HPC Receives Faculty Chair Grant
The proposed High Point College radio station, unofficially dubbed WHPC, has raised heir to host of problems. Throughout the second semester of last year, talk of the radio station centered around the possibility of turning the worn out radio equipment in the bowels of the maintenance department into something that could be used. Since that time, according to program radio program director David Steves, it has been discovered that there is no one who knows enough about electronic equipment to help Steves rebuild the defunct equipment. "There is now a whole roomful of useless radio parts in 4-J of McCollum Dorm," states Steves.

He explains that he probably assembled the parts, but he needs "someone to help design and construct the radio," which Steves believes will be a 4-1-4 type program.

"I heard that there was a boy on campus who knows about radios and can build them too, but I don't know how to get in touch with him," says Steves.

"I believe he transferred here from Wesley Junior College," he continues.

"I am hearing correctly, this is what students want. Authority and responsibility can never be divided—there can be no authority without responsibility—neither can there be real responsibility unless it is accompanied by real authority. Our policy has been, and will continue to be, granting a greater voice to students with real concerns for High Point College, as long as the voice is accompanied by real responsibility. Someone once said that "freedom is self-discipline."—is nothing more—nothing less. If we remember this concept as we search for new and more meaningful ways of relating to each other and accepting new roles, we will be guided into almost unbelievable opportunities for both individual and college development.

Now for just a quick and brief report of some of the issues, projects, and problems facing us during the 1969-70 school year:

(1) New assembly regulations—Upon the recommendation of the President, some rather drastic changes will be tried. Details will be developed by the Assembly and Arts Committee, but, generally, some assemblies will be required. The assembly is a basic, enrichment program—educational—entertainment—religious—educational. For many of us, assembly will be as night as no the public may be invited. Those will be optional with the student, but naturally will have to be supported well enough to justify the money that will be spent for these programs. So this plan will be tested this year—the yardstick by which it will be measured will be simply whether or not our educational program has been strengthened or weakened. It is up to you.

(2) Student evaluation of teachers—The request was made last spring for students to serve on faculty committees and we spent many hours discussing the ways and means of doing this. I presented this request to the faculty at its last meeting in May and they instructed the standing committees of the faculty to each review this and make a recommendation to the entire faculty, which will be done at our first faculty meeting after school, on October 5th.

(3) Proposals for a new calendar—A joint faculty-student committee, headed by Dr. Matthews, was appointed last year to make a recommendation for a more effective utilization of the month of January, and, if necessary, as extra new college calendar. This recommendation will be made to the faculty at the Faculty Seminar on August 31st and from there, with individual members of the committee and me, to see whether or not the school will embrace this proposal or not.

(4) Student evaluation of teachers—The Faculty Committee has approved in principle student evaluation of teachers as a part of our continuing aid in the development of the individual teacher. This was favor by the faculty with the Faculty Committee of the Faculty and we are ready to present this to the full faculty for discussion, decision, and the development of the mechanics of such a plan. This is only a small sample of the variety of interesting and challenging problems that face us. It should be a great year! Won't you help make it greater?
President Predicts Chapel Next

"Last week I would have had to say 'student union,' but this week, I would definitely answer 'the chapel,'" says High Point College President Dr. Wendell M. Patton concerning the spec-culation of which structures the Golden Decade building program to expect next.

Patton cites the ever-changing financial situation as the factor lending uncertainty to response.

"We are planning on building the new student union building with funds obtained from a low interest rate, long-term loan from the federal government's Department of Health, Education, and Welfare," states Patton, "but of course, this agency cannot make loans for the construction of buildings to be used for religious purposes."

Patton says that funds for the student union building will be held until spring at least. For its construction, the college will need the financial assistance offered by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, and HEW regulations specify that an application for federalbuilding funds may be made only once every two years.

High Point College's last application was filed in January, 1963, for the solicitation of money to build the coed dormitory.

According to Patton, the college "hopes to be ready" by January to make the request concerning student union funds.

Architect Leo Schulte of High Point has been contracted to draw the plans to be submitted to HEW at the time when the request will be allowed.

Mullinix Airs Views On Chapel Structure

"Currently, we are reviewing an out-of-town architect who has had considerable experience in designing structures for religious purposes," Patton says that funds for the chapel should be available as we can offer concrete plans as a part of or beside the new structure.

"Since it involves all the students, it ought toognito meet the Student Union," Mullinix states. According to him, an easily adaptable decor would encourage student expression and participa-tions in religious activities.

"My plans will depend greatly on the interest or apathy of the students," he remarks.

To capture student interest during the coming year, Mullinix hopes to initiate more "casual" worship services for small groups.

"I'd like to have Sunday evening services on the lawn and bull sessions on regular evenings in the dorms with students."

Everyone Says Something

SU Furbishing Ideas Garnered

After almost seven months of enjoying the limelight as the next structure to be constructed, the Golden Decade building progress, the proposed Student Union building is beginning to evolve administrative and student concerns about the nature of its function.

"It should be designed by someone who knows about the Student Center," states Benjamin B. Brockwell, director of administration.

Brockwell also mentioned the proposed grill that is to be a combination of the college bookstore facilities.

At this time, the plans for the grill call for it to be located in the main building; the plans to be redesigned for the necessary snack bar accommodations.

"The grill should be open during dorm hours and on weekends," states Brockwell.

"It should serve as a convenience for the students, not as a convenience to the school," he continues.

"Tough I do speak from an impulsive angle, the new grill and student center will be a definite asset to the college," Brockwell says.

There are many different concerns and services to be considered in the design of the student Union.

Out of this project to get anywhere and to be of any real use, we must have student support and suggestions as to what should go in the building," states Dave Holton, chairman of the Student Union.

"For this project to get anywhere and to be of any real use, we must have student support and suggestions as to what should go in the building," states Dave Holton, chairman of the Student Union.

Financial Affairs Earl G. Dalbey agrees that the most pressing need of the building proposal centers on determining the functions of the building.

"We just don't know yet exactly what we want to have in the building," states Dalbey.

"Until we can determine that, we're at a stalemate, but when we finally do we really should have some plans to the architect by January," he continues.

Dalbey, too, emphasizes the need for continuing student interest in the new building.

In answer to this problem, Holton has formed a committee to study the demands of a Student Union building, and Dean of Students Personnel Robert E. Phillips would like to have an idle weekend services on the lawn and bull sessions on regular evenings in the dorms with students."

Kerr Appointed Hi-Po Advisor

The Hi-Po announces that Lane Kerr, director of Information services, has been appointed its faculty advisor. Kerr came to the college during first semester of last year, and, in addition to his post, teaches English and journalism.

A graduate of Guilford College, Kerr earned his master's degree at UNC-G before beginning his career in journalism. Before assuming his position with the college, Kerr served as City Editor for The Greensboro Daily News.

Kerr succeeds Mrs. Virginia Rhoades as advisor to The Hi-Po.

Johnson Plans Judicial Reform

SGA Vice-president Larry Johnson has made public some of the legislature that is on this year's agenda.

Johnson indicated that the Judiciary Council will be reviewed, but he did not go into detail on the matter.

He also stated that the dormitory judicial system will be investigated.

In pointing out the need for a review of the various systems Johnson inferred that in the past the rules have not been interpreted and applied with much constancy.

Johnson said, "The rules are to be used and applied to everyone." According to Johnson, in the past, the men's cases that appeared before the men's dormitory council and were then appealed to the judiciary council, received more severe punishments than instances when the women's cases have bypassed the women's dormitory council and have gone to the Dean of Women.

Johnson says that not only the entire judicial system, but also the dormitory and general college rules need investigation.

Johnson feels that only student concern will effect the desired change.

Johnson subscribes to the theory that when discontentment exists, action through the SGA should be taken to alleviate the problem. Johnson says that "Patton, Cole, and Phillips do listen to the SGA." According to Johnson, the logical course for students to follow is to come to the legislature meetings and voice their opinions, rather than just grumble among themselves.

Previously proud freshmen meekly dedicated their lives to fulfill the destiny set forth by the sophomoric class yesterday morning. Many scoffed; some laughed, but according to sophomoric authoritarian whims, the beanies will remain on humble heads for four weeks.
Matthews To Head Merged Departments

Plans for the reorganization of the departments of psychology, sociology, education, and human relations have resulted in the formation of the department of behavioral sciences.

Dr. William P. Matthews, former head of the psychology department, will now serve as the new department's head.

"we're going to work on this change for some time now, and I think the reorganization will be of benefit to the students involved," states Dr. J. Allen Thacker, newly named director of teacher education.

Under Thacker's direction will be the elementary and secondary school teacher education program.

"Throughout the year, we will be reviewing our effectiveness and teaching methods," states Thacker.

The self-evaluation is in preparation for visits from the National Council for the Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE) and the North Carolina Department of Public Instruction.

NCATE will be on the High Point campus in March and the Department of Public Instruction will be on campus in May.

At that time, an intensive study will be made of the癫狂ness, objectives, and purposes of the education instruction here at High Point College, remarks Thacker.

"Our own findings will be added to the recommendations of the NCATE and the Department of Public Instruction," he continued.

"With those things in mind, we will be able to revamp our educational instruction," Thacker concluded.

Cook III

Dr. Dennis H. Cooke, former head of the education department, will be returning to campus in October.

Cook was recently named Ill late in the summer and was hospitalized at High Point Memorial Hospital.

He is recovering at his home under a physician's supervision.

In his absence, Dr. James A. Thacker will take over Cook's usual seminar, and Dr. William P. Matthews will handle the sections of education 301.

Bishop Hopes

Zethan editor Dave Bishop has expressed his desire of achieving an All-American rating in the 1969-70 yearbook, and to accomplish his goal, Bishop has decided to utilize color spotting and special effects.

Bishop inferred that the yearbook would be a photographic catalog consisting of more pictures and less printed material than last year's publication.

Bishop remarked that he plans to develop a different type of introduction for this year's Zethan but did not enumerate details of the project.

Although Bishop plans to execute many changes in Zethan, there are some features he will retain.

He indicated that he would still maintain the same philosophy, Delmar Company, and the same number of pages, 254, as in last year's yearbook.

To meet one of his deadlines of early November, Bishop says he will start photographing different classes of students two weeks from now.

Bishop remarked that although he has Assistant Editor Beth Holcomb and Business Manager Bruce Schuler to aid in production, he still has not enough people needed in order to produce a good yearbook.

It is suggested that any student interested in joining the staff come to the Zethan office or contact him at any time.

Profs Added

Several new professors and instructors have been appointed to the college faculty for the 1969-70 fall semester.

appointed to the psychology department as a replacement for the late Carroll Williams is E. J. Melber, existing lecturer of psychology.

Melber brings with him a long list of services in the field of teaching and researching psychology.

He received his master's degree at the University of Kentucky and has done further study at Ohio State University.

"With those things in mind, we will be able to revamp our educational instruction," remarks Thacker.

After teaching at various universities, Asher went to Purdue University where he became chairman of the department of psychology in 1945.

After having joined the faculty initially last semester, Asher became enthused early in the summer about his students here at High Point.

Miss Carol Horsley, instructor of speech, is from Louisiana where she received her undergraduate degree at Louisiana State University and her master's degree at Louisiana College and her master's degree in speech at Louisiana State University.

Miss Horsley replaces Miss Elizabeth J. Cole who is attending Louisiana State University to continue her graduate studies.

Miss Horsley was ranked high fifth in her class in her undergraduate work and served as a graduate assistant before coming to High Point College.

Leaving as the college's first coach was the Reverend G. Hoard Willingham, who assumed his position in early June.

Willmington had been pastor of Bethel United Methodist Church in Hickory after receiving his bachelor of divinity degree from Duke University in 1964.

James W. Stitt, instructor of history, graduated from High Point College in 1966 and went on to receive his masters at the University of South Carolina.

Replacing departed Dr. Richard Stailer of the Biology department will be Fred T. Yeats, assistant professor of biology, an Alabama native.

Yeats received his bachelor of science degree from Mississippi College and did his graduate work at the University of Mississippi.

He is currently working on his doctorate at the University of South Carolina.

To aid basketball Coach Bob Vaughn in scouting, recruiting, and coaching, Bill Davis, a graduate of Lenoir Rhyne, will assume the post of assistant basketball coach.

Davis, who graduated last year, made the All Carolinas Conference and All District 8 during his basketball competition at college.

Davis plans to attend the University of North Carolina at Greensboro to work on his masters degree while assisting Coach Vaughn.

Charlie Futrell, newly appointed instructor in the department of physical education and health, is a native of Murfreesboro.

Futrell received his Bachelor of Science and Masters of Education degrees from East Carolina University.

He has been attending Peaceello College for Teachers where he is a candidate for his doctorate.

Futrell received his Bachelor of Science and Masters of Education degrees from East Carolina University.

He has been attending Peaceello College for Teachers where he is a candidate for his doctorate.
Two physical education professors have been reshuffled due to the departure of Dr. Charles Morris. Miss Betty J1 Clary, former assistant professor of physical education has stepped up to the position of department head, and Charles Hartman, also a former assistant professor, has been named associate director.

"At least I was completely surprised to be named the department head for I realized that the college had been looking around to find a qualified person to fill the vacancy created when Dr. Charles Morris left to fill a post in the NAIA," stated Miss Clary.

Along with this move came the realization for Mr. Charles Hartman, the director of athletics, that Miss Clary expects no problems with the staff as they have worked together before. "I feel that if the new director had been a woman and was not previously associated with the college, she would have found some problems arising," states the new director.

"With the addition of Mr. Charles Purcell, we will probably have the best staff ever," comments Miss Clary.

Her responsibilities now include making out the schedule for this year, although Morris completed the schedule for this year before leaving.

Also, as a department head, Miss Clary will assume the duties of serving as an advisor to the students in the physical education department.

"With all this new work and responsibility something had to be deleted in order that I might be able to complete my classroom work along with the position," says Miss Clary, "so the women's intercollegiate schedule of action will not be cut but will be shortened somewhat."

By second semester, Miss Clary expects to have two vacancies in the office that are still to be filled.

No additional physical education courses will be added to the schedule this year as all the courses were planned last year.

However, a new course in the study of the muscles is planned for the Christmas break.

Even though the course is aimed at the physical education majors, it will be open to the general student body.

"I have the school was looking for a person to fill Dr. Charles Morris' position, however as the summer progresses and no one was contracted, I began to feel that something like this might happen," states Hartman.

With this new position Hartman will have the duties that will take up more of his time such as speaking engagements and the important NAIA conventions in the spring.

The post of athletic director is not completely alien to him as he was named assistant director last spring and had been helping Morris throughout the year while he was away.

"This added load should not interfere in any schedule during the first semester; when baseball season starts in March all of my courses will have to be changed so that I will be able to devote my time to baseball and my new position," remarks Hartman.

In commenting upon his chances this year Hartman stated, "I feel that we should win t h e conference, and we are aiming for the national finals in the NAIA this year."

Those Daring Young Men in Their Fancy Coats
Three Methods Of Student Selection

Ditzler, Carle, Williams Spell Out

of utmost concern to the student body was Wednesday afternoon's faculty meeting discussion of the proposal to allow students to serve with the faculty on various committees.

Originally proposed to the faculty last spring, the measure rested over the summer with the faculty last spring, the same, measures are used to determine the student's area of interest and what post he feels he would be most beneficial.

According to Ditzler, assignments are made from that point by assignment in agreement with the dean of the college, the dean of student personnel, and the president of the student government association.

"In case those three can't agree on a nomination, the person in question does not receive a post," explains Ditzler.

In what post he feels he would be most beneficial.

The SGA does the same, and the SGA executive council should make nominations with the approval of the legislature.

"All faculty members are asked to make their recommendations and submit a list of names to be considered," says Brian Ditzler, speaking to serve with the faculty on various committees.

Ditzler explains that his suggestions are patterned after the method of proportioning students at Appalachian State University.

"Their system calls for Domination of the rather rundown boardhouse, It becomes obvious that the two men have nothing in common and are two strangers to the scene."

"Pinter's play is set on the south coast of ENGLAND, but it could just as easily be Myrtle Beach or Cape Hatteras," states Mrs. Rauch.

Quiet and withdrawn, he has no cause to be admired, The Unknown Soldier and His Wife," offered a challenge to cosplayers at a later time Wednesday in Hayworth Hall.

"Halloween is a perfect evening for us to present our play," exclaims Mrs. Carolyn Rauch, faculty advisor to the Tower Players.

No one knows anything about them, where they come from, what they are doing there, or what they want to do in the area.

Under the circumstances of the various creative groups, the play was performed under conditions that were difficult to manage.

It is possible for him to drive the young man mad.

"Legislature is diverse enough to know the students in question and discreet enough to know when a certain appointment would not be advantageous to a particular committee."

"Half a dozen cafeteria staffs unloaded half a truckload of watermelons early on Friday's misty morn."

One crafty fellow makes off with the last of the lot to be enjoyed at a later time in another place.

"Pinter is a funny play until you realize it really isn't funny at all," states Mrs. Rauch.

"It's a very strange play by a very strange playwright who is immensely talented, she comments.

According to Mrs. Rauch, each play that the Tower Players have presented to date has posed its own special problems.

Chess Feels Board To Blame For Past Procrastination Of Integration

(Ed. note: With the help of a four part series this week, The Hi-Po investigates the issue of integration in the High Point City schools.

During the month of July, a suit filed by High Point lawyer Sam Chess resulted in a court order to integrate the school system. The final decision was handed down in mid-August when the court ordered desegregation of the faculty and set a deadline for a plan of student integration.)

By JANE S. MAILLEUX
Editor-in-chief

"Nobody has ever asked my motivations," says Sammie Chess, attorney - at - law who handled the summer's school desegregation case officially titled "Gilmore Versus the Board of Education of the City of High Point."

In a soft voice unmarked by strain or hard feeling, Chess explains that as a negro, he has a personal interest in the racial imbalance of High Point's city schools.

"I am not worried about what is thought of me; I have a high opinion of myself and my ideals, and that is all that matters," he continues.

The desire to aid in understanding is the key to Chess' desire to effect racial segregation.

"People are unfortunately led by fears and misunderstandings," Chess says.

"If there is a segment of the white population that believes that blacks are stupid, then the only way for this misconception to be cleared up is to put clucks in the classroom with whites and prove them wrong.

"There will always be this type of misunderstanding between the races, and no amount of talk will change the situation.

"The best way to bring about significant change is to bring folks together.

"Start with the youth" is Chess' theory of bringing the races together.

"Adults often indulge in rhetoric about merit. Young people don't understand this talk of merit, yet they put it into practice far more easily, more naturally," he says.

Chess says he believes that integration can be accomplished with poise, that the only problems arise when officials stand back from the situation and cry, "Wolf, wolf.

"He adds that in such cases, officials are acting irresponsibly.

"I was my fondest hope that the board would come to grips with the situation long before this, without the threat of legal action or a court order to desegregate", he says.

"I really have no desire to take the case to court.

"I'd much rather see the board, or any agency for that matter, act out of good faith, with the foresight and reason of perpetuating good education."

Chess believes that since there are undoubtably parents in the High Point area who do not want integration to come about, the board seized this fact as what he calls a "trump card, an excuse for procrastination in the matter of integration."

Speaking neither in tones of a black man's militant nor a white man's Uncle Tom, Chess related that he had proposed action against the board for "several years."

"But instead of taking the initiative to promote understanding during this time, the board waited, meanwhile sowing the seeds of destruction to the detriment of the school structure," Chess charges.

"I tried to stay my hand at interfering in the matter, Chess explains.

"I've always wanted to accomplish desegregation with the least amount of misunderstanding possible.

"I certainly don't want to create hate of blacks for whites or hate of whites for blacks," Chess says, "because we're all part of the human race...Some of us have different shades of skin coloring, but...pigmentation is irrelevant to our goals."

Chess' involvement with the High Point school integration question began in March, 1963 when he pleaded the case of a group of negro parents in a suit against the city board of education.

The decision handed down by the court resulted in the freedom of choice option for school children.

Chess explains that this summer's suit is a reopening of the one filed in 1963.

Clarification

The Hi-Po wishes to clarify a statement concerning the faculty chair grant which appeared last week.

The $100,000 grant is being made by the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company of Greensboro along with the Pilot Life Insurance Company of Jamestown.

The name of the chair to be established has been designated as the Jefferson-Pilot Chair of Learning rather than the Jefferson Chair of Learning as reported.
Legislators To Tackle Election Question

Speaker of Legislature Bob Williams has made a public speech of several of the items he feels will be pertinent in Thursday night's legislative meeting.

"We'll have to take care of the question of the legislators who did not attain their grades," states Williams.

Williams explains that the legislature occasionally allows legislators a probationary period, but in which to try to improve their grades.

"I've gotten word, directly from Dean Robert Phillips and indirectly from Dean David Cole that a probationary period will be allowed in this instance," says Williams.

"But I think we ought to make some provisions for elections later in case they don't make up their grades, especially since the subject has been covered in the rules of order," states Williams.

Williams further explained that it is the option of the class president to either call a special election or appoint legislators from the three sophomore representatives who did not attain their grades.

"If they do want one and if I can get the money somewhere, I can have the station operating by next semester," promises Thomas.

Williams thinks that the first few weeks of legislative may be tied up in procedural snags.

"I've probably have to meet once a week rather than biweekly to get all the old business out of the way," he says.

According to Williams, finances and the appointments to committees will be the first concern.

Williams says that new business will be comprised of the discussion of the purchase of more refrigerators for student use and the addition of an automatic data processing guidance system.

Williams envisions having a program demonstrating his buoyancy for the college hopes to obtain in the fall, according to Holt, the system which the college is making plans to construct in order to send a reproduction, a sorter, a calculator and a "407" accounting machine.

"The '407' works directly with the IBM computer, which the college hopes to have in operation by the fall semester," states Holt.

According to Holt, the system which the college is making plans to construct in order to send a reproduction, a sorter, a calculator and a "407" accounting machine.

Holt has revealed plans to be "The Bull," a computer system was unsuccessfully tried at HPC before, but it failed because the equipment was in Winston-Salem, states Dalbey.

"Wherever a mistake was a found, someone would have to drive the 30 miles back to campus to find and correct the mistake," Holt says.

"Once the equipment is set up, it will be used as a teaching aid," Dalbey says.

Registrar Office Computing

A revamp in the registrar's office has occurred with a new addition of an automatic data processing guidance system, according to David Holt.

"I'm sure that there are many students here who are considering the main media as a permanent occupation," he continues.

"One definite advantage that students have over professionals is that students have more insight, more of a personal relationship than a sports caster might have," states Gey.

To further generate student interest and garner general student opinion, Stevens and Thomas plan to take a straw poll of students on Thursday, they will appear before legislators to appeal to solons.

At this point, plans are to present two bills to the legislature on Thursday.

That measure would place the campus radio station under the jurisdiction of the Student Public Affairs Committee; chaired by Stevens.

The second bill is to ask the legislature to reimburse the efforts of the as yet unnamed station manager by paying that individual a sum equal to one semester's tuition at High Point College.

Applications nominated

When former Speaker of Legislature Brian Ditzler first set forth the proposal to allow students to serve on faculty committees, he meticulously and kindly included a method of selection in his outline.

Since introduction of the idea, his theory of innovated student-faculty relations has caught hold, but his mechanics of selection have not fared so well.

By his own admission ("People are Ignored!" in this part of the plan, so there must be something wrong, Ditzler and the college committee at large have dismantled the idea of an almost free-for-all selection procedure of (by majority nomination) the required quota of students for placement on faculty committees.

At this time, Student Government and Legislature officials are making it an effort to educate students on this through their respective newsletters.

Seemingly, all the methods thus far proposed have transcended what ought to be the wishes of individual students and moved into an area of control by outside parties.

We feel that, especially in embryonic stages, student involvement in spheres before strictly faculty affairs, should be indicative of the individual student's desire to participate.

We suggest that instead of helterskelter nominations from the floor, application for committee posts should be made by individuals to the committees where their interests lie.

Professor Haskell Waxman, in case of an overabundant number of nominations, should be left to the judgment of the committees.

Thus, student personality and political clashes are avoided. Relatively unrecognized students may be judged on their records and demonstrated interest in chosen fields.

Finally, in such an entirely voluntary fashion, the intensity of student participation will necessarily be increased.

'Medium Cool': Burning Drama

Violence and hatred spread like toxic fumes, and out of control, immediately everyone present and everyone hopes recon- ciliation.

Such is the background of "Medium Cool," a movie focusing on the mass media and its participation at the Democratic Convention in Chicago.

The footage for the movie was actually filmed at the site. But the bitterness and bloodshed are only a backdrop around which the human dramas of one newspaper, a young woman, and her small child spin.

Sparing the viewer no aspect of the unequal life led by both rich and poor, Producer Haskell Wexler for Paramount Pictures probes the đạizôarödistry of human emotions exposing the hypocrisy of our lives and dealings with the human beings entangled in film footage.

The effect is a sheer and shocking illusion as audience viewing through the "eyes" of a camera is made to see things through the eyes of a camera who sees other people looking through camera lenses.

Reduced to the simplest and most meaningful microview of events, the true human dramas lies not in the snapped scenes of the crucified mob or the burned twilight world of the politicians, but in the search of a symphony for her small son lost in the melee.

Beyond this, all other facets of the film and its extraneous details add emphasis for the refinement of the personal drama.

Swift camera changes both subtle and obvious point out the lack of genuine communications between people.

The actors use their talents to portray people so natural that the viewer is seldom aware that he is watching actors play assigned roles.

Therefore becomes virtually truly documented.

Throughout "Medium Cool" the role of the mass media is a major part in conveying the story.

TV, radio, and newspaper services are explored in depth. Wexler films a society in which truth is disregarded and disregarded.

Some newspaper man changes his position from a sa,ction to submission when he realizes that all his film is biased toward the police and the FBI as a means to maintain political control. Violence and bloodshed are the result of the傑Odade and interpersonal relationships are off the screen.

Powerful and absorbing, "Medium Cool" produces heat waves that burn the viewers' imagination and draw aim into the scene of personal foibles of a film itself.

"Experiencing a movie, "identifying with" its performers," Wexler has become an emissary that clothe a multitude of deformities, but "Medium Cool" "is a picture of now, a mov- ing portrait of events we all remember and often wish to forget.

To the young, "Medium Cool" stands as evidence supporting their arguments against a growing impetuousness societal which only reality has become the events shown on the 11 o'clock news.

In the older generation-thirty years has been designated as the dividing line (by the mass media), perhaps. "Medium Cool" serves to emphasize both the truth and interests in the views of the experienced "younger generation."

Few films have portrayed our society with as much technical acumen as evidenced by Wexler. The film ends with some of the most powerful moment possible in cinema, Nat King Cole as a man merely an observer rather than a singer.

The viewers' eyes are led into the opaque depth of the camera through which he has viewed the entire sequence of events. The camera's lens has drawn perspective and illusion into the grinding machinery that produces the thousands of feet of celluloid society.
Patton Expects '4-1-4' Academic Calendar Revision

College President Wendell M. Patton says he believes that a 4-1-4 course suggestion may be made at Wednesday afternoon's faculty meeting.

Patton explains that last spring he appointed a special committee chaired by William P. Matthews to make a study of the present school calendar and suggest changes in light of their own load.

Patton hopes that the 4-1-4 plan (a program in which four courses are taught during two main semesters, with one intensive study course between them) is the recommendation so that the present last month of January can be attained by the general student body.

"Of course, this would necessitate the change of curriculum hour and requirement and so forth," states Patton, "but that's something we'll have to do soon anyway!"

Peak Potential: Harrier Hopes High

Track Coach Bob Davidson feels that his new team has more potential than any team of the past six years.

Davidson is to be aided by Bill Carter, last year's stellar performer.

Of course, Davidson wishes that Carter were back to run, but this presence alone should make a big difference this year as he can help freshmen from his actual experience.

As many coaches have said, the backbone of their team is the manages, and this is no exception as we have a dedicated young man in Russell Jones," says David.

The co-capts for the this season are the only sophomore's Rich Noreen and Walter Munte.

Among the freshmen prospects are John Wurth from Southlands, Milt, where he was sixth in the state cross-country and has run a 4:23 mile.

Another of the standouts in Gene Monger from Severn Park, Md., who ran second in the state in the 880 with a time of 1:54.

Althea, Mike Johnson, is a school mate of Werner, and seems to keep gaining to make Johnson going.

RICH Litchfield is from Willington, Dc., and was the standout on his high school team.

Len Delavoglio from Allison Park, Penna., and Lloyd Davis from Baltimores, who was coached by HPC alumnus Mickey Dean, are expected to add to the team greatly.

Orlando Smith, a rising star on Peak college's basketball team, has produced the bulk of High Point College's basketball team, and this year seems to be no exception.

During his junior year, he averaged 25 points per game, and raised that average by one point during his next year.

"Roughly the past year, I've seen so many followed that advice," says Smith.

"I have since followed that advice," says Vaughn.

"I am hoping that students will come out and watch the meets for two reasons.

"One is that we need your support, and the other is that track is really an exciting sport, and you can observe most of the action from home meets from the stands," states Davidson.

Trustees Vote $100,000 Addition; Chapel Funds Beginning To Swell

"At Wednesday's ex-

another $100,000 of
for the chapel," an-

College President
Wendell M. Patton.

"Put with a previ-

He adds that there is a donation of another $20,000, await-

Patton says that sev-board of trustees have met with an Asheville architect to discuss ideas for the edifice.

"He will submit some sketches for our consideration along with a suggested location
then a few other details will possibly be interviewed before a final choice is made," states Patton.

Patton expresses hope that groundbreaking will take place this spring.

According to Patton, the trustees also apportioned $150,000 of miscellaneous college funds for that struc-

The appropriation came partly from
"Golden Decade funds," states Patton.

Again, Patton urges students to make their

Procedures Boggle Clear Discussions

Several bills were presented to legislature Thursday night and there was much discussion on many of these measures in what was termed a "controversial" meeting.

One example of efficiency turned mayhem occurred when the Origination expenses summary was presented to the legislature.

Each expense was itemized with the costs of order.

keeping, being logical and clearly presented at the end of the ac-hope of a four course-one course-academic calendar next year.

"There just doesn't seem to be

Last spring, Patton appointed a

P. Matthews to investigate the possibility of revamping the college calendar to encompass an intensive study program to be utilized in the currently detailed month-long Christmas vacation.

As an evident follow-up to the be comprised of one course, a class where students could meet once a day to engage in thorough study of a particular subject.

Justices To Ponder Elections Questions

"After first being surprised, I realized that it hasn't occurred to me that we'd be doing interpretations first thing this year," says Judiciary Council Chief Justice Stephen Kennedy about legislation's resolution to send to the council for clarification the issue concerning elections which is creating controversy in the proposed new rules of order in legislature.

"As a matter of fact," Kennedy continues, "I wonder if the council should legally hand down a decision because the new rules are still in a proposal stage; nothing is even firm enough to take a stand on."

"The statement is question involved vacancies in legislature caused by expulsions or resignations," explains Kennedy.

"Under the rules, a majority vote of legislature would be in order to call special elections, but President Mike Carlo says that the executive committee has the power to set the time of elections."

"The question is whether or not the statement is to be deleted from the proposed rules, and we're to figure out what to do," he states. "Supposedly, it now is in conflict with the constitution."

According to Kennedy, the problem is clouded by the lack of guidelines for special elections.

"There are no particular dates set up for elections anyhow," Kennedy laments.

"As far as I know," Kennedy states, "last year there were no constitutional interpretations cases brought to judiciary."

"Former Chief Justice Joe Cor- net may have been consulted on certain legalities, though," he adds.

As of late Sunday night, Kennedy had not decided on a time for judiciary to meet to debate the issue.

"I'll have to be either this Tues- day night or next Monday," he says, "and I suppose that this week would be best."

JC Fair Found Fascinating

The whole world was there, or at least most of the city at one time or other during the past week when the High Point Jaycees held the annual town fair. "It was diagusted by all the degenerates there late Friday night," shuddered one sprite co-ed, but a couple of Hi-Po photographers found the aura of the fair quite captivating. The hooch shows were back, along with freak shows, possibly the most horrid of which featuring the "frog woman."

Bright lights and dizzy rides enthralled tots, and at least one miss managed to get entangled in a sticky mess of cotton candy. While several husky men tried their skill at registering mighty blows, an apparently 80 year old wizened woman taunted more would-be muscular heroes in the crowd to step up for an attempt. All in all, from the nearly forgotten goey candy apple to the wishfully forgotten dollar entrance ticket, it was a fun fair to be tucked away in memories of good old days.

A tiny miss enjoys a sugary delight.

Fall fraternity rush began last Monday and will end on Sat., Oct. 11. According to Dick Schumate, president of the inter-fraternity council, standard rush rules will be observed. "Most of the guys are familiar with the rules, but we can't be too careful," states Schumate.

According to Schumate, the school owns all of these instruments, but momentarily lacks the personnel to perform on them. Rush parties are scheduled every Tuesday and Thursday afternoon from 6:00 to 7:30, and Highbough invites all interested students to participate.

Players Pick Casting for the Tower Players' full production, "The Birthday Party," will take place this evening in Memorial Auditorium. There are six characters in the two act play, and Mrs. Carolyn Haas, advisor to the Tower Players, states that "the success of the play is dependant on the cast." According to Mrs. Rauch, rehearsals will start just as soon as possible after the cast is selected.

Tight Rules "Punishment for the first offense of drinking on campus is now two weeks suspension rather than the former reprisal of two weeks rooming," legislators were told by BCA Vice-president Larry Johnson at last week's meeting. Johnson explained to solons that the stricter regulations were part of a "trade with Dean of Student Personnel Robert Phillips" for laxer off-campus drinking rules.

Johnson at the same time voiced his opinion that enforcement of drinking regulations would probably be somewhat stricter this year.

Critics' Choice Milton Byron Habbitt, the first internationally named composer to appear at High Point College, will present lectures on Sept. 30 at 3 p.m. and Oct. 2 at 7 p.m. on "The Production and Perception of Electronic Music."

Referring to a, "pioneer in composing serial and electronic music," by Dr. Lew Lewis, head of the fine arts department at HPC, Habbitt's presentations are performed by leading orchestral throughout the United States and 6 Europe.

The lecture will be held in Memorial auditorium.

New Improvements Slated For Intramurals

The college scene would not be complete without an intramural program, and this year the schedule is heavily filled with only a few open dates.

Again Gary Markland will head the intramurals with Charles Futrell, of the physical education department serving as advisor.

Last year, Futrell worked as a graduate assistant at George Peabody College where he held a position similar to Markland's. Futrell says he is sending out an appeal for help to any student who could perform as an official for football games. "There really aren't any changes this year," states Futrell.

"The only two differences are that it is required to have at least 15 men on a roster to be established for football, and a player may be added to a team at any time, but he must be registered at least 24 hours before the game to be eligible to play."

"These new rules are aimed at forfeitures because of a lack of players on the playing field at game time," states Futrell.

The first intramural contest will be tennis which will be scheduled with singles on Tues., Sept. 16 and doubles Thurs., Sept. 18.

Players however, must sign up by the end of today. Football will start next Tuesday, and all the rosters have been turned in.

There are eight teams, four fraternity and four independent teams. The season will last seven weeks.

The one day track meet, formerly seeming so popular, will be held at 4 p.m., Sept. 24.

The roster must be turned in by the end of today. Football will start next Tuesday, and all the rosters have been turned in.

Vaughn Hopes Height's A Help

Almost too big to form, another of the freshman Panther basketball team prospects comes from the Maryland area. Bill McGhee of Rockville at- tended Wheaton High School before coming to High Point College.

McGhee's height at 6'9" added his high school team greatly and basketball Coach Bob Vaughn hopes that his stature will do the same here.

"During my senior year, I average about 13.5 points and ten rebounds per game," McGhee points out.

Being a quiet and unassuming young man, the atmosphere of High Point College appealed to him. The main reason I decided to come to High Point and that was not that I would be in the new men's dorm as is the present rumor of all basketball players," laughs McGhee.

McGhee feels that he doesn't want to "jump into anything like fraternities or clubs" until he knows about this grade.

"Right now I'm not sure of what I want, but I'm majoring in business for the time being," he says.

In answer to the question "Why aren't you wearing your beanie McGhee explains that at the book store, he almost bought a tradition-al mark of HPC freshman, but then discovered that they had been sold out.

"And I wasn't about to wear something made out of cotton," he says.

After completion of casting last Tuesday night, the Tower Players began rehearsals in earnest this week, for Oct. 31 and Nov. 1 production of Harold Pinter’s play, "The Birthday Party." Prompting his favorite Moore was elected to portray the leading role of Mr. Black.

He will be supported by David Springer, Ginger Price, Donna Gregorio, Benny Melrose, and Pat Gibson.

Tower Players Advisor Mrs. Carolyn Rauch made the selections and also named Miss Lyna Long assistant director. Miss Long comments that the fact that there seemed to be no one going, "stays with the simple humor of 'Peanuts,'" and that it’s always much simpler to work with a small group.

"On the other hand, it’s more difficult for the cast because there isn’t an abundance of characters to pull through a weak scene," she says.

Both Mrs. Rauch and Miss Long agree that individual skill in dramatic art will be the sole strength of the play.

Three members of "The Birthday Party" case have had previous Tower Player experience. Miss Price was stage manager in last year’s "Antigone" and "The Unknown Soldier and His Lady." Melford and Gibson both played male roles in "Heartbreak House," and Gibson additionally portrayed the musical in "Unknown Soldier."
Comments needed

Declaration of the availability of, information pertaining to the h e 7 volunteer January independent study program, New Horizons, has been made this week by Educational Policies Committee Chairman Dr. Harold Conrad, and it would appear that, as demonstrated through his almost perpetual personal refusal to comment on the committee's plans and failure to elaborate on the objectives of New Horizons, he feels his job is finished after the committee regiments the program into a semblance of order. This, however, is not the end of his duty; to aid in effecting enthusiasm about the month-long "intensive study course should be considered also part of his responsibility. And this seeming lack of interest in the fate of New Horizons is not confined to Conrad. Early last December about six weeks of public exposure to the New Horizons curriculum, "lack of sufficient advance planning," was labeled as the study program's "chief flaw to cushion the blunt blow of impending disappointment wisely predicted by those at fault for not avoiding disastrous results of the study experiment. Where statements were made, negative reactions and critical comments from all sources were the norm before New Horizons ever hatched. Previous to that, where statements were not made, gaps between contrasting expectations began to widen. After the initiation of New Horizons, at least one college official publicly inferred that the program was a financial and academic mistake. Then, of approximately 20 students enrolled in the course, only one publicly came forth for the program's defense from student, faculty, and administrative verbal attack. For this year's second attempt at the independent study program, let there be no necessity, criticism, but let there be at least comments aired by the proper authorities at the proper times.

Short Lectures On Shultz’s 'Peanuts’ Cartoon Theology

While now famed cartoonist Charles Schulz was in the first stages of creating the comic-strip 'Peanuts,' Dr. Robert Short, last Wednesday night's Memorial Auditorium speaker, was reading the cartoon and saying, "What a remarkable person this Schulz must be." And it wasn't until at least one year after he began explicating "Peanuts" that Short finally met Schulz in the cartoonist's San Francisco home. "I liked Schulz from the first time I met him," says Short. "I guess I didn't expect him to be so friendly; I felt that perhaps I was ruining his comic strip and he therefore wouldn't be too receptive toward me."

According to Short, the two men have grown to be great friends, and they feel it is uncanny how their theologies are so familiar. "Schulz will sometimes tell me some of the ideas that he tried to present in a certain strip, but for the most part, I try to do my own work on the theology of "Peanuts."...It just so happens that we have almost the same beliefs," explains Short.

Short also says that even when Schulz does not intend to inject theology in "Peanuts" the strip lends itself to religious interpretation. Short based Wednesday's lecture on the themes of man's cruelty and the reasons for looking to God for answers. Capturing the audience with his own wit along with the humor in "Peanuts," Short explained to the assembled group that the one outstanding characteristic of "Peanuts" is that it has a deep meaning where other comic strips do not.

Elections Slated

with freshmen and sophomores wandering hopefully about campus, petitions are hand, election preparations for these two classes are underway.

Freshman class elections are for class president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, three representatives to the student legislature and one judiciary representative.

Petitions for the potential freshman candidates will be due Wed., Oct. 1 and should be turned in to Elections Committee Chairman Bill Meek.

Sophomore class elections are being held to fill the existing vice-president student positions that were created by the ascension of Larry Breeden to the presidency to replace John Koven.

The campaign speeches will be held on Mon., Oct. 20 at 10 a.m. in Memorial Auditorium, and the combined class elections will be held on Oct. 22 and 23 in the student center both days.

Poles will be open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. both days.

Caufield Serves

"We'll be serving Continental breakfast from 7:45 a.m. until 9 a.m.," says Cafeteria Chief Frank Caufield. He adds that unless more students take advantage of the prolonged meal hour, its cancellation will be necessitated.

Caufield instituted the accommodation for late rising students last spring.

This year at High Point College, students have the opportunity of serving on faculty committees.

One of the committees on which students have been asked to serve is the Student Personnel Committee.

According to a bill passed recently in legislature, students must submit an application to the executive council of the SGA stating their desire to be on the Student Personnel Committee.

If you are one of those interested students, fill out the application blank below and return it to any member of the SGA executive council.

Hotdogs Take First In Tennis, Track

By KEN GEY
Sports Writer

Tennis and track annual intramural events got underway last week with the Hotdogs Independent team grabbing first place in both events, trailed by Plkas leading the fraternities.

In tennis men's singles, Bill Webb copped first place, and Percy Hundley snatched second. Both men are part of the Hotdog lineup.

Rick Jensen and Dave Williams, both of them Plkas, placed third and fourth respectively.

In men's doubles, the Hotdogs again grabbed first place.

Intramural track meet placements were:

- 100 yd. Nick Perlozzo (Hotdogs)
- 440 yd. Dan Nickay (Theta Chi)
- 880 yd. Rick Ross (Piko)
- 880 relay (Hotdogs)
- Hurdle Rick Stephens (Piko)
- Shotput Mark Gebicke (Hotdogs)
- Highjump George Jones (Hotdogs)

Webb, dubbed “athletic director of the independents’ intramurals” by colleagues, after the events explained that the Hotdogs have been top dog for several years.

“The best players are usually pooled on that team,” he explains.

Webb says that there have been several additional teams put on the Independent roster this year.

“One of them is a group that calls itself the ‘McCulloch Roaches,’” says Webb.

He explains that they are not to be confused with another team with the same “Roaches.”

According to Webb, the McCulloch Roaches are predominantly freshmen.

“They ought to be a pretty good outfit,” Webb says.

Webb says that his job is to assign players to various teams and generally coordinate independents’ intramurals teams.

He points out a rule instituted this year allowing team trophies to be awarded, where appropriate, to Independent teams.

Our big problem now is trying to find a place to display what independents win.”

“We’re thinking about ordering a trophy case for the student center,” he says.

Suppose you’re up in space and you need to tighten a nut on the outside of your space vehicle.

Well...if you use an ordinary power wrench, you know what happens! You spin around. Not the nut. But with this new space wrench, the nut turns—not you!

Neat! You bet. And we’ve got all kinds of fascinating equipment designed specially for way out there. And lots for way down here, too.

If you’re a science or engineering graduate and you’re looking for a good place for your talents, be an officer, a leader, on the Aerospace Team. The U.S. Air Force is the largest scientific and research organization of the space age.

You’ll be right where the breakthroughs are...breakthroughs such as better ways to tighten a nut. Pretty exciting if you’re looking for a new twist.

Lindley Chapel Served For Classes, Weddings

Lindley Chapel in the tiny blue room on second floor Robert Hall has ten pews and seating space for approximately 60 people. Since the 20 past 20 years it has served as High Point College's only formal worship area facility.

From 1925 to 1927, the chapel was renovated from the space originally designed for classroom use.

During the past several years, brief worship services have been conducted one or twice a week by the Student Christian Association in conjunction with sporadic and sparse attendance from the student body.

Previous to S.C.A. sponsorship, the Intrust Fraternity Council was the body in relation with sporadic and sparse attendance from the student body.

At present, the chapel's usage is increased by commission as it which acted as sponsors from one to time. Pope states, "We're still up to the air as to the type of chapel that should be built." 'Should we stay with the style of architecture that High Point has got, or should we go sort of contemporary, more modern? "I'm a somewhat older architect, so I guess I'm prone to prefer traditional styling," says Gaines.

"The final decision is up to the building committee, though." he adds.

Gaines, originally a native of South Carolina, attended Clemson University before moving to Asheville in 1972.

Gaines says he hasn't got any special spot in mind for the pedestal stones.

"We've first got to decide whether to put it right here by the roadway to let all passers-by know that High Point is a church related school, or to tuck it into campus so the students have a secluded spot for reverence and that sort of thing." he adds.

"I guess the nearest thing we've done to High Point is the Presbyterian Church in Lexington," he says. "Commenting on other structures for associates have designed."

He adds that his firm is also designing the chapel of the divinity school at Duke University.

Gaines states that he hopes to make an appointment with Patton to visit the High Point College campus sometime later this week.

Pope Explains Exam's Necessity

"Any student who plans to enter graduate school or law school must take either the Graduate Record Examination or the Law School Examination of the Educational Testing Service (ETS)," says Dr. L. B. Pope, director of guidance and counseling.

Pope further states that, due to a change in ETS policy, the exams will no longer be administered on this campus.

According to Pope, several re- restrictions are imposed on tbe foundation's participant colleges.

"We can't actively solicit contributions from businesses," he says.

Pope stresses that this solicitation regulation in no way prohibits the college from accepting monetary gifts from industry. He says that the college at this time could obtain more industrial funds through private solicitation, but that in the long range, the college will benefit through participation in the foundation's program.

Students were this year for the first time invited to meet with the foundation's regular members.

Miss Botts explains that since the idea was recently instituted, students did not have any formal statements for the assembly.

Tony Lively, president of the student Government Association of Campbell College, addressed the group, however.

"We were included because, after all, we are the ones who are going to benefit from the educational monies being spent on our behalf," says Miss Botts.

"At the meeting, it was pointed out that industrial aid to private colleges is not so much a philanthropic gesture as a civic responsibility," comments Miss Botts.

She explains that in the long run, firms benefit from their contributions.
Chapel action lauded

After 45 years of existence as a school affiliated with the Methodist Church, High Point College has finally elected to show outwardly through the erection of a chapel its standing as a church related institution.

With the appointment of Henry I. Gaines as the proposed structure's architect, the college has now committed itself to the project of procuring a place of worship.

Unfortunately, the action is a bit late coming actually about 45 years too late but by no means does the tardiness reduce the commendability.

For a church related college, the lack of worship facilities is a paradox of intentions if not a hypocritical public declaration.

Only the hazy shadow of doubtful student response has dulled the prospect of having a chapel.

Attendance at present Lindley Chapel services is comprised of the same few people at the few times when worship is conducted.

Whether or not the pending house of the Lord will attract more of the flocks remains to be seen, but at least an available worship center will be offered upon the completion of the new chapel.

ForVM

This week Calvin Cobb contemplates elections, both campus and national.

The month of October brings with it the freshmen class elections and sophomore class vice-president election. These elections as well as those in the spring should be dealt with maturity. For each election there will be a given number of candidates with good qualifications. Following along this line the voters in this college should discuss all of the candidates qualifications before voting. There is a definite need for enthusiastic elections in this college as well as all colleges across the nation.

The candidates should judge their own qualifications before they run. They should decide whether or not they will have the time and dedication for the office for which they are running. The students, who elect the officials of government, should decide which candidates are best suited to govern the students' best interests. The students are deciding on what they know about the candidates. The candidates' platform should be definite because the electing body needs to be sure of what to expect from the candidate in the future.

The candidates should not be elected because of popularity, their fraternal affiliation or because they aren't affiliated with such an organization. The candidates could have many of these qualities, but they should not be used as qualifications.

These statements may seem like they are to be told to a child not college students, but everyone should be reminded of this whenever elections come.

Through history people have elected men who stated goals they would achieve even though the people knew they couldn't. In pre-Nazi Germany many people sought an illogical way out of the depression by joining the Nazi party. This party grew from one of the smallest parties to the second largest and soon took control of Germany and it then spread bloodshed throughout Europe. The Fascists followed suit with allowing the Communists to control their government when pure Communism was impossible. The Fascists in Italy took over in a somewhat related manner. The students at High Point should not allow one clique to control the government. A single group in control could produce power hungry officers. These officers could take liberties that would not be beneficial to the student body. The problem of over-expending money is "liberty" that if taken would and does hurt the student body as a whole. The money would come from the S.G.A. treasury and this would slow up other projects started by the legislature.

There things all must be taken into consideration during elections. If we as future voters and present voters in the nation's elections cannot see logical thinking in elections here, how will we do in national elections? Will we elect Nazi government officials? What would happen if the adults who want to lower the voting age came to High Point College to see if we were ready to vote on the basis of our SGA elections? Would they find an enthusiastic student body or would they find an apathetic group? I'm sure most of you know the H.P.C. is apathetic. Can't something be done about that H.P.C.

Youth today are striving to lower the voting age to 18 years. Youth today are striving to lower the voting age to 18 years. One such person is my cousin and a member of my household. He is Donald Fitzhugh, a freshman in college. He recently spoke to a Republican meeting in New Jersey on lowering the voting age. He has cited things like

"30 New Jersey servicemen ages 18-24 have died in Vietnam. A number of these were never able to vote in an election for our government. College students are more informed about the nation's problems than many of the present voters over 25."

The truth bri...
Announcing his topic as "The World In Motion," Watson says, "I don't believe that the SGA will meet a high degree of journalistic standards," states Shaw. "I don't believe that the SGA will support the Apogee this year as they should," he says. "Opposition to the literary magazine to be submitted Is finishing costs of the 103 'Apogee' last year, the Apogee was given a temporary windfall Is quite simple. The money Is then his with no strings attached, no questions asked and, again according to Miss Nash, no social stigma. "Many students used the fun fund spring semester, and they had quite a lot of fun with the money," she states. Prez day weekends, beach trips, special dates and activities to the major uses for "fun fund" money. "He says in Miss Nash's immediate response to the question of whether the administration supports the concept of a fun fund," "In fact," she continues, "I'll was according to Mrs. Shirley Bursar Wesley Gaynor that he strings attached, no questions asked and, again according to several times before this, but that he was disappointed in student reaction to his talks. Prez Amazed "I was amazed by the crowd that showed up," says Day Student President Rich Badu about last Wednesday's day student meeting held at 10 a.m. in the auditorium. Badu explained his surprise by pointing out that "posters informing the student body of the planned meet were not posted at the proper time and that announcement of the meet missed Hi-Pub publication. "I was in Michigan for a week and didn't get back until Tuesday," says Badu, "so there weren't any announcements put up until I did the work at 11 p.m. Tuesday. "Badu relates that past day student meetings yielded only a small bit of response, but that at least 35 people were present at last Wednesday's gathering in spite pouring rains. "We'd like to invite a speaker as a day student project," says Badu, "but our hands are tied unless we get some money. Present day student funds are judged to be about $50. "It's true. Now, instead of day dreaming about your engagement ring, you'll be picking it out. Of course, you'll want to it something special. Beautiful, like the love you share. We probably have just the ring you're looking for in our exciting new Art-Carved diamond collection. One is more beautiful than the other. And each is backed by the Art-Carved Lifetime Value Plan which assures you of your diamond's permanent worth and even permits you to its full current retail value in trade for a more expensive Art-Carved diamond at any time in the future."
Harriers Sweep First Victory At WFU

Wake Forest University was the scene for High Point College's first meet and track victory of the season as the cross country team defeated Wake Forest by a score of 22-33, last Wednesday.

Wayne Ragsbeau of Wake Forest placed first with a time of 30:27 for the five and a quarter mile course.

High Point College followed closely behind to make a clean sweep of second, third, and fourth, and 12th places with Rich Littleford (30:34), Jon Werner (30:51), Mike Johnson (31:53), and Gene Munger (32:00) taking those respective slots.

According to Assistant Coach Bill Carter, Coach Bob Davidson was "extremely pleased" with the results.

Carter states that the victory for HPC harriers was doubly impressive in that those top four runners from HPC were all freshmen.

"This meet at Wake Forest was won by freshmen, and for many of them, this was their first five mile course in college competitions," states Carter.

"Coach Davidson did a tremendous job of recruiting these boys," Carter credits.

With the freshmen forming a solid basis for the cross country team, Carter and Davidson are looking to the future.

"We'll be facing some tough competition this year, but that win at Wake Forest will really boost team spirit," Carter continues.

"I think we can look forward to a fantastic season." Some of the teams providing HPC with that tough competition are Davidson College and Marylai University.

HPC will face those two teams in a tri-meet at North Carolina State University Saturday, October 9.

The next opponent faced by HPC will be Appalachian on October 16.
Official Greetings

A special greeting to the parents of our students who are on campus this week-end! It is great to have you!

We hope to work even closer with you in providing the environment you want for your son or daughter. In order to do this, you, as parents, must have first-hand information on the College and the faculty and staff, to see the classrooms and labs, visit the library, eat in the cafeteria, and chat with other students.

We want you to know us—good and bad. We want you to help us keep improving!

Students Must Pay

1970-71 Tuition Climbs Higher

An increase in tuition of about $300 for the 1970-71 academic year has been announced by Free. Wendell Patton.

The rise in cost was related to the parents of students by a presidential letter.

Patton cited the reasons of the increase as "... rising costs of operation, particularly in the cost of food, labor, and maintenance, coupled with the absolute necessity of increasing faculty salaries and continuing our recruiting program to obtain finer and stronger faculty members."

An increase in tuition was not the only means considered to meet the rising costs. "We have endeavored to raise as much money from sources other than student charges as possible, and we will continue this, but in the meantime, this increase was necessary if we are to continue the quality institution that you expect."

Increases listed include: tuition $170, general fees $90, student activities fees $3, board $90, health service $10, and out-of-state student fees $100. Dormitory fees increased according to their facilities.

Patton singled out the increase in the out-of-state student fee by stating: "The out-of-state fee is not designed to be a penalty in any sense of the word, but represents the per student supplement that we are receiving from the North Carolina Methodist Conferences, which we want directed toward students within their conference boundaries."

At present there are 1131 students enrolled in the college. Out of this number 561 are from North Carolina, Tar Hill Methodist District number 95, out-of-state Methodist count 111.

Earl C. Dalbey, Business Manager of the college, when asked concerning the increase of tuition remarked that High Point College is still the "best buy in Carolina."

In addition, Dalbey added logic to the controversy of low tuition in state-supported colleges and universities by stating that the state can raise taxes, but the college can only raise tuition to keep up.

Dalbey's view the increase was necessitated by the 9% increase in college operational expenses. "Regardless of reasons or causes, tuition for the 1970-71 academic year will be increased."

Facilities For Campus Given New Projection

Additional campus facilities have been planned for High Point College. A "Snack Shop" where students will be able to purchase snacks at night was begun Oct 7, 1969 with a groundbreaking ceremony.

The shop will serve two purposes: the snack bar on the first floor and a garage for maintenance vehicles in the basement.

Costing approximately $1,000, the new building will serve the students until the completion of the proposed Student Union building. Construction is expected to be completed in two months.

Once the students are housed in the new union, the shop will be turned over to the Maintenance Department for an expansion of their shops.

The Student Union building is one of the foremost concerns of the college planners. Yet monies, which can be borrowed for campus construction with consideration to the nature of a building's use, has caused other projects to be brought forth for discussion.

Preliminary construction plans for addition to the library have been submitted to Pres. Patton. Finding certain facilities in the library, the plans tack to the architects for additional work.

With discussion of the building of the Student Union and the addition to the library, consideration has been given to the progress of the chapel of the campus.

Although monies and designs have been readied, a site for the structure has not been found.

Once this decision has been made, construction will begin.

One of the more interesting projects is the aspect of a swimming pool for the campus. Funds have been donated, but the remainder of the money needed is yet to be raised.

The donor's request was for the construction of an Olympic size pool with galleries and dressing facilities. The total amount needed for the project considerably exceeds the amount of the gift.

WELCOME PARENTS
With this issue of The Hi-Po, the newspaper will cease publication for the remainder of the 1969 semester. This action has been necessitated by several factors which could not continue to go unchecked. First, the financial status of The Hi-Po is very poor. At the advent of this semester, the newspaper was faced with a deluge of debts incurred by a previous editor. After attempting to pay off these accounts, The Hi-Po has decided not to continue funds to continue publication with the present financial status.

Even today there are hundreds of dollars which this paper must pay.

In an effort to rectify and to assess the financial situation of this publication, I have estranged the paper to the Faculty Committee on Publications, I have relieved The Hi-Po of all financial records, present and past, to the Business Manager of the college, and I have asked for a vote of confidence in my editorship, if I can restore the position of editor-in-chief. Perhaps there be those who think that my actions are unjustified, that all that is important of a newspaper is to be printed, that old problems should be faced with possible solutions.

I will not subjugate this newspaper to the course upon which she is embarked. The destination is not only bankruptcy for The Hi-Po, but destruction on any person who attempts to steer this vessel. I believe that even the single issue be made ready, many obstacles had to be surmounted. With the aid and advice of David Stevens, who with his return brought back many exiled staff members, and Ted Belch, The Hi-Po was able to recover her dignity. No longer does a banner of vanity and falsehood fly by the masthead; the phrase, "The Voice of the Students," has been restored, true to its original intent, stating the sole purpose of this newspaper.

With this issue of The Hi-Po "the voice of the students" has been expressed. What authorities once existed between the Student Government Association, the Student Union, the student body and The Hi-Po have been dissolved. I cannot know if I have succeeded in my endeavors unless each student expresses himself be to The Hi-Po. As stated previously, I will remain in the position only if I can receive a vote of confidence. Indeed, my ideas of journalism are alien to those which have preceded me. But I hope to be an artist of conscience, rather than conscience of art. I do not and will not function in the shadow of ghosts and their past accomplishments. I seek no honors, no awards. If "The Voice of the Students" is heard and understood, then I have succeeded.

The paper may be positioned in being a vehicle of campus communication.

Dear Mr. Shaw:

Yesterday afternoon I attended the full meeting of the High Point College Board of Trustees on the campus. After the Business session of the Board, Trustees, the Student Government Association invited those Trustees who could remain to meet with students in the Student Center. Several members of the Board of Trustees, including myself, took advantage of their kind invitation.

I spent over one and one-half hours talking with a dozen students of High Point College. I was tremendously impressed with their intelligence and sincerity. Their goals and objectives were well defined and focused. I found the students well informed and discuss of being meaningfully involved in the issues of our time. I found this opportunity to visit with the students so stimulating that I was reluctant to terminate my visit.

I am a member of the Board of Visitors at Emory University and Duke University and have the opportunity of visiting many university and college campuses and engage in dialogue with students throughout the United States.

In the context of this perspective, I sincerely believe that the group of students that I visited with on Wednesday afternoon represented the finest of the youth in America today and, not so incidentally, I believe that on the whole the American youth of today is the finest that any civilization has ever produced.

I am honored to be a member of the Board of Trustees of an institution with the caliber of young people reflected in your student leaders. I trust I may be able to faithfully fulfill my obligation as a member of the Board of Trustees in such a way that the High Point College may be provided an atmosphere wherein they can be involved in meaningful learning.

Warm personal regards,

Sincerely,

William R. Henderson

Values Endangered

The management of a college's business affairs require many talents and attitudes. Regardless of the issues which arise, the person in charge of business affairs must state for the best interest of the college and its community. When The Hi-Po becomes only an instrument which yields favorable impressions on visitors to the campus due to its very foundation for continued existence, i.e. monetary and an office, a condition of poor management which has arrived which must be checked and corrected.

When the position of an administrator and editor becomes one of treading vital campus communications flippanly? Have the forms of materialism and positional opportunity necessitated that The Hi-Po and Apoqe must be abandoned? Is this the price to be paid for the responsibility of being a vehicle of campus communication?

There is one administrator who has remarked on the attitude towards the campus communications of the students. He has been impressed with the false of the newspaper as long as there is a paper, that the management of the college, thereby as one administrator who by budget constraints and other considerations has denied life to the literary magazine, is this campus being molded for a Philistia? There are several cardinal evils which can destroy the good and happiness of a minority already oppressed by a majority: materialism and selfishness are two such evils.

How long is the administration allowed to allow new values be placed on education? How long before the sciences totally absorb the arts into darkness. The newspaper is shut down; the literary magazine is under the condition of the continuance its existence. If these activities are blocked, if they are destroyed, a portion of this campus body will have died, and High Point College will be as a cripple.

I address Dr. Patton and concerned faculty members and concerned students. Let your voices be heard. Speak aloud, do not allow death of the forces of materialism which are endangering the health and freedom of our liberal education. There will first come the materialistic death, then the political, and yet, the silence of spiritual death in despair. Be there a purpose in your presence administration, faculty, students?

Dear Mr. Carle:

Thank you for your letter of the above date which you addressed to the position taken by The Student Government Association of High Point College with regards to the Viet Nam conflict.

I agree completely with the statements made in your reply to the Green and Red weekly and to your address to students of High Point College. As you may have been aware, I have recently decided to address the issue of the Viet Nam conflict by making a presentation of my opinions to the Student Government Association of High Point College. My presentation will focus on the importance of student involvement in the resolution of the Viet Nam conflict.

Sincerely,

B. Everett Jordan
United States Senate

Dear Mr. Carle:

Thank you for your letter of May 12th. I am pleased to learn that you are interested in activities of the Student Government Association of High Point College. As you may know, the Student Government Association is the primary student organization on campus. It is responsible for the organization and coordination of student activities and represents the student body in the university community.

The Student Government Association is made up of elected representatives from each division of the university. These representatives work to ensure that the needs and concerns of students are heard and addressed. The Student Government Association is also responsible for the organization of homecoming and other campus events.

I am pleased to learn that you are interested in student involvement in the resolution of the Viet Nam conflict. As you may know, the Student Government Association has taken a number of steps to address this issue, including the hosting of a series of forums and the sponsorship of a peace demonstration.

Sincerely,

Richard Preyer

With the G.O.S. dormant and the Hondurans closing off El Salvador's only route to their big market, Guatemala, military action is looming up fast as the last alternative.

As to who would win such a war: both sides have a negligible army and only a 'pipeline' air force, leaving the conflict on the ground. Both sides have been trained by American M.A.S. (Military Assistance Groups) and Special Forces A Team.

The crucial differences, then, lie in strength, morale, and armament.

The Honduran army outnumber the Salvadorans by three to one, but has low morale levels, which may balance out this superiority. The Hondurans are, also, armed with a conglomeration of weapons from all over the world, which begins logistic problems, while the forces of El Salvador are standardized, using the NATO G.4 weapons series.

The Ili-Po Spectator, a well-known newspaper in the city of Besanzon, France, published a series of articles examining the French student uprising of 1968. The articles were written by Mike Carle, a student at the University of California.

The articles discussed the events of the French student uprising, focusing on the tactics used by the students and the government's response. The articles also examined the broader context of the uprising, including the political and social issues at the time.

The articles were published in the Spectator's weekly edition and were widely read by the French public. They provided a detailed account of the events and helped to shape public opinion on the issue.

The articles were written in a clear and concise style, with a focus on providing accurate and impartial reporting. They were well-received by the French public and helped to increase understanding of the events surrounding the French student uprising of 1968.
Brockwell Concerned With Tuition Increase

With an increase in student fees for the 1970-71 academic year, questions have been raised as to the merit and justification of the raise in tuition.

Benjamin Brockwell, Director of Admissions, between recruiting trips to the North, expressed his concern and answers over the increase.

Brockwell stated: "It will probably hurt most in North Carolina in getting in-state students. State supported schools are cheaper."

But the raise in fees will not make High Point College the most expensive school. Brockwell continued by adding that High Point "will still be cheaper than private schools."

Library

To Keep New Hours

At the request of students, Miss Marcella Carter has arranged to keep Wrenn Memorial Library open Sunday evenings 7-10 p.m. The library's being open on these evenings is to allow students to extend the services of the library for a longer period.

The library staff has discovered (attendance records have been kept since the first Saturday in September) that students are not using the library for a longer period. It is estimated that the cost of the program to be $200.00 per student, and adds "it should be worth every penny." All students interested in taking the course are urged by Dr. Conrad to contact him no later than November 15.

SAM Elects Robinson To Attend Textile Talks

Representing High Point College at the 8th annual W. F. Fancourt Memorial Seminar will be Prof. J. W. Robinson and Gilbert Byatt of the Business Department, and B. G. Bowman of the Chemistry Department.

First started in 1962, these Seminars are designed to recruit college and business students into all areas of the textile field by showing them the diversity of career opportunities open to them. In an effort to bring recruitment to an up to date person-to-person level of contact, students and executives will take part in discussions on the various aspects of the textile industry, its relationship to the economy, and the wide spectrum of career opportunities and advancements it offers young people of today.

Girls Take Pigskin

The crisp autumn air reddened the cheeks of about seventy-five spectators as they watched the fierce-hitting sophomores and junior girls romp over the team of mishaps, the blue team receiving a pass from quarterback Sue Wilson scored the third blue touchdown on a thirty-yard run. Betty Sue Hodock completed for the extra point, making the score 20-0 against the freshmen.

The game continued in a vicious, fighting manner. One onlooker commented, "This is Powder Keg football, not a Powder Puff. Somebody lit a fuse." The remainder of the game was played with fumbles, tackles, passes and penalties. The press box kept the spectators in suspense as they watched the scoreboard go as always showing the freshmen as favorites. As the game nearing sound, happy, sad, and tired players stumbled off of the field. The freshmen feel that they played a good game. Watch out sophomores and juniors, there's talk of a rematch.

The Hi-Po Football To Continue

"Intramural football will definitely continue for the rest of the season" is the word from Dean of Students Robert Phillips on the continuance of football in the face of a mounting casualty rate.

"Since the number of injuries has gone down there seems to be no need to stop football," said Phillips, "providing the injuries remain at the minimum they stand at now."

There had been the possibility of eliminating intramural football because of these injuries. However, with Dean Phillips' assurance, football will continue, and with the continued cooperation of all the players, the freshmen should have an exciting finish.

In the tutorial summer now graduated to virtue,
I was heard crying:

The night laughed at my deceit
I could not cry alone forever.

And the day craddled me in sleep;
I was mocked and betrayed
After being too seasonal
In lightening, wind, and rain;
To Golden Child grown afraid.

Of his beginning and his end were united
And in sharing love, the sources
We both were as strangers to his joy;
And the womb was empty from his rich conception.

His mother's pride was my envy.
In the moonlight he was golden,
Hidden in the forest green.
And I had felt the rhythm of his life.
His heart had been within my breast,
My voice refused to cry.
In the autumnal denial
As I, too, am wretched and ugly.

The audience turn-out at HPC on Friday night was not all that was expected to be. But the members of the NYRRE felt the response was very good.

The NYRRE played the following night at Catawba College, and said they did not feel the audience there was as involved as at HPC. They only received one encore, 'Until Tomorrow' by Hendrix. At one of their concerts in New York, Hendrix commented to them that they had done the song better than he ever had.

The transitions from fast music to slow, rock to lach, were very smooth. Many bands have used oboes as back-up instruments in rock music, but the NYRRE is one of the first to use it as a lead instrument.

Twenty juniors were honored at last Wednesday's required assembly by being chosen Junior Marshalls of the class of 1971. They are: Nancy Sheehan, (co-chief), Allentown, Penn.; Mrs. Mildred Moring, Scott, High Point; Judith Ann Scott (co-chief), High Point; Jufedl Ann Scott (co-chief) York Island, Ga.; Lucy L. Samole, High Point; High Point; Susan E. Brown, Jekyll Island, Ga.; Lucy L. Samole, High Point; and graphic arts, reflecting the theme of God's Joyous Gifts of Sight and Sound."

Mullinix Speculates On Plans For Spring

"Plans for the spring semes- ter activities are being thought out," says Chaplain Mullinix. Although it is far in the fu- ture, the Chaplain has made some early arrangements to keep the High Point campus from becom- ing stagnant and void of life. A February coffeehouse, spon- sored by the Methodist Student Movement and featuring a group from Carman Web College, will begin the line of spring activi- ties. In March, the Student Christ- ian Association will sponsor "Religion in Life Days" which will tie together through paint- ings and films, the performing and graphic arts, reflecting the theme of God's Joyous Gifts of Sight and Sound."

During the week of Easter, "some holy observances will be kept," and definite plans are being to work in coordination with Mr. Highbaugh and the High Point College choir.

Chaplain Mullinix has also been holding "vague" services every Monday at 6:30 p.m., in Lindsey Chapel. Attendance has ranged from three to ten students, and some- times even twelve; but the Chap- lain is determined not to dis- continu the services, "I would like to have more participation but it's entirely up to the stu- dents."
Money From Above

Presidential Scholarships constitute a little-known aspect of the High Point College financial aid program. These students currently holding the Presidential Awards include freshmen Susan Green, High Point; Lucy Hill, Graham; Carol Kane, Falls Church, Va.; Linda Laws, Snow Hill, Md.; Sue Moody, Pompano Beach, Fla.; and Rosemary Ritter, Robbins. Sophomores now receiving the Award are: Helen Browning, Charlotte; Patricia Jessup, Mt. Airy; and Patricia McDowell, High Point. Juniors include: Mrs. Nancy W. Rich, High Point; Judith Scott, Jekyll Island, Ga.; and Jane Way, Asheboro. Mrs. Sharon Shackelford, a senior, also holds a Presidential Scholarship. Based on high school records, the scholarships are granted to incoming freshmen and may be held as long as the student maintains a 2.0 average at HPC.

Students holding Presidential Scholarships must reapply for them each year stated Mr. Ro-.

Airy; and Patricia McDowell, Residential Scholarship.

The scene is the busy office of the campus newspaper on a weekday night; the time is early evening, the air is filled with the sound of clacking typewriters, feminine laughter, and much masculine grumbling and profanity. The Hi-Po is on its way to the presses once again.

But let us go backward in time a week or two, to the period when this same office was the scene of solitary nocturnal labor by a few disillusioned people.

The duly-appointed editor had just left school and an acting editor was in the saddle. Willie Shaw was journalistic very competent and even artistic, but his real love was the literary magazine, the Apogee. A former business manager was persuaded to return to his old post, and the rest of a skeleton staff had been temporarily assembled.

With great effort, one edition of The Hi-Po was put out under pressure from the administration. Then the weary mechanism ground to a halt, completely out of gas. There were no more funds.

Faced with the probable castration of his beloved Apogee and with threats for officers of the United States Marine Corps, Shaw resigned. The machine that rolled on for forty-two years was stopped; there was no longer any direction. Its original staff had left it, and the few persons still technically involved were at a loss for what to do.

A faint hum arose from the dormant news-plant as the Hi-Po provided emergency funding and paid off old debts. Hurried conferences with the newspaper's advisor brought new ideas and fresh hope.

Now things begin to move more quickly as the machine picks up speed. Business manager Ted Belch is persuaded to return and stay. He rapidly brings his three years of experience to bear on The Hi-Po's financial entanglements.

A series of long phone calls and personal talks bring senior psychology major Jo Deininger to the editor's chair. A bureau chief and editorial assistant under previous editors, she brings to the task the vitalit needed time and skills. Now a small host of firmer staffers begin to return from their long exile.

Judy Scott, a junior from Jekyll Island, Georgia, returns after an absence of a year and a half to take up a new job; she left as a typist and returns as copy editor.

Cartoonist Lynda "Irving" Long from Washington, DC, is called and asked, "Will you do it?" The answer is a quick affirmative.

Photography is the one department that has endured the two transitions; photo editor Ken Schaus is a rock of reliability and excellence.

Returning from his lengthy retirement to assume the managing editor's chair and once again fill the office with cigarette smoke and invective is junior David Steves from High Point. His new reporting staff is academically, young and inexperienced; their constant question is "How do you...?"

This young staff, mostly freshmen and sophomores because of The Hi-Po's "generation gap," immediately has outrageous demands put upon it. They respond with a surge of enthusiasm and energy that causes editor Deininger to grin and make glowing plans for next semester.

The Hi-Po is starting to roll again; much lost momentum must be regained, there is a staff to be trained, and many old habits and contacts to be restored.

The only one who seems downhearted is Business Manager Belch, whose new business staff has scurried out to dun old debtors and seek new advertising accounts, leaving him alone in the office. He mutters darkly to his adding machine, "My wife is going to kill me for taking this job again." The small machine is cowed and says nothing.

The Hi-Po shifts into high gear as the deadline approaches and copy editing, proofing, and lay-out follow one another in rapid succession. The finished paper is taken to the printer and a sigh of contentment arises from the whole staff, who drift away for the holidays, leaving the rebuilt machine in neutral and awaiting their return.
HPC Men Hit By Lottery; Troop Reduction Hoped For

By TED BELC I

President Nixon signed the present lottery system legislation into law about two weeks ago, ending the previous system of "oldest first." The old system was criticized because it left young men uncertain for a period of seven years. The long list of deferments was also a major topic of criticism.

Under the new system the period of uncertainty is reduced to one year. A place in line for every man at least 19 years of age but not 26 by the end of this year has now been designated. In whatever year a young man becomes I.A. (available for military service) or I.A.O (conscientious objector) available for noncombatant military service only he will be subject to the draft. About 500,000 men will be deferred in one of these classifications. These men will be draft material according to their number in the lottery and the position of the first letter of their last names, also chosen by a lottery system.

Men will be called in the order in which their birthdays were drawn, until the local boards, the number of men in its quota, and the number of eligible men it has in the top one-third. But the men whose birthdays are in the first 122 dates are almost certain to be drafted the first third. Those in the last one-third (244-360) are almost certain they will not be called in 1970, with their chances even smaller in future years. But again, local board quotas might interfere with this certainty. A small draft board with very few draftable men in the first two-thirds of the list could reach into the top one-third.

It is quite simple to determine your place in the system. Simply find your birthdate and the number that corresponds to it. Draft boards will start at the top of the list, September 14, and work their way through the others.

Men who now hold deferments will not be called while their deferments continue. Men now in school will keep their college deferments, unless the next Congress passes new legislation. But the number that was received last week will stay with the young man until he loses it.
New Rules Open Femme B-Ball

By TRUDY MATHEEN

Women's intercollegiate basketball practice began Monday, December 1st. This year a few changes will be made as to the rules of the game.

Last spring, in a meeting held in Greensboro, several women collegiate coaches voted to experiment with the five-player rule that the men now use.

The rules are basically as the men's rules with the exception of the thirty-second clock and the rule of having numbers on the front and back of the uniform. Those rules that do apply are the following:

1. The game is played by two teams of five players each.

2. Time out is taken for all violations.

3. Free throws are not taken following a double foul.

4. For a held ball (more than five seconds when closely guarded), a jump ball is given.

5. The hand is considered to be part of the ball on tie balls, shots, dribbles, interceptions, etc.

6. Penalty for all violations will be taken on the sideline.

7. The following are not considered dribbles: a. Successive tries for goal; b. Fumbles; c. Attempts to gain control of ball.

8. During a free throw the defensive team shall occupy both lane spaces adjacent to the end line.

9. Players must hold their position around restraining circle during toss up.

10. Either the foot or the lower leg may be involved in the intentional kicking.

11. If a player causes the ball to go out of bounds by deliberately throwing or hitting the ball against an opponent, ball is awarded to the player struck by the ball.

12. Tagging has been eliminated as a foul (blocking and holding cover this).

13. Guarding, outside of the free throw lane, so closely from the rear that contact results when an attempt is made by a player to turn or pivot in a form of blocking.

A complete list of rules are printed in the 1969-70 Basketball Guide.

Miss Betty Jo Clary who is the women's coach likes the five-player game better. "It is better than the roving game. There is too much pressure on the two girls who have to rove the entire game. Too often the girls are the two best players and pressure interferes with their accuracy in shooting."

There are those who oppose the five-court rule. The reasoning is that it is too much of an aggressive game for girls.

In answer Miss Clary says, "The five-girl basketball is actually less strenuous on some of the girls, because there won't be the full court press as was required in the four-girl, two-rover set up."

There are more advantages than disadvantages to the game. It will cause a higher scoring game and a greater chance for the fast break.

"As for the spectators, they will enjoy the game more, and be able to relate it to men's basketball."

With all the changes and present favorable outlook, Miss Clary says she will not know just how well she will like the five-court rule until a game is played and the rules can be seen to work effectively.
Season's Greetings

With this last issue of the semester, The Hi-Po wishes to extend its warmest season's greetings to the entire college community.

Good luck on exams and we'll see you next semester.

Student's Viewpoints Should Be Used

For the first time in High Point College's history, the students have put down, on IBM cards and in electrographic pencil, exactly what they think of their professors.

The unsigned cards are then sent to Purdue University to be scored, keeping anonymity at a high level.

No professor interprets scores the same way as another, which reduces uniformity severely.

A professor, popular with the students, may be very eager to see his results, while another, not so popular professor may dis-credit him, thinking that they don't really prove anything.

The teachers who may need these ratings the most, may not even look at the results, much less interpret them.

One wonders what actual purpose these ratings serve, since the results go so farther than the professors themselves. They cannot be up-to-date against the bad professor, nor in favor of the good one.

The administration hires our professors. It deserves to know how its employees are performing their job, at least from the student's point of view.

Three Exam Blues

As if omitting reading day were not enough, the administration has now decided to schedule three examinations on the first day of testing.

Granted, one is a usually rather short physical education activity exam, but the others, (Monday, Wednesday, and Friday at 1 p.m. and Tuesday and Thursday at 10:30 a.m.) are two very popular class periods.

Students with three exams December 12, must start intensive studying right after their last class on Thursday, which in some cases does not end until 3:45 p.m.

For a few unlucky seniors there is the added attraction of Graduate Record Examinations bright and early Saturday morning.

Graduate school admission relies heavily on Graduate Record scores, as does graduation final grades.

In view of this situation, students can hardly be expected to perform at peak level on any one of these tests. They will get little enough sleep as it is without a reading day, and probably much less with an extra exam thrown in between for extra measure.

Those involved in making the exam schedule could have at least picked two less popular class periods for the longer exams. If this was not possible then they should grant professors permission to give an exam on another day to students found in this predicament.

Midnight Ramblings

What's Your Number

BY DAVID STEVES

America has always been a nation of numbers. Its average citizen has a social security number, a bank account number, a car license number and driver's license number, several credit card numbers, and possibly a selective service number.

Last week, on December first, all males between the ages of 19 and 25 on that date accumulated another number—a lottery number. The available range of numbers is small, only 400, and at least one-third of the numbers are "winners." The prize, however, are quite different from those in the Irish Sweepstakes.

The sweepstyle holders of "sure" two-digit numbers win a paid tour of duty at government expense, the right to serve their country, and a very remote chance of being killed or wounded.

For a moment consider the fact that college students have been persistent advocates of increased equality and reform in the draft laws. Now, this equality has been achieved, the argument that affluent parents keep their sons out of the draft by sending them to college is invalid. College brings a delay, not an exemption.

Strangely enough, college students seem to be displeased with this new-fangled equal opportunity draft board. They have been arbitrarily divided into three classes and the predestined, the uncertain and the free. The free are completely elated, the uncertain are worried sick, and the predestined are discouraged, to say the least.

What has always been a remote problem is now a situation that must be faced as much as two years in advance. The word "des-"

Ferment has assumed a much more literal meaning than before.

It is somewhat hard for a "neutral" observer to understand the complainants. The much-desired equality has arrived...I-A or II-S, it's only a question of time for everybody.

Christmas Countdown

Dear Miss Deininger,

As of this High Point College catalogue 1969-70, "High Point College attempts to pro"duce a sound, progressive program. A living Christian philonosophy of education gives depth and intensity to this quality program." (p. 5-6) What exactly is a "living Christian philosophy?"" It is time to re-examine this concept and its application.

We are living in a time in which it is becoming increasingly apparent that the teachings of Jesus too often are, however, it has been distorted so so that he becomes more than a legalistic cretch, Legalists can stand up, shout, and wave their Bibles around but this will not change the truth. For the average people, according to John A. T. Robinson in Jesus to God, there is "an absolute moral standard, given for all to see...

there can be no doubt about Christ-standards in this or any other matter. In any change they are unchangeable: the only question in whether men live up to them." (p. 109). Thus the law becomes more important than people. If this is Christianity, then Jesus died in vain.

Jesus was the greatest situational ethicist of all time; he never intended to be interpreted as a legalist, both Robinson in Honest To God and Fletcher in Situation Ethics point out that for Jesus there was no absolute law except love and respect for individuals. As Robinson states, "the only intrinsic evil is the lack of love." (p.118 Honest To God). He goes on to explain that "there can be no "package" moral judges - for persons are more important even than "stand-arde". " (P. 180).

Do we throw out all laws? No. We seek to make laws and rules for the sake of the person, not for the sake of law! Christians use these laws to guide principles, and as Fletcher states in Situation Ethics enter into every decision, making situation-fully armed with ethical maxims, be prepared in any situation to compromise them or set them aside in the situation if love seems to better serve by doing so."

High Point College is fully equipped with a superstructure of intricate rules and attributes which assume that those are absolute moral laws and that violation of one of these rules is an indication of irresponsibility and immorality. It is time to re-examine this superstructure in the light of the above.

One particular area that needs to be re-examined is the de-mob system. For example: if a female student does not attend a dorm meeting 15 demerits are assigned. This example not only points out the triviality of the system but also demonstrates the right of it. When M. a demerits are "earned" the "criminal" may be subjected to campusing, dorming, or rooming even though she may be 51 years old. Do we first consider that an "unbeliever" has broken a rule or do we consider the person first? Christians "person-centered" ethics considers people

Not only must the entire de-mob system be reexamined but also attitudes toward all students. SPC needs a more responsible student-oriented attitude; after all, students are people!

EMAIL NUMBER 2

Grades on final exam had a one-point scale, while courses were rated on a basis of five points.

Evaluating students was left up to the professor; teachers were asked to judge their professors on their subject knowledge and interest, appearance and mannerisms, objectivity, skill in making the class interesting to students, and overall teaching ability.

Courses were judged on facility. Available, reference material available, compliance with stated objectives, and value to students were the primary items.

The IBM cards will be sent to Purdue to be scored, and results will be returned to the professor for their own ref-ence.
