpose, like the journals of old, is to inform and to unite the students of this campus into one close-knit body. This goal can be accomplished only if you, the students, take an avid interest in your school, and use your newspaper as the voice of your interests, of your ideas, and as your means of communication with the 1,095 other students on campus.

Co-eds Meet New Dorm Mother

My first acquaintance with the new resident counselor in North and Yadkin Halls occurred under very strange circumstances. I had been bedridden for two whole days—back to school flu, you know—when a friend dropped by the room to inform me that we girls had an invite to Mrs. Owen's room to watch the "Miss America" pageant. "Why resist," said I to myself, so bundled in socks, p.j.'s, curlers, quilted robe and various other necessary paraphernalia, off I tripped as the time drew near.

I entered a room filled with fellow dorm-mates attired much as myself, and there in the midst of them was Mrs. Owen, no different than the rest of us, gaily joining in the conversation and discussion of us gals. At that moment, the phrase "home away from home" took on a quality of meaning.

Mrs. George Owen is a resident of the city of High Point. She accepted the job of resident counselor at HPC because, as she says, "I am quite interested in young people; I enjoy doing things for them and seeing that they have fun in a clean, wholesome manner. Anyway, working with the younger generation does keep a body young at heart."

As mother of two children, Mrs. Owen heretofore had no time to pursue outside interests. However, since the children have grown up, she has taken up various hobbies in which she had always held an interest. Among these are painting, needlework, and raising flowers—African violets are her favorite, as well as her church work. Another interest of this versatile woman is music. Mrs. Owen plays the piano, "Not well," she says, "but I also play the violin. I own a 243-year-old Stradovari which was given to me by a dear friend."

This Portsmouth, Va., native's greatest desire is to travel, both in the United States and abroad, an aspiration aroused by the continental stories told by her daughter, Cora Ann, who traveled in Europe the year before her graduation from HPC. "I intend to begin my travel at Christmastime," says the vivacious little lady, "with a trip to the deep, deep South, Florida."

So here we are once again, back in the old grind. I trust that the summer was profitable for everyone in one way or another. If you find it difficult to keep your mind on homework (ugh!), don't feel as if you are the only one with problems. Many of us had such a great time this past summer—doing a little bit of everything—that the thought of sitting down to work once again is a rather disturbing idea.

As you have probably observed as you began your probing around, there have been a few changes made during the summer here on campus. Some of the changes, such as the new freezer alongside the cafeteria, might not interest many; but it is a comforting idea knowing that our food does not have to be dragged halfway across the campus any longer.

From all reports the new addition to the Women's dorm is a paradise when compared with our older dorms. However, even McCulloch Hall has taken on a few new aspects which no one would have even dreamed about. Fire alarms, and vividly painted doors are too wild to even enter into one's nightmares.

Even Millis dorm has increased its population, for about ten rooms have three occupants. Some of the fraternities in Millis have had a bit of a moisture problem in their lounges, but this has not kept them from maintaining their campus prestige. There have also been rumors that the fraternity lounges might be turned into dorm rooms next year, but at this point it seems like a rather far out idea.

Another change which has taken place that affected the S.C.A. and affiliated organizations the most has been the moving of their offices. No longer is the student center third floor going to be used by the students for their campus offices. It appears that the administration has had a bad case of growing pains and has found it necessary to extend their reach and take up new territory in the student center. Student offices are now in the basement of Harrison Hall.

There are many new faces on campus, freshmen, faculty members and administrators. To get to meet them all is not an easy task, but the orientation program with the student-faculty reception and the numerous dances were of some help. The new Director of Student Personnel, Mr. Charles I. Farmer, has done a fine job of assisting during the orientation program and has demonstrated that his position is a very important one on this campus.

With these changes it is hoped that this year will mark a turning point in the history of H.P.C. The freshmen class is reported to be one of the finest this college has ever seen. If the upperclassmen will demonstrate for the freshmen proper attitudes and actions, the prospects for a good year will be assured. Here's hoping!

New Administrative Staff

Mr. Charles I. Farmer, our new Director of Student Personnel, received his A.B. degree from Davis and Elkins College, Elkins, West Virginia, his B.D. degree from Western Theological Seminary, and his M. Ed. from the University of Pittsburgh.

The new Director of Admissions is Mr. Robert E. Phillips who is also a graduate of High Point College. He is presently working on his master's degree at the University of North Carolina in Greensboro.

Returning to High Point College from which he, too, is a graduate is Dr. L. B. Pope, who will be Director of Guidance and Counseling. Dr. Pope received his A.B. degree here in 1948, his M.A. from the University of North Carolina in 1952, and his Ph.D. from UNC in 1958. He has directed the College Adjustment Program for High Point for the past two summers.

Mr. Carl C. Savage has assumed his duties as Director of the News Bureau and Instructor of Speech. Mr. Savage holds the A.B. degree from Belmont College, Nashville, Tennessee, the Master of Religious Education degree from New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary.

Piedmont University Center Director, Keppel Addressed First HPC Convocation Assembly

High Point College began with another first this year, a convocation which was held in the Memorial Auditorium Friday, September 11. Dr. Alvin Robert Keppel, executive director of the Piedmont University Center at Winston-Salem, was the guest speaker.

In his speech, Dr. Keppel said that "the acquisition of Scholarship of the Mind" and "Scholarship of the Heart" are the two major elements needed by the college students of today. Dr. Keppel went on to say that there was a need for men and women of intellect, of great mental stature, fired with a burning intellectual curiosity and possessing the capacity to think critically and to weigh evidence dispassionately.

Dr. Keppel listed several professional groups, scientists, doctors, businessmen and women, politicians, historians, and theologians, which need to have men and women who are dedicated to professional excellence. "But most of all we need just good men and good women who are rich not only in "Scholarship of Mind" but who are equally rich in "Scholarship of Heart" for the mind is but one dimension of a human being, the body is but another, essential as it is, but without the third dimension, the other two are ineffectual. It is only this third dimension that makes possible depth of personality and purposeful coordination and this third dimension is the heart!" stated Dr. Keppel. He also declared that integrity, fairness, tolerance, humility, graciousness, and consideration of others is a quality of the heart that is often scoffed at today.

Dr. Keppel concluded his statements by challenging the students to make the Christian College at High Point "not only a place of higher learning" but a center and symbol of man's higher learning . . . by all that you do, all that you are, and all that you try to become."

For many years Dr. Keppel has worked with young people in the field of education, having been a high school teacher, principal, and a college president. He has also served as the executive secretary of the Evangelical board of Christian Education of the Evangelical Reform Church, president of the North Carolina College Conference and president of the North Carolina Foundation of Church related Colleges. He served as President of Catawba College several years before becoming the Director of the Piedmont University Center.

Dr. Harold Conrad, Dean of Academic Planning, officiated at the Convocation.

President Wendell M. Patton, Dean David W. Cole, Dr. Earl P. Crow, Dr. William Locke, Dr. Conrad, and Dr. Keppel were members of the academic procession. Mr. Charles A. Lynam, assistant professor in Fine Arts sang "I Will Sing New Songs of Gladness" by Dvorak and was accompanied at the piano by Miss Ernestine Fields.

The convocation services will become an annual part of the opening of High Point College at which time all students and faculty members will be present.

The now familiar sight of purple and white beanies originated here in Memorial Auditorium when Ralph Hoar capped the freshman class. Rob Wells, the sophomore class president, also gave the freshmen a few words of encouragement.

The Hi-Po Wants To Know

The first few days and weeks of college life are a bit trying at times. For the first question of the year the Hi-Po thought it might be interesting to find out what freshmen and transfer students think about High Point College.

The question we asked the following students was: What is your opinion of your first week at High Point College?

Art Smith, a freshman from Washington, D. C., replied: The people are friendly and courteous. It has been an interesting, but long week.

A freshman day student, Brenda Varner from Thomasville, N. C. said: My first impression of High Point College was its friendly people. Everyone I met seemed to be nice and very helpful. The first week was rather confusing, but worth all the trouble.

Gail Wilson, a freshman dorm student from Asheboro, N. C. answered: I love H.P.C.! At first the long, long lines almost got me, but now I feel a real part of the college. I have yet to meet a snobby person.

A freshman dorm student, Lisle Millard, from Tarboro, N. C. had this to say about H.P.C.: This week at High Point College has been the most rewarding and interesting week of my life. During this week, entertainment was intermingled with work. To put these sentences into one word, orientation week was great.

Harriet McGinnis, a freshman from Salisbury, N. C. replied: My opinion of the first week of school wasn't too good. There were a lot of adjustments to be made, any many of them were not easy. There were a lot of new people to meet and live with, that I had never before met.

An out of state freshman, John Stienglitz, from Palisade Park, N. J. answered: High Point College is academically sound but boring at times. They should re-do the bathrooms. The dances were good and I enjoyed most of them.

Two girls from Mt. Airy, N. C. have their own opinions about H.P.C. Susan Golden replied: My opinion of the first week of school was that it was a dream. Everything happened so fast and all at once. So many things were different, but everything was exciting. Brenda Collins answered: My opinion of the first week was not at all what I expected. But it was very different and exciting.

Some transfer students Jim Wilson and Barbara Burton have these things to say about High Point. Jim replied: High Point College seems to have a warm atmosphere. Friends are easily made. It is easily seen that much time and effort was put into the Orientation program. High Point College also offers a wide range of student activities. I think that I will enjoy my stay at H.P.C. Barbara, a transfer from Guilford said: I have found that High Point is completely interested in the student as an individual. It makes being away from old friends much easier.

Richie Marshall, from Silver Springs, Md., answered: The atmosphere is very friendly. The first dance was very good. The food is good.

Social News

by C. J. Neal and C. M. Worthy

Hi There!

The school year is well into swing with the promise of more and better things to come. The sororities and fraternities are regrouping their forces getting ready to start the never-ending social whirl. Rush will begin in a few weeks so look out, freshmen and transfers. Your nightly visitors aren't really wanting to play with your boa-constrictor - it's you they're after!

The dances during orientation had to have been the best this writer has seen in many a moon. Let's hope that the social scene will continue in that spirit throughout the entire year. The enthusiasm of the new students infected even the tired old seniors who have watched dances come and go for three years.

A reminder to Greek editors and all independents: Social news is due the Wednesday after the paper comes out. Any news which comes in later than Wednesday cannot be included. C. M. Worthy is in charge of men's news. Women's news can be sent to me or brought to my humble abode.

The Lambda Chi's held an open house in their lounge for the entire student body and faculty. Distinguished guests included Dr. Patton, Dean Farmer, Dr. Pritchett, Dr. Gratiot, and Dale Brown. The lounge was filled to overflowing. Nice job, fellows.

While the Delta Sig's are planning one of their famous mountain trips, the Theta Chi's are planning some of their famous sandwiches. All the girls should prepare for the attack.

Baseball Team To Play October 3

Fall baseball practice started with a bang on September 14. Thirty young men composed one of the best turnouts in years with emphases on quantity and quality. The baseball team last year had a record of 14 wins and 7 defeats. The team lost two pitchers, however, they have gained three freshmen — Forrest Dover, Richard Marshall and David Mowery. Some of the players expected to help are Jerry Lambert, Robert Robinson, second base; and Jennings Austin who could help us in the future at shortstop. This year, two transfers will become eligible. Keith Connor is a good long ball hitter and could possibly start. Clyde Aiken is a good hitter and plays outfield. Also returning are David Kemp, who plays first base and received All-Conference, All-District and Honorable Mention All-American. Joe Forte received All-Conference.

The HPC Baseball team will play a double-header on our home field against Belmont Abbey on October 3, at 1:00. Let us show our school spirit by attending this baseball game. Baseball is coached by Coach Hartman.

Plans Made For Intramural Football

Intramural football will start Monday, September 28. The defending champions are Pi Kappa Alpha and the intramural point championship was won last year by Delta Sigma Phi. These football games should prove interesting and worth your while to attend.

Cross Country Looks Forward To Good Year

The Cross Country Team will feel the loss of Mike Sabino and Jack Wagner. It will be hard to replace runners of this caliber.

The leading prospect this year is Lewis Failow. Lewis is a former HPC cross-country runner in 1959. He ran the equivalent of 4-19 mile while in the service. Griff Bathis should be much improved over last year. Bob Brennan is expected to carry a heavy load and the other returnee is Tony Boyles. The newcomers include Roy Schumacher, Ed Clark, Bob Betterson and Charlie So. Philip Joyce, a junior college transfer student, will be a help to the team. The team will be coached by Coach Davidson.

The home meets will be held at Blair Park on S. Main St. In the past, attendance at these home meets has been poor. Let us show the team the school spirit HPC has by attending and supporting the Cross Country team at their meets.

Quinn Announces Additions Made to Basketball Team

High Point College will see some new faces in basketball this year. We have a fine crop of freshmen and transfers that are expected to help the basketball team.

New Transfers

Among the transfers are Bill Greene from Auburn, N. Y., who plays forward or pivot. He is married and has a daughter. Bill is 6' 9" and was an All-American in high school and has an outstanding record in basketball.

Jay Reed, 6', from Vienna, Va., comes from Chowan College. Jay plays the position of guard, and big things are expected of him.

Freshmen Players

The new freshmen include Steve Peaytt, 6' 5" and weighing 200 lbs. Steve lives in Brilliant, Ohio and made All-State. He averaged 23 points and 17 rebounds in high school. He plays the position of forward.

Scott MacDougall, 6' 5", 185 lbs., lives in Silver Springs, Md. He plays forward and is a good rebounder and excellent student.

Another freshman player is Larry Wall from Pilot Mountain, N. C. Larry is a tremendous outside shooter and rebounder. He attended East Surry High School which won the State 1-A Championship.

Dan Norbut, who just turned 18, is a 6' 9" player from North Babylon, N. Y. Dan is young, but he possesses good speed and has great jumping ability for his age. He was coached by former N. Y. Knickerbocker player, Brendon McCann.

Steve Spencer, a lover of basketball, is 6' guard from Madison, N. C. Steve could very well become one of the great defensive specialists of the game.

Rodney Kemp, a frosh from Morehead City, N. C., is also a good prospect for the future.

Transfer student, Bill McDermott, is 6' 6" and tips the scales at 220 pounds. Bill is from Washington, D. C. and was a former teammate of Barry Smith, who now plays for HPC. Although not eligible this year he will be a tremendous asset to the team next year.

Returning Players

The returning players include seniors Dale Neel, All-Conference, Panther's 1963-64 Most Valuable Player and an Alternate on the Olympic Tryout Team. Barry Smith received honorable mention Little All-American and All-District, and All-Conference. Joe Forte, a transfer from Brevard College, received Honorable Mention in the All-American Junior College division. Kirk Stewart, considered by many to be one of the best offensive forwards in the Carolina conference, is also back for another year. Also returning are sophomores Jerry Lambert, Larry Cheatham, Bob Bivens and Larry Morgan.

The team manager this year is Mario Dell-Amico, a junior transfer from Brevard.

Getting into shape for the fast approaching basketball season are the old and new members of the team. They are: front row; S. Spencer, R. Kemp, B. Smith, J. Reed, J. Lambert, J. Forte, M. Dell-Amico-manager. In the back row are the taller squad members: Loewenthal, B. Bivens, B. McDermott, S. MacDougall, S. Peaytt, K. Stewart, L. Wall, D. Neel, B. Greene, D. Norbut, L. Cheatham.

HPC English Club Expects Big Year

The High Point College English Club has met, and is planning numerous programs for the year. Included in their plan of activities is a dinner meeting with the noted North Carolina poet, Randall Jarrell, who is in residence at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. The date for Mr. Jarrell's appearance on campus has not been established as yet.

On October 18, the English club plans to visit the Little Phenix Lodge, the summer residence of Mr. and Mrs. McMeekin-Kerr. The McMeekins have invited the club to spend an afternoon with them at their mountain retreat.

October 13 the annual Town Meeting on Books will be held at Greensboro College at Greensboro, Odell auditorium. This event marked the beginning of the English Club last year, and it will probably become a yearly feature of the English Club activities. Dr. Halladay has tickets available for anyone who would like to attend. The Town Meeting on Books is sponsored by the Historical Book Club of North Carolina. Featured in this year's program are author-reviewer Virginia Peterson and novelist Richard McKenna.

At the first meeting of the English Club the program centered around a discussion of how one goes about being a poet. Included in the discussion was an analysis of a poem.

Last evening, the private dining room of Harrison Hall set the stage for a seance-like affair conducted by the Godwins. They conducted a discussion of ghost stories of North Carolina, Mrs. Godwin speaking on the literary aspects of the subject while her husband handled the psychological viewpoint.

The purpose of the English Club is to stimulate interested students in cultural activities on campus and off.

Publications Group To Attend Meeting

Plans for the Journalism Workshop which will take place at Pfeiffer College in mid-October have been completed, announced Dr. Paul Gratiot, the HPC representative on the planning committee.

Attending the workshop will be five or six staff members from Elon, Pfeiffer, Wake Forest, Greensboro College, Lenoir Rhyne, Salem College, Catawba, Queens, Davidson, and High Point.

The purpose of this meeting is to discuss the problems involved in exchange columns, censorship, good news, editorial policy, sports coverage, sorority and fraternity news, and the function of the paper.

Various means of solving these problems will be presented through panel discussions, group sharing, films, news commentators, the alumni secretary, the director of admissions, the president of the student body, and a publications committee.

Members of the Hi-Po staff attending this meeting will be Al Rauch, editor; Phyllis Foy, news editor; C. J. Neal, sports editor; Bob Thurston, sports editor; Doug Shephard, news reporter; and Richard Stinson, managing editor.

The policies contain qualifications and duties of all the staff members plus rules and procedures for the publication of the yearbook. HPC To Join National Honorary

Dr. Wendell M. Patton, President of High Point College, announced that High Point College is preparing to petition the National Honor Society for Education, Kappa Delta Pi, so that the college might establish a chapter on campus.

Kappa Delta Pi is a national, professional educational fraternity for both men and women, founded in 1909 at the University of Illinois. It is dedicated to the cause of teaching as a profession and has chapters at most of the leading colleges and universities in the nation. Its primary aim is to foster high standards of preparation for teaching and to invite into the bonds of fellowship those who have attained excellence of scholarship and distinction of achievement as students and servants of education.

The Kappa Delta Pi will be a stimulus to greater quality and enthusiasm in the activities of the faculty members and students. An honor society in education on the campus would add incentive and challenge for higher goals among both the faculty and students, and thus help the Education Department in its effort to raise its standards even higher and interest more worthy people in the education field.

Fine Arts Festival To Be Offered

High Point College will hold its first Fine Arts Festival during the week of November 15 through 21.

The Festival will commemorate the 400th anniversary of the birth of William Shakespeare and will consist of the Folger Library Shakespeare Exhibit from Washington; a film play, "Henry the Fifth"; Recordings of various Shakespearean plays; a lecture by a noted Shakespearean authority, excerpts from several Shakespearean plays acted out by the "Carrodines" of New York; and an opera, "The Merchant of Venice," written especially for the festival by Dr. Lew Lewis, Chairman of the Fine Arts Department at High Point College.

The idea for the Fine Arts Festival had its origin after President Wendell Patton and Dean David Cole agreed to a sabbatical leave for Dr. Lew Lewis in order that he might write an opera for the college. In a meeting with Dr. Lewis, President Patton and Dean Cole discussed the use to be made of the opera after it was written and plans for the Fine Arts Festival were formed. By the end of August this year, Dr. Lewis had completed his opera based on Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice" and with the aid of the Fine Arts Festival Committee, Dr. Dan Cooke, Don Drapeau, Mrs. Dorothy Griffiths, Dr. William R. Locke, Dr. C. E. Mounts, and Raiford Porter, devised the program for the festival. The Festival is to be one of High Point College's contributions to the advancement of culture for the college family and the community at large.

The student body is encouraged to participate in these cultural events.

All seniors who will complete graduation requirements in January, make application for graduation in Dean of College's office before October 30.

Hardisten, III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam G. Hardisten, Jr. of Winston-Salem, North Carolina, was elected vice president of the class. An Owensboro, Kentucky native, Dawn Hamilton, was elected secretary. Dawn is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Harold P. Hamiltin. The supposedly responsible job went to Rodney Kemp. The class treasurer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Truman Kemp, Morehead City, North Carolina.

The Barn Dinner Theatre:

SOMETHING NEW FOR FUN

There has been something new for fun added in the "Golden Triangle" area. Adjacent to the Greensboro-High Point-Winston-Salem Airport can be seen The Barn Dinner Theatre, a new first in this area established by the International Dinner Theatres. "The Barn" is a monstrous red structure (a barn in every detail, if you haven't already guessed it) complete inside and out with genuine barn decor. A superb dinner (a gourmet's delight-buffet style) and a live play by professional Broadway actors constitute the uniqueness of this dinner theatre.

Recently The Hi-Po was sent four complimentary tickets by the management of "The Barn". Numerous college newspapers in this area were also sent tickets in a promotional venture to help spread the news of this fine innovation. Al Rauch and I were the lucky recipients of this evening "on the house". Accompanied by our dates, we drove to "The Barn" and arrived at seven o'clock just in time to be seated by the Maitre D' and served by our actor-waiter. Our actor-waiter told us that "The Barn" was one of a chain of dinner theatres established in New York, Richmond, Virginia, and another soon to be built in Atlanta, Georgia. He went on to say that the various Broadway plays and the actors were continuously circulated along the chain to provide fresh plays and acting talent. After we spent some more time with our host discussing the fine points of the play we were later to see (See How They Run by Phillip King), we enjoyed the varied and abundant food piled ceiling-high in the middle of the dining area; This food was prepared and served with great care and was really meant to be eaten.

At eight-thirty after dinner, the stage descended slowly from its place on the ceiling unto the center of the dining area. The three-act play was a hysterical comedy about a reserve English vicar and his theatrical wife and the intriguingly funny set of triangles they became enveloped in as a result of a number of strange circumstances. The evening was a real joy and a "must" for all who appreciate fine food and good acting. The total cost for this wonderful evening is five dollars per person. This cost includes the play and all the food you can eat. "Set-ups" are available at a reasonable charge. For reservations call 292-2211 in High Point or Winston-Salem or 292-3311 in Greensboro. "The Barn" will be, we predict, a regular high point in area entertainment.

SPEAKING OUT!

"Would you rather date on or off campus?" the questionnaire asked. On or off campus - what a question! What is there on campus to date to! Exploring the weeks intensely, we find there is one—a Sunday night movie. The meals cannot really count because one can hardly call eating in Harrison Hall a date. Meeting at the Student Center also cannot be classified as a date because that usually happens accidentally. The same goes for the bookstore. What's left?—a Sunday night movie!

Horrors! One movie per week!—and on the last night of the weekend when everyone has to catch up on what he had not done for Monday! What is our campus social life coming to!

I must admit that there were plenty of things to do the first week of school and that there will be more events once basketball season begins; but what are we to do until then! The bookstore is not even cleared out.

I realize that many social events are more expensive and require more planning than the student body can afford; however, there are other activities that can be planned easily and inexpensively—for example, record hops, folk sings, and student talent shows. A banquet could even be planned with a theme and entertainment to raise money. Individual slides or movies could be shared. A home movie party can be fun!

To one who argues that these suggestions require work and cooperation, I say let those who want to work work. I know of quite a few people who could add much and would be glad to help with planning some events. I cry, "Can't something be done!"

A Matter of Individual Concern

by Phyllis Foy

Once many, many years ago on an island in the South Pacific lived a small tribe of sturdy, hard working Illu natives. These peoples were quite crafty, and possessors of great wit and artistic abilities which had come to them through their particular culture. However, they clung to the ethics and morals their ancestors had established hundreds of years hence, and failed to even question the possibility of change in any aspect of their set life patterns.

Food hunting, meal preparing, and meal taking was a communal affair in which each member of the tribe was expected to hold up his end or suffer severe punishment. Likewise, entertainment and the primitive mode of education of the young was a communal affair, whereas the participants taught or entertained by means of the age old traditions with no introduction of new thought or expression of feeling.

Their homes they built exactly alike, even the minute weave of the thatched roof was standardized. Upon each door of the grass shack abodes was a replica of the tribe coat-of-arms, and the names of the inhabitants of each home. Nothing else.

Thus lived the Illus in their somewhat stifled society, until one day a canoe with two natives sought refuge from the renegades who had ransacked the democracy of their society on a far-distant, yet neighboring island.

The islanders greeted the strangers with a hearty welcome, and the Illu chief granted that the newcomers might rent a certain amount of property for a said amount of time until they were able to once again return to their homeland if they should so desire.

"Ah!" thought the Illu chief, "We have gained much wealth by this transaction." But, little did the Illu chief know of the two newcomers, and the society from which they had sprung.

Ichu and Mahue, the visiting natives, reaped well during the first fortnight of their visit among the Illu natives, sharing their homes, their meals, their women, and even a discernable portion of their work.

All continued well until the time came for them to construct their own abodes. Here a point of disagreement arose. Machi, the chief, backed by his people, insisted that they should comply with the standard Illu model home, complete with the Illu coat-of-arms, etc., as the natives believed that the newcomers had become a part of their group. However, Ichu and Mahue were very rebellious about this particular matter (or point) of conformity. In their society they had built their own homes according to their own set standards, and each had his individual door-mark as an indicator of his own personality, trade, and skill.

Despite the protests of the Illu chieftain and his peoples, the newcomers proceeded to build their abodes as they wished upon the land they had rented, the finished product being one which drew admiration from many of the Illu tribesmen. However, the chief, infuriated that anyone had dared defy the tradition of his people, ransacked and destroyed the homes during the communal supper hour.

Following the evening meal, Ichu and Mahue returned to their respective living quarters only to find smoking remains of many hours of loving labor.

"Why does this man persist in trying to stamp out all individuality?" Mahue asked his friend. "This is our land; we paid for it with our most precious possessions, and yet, we are not even allowed to utilize it to our own individual needs even though we are conscious that no damage shall come to the land itself."

"This appears to be true my friend," replied the other. "Perhaps we should consort to petitioning the younger members of the tribe to seeing our point of view. They admired our craft and skill. This was fully evident from the awe and fascination they showed at what we had done. Perhaps it is only by appeal to those who are not so set in their ways that we can prove that what this island society needs, if it should continue to survive and reap benefits rather than a day to day existence, is a spark of individuality inculcated into the seemingly petty experiences of existence."

"Well said, my companion."

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor,

The other day I overheard a group of girls standing behind me in the lunch line complain about the lack of competence in the recently selected additions to the cheerleading squad. I assume you know that the new members are chosen by those already on the squad. I gathered from the way these girls talked that they felt a bit of favoritism was involved in these latest selections. At first I thought, "Well, perhaps these girls are just bitter because they tried out for the squad and didn't make it." However, this was not the case. They did mention several girls who had tried out, and who, in their estimations, should have been chosen.

It was at this point, Mr. Editor, that I interrupted their conversation and inquired of them why the girls they had named—whom they felt deserved to be selected—were rejected. They all sort of laughed, and then one of them said to me, "A girl must first join the right sorority before she can become eligible for the cheerleaders." Pushing this point a bit further, I found out that three or four of the cheerleaders are in the same sorority. Interestingly enough, the new cheerleaders are in that same group or closely related to it.

Of course, it could be that these girls are just prejudiced against this one sorority and are trying to make the above mentioned connection for the purpose of causing unrest. Whatever their reasons are, I think they have come up with a valid criticism of the system now used to select new cheerleaders. I have heard that in many schools the candidates for cheerleading must audition before the whole student body. I think this method an exceptionally good one, for it gives the students a voice in choosing those who will represent them. And this is what the cheerleaders essentially do; they represent the whole student body.

Now if this method were impractical here at High Point, perhaps the President of the S.G.A. could appoint a committee of students and faculty—I am including the faculty because they are just as much a part of the college as we students—for selecting new cheerleaders. This method would give the students a voice in this matter, and also remove any criticism or doubt from those presently making the selection.

Perhaps some of your readers may have a comment on this situation. I should like to hear them, as I am sure those girls in the lunch line would. Until then, I remain sincerely, —Campus Betterment.

Dear Editor,

This morning I arrived at High Point College five minutes early for my 8:20 class . . . fully confident that, being early, I would have no trouble finding a parking place. No dice.

Every parking space designated for the use of day students (areas B, E, F, and G) was taken. By the time I had driven futilely around all these areas . . . under the watchful eye of our campus policeman, it was time to go to class. So, seeing no recourse, I parked my car in one of the many empty spaces which have been allotted to men dorm students.

After class, I went out to move my car . . . and your guess is right . . . sitting on my windshield was one of those cute little yellow stickers . . . which will bring a two dollar fine for illegal parking.

I realize that High Point College is in desperate need of money . . . but, dammit, so am I. And it seems to me that the needs of faculty and day students, who comprise the majority of car-driving students, should be given priority in parking. Instead of letting so many parking places go unused . . . why not allot them to day students on a "first-come, first served" basis . . . After all, that's the American way.

Very truly yours,
Marcia Wechter

Intramural Programs Begin

Happy days are here again! HPC has been in session for almost a month, and by now everyone is probably pretty well-used to their rooms, their room-mates, and their studies.

Of course many of us have to get used to physical exercises again, too. The fellows have to get back in condition for touch football, and the girls have to condition for speedball.

Speedball is the first activity on the agenda for the Girls' Intramural program this year. The season started on Tuesday, September 29th, with two games being played. The Day Students and Zeta Tau Alpha sorority joined together as a team in a game against Kappa Delta sorority. The KD's won the game. The second game played was the Phi Mu sorority playing Alpha Gamma Delta in which the Alpha Gams were victorious. Both KD and Alpha Gam seem to have their eyes directed toward the trophy that the Day Students speedball team won last year.

The results of the October 7 games between the Day Students and Zetas vs. North, Wesley, and Yaddin Halls, and Phi Mu vs. Womans Hall have not yet been received.

Should it stop raining long enough, however, the speedball season will continue. Any girls interested in coming out to play need only come on the day their team plays. Schedules are posted in the gym. Much fun and a lot of good competition is involved (as well as exercise, girls). Should you not be able to make the speedball tournament girls, be sure and come out for volleyball.

SGA Moves Into Action

The first meeting of the 1964-65 Student Legislature was held in the Student Center classroom. The first order of business was to elect a new Speaker of the House and Steve Buff was voted Speaker by acclamation. The Legislature voted to approve the appointment of Wayne Furman as Chief Justice of the Judiciary Council, and Jan Samet was approved as representative of the Day Students.

The Legislature decided to place a $2 fine on absentees. This fine will be a personal fine instead of organizational as it had been previously. Students will not be allowed to take their final exams until these fines have been cleared.

Linda Greason and Nancy Tabor will replace Sandi Newsome as chairmen of the Entertainment Committee and Brenda Symmes will head a committee on the revision of the Penal Code.

The Legislative members wish to inform the Student Body that all meetings are open and anyone may attend. They would appreciate any suggestions for new bills and would also appreciate student support of the standing committees. Contact your class representatives or the standing committee chairmen if you wish to volunteer your services. The Entertainment Committee is responsible for all big campus weekends and without student support there will be no Fall or Spring Weekends.

Baseball Team Tops Belmont Abbey

The Fall Baseball Team of High Point College was victorious against Belmont Abbey on two separate double-headers. The first double-header was played at Belmont Abbey on September 26, 1964. In the first game, freshman Bobby Robertson hit a home run. The two games were won by HPC, 8-4 and 3-0.

The first game played on our home field was held at 2:00 p.m. The starting line-up for the first game was Catcher—K. Connor, First Base—D. Kemp, Second Base—B. Robertson, Third Base—

H. Moose, Shortstop—R. Greenwood, Left Field—C. Craver, Right Field—T. Dignan, and Center Field—B. Harris. The hitting department included D. Kemp—2 hits, K. Connor—2 hits, and T. Dignan also 2 hits. The starting pitcher was D. Mowery who was relieved in the fourth inning by Richie Marshall. Marshall pitched the remaining of the game. The score of the first game was 4-1.

The second game of the double-header was won by HPC 4-2. The starting pitcher for the team was F. Dover who pitched 3 innings. S. Mardeusy and B. Cappa pitched one inning each. The remaining two innings was pitched by G. Holland. The hitting department was led by Kemp and Dignan. The changes in line-up were Catcher—G. Laire, Shortstop—Spence Brown, L. Field—C. Aiken, C. Field—D. Cook, and R. Field—J. Jawaybo.

The Fall baseball team should be congratulated for its fine showing against Belmont Abbey by winning four baseball games from them. The baseball team is coached by the capable hands of Coach Hartman.

Mrs. Hazel Long

Mrs. Long, the house mother of McCulloch Hall, was born in Wytheville, Virginia. She has been a resident of Winston-Salem for the past 40 years. Before coming to HPC, she was Supervisor in the Dietary Department of City Hospital in Winston-Salem, North Carolina.

Mrs. Long is "Momma" to 201 men under her care which is quite a task. Along with her many varied duties, she is taking a course in Typewriting.

Basketball and football are the sports she enjoys. Her hobbies include needle-point and making drapes.

Mrs. Long has four grown children. Two daughters, who graduated from Wake Forest College, are now teaching. One son is in business in Greensboro, North Carolina and another is attending night school. Also, she has four lovely grandchildren.

We, the staff of the HI-PO extend a welcome to Mrs. Long and hope that her stay at High Point College will be long and enjoyable.

HPC Day Rewards Lucky Students

HPC Day, which was sponsored by the High Point Merchants' Association, was once again a successful and "rewarding" event. This special day, held on Saturday, October 10th, gave the students and faculty of HPC an opportunity to go to the stores in High Point and register for free prizes. Drawing for the prizes took place during assembly October 14th. Gifts included such items as transistor radios, gift certificates, clothing, jewelry, and sports equipment, which went to 45 lucky winners. The most spectacular event, however, came at the end of the program when young David Ring drew the ticket for the grand prize, a Motorola portable TV complete with stand and serving trays, this gift being a complimentary gift of the Merchants' Association.

The name on the card drawn was Bill Carter. Now usually there is only one winner for the grand prize. But this year, just for variety, there turned out to be two Bill Carters. After a bit of confusion and laughter, both boys were asked to produce their signature, and the young man owning the matching signature was awarded the TV.

Other winners were Tracy McCarthy who won a transistor radio from Advance Store. Jim Patton received a matched coordinate from Alexander's. From Beeson Hardware, Laurie Abbot received a tennis racket. Stanley Mardel won a $10 gift certificate from Belk-Beck Company. Also receiving $10 gift certificates were Sharon Harsberger, Candy Sarmuck, Mike Preston, and R. B. Vemp.

Charlie So won a ladies' handbag from the Buddy Dale Hat Shop. The Carolina Tire Company gave away a sterling silver tray which David Dorsey won. Wayne Furman won a transistor radio from the Firestone Store. Another gift certificate this time of $5 was given by Friedman Fashions and received by Charles Husks. The Gem Shop presented Susan LaSalle with a Speidel watch band.

Other $10 gift certificates were presented by Gilbert's Shoe Store, which Mike Cantrele won; Gill's, which Donna Shelly received; Men's Den, which Frankie Thigpin won; Stutts Men's Store, which Bobbie Hussey received; Tobias which Larry Dunlap won; and Harlee's, which Steve Piott received. Five dollar certificates were won by R. L. Owens, from Glenn's Sewing Machine; Kathy Rogers, from Quality Shoe Store; Charlotte Anderson, from Sample Shoe Store; Carol Pope, from Straughn's Book Store; and Tony Taylor, from the Sweet Shop. Bob Squirt received a $15 gift certificate from the Jewel Box. Barry Osborne is allowed to choose any $10 item from Watson Clothiers.

Transistor radios were won by Jimmy Dolittle from B. F. Goodrich; Kay Jackson, from Mann's Drug No. 1; Anita Loomas, from Novelty Sales and Dealers TV; Elinor Parkay, from Richardson's Department Store; Bill McGinnis, from Ring Harris Drug Store; and Rex Connor, from F. W. Woolworth Company.

Jerry Stevens won a Kodak Instamatic No. 1 Camera Outfit from Graham Photo. Mayada Kiser won a choice of a new fall hat from The Hat Box. To wake

Hamilton Seeks Help

January in June—Christmas in October! Hardly that, nor is your Library rushing the season, for do you realize that 66 days from the date of these words is Christmas! Your Library is usually decorated some three weeks before Christmas, so you can see "It is later than you think!"

This year we especially want to decorate your Library to please you. Have you ideas for decorating the Library for Christmas? If so, will you, please, come to the Periodical Room (Ground Floor) and talk with Mrs. Hamilton. She is not an artist, but she knows a student on the campus who is! Come one, come all—we shall welcome your decorative ideas.

Freshmen And Sophomores To Host Parents November 7

High Point College will again sponsor a Parents Day November 7. This year the parents of freshmen and sophomores have been invited to participate in the day's activities. Registration will take place in the foyer of Memorial Auditorium at 9:00 a.m. At 9:30 there will be an assembly in the auditorium at which time Dr. L. B. Pope, the freshman class advisor, will welcome the parents to the High Point College campus. Dr. Wendell M. Patton, Dean David Cole, Mr. Charles Farmer, and Mr. Thomas Brazier, president of the freshman class, will also address the parents.

Following the assembly program, parents will be invited to hold conferences with professors. Tours of the campus will be conducted by the officers of the S.C.A. at this time also. All residence dorms will be open for inspection by the parents.

A luncheon in Harrison Hall at 12:15 will be held. Parents and children are to be the guests of the college. Conferences with professors will be continued after lunch. At 2:00 a musical program will be held in the rehearsal room in the fine arts building. A Faculty and Parents Tea will complete activities of the day in the Student Center.

Freshman class officers will be in charge of the registration of parents in the morning in the foyer of the auditorium. The sophomore class officers will assist Mrs. Griffiths in the afternoon at the Tea. The officers of the S.C.A. will be hosts of the parents and will conduct the tours of the campus.

During the day entertainment will be provided by the physical education department for the younger members of students' families in the gymnasium. Members of the choir and the band will provide the musical entertainment during the afternoon.

The purpose of the Parents Day is to give parents an insight into the type of program High Point College has to offer. The program for the day will give parents an opportunity to meet the professors who instruct their sons and daughters. These meetings will promote a closer relationship between faculty members and the parents of students. Parents will be able to see the facilities which High Point College has to offer and become familiar with dorms, laboratories, and classroom facilities. The program will also promote fellowship with the parents of other freshman and sophomore students.

Junior Marshals Announced For '65

Junior Marshals for the 1964-65 school year have been announced by the faculty after their October 14 meeting. Selected to be chief marshals were Pamela Sue Fletcher and George Roycroft. Other members of the junior class who will act as marshals at various college functions are: Myra Morris, Kenneth Craven, Dorothy Don Hevener, John Roger Rayne, Mary Elizabeth Neese, Bobby Gordon, M. Betts Davis, Jerry D. Proffitt, Frieda Holt, Charles A. Kerr, Helen Ann Talley, Kenneth Gilliam, Ramonia Lomax, Jerry Wayne OKelly, Stephen R. Pearson, and Jerry Ray Davis.

The Junior Marshals were chosen on the basis of their academic excellence and campus leadership. They were selected by a faculty committee of four headed by Dr. William R. Locke. Two students, Tracy McCarthy, the president of the S.C.A. and Mike Pierce, co-chief marshal for 1963-64, were consulted by this committee before the final nominations were presented to the faculty. McCarthy and Pierce did not have voting privileges, but were asked for recommendations by the committee.

Bishop Smith To Be Finch Lecturer

Bishop John Owen Smith from Atlanta, Georgia will be the Finch lecturer at H.P.C. this year. Bishop Smith will appear on campus for two days, October 27 and 28. Students will have an opportunity to meet and discuss the subject of his presentation which will be announced at a later date. Bishop Smith will lead a Seminar for ministers on Wednesday afternoon October 28, and will conduct a lecture that night for the general public in the Memorial Auditorium.

Dr. David Cole has announced that Thanksgiving Holiday is to begin a day earlier this year. Students will be allowed to leave for the holiday Tuesday, November 24 after classes.

The reason for the extension of the holiday is that there is an uneven number of Monday, Wednesday, and Friday classes. Classes will resume as planned on Monday, November 30, at 8:20 a.m.

Unfortunately this extra day will not be a yearly feature of Thanksgiving Holidays.

HPC Takes Part In Piedmont Center Activities

Every year the Piedmont University Center of North Carolina offers many interesting and rewarding cultural experience for the members of the center. High Point College is proud to be a member of this organization and during the coming weeks High Point College students will be given the opportunity to take advantage of many of these cultural experiences. Not all of the events are taking place on our campus, but if you are interested in attending some of these events on other campuses you are encouraged to do so.

On October 27 at 7:30 p.m. the Chad Mitchell Trio will appear at Mars Hill. On the 29th at 10 a.m., and again at 3:30 p.m. at Greensboro College there will be a concert of the English Consort of Viols. The Little Orchestra of New York will be presented at Livingstone College at 8:15 p.m. in Varick Auditorium.

Keep an eye open to further announcements concerning Piedmont University Center special events happening on other campuses as well as our own.

Campus Viewpoint

PROBLEMS . . . PROBLEMS . . . PROBLEMS

Practically any time one wants to hear a complaint on the High Point College campus, all he has to do is open his mouth. However, when is there any effort made to deal with these complaints?

The officers of the Student Government Association, the presidents of the Interfraternity Council, the Panhellenic Council, the Student Christian Association, the HI-PO, and all other campus organizations have taken on the responsibilities of their office so that these complaints can be dealt with and corrected if possible. It is up to the members of the student body in general to make these officers work for the betterment of the college.

President Patton has established a Presidents Advisory Committee which is a means of communicating with the administration and clearing up many of the questions which students have. As yet this committee has not met, but it is hoped that during the first week of November the Presidents Advisory Committee will meet. All that is required of the student is the submitting of his ideas, complaints, and wishes to the president of his class, the president of a campus organization, or an officer of the S.G.A. These problems will be discussed at the meeting with members of administration, such as Dr. Cole, Mr. Farmer, and various members of the Student Personnel Committee. Solutions will be worked for, and results will be made known to the student through the members of the student body who attended the meeting.

Students are encouraged to submit ideas about clearing up various campus problems, such as cafeteria lines, required assemblies, lack of information in student publications, book store space, lack of parking spaces and anything else to the president of campus organizations. And be certain to ask this officer what decisions were made.

The value of this committee is left entirely up to the student. Make it work!

—Al Rauch.

CAMPUS SPIRIT

When was the last time you broke in line? Have you ever pushed aside someone while trying to get in or out of the post office? Or, how about the bookstore—have you ever shoved your way up to the counter and given your order ahead of someone who has been there much longer than you? Have you ever failed to smile or to speak to someone you knew or did not know? If you have, then you are guilty of encouraging bad campus spirit!

What kind of spirit does High Point College have? Is it the kind of spirit in which we want to function? Do you really think it is all right to let someone permit you to get in line with him when others have been waiting much longer than you? Would you like for someone else to do the same to you?

What about complaining about the assembly program during the program? If you were on stage trying to relate something to an audience, how would you feel if you could hear murmurs of complaint? Would you be able to enjoy a program as much if someone around you started complaining about the mistakes of the speaker? I surely would not! But then, some of us don't care about others, do we!

I must say before I close that I am not as bitter as my questions might imply. As a matter of fact, I am quite impressed with some of the students here—and students control campus spirit. It is because I like High Point College so much that I am concerned when I see actions committed that hurt or are inconsiderate of others. That's a sign of immaturity; and we're in college now, remember?

—Gina Venning.

THANK YOU

Congratulations on a job well done! The new escape hatch made available in our post office was long over-due and will do much to soothe future flare-ups of hysteria, anger, and body-odor.

—Dick Stinson.

A MATTER OF POLICY

It is a general policy of the HI-PO to insist that any letter to the editor be signed by the party submitting it. This is done to regulate the content of the material submitted, identify the writer (in some cases, the accuser), and to allow effective rebuttal by other parties (in some cases, the accused). A letter to the editor in the last issue contained no signature. This was an over-sight on the part of the HI-PO and will not happen again.

A Policy of Non-Support

With free time at a minimum, it is sometimes hard to sit down and write material either of quality or quantity. Most people who read the Hi-PO will confess that there is mostly quantity and little quality to be found between the pages. I must heartily concur, but with explanation. The Hi-PO staff consists of a handful of people who alone bear the bi-monthly experience of getting the paper to press and—to you. These people do the best job they can with the time available, but it will take a much larger staff to make the Hi-PO the kind of paper you will be proud of.

As I see it (and my thoughts are probably mine alone), this college is progressing well academically, but like the Hi-PO, it is suffering severely from the non-support of the student body. This non-support can be attributed to the following elements of paternalism and favoritism on the part of the administration, provincialism and dissension on the part of the greeks, and dissension and resentment on the part of independents. These three areas constitute a vicious cycle since each one affects the other two. Paternalism and favoritism are the administration's greatest faults (and this is not to be construed as an axe-grinding editorial.) One high administrative official told me that this campus was akin to "an adolescent boy not yet grown-up". There is merit in this statement, but part of the cause of this situation lies with the administration. This paternalism plus an over-emphasis of attention to certain groups on this campus and not enough attention to the needs of other groups has resulted in the remaining elements.

The general dissension and non-support of the students of this college hasn't always existed, but has developed in the past years as a result of this unbalanced emphasis on the part of administration, faculty, and a number of students. Many greeks and independents say, "I can't wait to get the hell out of this place." Only non-greeks can know the feeling of administrative favoritism and for the most part resent it. Greeks, on the other hand, do not acknowledge the existence of such a claim, but as egotistical melting pots of provincialism could care less one way or the other; although one greek did say, "the administration ought to do more for greeks on this campus." This individual, living in the modern Millis Dorm inhabited principally by greeks through the power of collective bargaining, may be right, who knows? Although there is little doubt that greeks support their respective organizations to a great extent, both greeks and independents are "guilty" of dissension and non-support toward the college itself. What should be done about this dilemma, I leave to the reader's imagination.

Issue Open For Discussion

By H. NEIL BERKSON
The Michigan Daily
Collegiate Press Service

At one time fraternities and sororities were an integral part of college life. Now Greek chapters contain a small percentage of university students. Their numbers have been relatively static for some years and should begin to decline in the near future.

The university has passed the system by. This has happened, I believe, for two reasons, the second of which interests me most.

On the one hand, a fraternity offers no unique advantages, no benefits which cannot be obtained elsewhere. Rush talk to the contrary, a house neither complements nor supplements academic life—it is a social organization and was never meant to be an intellectual proving ground. Nor does a house have some singular atmosphere which creates friendships. In these respects a fraternity is most often irrelevant to personal development.

On the other hand, fraternities are highly anti-intellectual. They take some of society's worst values—status seeking, materialism, conformity, discrimination—and structure them into a closed system.

The essential element in any person is his individuality. The university is valuable to him only insofar as it develops his sense of self.

Paradoxically, however, he can learn about himself only in relation to what he learns about everything around him.

This would not be true if man could live apart from society, but he cannot. Therefore, to move with any assurance he must have a broad comprehension of the fantastically complex events which shape his life. The more limited his experiences, the more likely that he will face "foreign" situations with which he will be unable to cope rationally.

(Parenthetically, it would be interesting to analyze the Goldwater movement in these terms.)

The irresolvable weakness in fraternities is that they narrow the range of their members' experiences. Take any fraternity or sorority on campus and you will find a group of people with basically the same socio-economic backgrounds. Moreover, the group's characteristics are constantly in-breeding, so that the difference members might initially bring to a house blend, to some extent, over the course of four years.

The fraternity-sorority member, then, has a heavy intercourse with people who are exactly like he is. This is why houses are so easy to type. Members come from the same relative environment with the same relative upbringing, the same relative values, the same relative prejudices. Group psychology, functioning at a sub-conscious level reinforces an entire thought system without ever examining it.

A proof of this situation lies in the phenomenon called rush. Most fraternity-sorority members will quickly admit to the hypocrisy of it. The judgments are all arbitrary; there is no real way to evaluate a personality.

There is a way, however, to determine who "belongs" and who does not. Rush works because people of a certain environmental framework instinctively recognize their own.

The system has more of an effect on some people than it does on others, and it would be ridiculous to assert that every fraternity-sorority member is an irretrievable, conforming anti-intellectual. In addition, some houses are much narrower than others.

Nevertheless, a closed system has no role in the educational process. Greek life is a leftover relic from a superficial era, and there is no way that it can catch up with the present.

If the world looks black and threatening and your future is bleak, remember, it only looks that way because that's the way it is!

Interviews Set For Prospective Lawyers

Dr. A. Paul Gratiot announced today that on November 3, the Assistant Dean of Law at Vanderbilt University, Dr. Covington will appear on the High Point College campus to interview prospective law students. Dr. Covington will arrive on campus at 9:00 a.m. at which time he will interview any student interested in attending the Vanderbilt Law School. There will be a luncheon in the private dining room of the cafeteria at which time Dr. Covington will be interested in meeting High Point College students. Any student is welcome to come to this luncheon to meet and talk with Dr. Covington. He will be available for private conference throughout the afternoon.

This is the first time that a representative from Vanderbilt's Law School has come to this area of North Carolina to interview students.

Tea Held For Fellowship Grant

On Monday, October 12, the Faculty Committee on Research and Grants sponsored a tea for students (Juniors and Seniors) who had been nominated to apply for the National Woodrow Wilson Fellowship. The purpose of the tea was to give eligible students who are interested in continuing their education in graduate school a chance to become aware of this fellowship which is primarily for the financing of study of those persons who plan to teach some aspect of humanities on the college level, although a student may be selected who plans to study in the natural science field if he has applied for and not received the National Science Foundation Grant.

The Woodrow Wilson Fellowship provides a living stipend of $1800 for a single student in addition to paying all tuition and fees. Married students with children are provided with an additional stipend.

Students were selected for this grant according to high academic rating by the Faculty Committee on Research and Grants which consists of Dr. Halladay, Lawson Allen, Col. Cook, Dr. Cummings, Dr. Lazaruk, Dr. Weatherly, and Dr. Wilson, chairman. The committee plans to entertain those students who actually applied for the fellowship later in the year.

The committee also expresses a desire to work with any student who seeks financial aid in order to go to graduate school.

The Hi-Po Wants To Know

To us here, High Point College is full of opportunities of every kind. To outsiders, though, High Point College might be thought of as a small, co-educational school with limited educational opportunities. Thus, an exceptional student might not come here but might go instead to Duke or U.N.C. With this in mind, we interviewed some of the professors here to find out what educational opportunities there are for an outstanding student at High Point College.

Dr. Mounts of the English department states his ideas this way. He feels very definitely that the English department has much to offer the exceptional English student. He points out the fact that there is an accelerated freshman English course, English 103. He also states that, at present, the department is thinking about an honors program.

In talking about the approach of the English department, Dr. Mounts especially mentioned the required freshman English course since it is prerequisite to all other courses. Dr. Mounts feels that emphasizing reading and comprehension during the first year is a challenge to everyone.

For the student interested in English, Dr. Mounts reminds us that there are numerous opportunities. For the creative student, there is the APOGEE, which is published annually. The man of our times can put his efforts into writing articles or editorials for the HI-PO. The interested English major also has the opportunity of joining the English Club, which indulges in educational and enjoyable meetings twice a month. Yes, I agree. The English department does offer a challenge.

Turning now to the education and psychology department, we went to Mr. Godwin (who incidentally tells wonderful ghost stories). Mr. Godwin points out the important fact that it is not so much the school as it is the student and teacher who stimulate and encourage the exceptional student to work to capacity. He also reminds us that grouping all the outstanding students together does not necessarily insure better results. The main purpose of his psychology classes is to see to it that every student has all the work he can do and as much stimulation as he can take.

Mr. Godwin, as many others have said, reminds us that there is not much that can be done to an introductory course to increase its power of stimulation. One has to learn the basic principles then; and, therefore, the textbook method is followed fairly closely. The ideal situation, Mr. Godwin says, would be for the class to be composed of highly motivated exceptional students who contribute as much, if not more, than the teacher. Since this class is rarely found, Mr. Godwin resorts to gentle outside prodding in order to make his students work to capacity and in order to keep them interested. He has numerous books in his office which he assigns students to read as a required part of his courses. He selects different books for each student depending upon the individual's interests. This process benefits the whole class because each student then brings his newly acquired knowledge to class and supposedly shares it. This method certainly keeps everybody busy!

Let us next look at the religion and philosophy department and what Dr. Crow has to say. He says that the main thing he tries to do in his classes is to make his students think about the subject and then to wonder. Not so much in his freshman courses but in upperclass courses, he suggests to the class and expects the student to do independent research without being told specifically what to read. He also adds that he teaches mainly from his own outline and uses the text as parallel reference.

Dr. Locke also spoke for the religion and philosophy department. He comments that there is really nothing special for the exceptional freshman student in his department but that in upperclass courses, reports are required in which a student can excel in research and independent study. The seminar for majors also increases the freedom of individual work.

Dr. Wilson spoke for the chemistry and physics department. Dr. Wilson points out that chemistry and physics on the undergraduate level involve more the process of understanding what others have discovered than it does originating new knowledge. He calls attention to the fact that chemistry departments all over the country are rated by certain standards set up by the American Chemical Society. He feels as if this system in the United States tends to encourage conformity and repetition, a result which is not always beneficial to the individual or country.

Dr. Wilson points out that any exceptional student who desires to do research and shows capability will be provided with any available facilities possible. He reminds us that any senior who so desires may elect to carry out research in order to make a "contribution to new knowledge." He admits that H.P.C. has limitations in physics, chemistry, and mathematics (a related subject) but remarks that H.P.C. is constantly progressing. He calls attention to the fact that there is no major here in paint chemistry due to the fact that this area is a vocational subject.

Dr. Lewis spoke for the fine arts department. He tries to encourage original thinking and original works of all sorts. He feels that many people cannot become expert in an art but can benefit from taking part in it. Thus, in music appreciation now, everyone learns to play the recorder.

In the fine arts department, music, art, speech, and dramatic courses are offered. Dr. Lewis says the department is progressing and additional opportunities in dramatics are being considered. For the student interested in music, there is the choir, the band, and ensembles open to any student who is qualified. There are piano, organ, band and orchestra instrument, and voice practice rooms available for any student — not just majors — to use. There are pianos, organs, and band instruments there which may be used. There is the Student Art League for anyone, again not just art majors, interested in art. The Tower Players offer a chance for creativity to anyone interested in dramatics or stage work. The possibility of a music students' organization is now being discussed.

The approach to art and music is thus. In art appreciation, lectures are given and slides and movies are shown. More advanced courses in art offer opportunities to express creativity directly. In music appreciation, lectures and records are heard. There is some writing of music involved here which certainly would challenge any student.

Dr. Cole as academic dean and professor of history was the concluding contributor to our interview. He points out that what one gets out of college is up to

Art League Plans Varied Activities

Sunday, October 18, some of the members of the Student Art League darted to Hanging Rock on a sketching trip. Enhanced by the possibility of multi-colored leaves and picturesque mountain scenes, they grabbed sketching pads and various types of media and jumped into cars and headed for the mountains.

This sketching trip is just one activity of the Student Art League. Made up of about 20 members — not all art majors or necessarily art students — the Student Art League went October 16 to Sears and Roebuck in Greensboro to gaze at Vincent Price's collection of saleable art for Sears. The League also plans to visit several out-of-town museums sometime during the year.

The League not only travels, but it also has several service projects for the school. Every year, though it is not well known, the Student Art League tries to purchase a work of art for the cultural betterment of the school. A plaque is now being ordered for the painting, "Druids Haunt" by Raiford Porter, which was bought several years ago and placed in the Student Center. In addition, the League makes all the posters advertising the Sunday night SGA sponsored movies and sets up many exhibits throughout the year in the foyer of the auditorium. It is a shame that so few people know about these exhibits because they are well worthwhile. During the month of November, there will be an excellent exhibit on Japanese prints that everyone will want to see.

The Student Art League this year is especially concerned with raising enough money to buy a work of art for the school. For several years, the League has been unable to donate anything for lack of funds. This year, though, the League has planned several projects for the purpose of raising money. The biggest and best organized project at present is the sale of Beauty Packs for anyone interested in enhancing the complexion. Beauticians will even be provided for those who want a free application. Another project later in the year is a rummage sale. Practically anything will be for sale, ranging from costume jewelry to art work. If enough interest is shown, the League might set up an art rental system so that no one's dormitory walls need be bare.

If anyone is still interested in joining the Art League, see Mr. Porter and join us at our next meeting. The League guarantees you an interesting and enjoyable time.

the individual student. He says that on this campus there are professors who would be honored professors anywhere and that they could easily adjust to almost any type of student. In effect, all the student has to do is to show the interest and ability in a subject and the guidance and facilities will be provided. The more students who do show interest and ability, the better the college can become. So excel, students, excel!

APO Has Plans For Interesting Year

The Mu Xi Chapter of Alpha Phi Omega held an initiation of three new brothers in Lindley Chapel on September 30. Congratulations are in order for new brothers Gerald Yarborough, David Bailey and Bill Nesbitt. Dean Harold Conrad was also initiated as a faculty advisor.

The stag smoker was held on September 30, at First Methodist Church. Dr. Sam Underwood was the guest speaker for this occasion and he gave a very inspiring and challenging speech to the brothers and rushees alike. The Rush Dance was held October 2, also at First Methodist with about 80 rushees, brothers and their dates in attendance. From all indications, a good time was had by everyone.

Eleven new pledges were initiated on Monday, October 12. The new pledges are Drew Ayres, from Rutherford College, North Carolina, David Gilbert, Pfafftown, North Carolina, Tony Hill, Greensboro, North Carolina, Bob Keibler, Hockessin, Delaware, Ray Leonard, Ararat, Virginia, Tom Mair, East Canton, Ohio, Richard Noble, Wilmington, Delaware, Steve Puler, Lincolnton, North Carolina, Daniel Reyes, Camaguey, Cuba, Dave Robinson, Selfridge A.F.B., Michigan, Don Shannor, Winston-Salem, North Carolina.

On October 21, APO in conjunction with the student nurses of High Point Memorial Hospital, sponsored a car wash at Baker's Gulf Station on Main Street. The money raised went to the student nurses fund and the APO foster child in Greece. A doughnut sale was held on October 20, to raise money for the chapter's foster child and other projects.

The brothers of APO hope the students will keep their eyes open for the coming of Peace Corps Day. The support of this project will be greatly appreciated. There will be information available to all students especially those who are planning to be teachers, youth workers, and technicians.

A travel board will soon be built by the brothers and pledges and placed in a central location. This board will be of great service to those students who want or need riders or rides on the weekends and at vacation time. Cards will be placed on the board so the students can find rides or riders to their hometown or other locations. This has been used by several schools and it has met with great success.

The brothers and pledges are looking forward to a picnic and dance at Tanglewood park with our brothers from Wake Forest.

New officers recently installed are: first vice president, Dave Bailey; corresponding secretary, Bill Nesbitt; historian, Bill Carter; athletic director, Gerald Yarborough, and assistant to the pledgemaster, David Dorsey.

Miller Makes Discovery

A new species of shell marine life dating back to about 250 million years ago was discovered by Dr. Halsey W. Miller, Associate Professor of Biology at High Point College, and his paper classifying this ancient animal has been published in the September 1964 Journal of Paleontology.

The scientific name for this creature is the Metacoceras Bowmani belonging to the phylum Mollusca and is a Nautiloidea Cephalopoda.

The fossil was discovered near Williams, Arizona in a limestone quarry of John Bowman. Armed with a chisel and hammer, Miller went to the quarry and salvaged six nearly complete and eight fragmentary specimens of the Toroweap Formation, a limestone deposit dating at this period.

This find and classification of it was significant because it is the only such fossil of its kind which has been discovered.

Debaters Go On Verbal Warpath

Oscar Wilde said argument is vulgar because all members of good society hold exactly the same opinion. Should this aphorism prove true the High Point College Forensic League began its descent down the social ladder October 21, at 8:00 p.m., when it sponsored its first practice debate. This debate marked the formal commencement of the Forensic League's oratorical endeavors for the 1964-65 season. Needless to say, however, the necessary tongue sharpening procedures had been going on for some time under the direction of advisor, Mr. Don Drapeau and Forensic League president Jerry Proffitt.

The topic of debate this year was "resolved: that the federal government should establish a national program of public works for the unemployed." Whether or not the federal government will provide such public works is questionable; however, there is no question as to the employment opportunities offered by this topic to Forensic League members, Jerry Proffitt, Bob Thurston, Gene Treats, Paul Lemons, Barry Levy, Bill Beans and Jan Samet. It is sincerely hoped that their collective efforts this season will be accounted as gainful employment.

Board Raises Tuition for 1965

High Point College President, Wendell M. Patton announced that an operating budget of $1,597,000 was approved by the trustees of the college at their fall meeting. This budget will be the largest in the history of the school. At this meeting officers were re-elected as follows: Holt McPherson, chairman; Horace S. Haworth, vice chairman; Elliott S. Wood, treasurer; and Dr. Patton, secretary. Seven other members were re-elected for four year terms. These members are J. Harriss Covington, James H. Millis, and Elliott S. Wood of High Point; Blaine M. Madison of Raleigh; Felix Harvey III of Kinston; Charles W. McCrary of Asheboro; and William F. Womble of Winston-Salem. Rev. Mel Harbin of Thomasville was named to the executive committee.

Introduced and employed by the board to complete a study of the college in anticipation of a financial funds campaign, William Cumerford, president of Cumerford, Inc. will put his company to work to project the possibility of raising the necessary funds over the 10-year, long-range plan.

J. Harriss Covington, chairman of the Building and Grounds Committee, reported to the board that Yaddin Hall had been completed in time to accommodate 96 women as of fall '64. In addition to this addition to the women's dormitories, Covington pointed out that the third floor of Roberts Hall had been renovated with new floors, doors, paint and lighting, and the language laboratory had been improved, as well as the refurbishing and renovation of Women's Hall.

Charles McCrary, chairman of the Endowment Committee, reported the development of the College property at Five Points had begun with the demolition of the buildings on the property. On the future site will be found a retail shopping center. Revenue from this property plus that of the "Magic Block" which as yet is still in the planning stage will be placed in the endowment fund of the college. High Point College has entered a single bid of $254,000 for the property in the business district of High Point. The bid has been under discussion by Mayor Floyd Mehan and members of the City Council.

Horace S. Haworth, chairman of the Faculty Committee, reported that the scale of faculty salaries has been accepted and were increased for the 1965-66 school year. The present scale of $4,600 will be increased to $5,200 with other scales receiving proportionate increases.

Elliott S. Wood, chairman of the Finance Committee, submitted the approved audit and budget of the college to the trustees. The tuition will be increased by $80 for the next school year thus making the total fees for boarding students $1,365 for the 1965-66 year. Day student fees will amount to $730. According to Wood, the increased cost of operating the highest quality educational institution at High Point College has made this increase necessary.

Teacher Education Program To Undergo Evaluation

Three years ago the North Carolina State Board of Education undertook to make up a set of requirements for the purpose of evaluating and accrediting colleges and universities having teacher education programs. It was proposed that respective colleges and universities should evaluate their programs under the following areas: 1. Purposes and Objectives, 2. Organization and Administration, 3. Student Personnel, 4. Faculty (all teaching faculty), 5. Curricula, 6. Laboratory Experiences, and 7. Facilities. These seven areas of evaluation were made up by professors, teachers, and some laymen in committees in cooperation with the State Board of Education. In answer to this challenge, High Point College has formed an Advisory Council on Teacher Education made up of department heads, all members of the Education and Psychology departments, and the Dean of the College. This twenty man team under the general chairmanship of Dr. Dennis Cooke has delegated its members to serve in seven committees in relation to the seven areas of self-study.

Upon completion of each area of evaluation by the committees, the findings will be submitted to Dr. Cooke for editing and will be passed on by him in the form of a report to the State Board of Education. All colleges and universities desiring accreditation from the State Board must submit these reports which are in turn reviewed by appointed committees made up of various teachers from the State Board, colleges, secondary and element-tary schools who actually visit various campuses for several days. Dr. Dennis Cooke, Dr. David Cole, and Dr. Sam Underwood; among others, have taken part in these committees to other colleges and universities.

On May 9, 10, 11, and 12 a committee from the State Board of Education will come to High Point College to compare our teacher education report with their actual findings. These committeemen will talk to teachers, students, graduates, and look at other aspects of our educational program. At the end of the four day period, they will report to Raleigh their findings and recommendations. High Point College has been nationally accredited in teacher education since September 1960, although some revisions have been made in compliance with the State Board of Education.

Monday, November 23, a representative from the Fairfax County school system will visit High Point College in an attempt to recruit teachers in all fields from elementary through high school. The representative will be on campus from 9:00 a.m. until 1:00 p.m.

According to their latest estimate, Fairfax County will again be needing over 1,000 new teachers for the 1965-66 school year. All students taking education block courses are encouraged to take advantage of this opportunity.

Alpha Phi Omega Adopts Evangelos Ganotakis

Alpha Phi Omega Service Fraternity has "adopted" financially a 12 year old Greek boy, Evangelos Ganotakis, through Foster Parents' Plan, Inc., of New York.

Evangelos and his mother have 37¢ a day to live on. His father is in a hospital for the mentally ill. The boy has neither brothers nor sisters. He and his mother have lived with stark want and bitter privation and hardship for about ten years.

They live in a little seaside village of Lindon, with about 650 people. It is about 35 miles from Rhodes on the island of the same name, off the coast of Turkey. There Evangelos' father had kept a little coffee-house, earning enough to keep his wife and son from hunger and dread of want. The life was simple, even primitive, but happy. Yet, when this little boy was only a year old, his father was afflicted with an extreme case of withdrawn personality, and finally hospitalized in Athens. He has never been cured of his schizophrenia and remains in this same hospital even now.

Evangelos is a handsome boy with black hair and eloquent, black eyes in a somewhat pale face. He tends to be thin. He has consistently been an excellent student, whose desire has been to be a teacher. His final mark for last year was 95% and with this he was promoted to the 6th and last year of primary school. It is his ardent wish to go on to gymnasium, combined junior and senior high.

Berrier Receives WE Scholarship

The Western Electric Fund of New York presented Ronald Gray Berrier, a day student from Winston-Salem and a senior, a scholarship for $775 on October 23.

L. L. Weltner, Assistant Works Manager of the Western Electric Company at Winston-Salem, and Western Electric Fund Representative for High Point College, made the presentation to Berrier in the office of President Wendell M. Patton. Mr. Weltner also presented a Grant-in-Aid of $600 to Dr. Patton as a supplemental gift to the college. This scholarship and grant is a part of the continued participation between Western Electric and High Point College which has existed for several years. The Western Electric Fund provides scholarship and grants to students enrolled in engineering, scientific, and liberal arts colleges.

Ronald Berrier was recommended by the Business Education Department of the college, and was approved by the Committee on Financial Aid. Ronald is majoring in Business Administration and plans to go into accounting after graduation. He has a 2.65 average. He is married and lives at 313 Clayton Street, Winston-Salem.

Berrier stated, "This scholarship is a great help financially and more than that it makes me feel nice inside to know that a Company like Western Electric has an interest in my education."

Upon receiving the Grant-in-Aid, Dr. Patton said, "The Western Electric Fund Scholarship and Grants is one of the best gifts by a company to aid the student and the college in educating young people." He went on to say that this is one of the few companies which provides a supplemental gift to the College in order to absorb the additional cost of a student's education.

Tryouts To Be Held For Tower Player Productions

The Tower Players' first production this year will take place December 14 and 15 in the bandroom. The members of the cast of Oedipus Rex will serve dinner to all who purchase tickets and wish to attend a unique evening. After the meal, Oedipus Rex will be presented in reader's theatre style. Tryouts for the production will be November 30 and December 1; the performance will be given before the Christmas holidays.

An original television play, "Statue in the Park," written by Herman Coble, will be produced this semester also. As there will be many roles of variety and brevity, all students are invited to try out for the television play as well as Oedipus Rex.

The Merchant of Venice is also a part of this semester's activity for the Tower Players. Don Drapeau, the advisor of the Tower Players, is directing the Shakespearean production written by Dr. Lew Lewis.

On the agenda for next semester is a three act musical; a specific one will not be decided upon until next semester however.

The Tower Players look forward to an exciting and prosperous year and you who are interested are invited and challenged to help make it so.

Communism Topic For Conference

The Western North Carolina Conference, the Education for Freedom at Atlanta, and the North Carolina Education Council at Raleigh is sponsoring a Board of Social Concerns meeting November 10. The program is designed to provide basic information about the nature of the Communist threat toward Christianity and the free way of life. It will also make men aware of resources available for learning about this challenge and help them arrive at a personal conviction concerning a responsible strategy in this revolution age.

The schedule for the meeting is as follows:

10:30 Invocation by Dr. Patton, President of HPC.

Welcome by Mr. Holt McPherson, Chairman of the Board of HPC.

Speakers: Charles T. Vetter, Jr., Information Coordinator of the Office of Public, United States Agency; and Harry V. Richardson from Atlanta.

Bishop Earl G. Hunt, Jr. will preside over the session. He is the Bishop of the Charlotte Region in North Carolina.

1:00 Lunch.

2:15 Presentation by Robert M. Smith.

Speaker: Mr. Frank R. Barnett.

Closing words by Bishop Earl G. Hunt.

"Carradines" To Be Featured In Fine Arts Festival

"The Carradines", a husband and wife professional acting team from New York, will be featured during the Fine Arts Festival at High Point College at 10:20 A.M. November 18.

The couple will present excerpts from Romeo and Juliet, Hamlet, and Maxwell Anderson's Elizabeth the Queen.

Richard Dye - Carradine, following in the footsteps of his illustrious family which has contributed so much to stage and screen, is considered by many to be one of the most brilliant young actors in the United States today.

Early in his teens he prepared for roles as Hamlet and Romeo under the eminent actress, Constance Collier, John Barrymore's leading lady in Hamlet.

In the past ten years he has appeared in such major roles as Clarence in Richard III, Iago in Othello, Romeo in Romeo and Juliet, and Richard in Richard II.

With Jaclyn Lord (in private life, Mrs. Dye - Carradine), he has appeared in numerous noteworthy television, concert, and stage productions. Jaclyn Lord Carradine, early in life, followed the example of her well-known cousin, Blanch Yurka, and became an actress. She majored in speech and drama at the University of Colorado. Later she transferred to the Goodman Memorial Theatre to continue preparing for the stage. After graduation, Miss Lord appeared as leading ingenue in some of the country's finest stock companies portraying such roles as Rachel in Inherit the Wind, Tracy in The Philadelphia Story, Jennet in The Lady's Not for Burning. It was during this run of Romeo and Juliet that Richard Dye - Carradine saw her and engaged her to play the same role in the West Coast Production. They were later married.

Campus Viewpoint

A CORDIAL WELCOME

We certainly are glad to welcome all the parents coming to our college, High Point College, this year for parents' day. A full day has been planned to give every parent an insight into the type of program High Point College has to offer. Registration, an assembly, conferences with professors, and campus tours, all have been planned to encourage and promote a closer relationship between faculty members and parents.

For entertainment, a musical program will be given at 2:00 p.m. in the rehearsal room of the Auditorium. A Faculty and Parents' Tea will be held in the Student Center after the program. During the day, younger brothers and sisters have been remembered by the physical education department which has planned various activities for them in the gymnasium.

We hope all will enjoy parents' day this year. If after all has been said and done, you, as parents, are exhausted, just remember we've been through it too! Bon jour, Guten Tag, and best wishes for an enjoyable and profitable day.

—Gina Venning.

NO RESPONSE NOTED FROM STUDENTS

What does it take to get people to write Letter to the Editor? In the last issue of the newspaper the Hi-Po offered criticism of fraternities and sororities, but did we receive any letters in rebuttal? No!

Have you become so immune to such criticism that it can not affect you any longer? Do you simply accept everything which is handed out to you without questioning it? If this is the case, High Point College has certainly failed somewhere along the line.

When the last issue of the Hi-Po appeared, I was personally asked by a number of people what I had against fraternities; and I told them that I had no personal grudge whatsoever. And I don't. The main reason for the printing of Dick Stinson's editorial and the news service column by H. Neil Berkson was to stimulate letters. But we have failed to stimulate even the smallest bit of stir beyond the verbal communication of a few people behind closed doors.

What are you afraid of? Are there some ghosts left over from Halloween which scare you away from open criticism? The Hi-Po has been able to criticize some things; and, so far, we have not been asked to leave this campus and I very sincerely doubt that we would be asked to leave because of something which we have written, as long as we have made an honest criticism. I will be the first to admit that some things have been printed that should not have been printed, but through the understanding of the administration, faculty members, and students we have prevented any major crisis.

Perhaps many of you underestimate the power of the press, but we will not be able to test this strength without exercising it. Certainly there must be something about which you disagree or agree, but you must let us know what you are thinking. The deadline for our next issue is November 13. Write your letters and address them to The Hi-Po, Campus Mail and take them to the campus post office. We will pick them up there. All letters that meet our standards and bear the name of the writer will be printed in the November 20 paper.

—Al Rauch.

Lecture Reviewed

By Doug Shepherd

"We ought to grow up," stated Bishop John Owen Smith during the Finch lectures on the HPC campus last Tuesday and Wednesday. In an attempt to analyze and evaluate our present cultural situation and the Church's mission to it, Bishop Smith exclaimed that all we want to do is pay our budgets, sing our hymns, put in our thumb, pull out a plumb, and go home.

All of us are living under the same roof, and whether or not we will be able to live peacefully with one another will depend greatly on our concept of human relations, not scientific progress. The progress of communication, transportation, and technological advancement has created an atmosphere of closeness. Yet, it is very complex for us to live in a communication of love for one another. Why? Is it because we do not care about that other person, that other individual who looks and acts so different from us? Bishop Smith stated that we will have to concentrate our thoughts in an atmosphere of a "world family." We have shifted from an old Frontier Individualism to a membership in a world family. We will have to concentrate on society in order to communicate with it. At this point, I would like to interject with a few questions. Can a person love the masses, a society, or a group? Is it possible for an American to love the masses of China? Is it possible for Lambda Chi's to communicate with Pika's? Is it more meaningful to say, "I love you" to the average man or "I love you, you S.O.B." It could be very meaningful when the Bishop stated, "we ought to grow up."

In his concluding speech, Bishop Smith expressed one proposal that culture should become "Bible-centered." This would remind us that this is God's world, and that Christ came to reveal the Moral of the universe. Possibly one way to do this would be to have a teaching ministry. I think the Bishop would agree that a teaching ministry would not only refer to the Church, but to every individual regardless of race, creed, or color.

If this is our cultural situation, and if this is our moral status, what do you propose, O mortal one? Love one another?

Yeah, I read the Surgeon General's report.

Down Al's Alley

I don't know about the rest of you students; but I for one am about fed up with the way things are going in the cafeteria. I am not complaining about the food or the serving of it, for I believe we have some of the best food prepared on many a college campus. What I am complaining about are the people who insist upon breaking in line.

Granted there are times when we all like to go through the cafeteria line with a friend or two, and I admit that I have done this upon occasion; but what I object to is the fact that many members of fraternities, sororities, or sections of a dorm break into line in front of people who have reserved their place legally.

During the noon meal it is possible for a person to wait in line for at least thirty minutes before he can get anything to eat. This is absolutely ridiculous. The excuse made for breaking in line is that one has a 12:45 class and he would not be able to eat in time to make it to class. The only solution to this problem, that I see, is that we again institute a 12:45 line for people with classes at that time.

To relieve the problem further, perhaps the people who have this 12:45 class could be given a special meal ticket which would be honored only in this one line. If this program would work, then perhaps we all might be able to get something to eat without the usual hunger pains.

Another plan for consideration could be to give people demerits for breaking in line. Proctors could be stationed in the cafeteria to dole out the nasty little reminders that one has broken a rule of common courtesy. This all sounds a bit high schoolish to me, but if it is the only plan that would work, I say, maybe we will have to try it.

I have singled out the noon meal as an example of a time when the problem of line breaking is most severe; however, this situation occurs practically every meal including the Sunday noon meal when no one has any 12:45 classes. The whole situation disturbs me greatly, and I would like to see some action taken to make the whole process of getting something to eat easier, and less of a chore.

The Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity introduced a program with the aid of the I.F.C. to help the students of High Point College improve their reading skills. The program is under the direction of Dr. Sam J. Underwood, Head of the Department of English.

The object of this reading program is to help raise the academic standards of the college. Various techniques are being taught to improve reading comprehension and speed reading.

The classes are held at 7:00 p.m. every Tuesday and Thursday night in room 35 of Roberts Hall. Everyone, Greeks and independents, males and females, is encouraged to participate in this program.

Rush is finally over, and everyone is happy. The only exception to the latter statement would be the parents of the new pledges.

The following is a run-down of how each Greek organization fared during rush. Alpha Gamma Delta has the following new pledges: Emilie Pickett, Beverly Albright, Sharon Harshburger, Dawn Hamilton, Joy Hassel, Bobbi Taylor, Sandy Ritchie, Betty Rogers, Cathy Cline, "Beege" Ridge, Donna Shelley, June Peoples, Karen Brower, Delores MacDonald, Diane Abbott, Susan Applegate, Dianne Earnhardt, Louise Garnett, Donna Goettche, "Pej" Parquet, Ann Scott, Ann Wallace, Mary Jane Magruder, Sharon Jackson, Kathy Newman, and Patsy Starling.

Delta Sigma Phi took in these new pledges: Frank Mudd (President of the pledge class), Ed Clark (Vice President), Tim Bellinger (Secretary), Tom Brazier (Treasurer), and Dick Harbeson (Sergeant-at-Arms). Other members of the pledge class are: Max Boales, Steve DeLaney, Jim Patton, John Starling, Bob White, Carroll Hutto, Bob Patten, Harry Love, Bill Hollingsworth, Woody Logan, Bill Carter, and John V.

Theta Chi's pledge class is led by: Ted Thomas (President), Gary McMahon (Vice President), Rick King (Secretary-Treasurer) and Bill McDermott (Sergeant-at-Arms). Other members of the pledge class are Bill Beans, Jack Bloom, Jim Davis, Ralph Goode, Jeff Hulick, Tom Kelly, Charles Kurkain, Taylor Magum, Rick Moch, Millard Stallings, Frank Thigpen, Rich Wagoner, Al Ward, Dalton Wood, Craig Furman, Perky Poyston, and Walt Mangly.

Tau Kappa Epsilon has three new pledges, John Steimle, John Chapis, and Bob Thurston.

Pi Kappa Alpha has two new pledges, Mac Hoyt and Jerry Smothers.

New Brothers

The Delta Sig's initiated Clyde Aiken and Robin Russell and began to party. Friday, October 30 was Delta Sig's night at "The Castaways" in Greensboro, and Sunday, November 1 they took a trip to Hanging Rock.

The Lambda Chi's have a new academic advisor: Dr. Gratiot.

The Theta Chi's seem to be fighting among themselves — on the football field, that is. October 31 the Brotherhood showed their prowess by downing the pledge class. To top it off, they had a lounge party that night. They were probably celebrating their winning first place in Co-Rec night. Of course, the independent girls did help a little. Theta Chi's and dates got in shape by climbing the mountains at Hanging Rock October 25.

Sorority Parties

The Alpha Gam's will be partying the 13th. I would say good luck charms might be in order.

The KD's had a slumberless slumber party at the Panhellenic House the 31st.

The Phi Mu's recently initiated Susan Hood, Ruth Howey, Jill Knuckey, and Laura Lenz.

On Thursday, October 22 the brothers and pledges of Pi Kappa Alpha were treated by the High Point Lions Club to a chicken dinner. After the dinner the Pikas and Lions teamed up to sell brooms for the aid of the visually handicapped. The occasion was thoroughly enjoyable and rewarding for all. The Pikas are looking forward to helping the Lions Club on future projects such as the annual horse show held in the spring.

On November 13 the Pikas will journey to Farmer High School to play the Farmer basketball team. This is the first game of the season for Farmer's new coach, alumni brother Pat Hedrick.

The Teke's had a party at Col. Cook's house October 31, 1964. The Teke's have acquired the former Sig Ep lounge in Millis Dorm. They are planning an open house in the near future. On Sunday, November 1 the Tekes played a football game with Alpha Phi Omega. The score was not made available for publication.

That's all for now. Don't forget Fall Week-End with the fabulous "Contours" of "Do You Love Me" fame backed by the swinging "Plaids."

Bills Presented To Legislature

By Pam Hancox

Three new bills have been passed by the Student Legislature of High Point College and are now awaiting approval of the Student Personnel Committee before being enacted. The first bill concerns extended cuts for Seniors. According to the bill presented by the Senior Class, seniors should be permitted extended cuts to a maximum of six during a semester. Because of the heavy work load seniors are carrying, plus seminar courses and job interviews, the bill requested that all seniors have the number of absences permitted from class to equal twice the number of semester hours of credit that is provided by the course. This bill is heavily backed by the Senior Class as was proven by petition. The seniors feel that such a request is not out of line, and they are hoping the Student Personnel Committee will give them the chance to prove that the new system will work.

The second bill concerned the Judiciary Council and requested that any infractions of the regulations of High Point College be dealt with at the discretion of the Judiciary Council. With this bill it is hoped that the Judiciary Council will gain the power and respect it needs to be an effective part of student government.

The third bill presented concerned the Zenith annual. The Zenith staff feels that since the student body pays for their yearbook out of their student activity fee, faculty members should also be required to pay for their annuals.

Previously faculty members have paid for their yearbook, this bill was introduced to clear up all misunderstandings which have occurred. Although not included in the bill, students who attend only one semester are required to pay the remaining three dollars. An amendment was added excluding the faculty member who receives the dedication.

The next meeting of the Legislature will be held the first Wednesday of November. Any ideas for bills will be welcome by the members.

Have You Heard?

By Phyllis Foy

International Halloween! And you too could have celebrated — that is if you had been a member of the International Students Club. I know, you probably never thought about Halloween being celebrated anywhere except in the United States; but the fact is that Halloween as well as many other events are observed outside of our own little realm.

Friday evening, October 30, the International Students Club threw its first whing-ding social activity of the year, a get-acquainted party, held at the YWCA in High Point. The theme of the party — International Halloween — was suggested by the multitude of ghoulish decorations, and prompted quite a bit of conversation about Halloween observance practices in the represented countries. But, conversation was not the only activity of the evening; have you ever attempted the twist South America style? Man! You are even missing something if you've never seen it.

For the first time while on this campus, the International Students Club has extended its scope beyond merely foreign student membership. This year old club members decided to invite campus students and other interested persons to join the club, and have been quite successful in creating interest in their organization. During the first week in October, the club conducted a membership drive, and shortly thereafter, inducted 25 new members into the club.

"The purpose of our organization," as President Dan Reyes, explained to the new membership, "is to create an avid interest in international affairs, to stimulate interest in the cultural traditions of our countries, and to provide a meaningful relationship between students who are interested in these things." Of course, Dan said this with a slightly Spanish accent, which unfortunately, I am not able to imitate here. The club plans to carry out these objectives through programs of panel discussions on prominent world problems, displays of artifices from various foreign countries, speakers from political parties expressing their party's attitudes toward foreign affairs, as well as other social functions.

Program Outlined For Parent's Day

Parents of freshman and sophomore students enrolled at High Point College will be welcomed on campus this Saturday, November 7th, for the second annual Parent's Day Program.

Registration, conducted by the Freshman Class officers, will begin at 9:00 a.m. At 9:30 a.m. greetings will be extended by President Wendell Patton, Dean David Cole, Charles Farmer, Director of Student Personnel; and Thomas Brazier, Freshman Class President. Following a morning of campus tours and faculty conferences, the parents will be guests of the college at a luncheon in Harrison Hall.

At 2:00 p.m. a musical program will be presented by the Fine Arts Department in the Rehearsal room of the Auditorium. Closing out the day of activities will be a Faculty Parent Tea in honor of the parents at 3:00 p.m. in the Student Center.

Hot Dogs Capture Football Crown

The intramural football season is quickly drawing to a close with the Hot Dogs out in the lead with four wins and no losses or ties. The final games of the season were played this week, and we were unable to publish the final results.

In activity this past week and a half the Hot Dogs defeated Lambda Chi 2-0 and Theta Chi put down the Little Ones 7-6. These games were played Wednesday October 21. On the 26th the Pikas handed the Lambda Chis another set back with a stunning 26-7 defeat. The Hot Dogs claimed another victory by downing the Delta Sigs, 14-0. During this final week of play the Delta Sigs played Lambda Chi and the Little Ones were pitted against the Hot Dogs Wednesday November 4. On Monday the Delta Sigs played against the Pikas.

The over-all standings for the season as of Sunday, November 1, show that the Hot Dogs are in first place. Delta Sigs are in second place with a two-one-one record. Third place is held by the Pikas who have a three-two showing on the standings. In fourth place, we find Theta Chi with a three-two-one record. In fifth, sixth and seventh place we find the Little Ones, Lambda Chi, and last but not least the Colts.

Intramural volleyball was started last night, November 5. Following the volleyball tournaments, the Men's Intramural program will enter into the track season a bit earlier than usual, November 11.

In first place among the fraternities is Pi Kappa Alpha, the defending champions. The fraternity championship was determined Monday, November 2, when P. Kappa Alpha battled Delta Sigma Phi to a 9-0 victory. There was an ironic twist to this hard fought game in that the Pikas were only able to field eight players for just a little more than one half of the game.

This intramural football season was characterized by three major things. First, for the most part, the teams were very evenly matched, as exemplified by the fact that there were three tied games and many games which were decided by one or less touchdowns. The second characteristic is that there were many injuries, aside from the usual multiple bruises and sore muscles. There was one cracked collar bone, one broken toe, one hand injury requiring fifty stitches, one lost tooth, and five or six severe sprains. The most significant characteristic was the team spirit displayed. Both fraternity and independent teams displayed much spirit and desire to win.

There were many spectators at quite a few of the games. While touch football will never replace a school team, it does offer an opportunity for the student body to witness hard fought and exciting games. In the future it would be advantageous to encourage more students and faculty to come out and watch the games.

Finally a great deal of credit and appreciation should go to Coach Bob Davidson for an excellent job in organizing the intramural program. Additional thanks should go to the intramural council and the referees who did an outstanding job. Let us see if we can make the volleyball program, the next intramural sport, the success that football was this year.

Much Action In Women's Sports

Speedball season is almost over with only six games remaining to be played. These games are the elimination games to determine who will carry home the trophy. The championship games were scheduled so that on Tuesday, November 3, team five played team four, and team six played team three. On Thursday, November 5, team one played the winner of the four vs five game, and team two played the three vs six game winner. On Tuesday, November 10, the championship game will be played, with the November 5 winners competing. The position of the championship teams was determined by the number of games won and lost in the round robins.

The Women's tennis singles tournament began on October 26. Anyone still interested, be sure to sign up on the poster in the gym.

The week of November 16 will signal the start of the volleyball intramural season. As with the speedball season, the teams will consist of sororities, day students, and dormitory independents.

On October 28, some of the H.P.C. girls went to Catawba College to play the Catawba girls in a game of field hockey. Catawba won this first game from High Point by a score of six to nothing. On November 14, the girls will be traveling to Appalachian College for a volleyball game. Anyone interested in helping our girls on to victory, see either Brenda Jo Thomas or Miss Clary.

In connection with the girl's intramural program, the Intramural Council will meet on November 16 to discuss the upcoming volleyball intramurals. The meeting will be led by Brenda Jo Thomas, and will be attended by a representative from each team.

Women's Athletic Association Goes To Mars

Mars Hill, that is. The week-end of October 23-24, eight H.P.C. girls and Miss Clary traveled to Mars Hill, North Carolina to represent High Point College at the North Carolina Athletic Recreation Federation for College Women. The girls who attended were: Sue Culbreth, Nancy Fallon, Mary Hendricks, Cheryl Kendle, Geraldine Lockman, Jane Milner, Brenda Jo Thomas, and Janice Vancanon. Discussion groups were organized, and some of the topics covered included the various colleges' ideas on intramural program organization, and the problems in a small college concerning intramurals. The latter was delivered by Mary Hendricks from High Point.

Club Formed For Cultural Aspirants

A club consisting of those persons having either a major or minor in music was recently formed on the HPC campus. The club held its first meeting on Wednesday, October 28, in the Bandroom of the Fine Arts Building. Members of the group are still undecided as to a name for the organization.

One of the main objectives of the club will be to publicize and encourage attendance at cultural events put on by the college. The first such event is the coming Shakespeare Festival featuring a new opera, The Merchant of Venice, written by Dr. Lew Lewis. The club will help with the publicity for the Festival.

Meetings are to be held on the last Wednesday of each month, other meetings will be called meetings held after the student music recitals held at the college. Officers in the new organization are: Jim Martin, president; Dan Ashe, vice president; Kitty Hutchins, secretary-treasurer; and Brenda Bruce, reporter.

Science Students Receive Grants

Six High Point College chemistry students received scholarships from the National Federation of Societies for Paint Technology.

Dr. E. O. Cummings, Director of the Chemical Coatings Center at High Point College, stated that the Education Committee of the Society at Greensboro made the award to Kary Lee Fagan, James M. Bohannon, Norman H. O'Bryant, Hugh M. Cates, James Martz, all of High Point, and Joseph Wray Poole, Jr., of Sophia, North Carolina.

The $500 scholarship is given to the students to help them in their studies toward paint chemistry. The National Federation of Societies for Paint Technology offers scholarships each year to students attending High Point College.

High Point College is one of three colleges in the United States which offer Chemical Coatings Courses. These courses may be elected by Juniors and Seniors who are majoring in Chemistry.

Those who graduate from the College are in great demand from all parts of the country, and the demand is greater than the supply. Several High Point College graduates hold key positions in the High Point, Greensboro, and Winston-Salem areas in Chemical and Paint concerns.

Campus Viewpoint

Exceptional Individuals

The campus is crawling with them. Many have demonstrated their exceptional talents and abilities; but all too many have been ignorant of, or disinterested in, the high attainment of their unique potentialities. For the most part, this little piece of penned opinion received its impetus from the November eleventh assembly. Jerry Proffitt was featured under the guise of the inimitable and articulate Mark Twain. Jerry's voice, manner, and appearance were well perfected in this role; one had the feeling that the self-righteous, candid ribbing directed at life and humanity was coming from the actual author of the Mississippi River magic and the dirty-faced Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn. Without further delay — Congratulations to Jerry Proffitt on a job well done.

While Jerry's performance was exceptional, the underlying significance of the performance brought to mind the great potentialities of many young men and women in this college and throughout the United States. In an age of great progress, a man's grasp can equal his reach (not to dispute Mr. Browning completely) and the rise above mediocrity is a worthwhile and possible goal for all of us here at High Point College.

—Dick Stinson.

Happy Holiday

The Thanksgiving holidays are here at last! The homeward trek begins! What a change to be away from classes legally and not to have tomorrow's deadline staring one in the face! There's also the chance to see "friends" and family and "to visit."

We hope your holidays are mighty happy. Have fun, be good, and open at least one book just so you can say you did. Travel safely and come back eager and willing. Happy Thanksgiving!

—Gina Venning.

We Give Thanks

We thank Thee, Lord, for Thanksgiving holidays, which will give us an opportunity to catch up on our studies since the third week of September.

Existentialism: "Exist, Man"

A few centuries ago, Hamlet, the mythological character of Shakespeare, cried out — "To be or not to be? That is the question." In our contemporary world, authors are writing emphatically, "To be or not to be? What the hell!"

Since World War II, literature comes to the modern reader with a scar of existentialism. Since the French philosopher and novelist, Jean-Paul Sartre, rejected the Nobel Prize for Literature, people ask, "What is existentialism?"

Though some advocates of existentialism are in conflict with their ideas, many claim that life is "meaningless." At the depth of life, there is "nothing." Why? Death terminates the life of man and there is "nothing."

Man stands alone against the absurdity of the world, and he is what he makes himself to be. To exist, man must realize that he can be nothing. Humans, in the biological sense, are living creatures, but cease to "exist." To exist, man must be aware of his absurdity.

Can man live alone? Can man "exist" by himself? Can he develop his personality without the help of the personalities of "community?" Without the help of commune personalities, what is there? The Personality of God? Soren Kierkegaard states that we must not develop our personality but mature it.

A student, in his room, frantically chases a fly that darts from wall to wall. The struggle continues for fifteen minutes. Finally the student swats the fly, and the student is dead.

Kalamities

By Kathy Story

"Sibyl! Sibyl! I just saw the most daaaarling boy in the bookstore! You've just GOT to get me a date with him!" So goes Fanny Freshman's war-cry, heard at the beginning of every new year by long-suffering Sibyl Sophomore. Sibyl's work begins the first day of school, when our Fanny, and all the other Fanny's, polish their glasses and begin eyeing all their male classmates in hopes of finding the ideal boy. Once Fanny decides which boy she wants to set her trap for, she descends upon Sibyl for suggestions about how to catch him.

"He's a sophomore, so you MUST know him," Fanny declares. "All you have to do is just talk to him and casually mention me."

"I'll do what I can," Sibyl tells her. If it's that simple, why on earth doesn't Fanny do it herself? But, to make Fanny happy and to keep peace in the dormitory, Sibyl agrees to begin the campaign as soon as possible.

Feeling that her newly-born dreams are on the brink of coming true, Fanny floats off to tell Rachel Roomie all about her prince charming, namely, Victor Victim.

The following morning finds Fanny and Sibyl in the bookstore, waiting for the unsuspecting Victor to appear. By this late hour (10:00 a.m.) Fanny has already checked his schedule and, having memorized it, reported his hourly whereabouts to Sibyl.

As Victor strolls in, Sibyl, very calmly, prepares to close in for the kill.

"Why Victor! I didn't know you were coming back this year! Sit down and tell me all about your summer. Oh, Victor, this is Fanny Freshman; Fanny, Victor Victim."

With a nod to the blushing Fanny, Victor drags up a chair and begins to relate his summer activities to Sibyl. Despite her boredom, Sibyl manages to keep an interested smile glued on her face as she listens. Meanwhile, Fanny sits in a trance, positive that Victor fell in love with her at first glance. How can she tell? Why, easily. He smiled at her when Sibyl introduced them didn't he? And he said hello, too. Surely there was a hidden meaning in that smile. Only it was hidden so deeply that she alone could see it. Sibyl's next words snap her out of her fog though.

"Fanny, didn't you say you wanted to learn to play tennis? Victor, you play don't you?"

FALL WEEK END

Dear Editor,

Those of you who attended the Fall Week-End Dance held in Harrison Hall on November 7, 1964 are well aware of the success of the proceedings. The enthusiasm and general response of the student body was welcomed by the S.G.A. as a sign of aroused school spirit. To those who took a personal interest and gave much support, the S.G.A. is most grateful. The S.G.A. is also most grateful to the work of the committee for removing and returning the tables in Harrison Hall and to Nancy Tabor and Linda Greason who performed beyond the call of duty as co-chairman to the dance.

To meet the growing support and spirit of the student body, we, the members of the Student Government Association, are enthusiastically preparing for a second Big-Name dance. This dance will be held on December 11, and will include entertainment from Major Lance and Dale and the Del Hearts. From all indications, the student body will show even stronger support for this second Big-Name dance.

Dear Editor,

I believe this is a long overdue complaint concerning the cafeteria service. I'm not quite sure to whom I should direct this comment because of the "pass the buck" attitude which seems to prevail in some areas of college affairs. At any rate, I specifically wish to complain about the unfairness of the typically ridiculous first come first serve basis on which the cafeteria seems to operate. Because a student's schedule does not permit his being on time at the beginning of the meal period is no reason for him to be faced with the dismal thought of eating crusty left overs. Some one must be last in line and certainly that person should be entitled to a meal as "good" as the first person in the line because he does pay for it. The cafeteria managers convey the attitude that they are doing the students a great favor by serving them. A little reminder might be in order here: the students do pay for their food and in most cases, they pay for more than they get; and, also they directly pay the salaries of the cafeteria help.

I clammer at the thought that some day students at High Point College will be arranging their schedules around the cafeteria meal period in order that they may get a reasonably "good" meal.

My only suggestion is that enough food is prepared to feed everyone properly.

Sincerely yours,
Gerald Fennell

THE WEAKER SEX

Dear Editor,

We are becoming more certainly convinced each day that no men exist on this campus. Oh, there are plenty of boys who walk around from class to class. But thus far there seems to be an obvious lack of masculine males who take pride in their sex and in their privilege of aggressiveness. The main reason for the above depressing conclusion is the small number of girls who are asked by the fair sex (in this case, male) to go to the frat parties and school dances.

It seems that the correct way to get a date for a dance is to keep talking about a girl you'd like to date from HPC — right up to the day of the party. Then, about four hours before the party is to begin, the realization dawns that no girl has been asked. She has only been discussed as a possible date. So a carload of brave males speeds over to WC to round up a bunch of blind dates. This eliminates the terrifying necessity of actually ASKING a girl to the party.

The administration and the leaders of the student body have expressed great wonderment at the lack of participation in the social functions on campus. One of the most obvious answers would seem to be the shrinking violet males on campus who either believe that it is far below their social status to date HPC girls, or who are too sweet and shy to be aggressive. It is our opinion that the first of the above statement is merely a cover-up for the second. And it should be fairly obvious that no girl is going to go to a social function alone.

But never mind. The girls here are beginning to like studying on week ends — and climbing walls!

Dear Editor,

I would like to answer the letter to the editor signed "Campus Betterment" in the October 9 issue of the Hi-Po. I have tried to find out the name of the author so I could talk to him personally; but, since I could not, I am using the same media he used. The difference will be that I will be unafraid to sign my name.

I'm sure that had the person taken time to inquire further, he would have had no reason to write the letter. For the past three years the cheerleading squad has had one group in the majority, but no one has complained before now. This year, knowing that something might be said, I compared the ballots and found them alike, with only slight deviations as to the number of points.

The committee was made up of the cheerleaders and one faculty member. The other members of the committee failed to come. The new cheerleaders had to be chosen in order that practice could start as soon as possible. The method suggested in regards to election by the student body has been tried here — and it failed. How many students take part in any election? The girls would be chosen by a minority of students as to popularity and looks. And what makes you think that an S.G.A. President can pick a committee of competent students and faculty members that would be unbiased? I must say that your faith in the infallibility of man overwhelms me. It seems much more logical to have people who know something about cheerleading, potentiality, enthusiasm, and coordination pick the cheerleaders. The old cheerleaders practice with the girls every day for two weeks and know how much interest they have, their general attitude, and how fast they will learn. These are important factors to consider when choosing cheerleaders.

Until now I have failed to mention the girls in the lunch line. These were probably girls who were angry because they were so sure of being elected. We can tell when a girl thinks she's too good to be true. I don't care how good she is, she'd never be a good cheerleader because she wouldn't be able to be a part

Cafeteria

Another two weeks have gone by and still there has been no action taken to prevent the problem of people breaking in line. What does it take to get some action around here? Perhaps we should take law into our own hands and carry a pistol to prevent people from breaking into line in the cafeteria. I hope that something can be done before such measures become necessary, or become the rule.

Assembly

I should like to thank the administration for explaining the "Three-Three Curriculum."

Fraternities

Over the past two weeks I have become convinced that the fraternities and sororities on this campus can and do contribute much toward the betterment of High Point College and the community of High Point. However, I do wish that the fraternities and sororities would allow the independents and their brother and sister members of fraternal organizations to find out about their service projects. Publicity never hurt anyone, especially if it is good publicity. Let the HI-PO staff know about the service projects with which you are involved and we will gladly include them in the paper.

The Hi-Po Wants To Know

In the October 26 publication of THE HI-PO, there was an article printed in which members of the faculty voiced their opinion on the exceptional student at High Point College. This week we went to exceptional students to see if they felt the same way as the faculty. We wanted to find out what drew them here and why more exceptional students did not come here.

GEORGE ROYCROFT, one of our two chief junior marshalls and an English major, said that any student who wants to learn can learn. George points out that we, as students, learn in many ways — not only from the classroom but also from other people. As for academics, he reminds us that only a certain amount can be learned in a classroom during one period, due to the limitations of the mind. Thus, a great deal of college learning must be done outside of the classroom on one's own.

As for improvements here, George says that there definitely is not enough academic recognition. He points out the short amount of time devoted to the recognition of the junior marshalls. They spend two minutes on stage and get their names in the paper. Scholarship is also another area which George feels should be improved. He is disappointed that more scholarships are not given to exceptional students.

PAM FLETCHER came here because she felt that H.P.C. could meet her needs. (Pam is our other chief junior marshall.) She feels that whether or not an exceptional student is challenged here depends on the student and his field. She feels that H.P.C. is strong in her field, English.

Pam would like to see more done here to challenge top students. She feels that there should be more cooperation among faculty members in order to work together more efficiently. She suggests that advanced courses be offered to students who are qualified and perhaps a more standard grading scale be adopted. She feels that some courses here give no incentive.

JERRY PROFFITT also thinks that some courses are not challenging enough. From his own experiences, he says that exceptional students here are forced to grind their way through dull material during the first two years. This busy work often leaves no time to do outside research on one's own. Many courses, including upperclass courses, concentrate too much on quantity and not enough on quality. He would like to go into more depth in a few areas rather than trying to cover many areas.

Jerry describes the library as "disgusting." He feels that there is a lack of material — especially periodic literature. He would like to see the library acquire more magazines published before 1945. He says that this limitation eliminates many book critiques.

HELEN PAISLEY also would like to see more reference books added in the library. She feels that we need more criticisms and more history book references. She says that independent study in history is often hampered by the lack of information available.

Helen made the interesting observation that students should not have to be stimulated, but that many students need stimulation especially during the first two years. She describes some departments as "hurting" but does say that any student who has the initiative can find opportunity for leadership and individualism here. She also points out that there are many chances to express one's opinion here on campus.

Helen would like to see the standards for admission raised and the graduation requirements stiffened. She also feels that there is too much laxity here in maintaining students who constantly fall down. Another area she would like to see improved is the rotating-course system here. She feels that it is a definite disadvantage to have to wait until a course is offered before one can delve into it.

DON BRYANT came to H.P.C. all the way from Wareham, Massachusetts. He likes the individual and personal atmosphere here. When asked whether he would recommend H.P.C. to another exceptional student, Don says that he would to someone interested in chemistry or religion. He would suggest a larger school, though, if one wanted special training. High Point College, he feels, does not cater to special students but is a liberal arts college.

Don would like to see salaries raised so that we could acquire and keep better professors. He feels that the turnover is a disadvantage.

Don also adds that one gets out of college what he puts into it. Most of what one gets from classes, Don inserts, he has to get himself. No one can do the work but you.

DON HEVENER is an exceptional student who was drawn here by a scholarship. She is majoring in Biology. Don feels that in general H.P.C. does not offer a challenge to exceptional students. She considers many classes unchallenging and full of busy work. Several courses, she admits, are excellent; but these are in the minority. Some of the professors, she also adds, are ineffective.

Don would like to see a higher caliber of students accepted here. She also thinks that the science facilities need to be improved.

JAN SAMET feels that the curriculum in some of the courses here is intellectually "deadening." Only the personalities of the teachers compensate. Jan would like to see more leeway given to the professors in choosing what they are going to teach.

Jan would also like to have more access to the faculty in a less formal atmosphere than the classroom. He thinks informal discussions could be used to advantage.

BETTS DAVIS thinks that High Point College does amazingly well for a school of its size. She would like to see a higher caliber of students admitted here, not only smart students but also motivated students and students of high character. When asked whether she would recommend the college to another exceptional student, Betts says she would out of loyalty to H.P.C. She would like to get all the exceptional students here she could.

Betts does not feel that the freshman courses offer enough of a challenge but that the upper-class courses do. She regrets that some students are held back in the freshman year due to strict regulations of the language department and mathematics department. No matter how qualified a student is in a language, he has to go into the intermediate level. This, Betts says, not only holds a student back but also dulls interest.

TRACY McCARTHY came to H.P.C. from Washington, D. C. When asked whether he would recommend H.P.C. to an exceptional high school senior, Tracy said his recommendation would depend upon how exceptional the student was. If the student was exceptional enough to go to Harvard, he would recommend Harvard only if the boy could maintain superiority there or

Ode To A Stolen Trashcan

By Sarah Greene

I had a pretty trash can,
It was my life to me;
But no one really knew
quite why,
It meant so much to me.

I filled it full of wastage,
And used it faithfully;
Each time it received the scraps I threw,
I knew its loyalty.

I placed it on the sidewalk,
Close beside a tree;
The nasty sign that the tree bore,
Was not meant for me
to see.

I left my little trash can,
Standing there alone;
When I came back to
fetch my friend,
I found that it had roamed.

"Alas," cried I, in sorrow deep,
"My little trash can has fled;
As I looked to the heavens
for sympathy,
The sign on the tree read.

"Don't put your trash cans
here",

"Or sorrow you will find;
We'll throw it in the dumpster",
And damnit, they threw mine.

I use a paper bag now,
But it falls short of my friend.

I hope you've read the sign on the tree
Or your trash can will come to an end.

could accept being an average or below average Harvard Man. He points out the fact that it is often better for one's ego and thus one's performance to be a top man at a "lesser" school than an average run-of-the-mill student at a top school. He feels that H.P.C. does not draw exceptional students.

Tracy thinks that there is enough here to offer an exceptional student. He is impressed with the communications in the history department, his major. He adds that the diverse backgrounds of the professors make the courses more appealing.

BETSY NEESE says that H.P.C. does offer a challenge in some fields. She thinks the library is adequate with the system of obtaining books from other places.

Betsy adds that just living on campus can be a challenge. Often, Betsy says, learning to get along with people presents more of a challenge than any book or course. I think Betsy's remark and many of the others' are well worth thinking about.

Everyone is looking forward to Thanksgiving Holiday, especially this writer. The Contours were really great and provided everyone with a night of enjoyment. Since I have been here at High Point College, this is the best dance we have had. Congratulations to all for making the dance a success.

The Alpha Gams had a tea for Parents' Day, November 7 which was held in the Panhellenic House. Another tea was held in honor of the pledges on November 15 at the home of Mrs. Herman Coble. The Alpha Gams proved that they are keeping up their scholastic average by receiving the Alice Paige White Scholarship Award for the second consecutive year, for the highest scholastic sorority average. Also, the Alpha Gams are raising money to contribute to the Welfare Department for a needy family this Thanksgiving.

The Zeta Tau Alpha sorority has 13 new pledges for this year. They are: Joan Warren, Carol Winstead, Candy Sarmak, Cheryl Martin, Gail Wilson, Ellen White, Donna Ebert, Marilyn Colvin, Donna Allen, Sara Hester, Martha Harrington, Marty Hedrick, and Judy Hamlet. The Zetas had a swinging party at Oakview Grange November 14. The Zetas initiated Carolyn Russell, Erlene Haight, and Jean Losten. Engaged is Marilyn Colvin to Bill Freed. Also the Zetas and the Day Students won the Speedball Championship for this year.

The Kappa Delta Sorority has 27 new pledges to begin the year off with a great bang. They are: Kay Jackson, Buffy Rounds, Monica Groggin, Jan Newman, Judy Muller, Anne Montague, Laura Ridge, Dianne Holt, Carolyn Caveny, Diane Ferran, Jeanne Vanneman, Anne Greco, Nancy Briggs, Cynthia Beale, Linda Creasy, Leslie VonFossen, Pat Young, Eleanor Brading, Donna Prevatte, Cleve Van Horn, Madeline Anderson, Donna Peck, Vicki Boles, Mary Ann Mandrich, Dot Thomas, Betsy Hairfield, and Nancy DeLappe. Congrats to Jon Ann Thorly as a new initiate into the sorority. Congrats also to the officers of the KD pledge class; President Anne Montague, Vice President, Buffy Rounds; Secretary, Dianne Holt; Treasurer, Diana Ferran. Alumna Judy Byers had a coke party for last year's sisters. Barbara Casy was given a wedding shower. Laura Ridge, Sherry Snow and Kathy Rogers are contestants in the Miss High Point Pageant.

The Delta Sig pledges played the Lambda Chi pledges and defeated the Lambda Chis by a score of 2-0. For the last couple of weeks the Delta Sigs have been raking leaves. The majority of the money made through this project will be used at Christmas for various welfare projects. New pledges are: Gary Chesson, Lisle Millard, Roy Schumacher, and Hugh Alger. Congratulations to the Delta Sigs for sweeping up their 5th Intramural Track Championship in the last six years. Delta Sig defeated Lambda Chis in the first volleyball game for both teams.

The Lambda Chis recently pledged Steve Spencer and Dan Ashe. The pledge class officers are: President, Ray Taylor; Vice President, Rudy Shackleford; Secretary, Dave Mason; Treasurer, Milton Saylor; Pledge Trainer, Doug Combs; Rush Chairman, Bob St. John; Social Chairman, Larry Wall; Lounge Chairman, Judd Richardson; Athletic Chairman, Don Cooke; Scholarship Chairman, Art Smith. The Lambda Chi pledge class is undertaking a project of their own by helping a needy family in Kentucky. They are going to send them clothing and other goods. In exchange the family is going to send greenery to decorate the lounge. The brothers played the pledges in a football game which the brothers won 13-6. The brothers and pledges enjoyed a hayride last Saturday night.

Hotdogs Capture Campus Football Crown

The Hot Dogs went undefeated to capture the intramural football championship. The second place went to Pi Kappa Alpha with a 4-2 record. Delta Sigma Phi and Theta Chi wound up in a tie for third place. They both posted records of 3 wins, 2 losses, and 1 tie. The Little Ones (1-3-2) captured fifth place, Lambda Chi Alpha (1-4-1) sixth, and the Colts (0-5-1) last.

The championship team led in the number of players selected for the all-star team. Back Tom Dignan, ends Craven Young and Jim Spiridopoulos, and lineman Rudy Shackelford were the Hot Dogs chosen for the all-star team. Pi Kappa Alpha placed three men on the team. Backs Bill Harris and Bob Harris and lineman John Eckel were selected. Back Rick Grimsley and lineman Jeff Seaford were the two players from Lambda Chi Alpha selected to be on the all-star team. Back Bobby Robinson of the Little Ones and lineman Max Litten of the Colts make up the remainder of the all-star team. Receiving honorable mention were: backs Spencer Brown and Don Bryant (Theta Chi) and Max Boles (Colts), ends Tom Blake (Pi Kappa Alpha) and Steve Buff (Delta Sigma Phi), linemen Ed Whitmore (Colts), Mike Petree (Little Ones), Rick Benoit (Theta Chi), and Mike Cantrell (Hot Dogs).

Delta Sigma Phi won the intramural track meet held on November 11 with a total of 38½ points. Second place went to the Hot Dogs, third place to Lambda Chi Alpha, fourth place to Theta Chi, fifth place to Pi Kappa Alpha, and last place to Alpha Phi Omega. The Delta Sigs captured three first places. Roy Schumacker ran the 880 yard run in 2:15.2 and jumped 18' 11½" to win the broad jump. Steve Buff won the shot put with a put of 34' 2". The Hot Dogs won the 880 yard relay in the time of 1:42.7 and the Hot Dogs' Bob Bivens won the high jump by reaching the 5' 5" mark. First place in the 100 yard dash and the 440 yard dash went to Lambda Chi Alpha. Don Cooke's time in the 100 yard dash was 10.6 seconds and Rick Grimsley's time in the 440 yard dash was 52.7 seconds.

With just a few games played in volleyball, it looks like there will be a close race for first place. In the fraternity league Pi Kappa Alpha and Delta Sigma Phi both have a 1-0 record. Theta Chi is 1-1, Lambda Chi Alpha and Alpha Phi Omega each have a 0-1 record. In the independent league the Royals are in first place with a 2-0 record. The faculty and Delta Sigma Phi No. 2 have 1-0 records, the Pot Bellies and Hot Dogs are 0-1 each, and the Iotafigts are 0-2.

In the over-all point standings Pi Kappa Alpha is in first place with 109 points. Delta Sigma Phi second with 108 points. Theta Chi is in third with 83 points, Lambda Chi Alpha fourth with 66 points, and in last place is Alpha Phi Omega with 10 points.

Quinn Sees Good Basketball Year

Potential, pride, and spirit are the words that describe the 1964-65 Panthers. Coach Quinn reports the team in fine condition and more than ready to go. Inexperience will probably be the biggest factor facing this year's team. With only four lettermen returning to the team, it will be a challenge to the new players of the Panthers to progress rapidly. Coach Quinn believes that this year's team is the hardest working team he has seen since his arrival here three years ago.

The starting team consists of co-captains Dale Neel and Joe Forte; with Kirk Stewart and Barry Smith. The fifth starting position is undecided as of yet. Backing up the team are Larry Cheatham, Jerry Lambert, Bob Bivens, Larry Morgan, Dan Norbut, Rodney Kemp, Steve Tatgenhorst, Scott Mac Dougal, Jay Reed, Larry Wall, and Bill Greene.

The Panthers will be a double threat on the court this year. Coach Quinn revealed that they will use a running type or a control type game depending on their opponents. Offensively, Quinn reports the team is in fine shape; however, he did say that considerable changes were made in the Panthers defense due to inexperience.

According to Quinn, pre-season games have shown a twenty-five per cent improvement in the starters, as well as spirit, and a determination among the rookies. The playing of Bill Greene, Steve Tatgenhorst, Larry Wall, and Larry Cheatham has been impressive, commented Coach Quinn. Coach Quinn mentioned the most improved award should go to 6' 9" Dan Norbut of North Babylon, New York.

The basketball season begins here November 28 against Pfeiffer. The boys are anxious and ready reports Quinn. The league will be more balanced this year because of improved teams pointed out Coach Quinn. He revealed that the Panthers chief rivals for the championship are Elon and Lenoir Rhyne. Quinn commented that this year's season will be hard and well fought. Each game will be taken one at a time and the results could mean Kansas City.

Girls Place Second in Tourney

Saturday, November the 14th, was the date for the second annual Appalachian Volleyball Tournament held at Appalachian State Teacher's College. Teams from seven colleges participated in the event — Appalachian, Catawba, Chowan, High Point, Mitchell, Queens, and Wake Forest. There were 14 representatives from High Point College, accompanied by Miss Clary. The following girls attended — Judy Armington, Tillie Clark, co-captain; Susan Colbreth, Ernestine Craig, Cathy Cruitt, Nancy Fallon, Mary Hendricks, Wanda Howlett, Cheril Kendell, Bev Moody, Kay Moody, co-captain; Brenda Jo Thomas, and Janice Von Canon. Their trip was sponsored by the Woman's Athletic Association.

The tournament was a double-elimination tournament whereby each team had the chance to lose two games before being eliminated. Appalachian placed first, with High Point following them in second place. The High Point girls lost to Appalachian in two close games, but beat all the other teams.

Intramurals

The speedball championship was determined at the playoff games which were held during the first week of November. The day students and Zeta Tau Alpha sorority team came out in first place, with Alpha Gamma Delta sorority in second place. Thus ended the speedball season.

Harriers to Run At Wash.-Lee

The cross country team has two more meets before the end of their season. Tomorrow afternoon the team travels to Lexington, Virginia, to challenge Washington and Lee. W. & L. will be celebrating their Homecoming at this time. December 5, the team, will participate in the 10,000 Meter Road Race in Buena Vista, Virginia.

In the meet against Davidson November 10, the team lost 20-43 (the low score wins). Louis Farlow set a new course record of 22:04 for the 4.1 mile course.

In the first annual 3000 meter Steeple Chase at Durham on November 7, two of HPC's runners placed. Louis Farlow came in second, and Grif Balthis came in eleventh.

"Well, kinda. I had a semester of it in p.e. last year and I played some this summer, but I'm no pro."

Fanny, the women's singles champion in her home town for the past six years, replies breathlessly, "Why yes. I've always wanted to learn how, but I can't find anyone to teach me. Tennis just fascinates me; it's such a lively game."

"Well," Victor stammers, "I really don't have much time for tennis now, but when I do, I'll let you know."

This nearly sends Fanny into a state of total collapse. Feeling that it might be best to leave Sibyl and Victor alone to decide her future, she decides to make her exit.

"Sibyl, I think I'll go work on my algebra for a while. You know, I'm not much better in that than I am at tennis. It was awfully nice meeting you, Victor. I guess I'll see y'all later." With her straight B average in math and thoughts of Victor's 9:00 algebra class in her mind, Fanny floats out the door of the bookstore, feeling Victor's eyes on her retreating back.

For once she is right. Victor watches her, then turns back to Sibyl.

"Nice kid. But you know, Sibyl, I saw the cutest girl the other day. I was wondering if you'd fix me up with her. Her name's Rachel Roomie."

So Sibyl fixes up Victor Victim with Rachel Roomie; then, on the week-end, studies — dateless — in the dorm.

because...

For women, Gant makes shirts, not blouses. Now, the difference between a shirt and a blouse is not styling, but the craftsmanship sewn into it which directly reflects in the fit, flair and look. Women's tailoring is wonderful, but it doesn't have the substance, the character, the precision to make a man-styled shirt look authentic. And this we think is precisely what women are seeking in button downs, convertibles and Bermudas.

Gant, you know, are shirtmakers, not blousemakers. They use the same deft "needle" in their women's shirts as they do in their men's — with a difference. Their women's shirts are cut to women's proportions; collars are smaller, so are cuffs. The fit is woman, the niceties are woman — but the look and tailoring are authentically man.

In substance, Gant shirts are for women of discerning taste — women who have an innate sense of quality. These women are our customers.

Locke Elected As Committee Member

Dr. William R. Locke, Head of the Religion Department at High Point College, has been elected a voting member of the Curriculum Committee of the Methodist Church. The Curriculum Committee is responsible for the curriculum and materials used in Methodist church schools. Membership in the Committee is for four years.

Members of the Committee consist of editors, educators, ministers, and other laymen. Dr. Locke, the only professor at a liberal college in the group, is serving on the sub-committee devoted to the task of long, hard, and careful preparation of church school material for youth. The Committee meets twice a year, and a meeting has been planned in the month of February to develop study outlines.

A news conference was held for the visiting governors after the convocation in Memorial Auditorium. Representatives of various news media were on hand to tape the interview. Seated is Governor Terry Sanford, while Governor John McKeithen answers the questions posed by the newsmen.

McKeithen Returns To Alma Mater

It appears as if John McKeithen did return home again and was successful at it. During the convocation held for him December 10, at 10:30 a.m., Governor McKeithen to his Alma Mater, but also received an Honorary Doctor of Laws Degree.

Accompanying Governor McKeithen was the Governor of North Carolina, Terry Sanford. After the convocation a news conference was held with the two governors in the band room of the Fine Arts building. When asked about his memories of H.P.C., the visiting governor made the statement that he feels H.P.C. has made improvements since his stay here for two years during 1936-38. He stated that had not one of his college classmates been present in the audience, he might have gone along with Governor Sanford's remark about his basketball career.

McKeithen was very hopeful that his state would soon be able to equal the educational status which North Carolina has attained. The governor was impressed with the number of small liberal arts colleges in North Carolina and expressed the hope that Louisiana would soon be able to supply the citizens of his state with more educational opportunities.

Craven Young, H.P.C. student, asked the governor a question about whether or not Louisiana has a movement for a speaker ban on its college campuses. The governor said that there was no such ban and that there would not be any ban unless students revolt as they are in California.

After the news conference Governor McKeithen, along with Governor Sanford and their wives, attended a special luncheon in their honor at the Sheraton Hotel. Dr. and Mrs. Wendell Patton hosted the affair. Members of the Board of trustees and their wives were guests of the college.

Governor McKeithen and his wife returned to Raleigh after their stay in High Point. The governor's trip to North Carolina was a reciprocal visit after Governor Sanford visited the State of Louisiana last year.

Band Tour

HPC Concert Band Appears At Virginia Episcopal School

The High Point College Band under the direction of Mr. Robert Clark made two appearances in Lynchburg, Virginia, on December 5 and 6. Concerts were given at Virginia Episcopal School and at The Fort Hill Methodist Church. Both programs were well received by enthusiastic audiences.

The Band left H.P.C. on Saturday, December 5, and went by chartered bus to Lynchburg. After a few minor breakdowns, the group arrived fifteen minutes after the program should have started. A reception for the Band and student body of V.E.S. followed the hour-long program. Most of the musicians managed to find hamburger stands before going to the private homes where they spent the night.

The morning of December 6, was spent in confusion as the band members made their way back to V.E.S. where the bus was located. It seems that somehow "Doc" Clark forgot to announce an assembly time for the group to be back on Sunday. The Band spent the greater part of the afternoon touring the partially restored village at Appomattox Court House, scene of Lee's surrender to Grant at the end of the War between the states. The "educational group" was allowed to tour parts of the national park free of charge.

The second concert was performed at the Fort Hill Methodist Church. Compositions played on each program included: Jederman by Whear, Colonel Bogey March by Alford, Dedication by R. Strauss, and Trumpeter's Lullaby featuring Al Collins as soloist. Solo numbers were played by Dan Ashe, French Horn, and Bill Bigham, Bassoon. The Band returned late Sunday night.

Underwood Lectures In Cleveland, Ohio

Dr. Sam J. Underwood, head of the department of English at High Point College, addressed the National Council of Teachers of English at its annual meeting in Cleveland, Ohio. The address concerned the impact of Hemingway and Faulkner upon the teaching of modern prose on the college and high school levels. In addition to making this address, Underwood acted as Associate Chairman of the college group on student composition. All meetings of the Convention were held at the Statler-Cleveland Hotel November 26-29, 1964.

Dr. Underwood has been active in the National Council of English for several years, and he has served as the President of the North Carolina English Teachers' Association. He continues his affiliation with the Greensboro Chapter of the English Council which is affiliated with the National Council of Teachers of English.

Governor Terry Sanford, slated to keynote, Professor Wilson of Greensboro College, and Dr. Sam J. Underwood of High Point College were the only three North Carolinians on this year's program.

In addition to the presentation of his paper, Dr. Underwood participated in several writing workshop seminars in anticipation of further improvements in the College Adjustment Program at High Point College.

The National Council Teachers of English is the national organization which publishes learned journals in the field of communication skills. Among the most outstanding journals published by this organization are The English Journal and College English. The High School Journal is also a publication of this national organization.

Dr. Underwood was invited to address the N.C.T.E. Meeting by James R. Squire, Executive Secretary of the organization.

Guest Speaker

Seminar Held By Nutrition Expert

An outstanding career research scientist, Dr. George V. Mann of the Vanderbilt University School of Medicine, Nashville, Tennessee addressed science students and the medical profession in the High Point College Memorial Auditorium on Tuesday, December 8th.

Dr. Mann's visit was sponsored by the American Medical Association in cooperation with the Biology and Chemistry Departments of High Point College.

Dr. Mann projects an active interest in the study of human nutrition with emphasis on atherogenesis, the epidemiology of cardiovascular disease. Since 1962, Dr. Mann has been a career research professor for the National Heart Institute and he is a member of the Executive Committee of the National Diet Heart Study. As a Lt. Commander with the U. S. Public Health Service, Dr. Mann was assigned to the Framingham Study of Heart Disease Epidemiology in 1955, and remains as a Special Consultant to the study. As a consultant to the Interdepartmental Committee on Nutrition for National Defense, Dr. Mann has first-hand information regarding the nutritional status of other populations. During 1958, he was a member of an ICNND team which surveyed the diet, health and incidence of cardiovascular disease of Eskimos in Western Alaska. In 1960 he served as director of the survey of diet and related health status of Pygmies in the Belgian Congo, and in 1962, Dr. Mann directed a survey of diet and cardiovascular disease in Masai warriors in Tanganyika.

At Vanderbilt University School of Medicine, Dr. Mann is Associate Professor of Biochemistry and Assistant Professor of Medicine.

Dr. Mann has wide experience in the field of writing, having had more than 78 articles published in Scientific Journals. He has his Doctor of Medicine and Doctor of Science in Bio-Chemistry degrees from John's Hopkins Medical School.

Campus Viewpoint

Thank You

Dear Professor,

I have thought of writing you this letter for some time now. I suppose at times I have taken little effort to really look very far beyond the print found on the pages of my textbooks, beyond my own immediate and limited areas of interest, or beyond that big, broad desk that separates you from me.

What I have to say to you can only be said in this letter because — well, because I am a little afraid to “let myself go”, a little afraid to be too openly sentimental in your presence and in the presence of some of my classmates; although I know that you too are sentimental. I’ll bet you didn’t think that I saw that ever-so-slight glaze on your eyes when you digressed from your regular lecture to point out a personal truth. I’ll bet that you didn’t know that your enthusiasm over a particular point in your last lecture hit me like a jolting spark gap between a cathode and an anode.

I must confess guilt in that I have not always appreciated your efforts to educate me. Oh, I admit that some of your colleagues are not all as stimulating as you, many are pedants, many downright irrational; but generally you are all a rare breed of men. You are lovers of learning and it is sometimes late in the day before many of us fully accept the seeds of curiosity that you so generously sow. If professors were once revered, they should be revered again.

I will close this letter, even though I probably haven’t said much of what could be said. Perhaps the reason for this is that my mind is still not fully disciplined, but I know that you will continue in your sometimes unrewarded efforts to make it disciplined. Wishing you a happy holiday, I am

Your grateful pupil,
D.S.

Editor’s note — This editorial — directed to the professors of this institution — is in part a tribute to an unrewarded minority, past and present and in part an urgent appeal to a majority, present and future.

The sick are the greatest danger for the healthy; it is not from the strongest that harm comes to the strong, but from the weakest.

—Friedrich Nietzsche (1844-1900).

Season’s Greetings

Another holiday! It’s time once more to leave H.P.C. to the wind and snow and to head to a warm fireside to be with those we like best. For some, Christmas vacation has been a long time coming; for others, it has come too soon. Some will hate to leave (believe it or not); but others cannot wait to get away. No matter which is the case, for all the Christmas season is here again!

Can you believe that when we return it will be a new year, 1965! Freshmen, you’ve left your beanies behind for good! You now deserve top hats like the rest of us.

In closing, I would like to quote from THE NEW BOOK OF THE ART OF LIVING:

How can we best keep Christmas? How can we best defeat the little bit of Scrooge in all of us and experience the glory of the Great Day?

By reaffirming the supremacy of the spirit in man’s conquest of himself.

Now, as Santa would say:

“Happy Christmas to all
And to all a Good Night!”

H.P.C. NEEDS

What this campus needs is. . . Among many other things, an infirmary.

Mrs. Everhart and Mrs. Crow, as well as the dispensary staff, have performed well during the recent flu epidemic, but they were severely handicapped by a lack of facilities to care for afflicted. When a patient has to walk halfway across campus to receive attention, there has got to be something wrong. To send everyone home did not seem like a particularly practical solution to the problem because many patients lived out of state. Rooms were finally vacated in Woman’s Hall, but this too did not seem like a practical solution to the problem because it was unfair for the women students who were asked to take residence somewhere else in the dorms.

These attacks of flu are not new on this campus, so why haven’t steps been taken before to build the proper facilities? Perhaps the Board of Trustees and the administration do not realize the health problems which arise during the year and make such facilities necessary. They should make an effort to see for themselves what our current problems are and then they might be more willing to dig deeper into the budget and finance a new addition to the campus, namely a more adequate infirmary.

Thank you

The Wrights are to be complimented once again this year for preparing delightful Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners.

This Christmas shopping is for the people!

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor,

In reply to a letter that appeared in the November 20 issue of The Hi-Po I would like to inform the women of H.P.C. that there are men on this campus. In fact, these men also study and “climb walls” on week-ends. The reason for this tragedy is that the women of H.P.C. hold no appeal for the men who enjoy dating. I do not mean sex-appeal, because there is certainly enough of that on campus. The kind of appeal that attracts males stems from individuality. After dating here for a short period of time I have the feeling that after you have dated one girl from H.P.C. you have dated them all. There is a terrible lack of individuality on campus. As the various sororities walk into the cafeteria, I can not help but think of a contemporary folk song the chorus of which goes: “. . . and they’re all made of ticky-tacky and they all look just the same. . .” How do the girls expect to get interesting dates if they themselves are not interesting?

Another fault found in the girls of H.P.C. is that of Status-seeking. Many of these men on campus get “shot down” on week-ends simply because they are not the best looking boys on campus, they do not wear the right kind of sweater, they do not drive a little red sports car, or they do not belong to the “right” fraternity. How many girls would date a boy if he had six fingers, three ears, or no hair, even though he had an interesting personality? It seems that a date to the Castaways or to the Carolina football game is a formula for success with any girl. May I suggest this week-end, that you and your date go Christmas caroling, walking in the rain, or go to feed the ducks at city lake. Do not act as if you are doing your date a favor by going out with him; and most important, be yourself, not some distorted image of what it is to be collegiate. I think you will find yourself and your date having a good time and you will no longer have to climb the walls on Saturday night.

The Loveless Sex Age

By Doug Shepherd

Recently, a very provocative article, entitled “The Twisted Age,” appeared in Look magazine. The article expressed some implications concerning the actions of young people in our contemporary society.

Being young people and students at HPC, some of the analyzing statements expressed in the article seem to reflect the extreme depth of emotion and feeling of many students on our campus.

Let us proceed by quoting some excerpts from the article and comment some reactions.

“Sex is conquest. Love is surrender. Who wants to surrender?” This is one of the most seemingly impassionate statements mentioned in the article. An impassionate age, we are told. Yet, over a century ago, Soren Kierkegaard once commented, “The age in which we live is wretched, because it is without passion.” “Sex is conquest” seems to be a philosophy coming from a Beatnik Bible. To seek sex for sex’s sake, in order to relieve frustration, seems not to produce conquest, but more frustration. Love might be a surrendering, but would it not be a willful surrender to bring personal identity between two persons who are in a mutual relationship of love?

“Many elders simply imitate, rather than direct the younger generation.” One would not wonder why young people search for action and relief from frustration, if he would stop to observe the elders of our age. It seems that they are trying, innocently, to scurry from responsibility. Many adults, when questioned about marriage, seemingly give the implication that marriage is a bore and a treacherous responsibility. Granted that love and marriage is a responsibility, isn’t it a willful and concerned responsibility between the two people who are married — and in love?

Disconcern, apathy, conformity, depersonalization, irresponsibility, self-elevation by conquest, amorality, and no passion about anything seem to be the prevalent factors of the “Twisted Age.”

There is an old story told about a young man having supper with some of his devoted friends. He rose from the table and humbly began to wash the feet of his colleagues. He then asked them, “Do you know what I have done to you?” In this our age, the “Twisted Age,” should we not seek, humbly and passionately, a meaningful relationship with our friends, family, and society. What do you think, young people? Our children will be watching, if they aren’t already watching.

To Pierce or Not to Pierce?

By Julie Steinweg

It really isn't too difficult a decision whether or not to pierce your ears — the answer is definitely yes! I will try to enumerate a few of the reasons why you should pierce your ears. The most important reason is the fact that pierced ears are more seductive — glamor magazine backs this fact up. What girl in her right mind wouldn't want to be more seductive?!! I could talk about this one reason for pages, but I think I've said enough about this reason in two sentences. Another important fact is that pierced ears are definitely in — it's a fad that's catching on like the Beatles did when they hit the U.S.A. It is true that pierced ears are definitely much more "in" up North, but it is hitting down here in the South, finally. Also, more and more models in today's magazines do have pierced ears. It's definitely charming to see little gold loops and little gold studs or pearls in the ear lobes. Another important fact that I'd like to bring out is that having your ears pierced doesn't really hurt. I'd like to add one last word for those girls who don't have a good enough earlobe to have pierced ears or who are just too chicken to have it done — tough! You'll just have to try and act as seductive as we girls with pierced ears.

Moody Promotes Teenage Concern

John T. Moody, who is student teaching at Ferndale Junior High, has led his 9th grade Civics class to draw up a proposed bill for automobile inspection in the state of North Carolina. It is the purpose of the 9th grade Civics class to do something about accidents in the state by proposing a law which will require all motor vehicles to be inspected for mechanical defects.
The class, under the leadership of one of the students, Greg Stadermann, of High Point, voted unanimously to research the problem and draw up the proposal for the bill. The class will also try to solicit enough public opinion to get it introduced by their congressmen.

Stokes, and Alvin A. Willette. Mr. George W. Netts, (fourth from the left) assistant professor of business, accompanied the students. Tower Players Present Dramatic Reading of Oedipus

The Tower Players of High Point College presented a unique dramatic reading of Senaca's "Oedipus" in the band room of the Memorial Auditorium on Monday and Tuesday, December 14-15.
The translated version of Moses Hadas' "Oedipus" has been adapted by Donald Drapeau, Professor of speech and drama at High Point College, and Drapeau directed the performance.
The "Oedipus" plot deals with the exploits of a young Theban who returns home after being exiled to another country when an infant.
Unknowningly he kills his father, the King of Thebes, and marries his mother.
Sigmond Freud used this myth to set up a psychological basis for the libido-effect in man's personality.
The characters for the "Oedipus" story consist of drama students at High Point College.
Jerry Proffitt, an English major, of High Point, played the role of Oedipus. Barbara Anne Casstevens, a drama major of High Point who plans to be a news commentator, played the role of Jocasta, the wife and mother of Oedipus. John Swan, a sophomore from Franklin, played Creon, the brother of Jocasta. Tiresias, a blind Theben seer, was played by Ralph Hoar, a History and Political Science major from Toano, Virginia. Shirley Key, an English major from Winston-Salem, who desires a stage career, played the part of Manto, the blind seer's daughter.
The old man, a messenger from Corinth, featured Fred Schraplau, a Biology major from White Plains, New York.
Stephen Seningen, a law student, from Wilmington, Delaware, played Phorbas, a shepherd of the Theban royal house. David Dorsey, a sociology major from Rutherfordton, played a messenger who witnesses the self-blinding of Oedipus.

A chorus of Thebons was played by Kathleen Ward, of Washington, D. C., Kitty Sue Hutchins of High Point, Gail Wilson of Asheboro, Barbara O'Connor of Hanover, New Jersey, C. J. Neal of Salisbury, and Penny Thompson and Sherry Snow of Winston-salem.
The production of "Oedipus" was well worth the time, all of one hour, for students to attend. When one entered the bandroom of the Fine Arts building, he did not know exactly what to expect. It appeared as if a concert with three conductors was to be produced rather than a dramatic reading. As the readers entered, the performance seemed to take on the appearance of a modern dance group about to perform an ancient ritual of Greek mythology. A ritual was performed, but without music or interpretative dancing.
As the actors approached their podiums, they were as confident as ancient oracles prophesying the downfall of a demigod. The readers proceeded to present the tragic story of Oedipus' lamentable life. Incest was not Oedipus' only crime, for he also took the life of his own father and encouraged the death of his mother-wife.
Perhaps one of the most dramatic moments of the evening occurred when the Messenger, read by David Dorsey, presented the gory details of Oedipus' self blinding. Of course all parts were read well, this however is particularly vivid.
Everyone connected with the production did a fine job of recreating the mood and tone of Greek drama.

Cross Country End 1964 Season

The cross-country team's record boasts two triumphs over Atlantic Christian although Davidson, Washington and Lee, St. Andrews, and North Carolina State did defeat our team in one meet against each.

However there was a bright light in the darkness of our cross-country season. That light was a sophomore named Lewis Farlow. Although the writer of this article is not very familiar with the past runners of High Point College, Lewis Farlow is perhaps the greatest distance runner this school has ever seen. He took first place in all of our cross-country meets this season. At the Blair Park course he set a new course record and then went on to break that record twice. At Davidson he set a new course record, bettering the old record by 55 seconds. Also at Washington and Lee he set a new course record, surpassing the old record by 1 minute 5 seconds. At a special invitational 3,000 meter steeple chase held in Durham, Farlow finished second out of a field of 20 runners. Grif Balthis finished 11th missing a medal by only one place.

Farlow's greatest victory this year was in the annual Buena Vista to Lexington road race held in Lexington, Virginia. Farlow finished the six and a quarter mile race in first place, beating a field of sixty runners. His time was 35:09.9. Many of the big schools, such as University of Virginia and Wake Forest, had men in the race. This was a great victory both for Farlow and the school. The other High Point entry Grif Balthis finished a respectful 20th. While the over all picture did not look particularly good, the season did have its bright spots. Perhaps better student support will foster a better season in the future.

These two long distance runners have turned in impressive records on the High Point College Cross Country team this year. They are: Grif Balthis and Lewis Farlow. Farlow has taken first place in all of the cross-country meets this season, and has set a new course record at Blair Park and went on to break that record twice. At the last meet of the season at the annual Buena Vista to Lexington road race held in Lexington, Virginia, Farlow came in first with a time of 35:09.9. Balthis finished in 20th place in a field of sixty runners.

Theta Chi Wins First In Frat League

With only one game left to be played in the fraternity league, Theta Chi is in first place with a 3-1 record; Pi Kappa Alpha and Delta Sigma Phi are in a tie for second place with a 2-1 record. The only game left to be played will be between Pi Kappa Alpha and Delta Sigma Phi. The winner of this game will then be tied with Theta Chi for first place. The championship will be determined by a play-off game. Lambda Chi Alpha is in third place with a 2-2 record and in last place is Alpha Phi Omega with a 0-4 record.

The independent league has four remaining games; In first place are the Royals (3-0) followed by the Faculty (2-0), the Hot Dogs (2-1), the Pot Bellies (2-2), Delta Sigma Phi No. 2 (1-2), and in last place the Iota fights (0-5). The volleyball schedule was to be completed by December 3, but, due to the refinishing of the gym floor, some of the games had to be rescheduled. Ping-pong and badminton tournaments began December 16.

Panthers Have Spotless Record

The High Point College Panthers have been able to add six and possibly seven victories to their list so far this season. The Panthers have a 6-0 record as of the writing of this article.

In the first six starts this season the Panthers have downed Newberry, Pfeiffer and Elon in league play and East Carolina, Campbell and Belmont Abbey in non-conference action.

Elon's defeat was perhaps the best game High Point played this season in that Elon and High Point are favorites to battle it out for the championship this year in the conference basketball league.

Also seeing action so far this season have been newcomers Bill Greene, Larry Cheatham, and Jerry Lambert. In the Elon game most of the members of the team got to see some action in that in the last few minutes of the game a totally fresh crew of men were sent in to replace the starters.

Four of the Panther starters have been averaging in double figures in the scoring column. Neel is leading after his tremendous showing at the Abbey where he scored 23 points. Neel now has an over-all average of 17.4 points. Stewart comes in second with a 16.2 point average. Smith and Forte have scored with an average of 11 and 10.5 points respectively.

Tonight and tomorrow night the High Point College Panthers travel to Winston-Salem to participate in a two-day holiday tournament, meeting North Carolina College tonight at 7:30 p.m. and going against Rockhurst (Mo.) College, the defending N.A.I.A. national champion on Saturday night at 9 p.m. The Panthers are co-hosting the two-day, four game affair along with Winston-Salem State.

The game with Guilford Wednesday night pitted Jerry Steel's unit of perhaps the biggest and the best Quaker team to come along in a long time. The Quakers had a 6-1 record before the game Wednesday, and were out for blood. The Panthers beat them three times last year, scoring a record 138 points in one of the games and having to scrap for narrow margins in the other two, including a victory in the semifinals of the conference tournament.
