Freshmen Orientation

The 1974-75 school year began to get underway, as a whopping 450 Freshmen and transfer students started Orientation Sunday, Sept. 1st.

As in most Orientations, the Freshmen can be characterized as having a bewildered expression and the vague feeling that he is being given the run around. They were not alone, however; for aside from parents and fellow students, they were surrounded by the friendly faces and purple ribbons of the Orientation Committee. Ced Gonter, Chairman of Orientation led the students in the day's events, which included a Reception for parents, students, and faculty, a dinner, Chapel services and the unforgettable Talent Show. Masters of Ceremonies, Ced Gonter and Tom Sikes, with the talent of the entire Orientation Committee, managed to provide the new students with a variety of ...laughs. The latter part of the evening included meetings with Big Brothers and Sisters and Dorm Counselors and Deans of Dormitories.

The long English and Language Placement tests arrived quite early Monday morning and were followed by an official welcome to the college from President Patton, Dean Cole, Mr. Holt, Mr. Dalbey, Dean Boyles and Dean Guy.

On Monday night the cafeteria was turned into a "Have we got a dance for you" atmosphere. The new students danced to the music of the Catalinas of Greensboro, N.C. as they met more new friends. Tuesday students registered and received I.D.'s and P.O. numbers.

After dinner Dr. Britt led the new students in Mixer Activities which offered a new and different experience.

On Wednesday all freshmen reported to the auditorium for psychological tests, followed by an optional language and math test. The afternoon provided a long awaited rest period as the upper classmen began to arrive only to add to the long lines at dinner.

The Hi-Po also welcomes all incoming freshmen and transfers to the campus and invites them to get involved and participate in campus activities such as The Writer's Club; Phoenix Club meetings; the Tower Players - the college drama club; Apogee - the literary magazine of H.P.C.; Zenith - the college yearbook; the Greek fraternities and soerorities and the upcoming rush; the multintudenous activities of the Student Union; and a special invitation from the Hi-Po to all freshmen interested in journalism.

If there were anything the reporters of the Hi-Po have noticed about the freshmen to date, it is a certain patience and intrepid good humor in the face of the endless red tape involved in registration and the testing of Orientation. As so many students from all the U.S. and many foreign countries enter college here for the first time, there will inevitably be numerous difficulties of every kind. But just as inevitably on a campus with such an unique family atmosphere, all rough edges will be smoothed out and everyone will discover just what is here for him. In the meantime, for the next few weeks, we can all "grin 'n bear it".

Fellowship Teams Organize

The High Point College Fellowship Teams will officially begin another year on September 12, 1974. The Teams meet each Thursday night at 7 p.m. in the First Floor Lounge of the Student Center.

The Thursday night meetings are workshops on the dynamics of the youth group in the local church. During the year individual teams make weekend visits to local churches to work with youth and their adult counselors.

This unique opportunity for Christian service is sponsored by the Department of Religion and the Students for Christian Action. Academic credit can be received for work in Fellowship Teams. Anyone who may be interested is welcome at the First meeting at 7 p.m. on Thursday, September 12, 1974 in the First Floor Lounge of the Student Center. No commitment will be required, but do feel free to come hear what Teams are about. Contact Glenn Myers, Jr. 883-9509.

Birthday Party Scheduled

Officially, High Point College will be fifty years old on Monday, September 16. In attempting to celebrate the event, the Office of Alumni Affairs and the Student Union are sponsoring a Birthday Party on Saturday, September 14. It should be a great day of fun and participation by Alumni, friends, students and the College family.

Registration with coffee and doughnuts will continue all morning beginning at 9:00 in the lobby of the Holt McPherson Campus Center.

Field Day Events will take place on the lawn in front of McCulloch Hall beginning at 10:00 and continuing for two hours. Teams for tug of war, three legged race, sack race, and egg throw will be composed of students, faculty and staff, alumni, and guests.

Lunch will be served in the cafeteria from 12:30 - 1:30 p.m. which will be followed by cutting the giant birthday cake in honor of the College.

At 2:30 p.m. the Talent Show, in which entrees will be composed of students, faculty, and staff, alumni, and guests, will begin. From what we have already seen and heard, this should be one of the greatest displays of talent on the campus this year.

The Dean Scott Show will climax the day's events in Memorial Auditorium at 8:00 p.m. Dean Scott is a nationally known impersonator and will imitate some of the all-time show greats.

HPC's Birthday Party should be a day of many events for us to celebrate the beginning of the College.

Film Festival

A major upcoming event of entertainment for the new year is a Classic Film Festival, sponsored by the Writer's Club.

The first film of four, "The Phantom of the Opera", starring Lon Chaney Sr., will be shown on September 19 at 7:00 p.m. in the Old Student Center.

Lon Chaney is noted for his outstanding character identification, in that he lived and became the characters he portrayed. The film itself is noted for sets of the Paris Opera House. "The Phantom of the Opera" is a silent film with the original organ background music.

Incoming freshmen who will be needing cultural credits should note that attendance at this event has been approved by the Assembly and Artist Committee as counting for Cultural Credit.

The Writer's Club welcomes all students to attend the film festival free of charge. More information concerning the Writer's Club may be obtained by contacting President Cindy Stocker, Campus Mail, or Sponsors, Dr. William DeLeeuw and Dr. Edward Piacentino.

Not Important?

Hello H.P.C. Even as I type this, my first editorial, I reflect upon the many things both good and bad about this position which I hold. I am constantly distracted from my typing by a trophy that is ensconced nearby upon the desk. It is a trophy for the best small college newspaper in this entire state, which the Hi-Po won in 1969. Five years ago, last year at this college there was serious consideration of discontinuing the paper entirely and just not having a campus newspaper in the future. All of this change in four years time. It seems that the paper was no longer "relevant", (even the word is becoming a cliché), no longer important. There are plans for a radio station which some people think will be able to do all that the paper could do and more. Maybe.

Why has the paper fallen so drastically? An examination of the old records may be the best indicator. At the time the Hi-Po won that trophy it had an enormous eight thousand dollar or so budget. This years Hi-Po has just half that amount. At that time the Hi-Po was a sixteen page, multi-sectioned paper which came out weekly. It is now an eight page pigmy which comes out twice a month. At that time the editor of the paper got a stipend from the college and was able to get college credit hours for his work. I get paid nothing and get no credit of any kind.

Does it sound to you like I'm just trying to get back a little of my own? You're right! But that's not all I'm trying to do. Anyone can see that with twice the budget and the incentive of a paid job the paper would be run more professionally and might just become the best in the state once again.

But why go to the trouble? Why have a paper at all? Let's explore what a paper can do. A paper is a permanent record; it does not fade past the ears and get lost in the ether; it will be there to refer to whenever needed. Off campus the newspapers of this nation are safe-guards of the public, and especially of freedom. A free press is probably the first essential to maintaining a free country. As Napoleon said "four hostile newspapers are more to be feared than a thousand bayonets." Lindburgh flew his famous trans-atlantic flight because a newspaper sponsored the act. As a training ground for potential professional journalists the Hi-Po is ultimately one of the most important forces or organizations of any kind on this campus. Journalists have undeniably changed the course of history in the past; it is equally possible that journalists who began right on the Hi-Po could affect the history of this nation and the world in the future. If this is so, and the fact is almost incontestable, then shouldn't the paper receive much more attention and aid from faculty, administration, and especially students than it has in the last few years? Not important? I know of few things anywhere with the potential importance this paper possess. Not relevant? We are much more than the past or the present, we are the future slipping into now. Help us. Be part of the future. I am up here alone typing and where are you? Do something. I do more than invite, I challenge any member of this college, student or faculty, who believes he has the gumption to speak and a brain to think with to get involved in this paper some way. If you want to write, then do it, and bring it to me. If you want to help with the business of running a paper then contact the Hi-Po office and I guarantee I will find something for you to do.

If there is any goal I have set this year it is to shake the apathy to this paper and make it the vital part of the campus community it can be. I am fighting now, and will continue to fight to prove that this ridiculous bit of paper you are holding can be so much more than that. Important? No, you....you show me.

As I begin another school year in this corner let me pledge to you only two things: I'll tell the truth as far as I know it and I won't offer my opinions as anything but my opinion. What follows is an opinion I've had fermenting for the two years I've been associated with High Point College...

By the time this paper reaches the campus, many of you freshmen will have already been hypnotized by H.P.C.'s Greek Mafia. Some open houses will already have taken place and many of you are already convinced you want to pledge a social fraternity or sorority. Let me attempt to talk you out of it. We have some fraternities and sororities which offer valuable contributions by enriching spiritual growth, bestowing honors on worthy students, or offering services to the campus and community. But the eight social fraternities and sororities have established a system by which the worst in traditional Greek systems has been salvaged and the rest has been thrown to the wind.

I strongly advise gentlemen to stay clear of our campus chapters of Delta Sigma Phi, Theta Chi, Lambda Chi Alpha, Phi Kappa Alpha, and Ladies you would do well to avoid the Miss America smiles of Phi Mu, Kappa Delta, Alpha Gamma Delta, and Zeta Tau Alpha.

The reasons are simple and varied. Booze is a good one. People who like to drink and drink a lot are always good Greeks? The tactics used to entice new students into their ranks would seem to indicate that this is true. Watch the potential pledges walk down the halls of McCulloch with their brown bags as they head for rush parties and dinners and watch them come back. The toll alcohol takes on these people is obvious, and with teen alcoholism an increasingly serious national problem, booze is nothing to build an organization on.

A second reason to stay clear is that you may not be asked to pledge. Maybe you've never seen what happens to a person's head when they've been courted, wined and dined and then dumped by a fraternity or sorority. Friendship is a lot like love, no? Maybe you have lost a lover? It gets real ugly when the little invitations come out or don't come out as the case may be.

But suppose you do pledge? Then comes the third problem, cash. In a time of inflation it's hard to understand why anyone would pay hard money for friendship when so much of it is free for the asking. And it does cost.

But these are only minor offenses when compared with the falseness of it all. The system works to give people a sense of brotherhood and sisterhood. Lonely freshmen are offered a chance to go out to lunch with an upperclassman, maybe out to dinner, to a party, to drink, to gossip. The loneliness is dissolved as the cash hits the barrelhead, magic. But why can't upperclassmen extend an open arm policy without Greek organizations? Why can't freshmen make friends with each other instead of meeting over a mug of brew in the shadow of Greek letters? Independents have done it for years and years.

There are plenty of good organizations to get involved in that have a decent purpose. We've got service clubs, Tower Players, Writer's Club, Students for Christian Action, Fellowship teams, intramural sports, even the newspaper staff isn't a bad place to meet people. Of course, you buy your own drinks if you go independent, but there's something somehow All-American about that anyway.

There are a lot of good people in fraternities and sororities, but the Greek system didn't make them that way. They had their heads together long before they pledged.

In short the Greeks offer a little society of their own, a fraternity or a sorority, but the payment is tough and the independents offer a helping hand when you need it, too.

You'll hear a lot of good things about the Greeks in the coming days. I just wanted you to hear both sides.

The First Day of College: A Freshman's Impression

by Paul P. Hildreth

On Sept. 1st, 1974 I began my first day at High Point College, which is a story in itself. All of the babies, I mean Freshmen, namely myself, were lump-throated and about to die from heat exhaustion due to a malfunction in the air conditioner. There were about 400 smile-free faces running from floor to floor, trying to uncover their rightful places amongst the administrative principles. Meanwhile I am entering McCulloch; it's supposed to be a dorm, but I kept telling myself, "This is a dream", and all that you have heard about McCulloch is part of the dream. Unfortunately I was not dreaming, it was my home to be. My first night the boiler blew up and a cold welcome met me in the shower. McCulloch is the place to be this winter if you want to experience pioneer

Does Sex Saturate HPC?

by June Hill

There is a greater degree of sexual expression among college students today than ever before. The students of High Point College take no exception to this statement. Reasons for this vary from the greater possibilities for privacy, to the rising means of sex without involvement.

Our has been called a 'sex saturated' culture. But what is the college student really looking for? Does he accept sex as an isolated part of his life to be used for fulfillment when other things fail to succeed? Or is he looking for real relationships that satisfy over and above the passing moment?

Among students at HPC, the latter seems to be the general feeling, although the former is the more prevalent practice.

Why is it that a student will set out looking for a genuine experience and settle for so much less?

The reasons are many and depend on the individual. Generally they can be put into two categories: a lack of meaningful standards enforced and exemplified by the authorities around the student, and a failure in the search for self to fulfill his greatest needs.

The American community has never really made up its mind what it wants and expects from the college student. While the world outside is busy experimenting with its own morals - trying out the Playboy philosophy, furthering a back-to-church movement - the college student is living in a fish bowl, the center of all attention when he, too, tries to experiment. (Have you ever noticed how those of your friends who bypassed college to go right into business are never up for special comment?)

A young person comes to college advised to think for himself, but instead he finds himself the victim of a group of meaningless rules which are supposed to be his standards for life. Rules without reason are forever without meaning. No student wants to live in a normless society. He expects restraint and guidance from those older and more experienced than himself. But an overwhelming amoung of rules accompanied by a conspicuous lack of whys and wherefores are cause for rebellion, and rebellion comes in various forms, including sexual aggression.

College is supposed to cater to more than just intellectual needs. It is a place of searching for identity, and while no student knows exactly what he is looking for, he has some idea of what he would like to find. He expects to further his personality by interacting with others whom he finds interesting, and to interest them in return.

It is here that we find a basic complaint about our campus. The boys are not happy with the seemingly singlefold purpose of the girls-to-look-good and be liked because they look good. They are searching for more depth, and finding it lacking. So, they turn to sex.

The girls, in return, register almost the same sad story. They contend that the boys are less interested in who a girl is than in how she looks.

The girl who is asked out at the very last minute doesn't feel that she's being sought for her personality, but rather, only as a time consumer. And what could be more time consuming than sex?

A total philosophy of life is involved here. The college community should provide an emotional, social, and intellectual climate which fulfills the student's needs. But apparently something is missing.

Sex is not a trite thing to be played with, and most students know that, without committment, it is a superficial and unsatisfying experience. But as the college campus becomes more 'sex-saturated', where do we place the blame?

living at its best. This rustic setting and antique structure provide an awsome look into the past. But enough about luxury living.

The talent show was the wonder of my life. The sure faces and expert showmanship had me convinced that the upperclassmen had practiced for months. The jokes were unbelievable, not funny enough to make you laugh but dull enough to make you wonder what you were doing there. I don't mean to criticize anyone, but the truth is a must. The school has a warm atmosphere, especially in the

FROM THE STAFF

The Hi-Po is an 8 page, bi-weekly newspaper. However, the staff has been forced to condense this first issue due to lack of time. On Wednesday, September 13., at 3:00 p.m., our staff has scheduled an organizational meeting, in the publication room, third floor in the New Campus Center. This meeting will give our staff members an opportunity to meet with future staff members and discuss future plans. Anyone interested is invited to attend.

S. U. Continues Movies

As part of their activities in the coming year the Student Union will sponsor a series of Warner Bros. movies to be shown throughout the year. The first movies shown will be "Dirty Harry", starring Clint Eastwood. It will be shown Sept. 19 at 3:00 p.m. and Sept. 20 at 8:00 p.m. All movies will be shown in the Old Student Center, and admission will be fifty cents.

freshmen dorms, and the students are so likeable, especially the upperclassmen. Everyone you see has a smile on their face, but all the freshmen know that it's a sinister look at things to come.

My first day closed in exhaustion. Today I feel a lot better about High Point College, for I sense a true spirit of unity, and the staff seem sincere in their desire to help us. I don't believe anyone will forget their first day at our college, High Point College.

WANT ADS & PERSONALS

Starting with the next edition the Hi-Po will reserve a small space for students to run personal ads and "Wanted" type ads. Rates will be quite reasonable and students wishing to run an ad should bring it by the Hi-Po Office, upstairs in the Campus Center.

Upcoming Events

Tired of the same old thing? Need to get out and put a little step in yer step? There will be a dance at the Moose Lodge on Friday, Sept. 13th. Come out, relax, and have a little fun.

Annual Field Day events will begin Saturday, Sept. 14th at 10:00 a.m. All organizations are requested to have their entries in by 10:00. Activities will include field type events such as ten-man tug of war, two man egg throwing, three-legged sack race, etc. Don't miss an exciting weekend; join us in the Field Day events.

Happy Birthday HPC

High Point College celebrated its fiftieth Birthday on Saturday September 14. The day long party was underway by 10:00 am as the students, faculty and guests joined together for relay games and races on the front lawn of McColloch. The morning's games were directed by members of the HPC Student Union. Dr. Murphy Osborne accepted the winner's trophy for the HPC faculty who triumphed over the student participants.

Registration for alumni and guests was carried out in the Holt McPherson Student Center throughout the day. Adding to the Saturday lunch lines were the many alumni and guests who were eager to express surprise regarding the many changes which have taken place since they last visited our campus. Following lunch was a brief program led by Mr. Robert Williams, Director of Alumni. Mr. Williams welcomed the alumni back to HPC and assisted alumni members; Mrs. Harmon Coble Sr., Mrs. Helen Lewis, and Miss Elena Young in cutting the Birthday Cake.

The first school song, composed by Miss Dorothy Hoskins and Mrs. Margaret Gurley Fussell, of the 1929 class was sung, followed by the Alma Mater composed by Dr. Lew J. Lewis, former professor of High Point College.

The birthday party resumed at 2:00 pm on the steps of the Student Center for a Student Talent Show. Ced Gonter and Bill Ashley, masters of ceremonies, welcomed the varied audience. The Studettes opened the Talent Show

Welcome Dean Boyles

by Doug Potter

High Point College has hundreds of new faces this year, and among them is the new Assistant Dean, Mrs. Ann Boyles.

Ann was born in Rocky Mount, N.C. only a few years before most of us. Her parents are Dr. and Mrs. Leon Robertson. She is married to N. Bennet Boyles who is the principal at Sumner School, and is an applicant for his Doctorate of Education in Educational Administration at U.N.C.-G. Ann's high school days were spent at Rocky Mount, N.C. after which she attended the University of Poitiers, La Rochelle France, from which she graduated with a certificate d'Etudes in the summer of '66. She has also attended Meredith College, U.N.C. Wilmington and U.N.C. Chapel Hill, where she received a B.A. degree with a major in French and a minor in Religion. She obtained her Master of Education degree from U.N.C.-G in french. Presently she is an applicant for Doctorate of Education in Educational Administration at U.N.C.-G.

Ann's activities have been varied. They include being a high school cheerleader, working on a high school paper, being an AFS student to Rio de Janeiro, a member of the National Honor Society, a member of Lakeside Baptist Church, and winner of several beauty awards. During her college years she tutored high school and college students in French, worked in language labs, and assisted Dr. Sarah Bell while she was authoring Charles Nodier: His Life and Works. As could be expected by her friendly smile and poise, she was a finalist in the Miss North Carolina Pageant in 1967. Dean Boyles was an active member of Kappa Gamma Sorority at U.N.C.-Chapel Hill and has expressed her desire to see a good Greek union here at H.P.C.

Dean Boyles has expressed to me that she truly enjoys the atmosphere here at H.P.C., plans to become well known to students as an administrator, and also hopes students will feel free to drop by for a chat.

On behalf of all the students, dean Boyles - Welcome.

Dr. William Locke. Dr. Locke is former department head of Religion and Philosophy at High Point College where he served from 1950-1973. Dr. Locke spoke on the history of High Point College; about which he has been gathering and researching materials for quite some time. After the close of the assembly I heard only good comments concerning Dr. Locke's talk, and the convocation in general. All those in attendance learned much about High Point College's history and were pleased to know that McCulloch Hall has never really been out of the state of depression. Overall, Dr. Locke left many interesting tid-bits for those attending.

I feel that the Convocation was 100% better than last year's and was an excellent kick-off to the 1974-75 college year.

Cultural Enrichment Program Announced

The Assembly and Artists Committee, chaired by Dr. Vance Davis, has enacted a new program to enrich the cultural life of our campus. The program is instituted in the 1974-75 college catalog, and so affects incoming freshmen and all students who choose to abide by the current catalog.

These are the basic requirements of the program. Four semester hours of credit must be earned in the cultural enrichment program. One semester hour is earned by attending five of the cultural/intellectual events, three of which must be on-campus events. All students in the program receive five cards at the beginning of the year which may be turned in as they attend the events. No one event is required. Following is a list of the approved activities for credit in the program.

Opening Convocation

by Doug Potter

On September 11, 1974, at 10:00 a.m., High Point College held its opening convocation assembly at Memorial Auditorium.

After the processional played by Mrs. Pat Moore May, Dean David W. Cole greeted the administration, faculty, guests, and extended a warm welcome to new and returning students. Following Dean Cole, the President of the SGA, Steve Lawson, gave a simple, but meaningful message to the students encouraging them to become an active part of the HPC scene. Reverend Charles Teague gave the invocation which led into the beautifully sung solo, "The Impossible Dream" by Miss Donnah Harrington. Dr. Harold Conrad, professor of History, introduced the guest speaker,

Labels

There are many people on this campus, people with many different characteristics; physical, mental and emotional. Because of this it is very common, "handy", to classify people as various "types". At first glance such labeling seems so logical that it is hard to spot the fallacy in the system. Let me assure you that this fallacy does exist.

As you may remember Harry Reasoner saying, "...such labels tend to lump you with people with whom you may share agreement on only one issue." I reject the notion that my unique physical, mental, emotional, and spiritual make-up are enough like anyone else's to be put into any "type." There is a continued pressure in the modern restrictive ID requiring world to force individualism out of existence. Kurt Vonnegut carries this trend to a frightening but logical conclusion in a little short-story called "Harrison Bergeron." I strongly advise you to read it. Many of you have made just such a grave injustice in judgement to the students and faculty when you decided so exactly, so completely that you knew what they are and contain. "Professor Whosis, the-History-teacher", "Good Ole Charlie Whatshisnose, the-jock-on-the-baseball-team", what if they are really more than that and you won't let them be? If since I've been at this college there was anything that I've hated it was this tendency to describe literally everyone on the campus in such shallow terms. You all do it, every one of you. In a place that I love, among a group of people that I love, it has been the one thing to mar my happiness. Why don't you stop and think about what you are doing when you limit people in this way?

Labels. I reject them outright. I go further than to reject the idea that I am so like other people; I reject the notion that I am a small and finite being. I will not be "a Southerner", "a liberal", "a Democrat", "a twenty-one year old male white Anglo-Saxon Protestant", or anything else any of you care to call me. I will not be any two dimensional preconceived picture of what you think I am. I go beyond that, and if you are ever to know me then you must go beyond that too.

This paper will not be a "Liberal" paper or a "Conservative" paper; it will only, I hope, be a well run paper. I will not let any of you in my sight be hidden behind a label or stuck with a "type". You have limitless depth beyond these things.

It is very unpopular to be didactic and preach one's own opinion as being "the way". So I will ask you instead to perform a very casual experiment. The next time you happen to be talking to "one of the jocks" or "one of the long-hairs" or "one of the fraternity freaks" or "one of those theatre people" or "one of the God-squad" or "one of those fossilized old professors" or one of anyone else whose number you think you've got, see what happens if you begin to discuss a subject you consider to be way off of their path and yours. Ask them about things like where they've lived and what they thought of life there. You may be surprised at the sensativity and sophistication of some of these idiots.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:

In response to Pat Jobe's article, "Don't Go Greek", in your September 5th edition I would like to express my feelings as a Brother of Lambda Chi Alpha international fraternity. My comments will be slanted in regards to only one fraternity on campus, but will have generalizations concerning our entire HPC Greek system.

Pat stated reasons for the young men and ladies not joining a fraternity or sorority, but I question Pat's knowledge of what goes on inside a Greek chapter.

People who like to drink do not always and are never pledged by a fraternity or sorority for that reason.

Granted the Greeks do hold parties off campus where beer, alcohol, and coke are at personal discretion to consume. Everyone in a Greek chapter does not drink, and if Pat tries to say the Tower Players, Writer's Club, Students for Christian Action, Fellowship Teams, intramural sports, and newspaper staff are all non-drinkers you sure haven't been around much. It is only fair to let the students know that certainly Greeks drink, but so do GDI's --Pat!!!

Pat's second reason dealt with is the presentation of bids to rushees. It is true that all rushees do not get bids (invitations), but this too is a Greek privilege. Not everyone who rushes or is rushed is going to fit in properly with

Congratulations

by Pat Jobe

Frank Caulfield's food ecology program is working and thank the Good Lord. Although he has experienced fifteen perfect inflations since school closed in May, the cost of board has not gone up. Caulfield is doing everything in his power to keep the prices the same and the selection wide. And let me state here that although I've listened to complaints about quality of the food for two years, we've got a good cafeteria. Sure it's not Mom's, but eat at the Pineroom in Chapel Hill if you want some rotten institutional food. Friends of mine who have visited from other colleges in the area agree that we have a greater selection, better food, and a better facility. But the fact that the food ecology program is working is the best news yet. Caulfield talked about the program last week. In his machine-gun brogue, he slammed at higher costs, congratulated the students on their co-operation, and talked of possible higher rates in board.

"I don't want to see the board go up, but canned food is going up forty percent next month. Not only is the food higher but the cost of tin is up. Milk's up, bread's up, even ice cream's up. It seems like the prices come up with the sun every morning.

"But these kids are pitching in and helping on this thing. Of course, the whole thing isn't their fault. I'm trying to get my servers to try to exercise a little control. I saw a girl putting about a pound of hamburger pie on a plate today, but they'll get better. The whole thing is teamwork. I'm not saying don't eat a lot, just eat what you take. We've still got a few who load up with one of everything on the line and then eat only a little of everything. But there's always a few in every crowd."

As he talked, Caulfield smiled and moved energetically. He's pleased with what has happened more so than worried about what will happen if prices get worse. He likes the fact that he can offer several desserts, salads, and vegetables and hopes not to have to cut back. But even beyond the issues of selection and waste is the simple matter of money. Anything you can buy for what you paid last January is as rare as hen's teeth and old lady's roller skates, yet that's exactly what we're doing this semester with our meals.

Soon a decision will have to be made about next semester's board and that decision will be based on two things, prices and the success of the ecology program. We cut waste and we cut costs and that's a very practical way of fighting inflation. Congratulations are in line for all of us in opening school by responding so well to this new program.

Just a few other notes on the opening of school. The Danny O'Toole and Phil D'Agostino Show was a riot. McCulloch's two dorm daddys tried to explain this year's revised rules and the crown of about 150 males found occasion to cheer, laugh, applaud, and groan some twenty-seven times. The climax of the entertainment came when O'Toole informed us that "promiscuity" is no longer illegal at HPC. The term has been changed to "violation of the North Carolina statutes on indecency in the presence of a member of the opposite sex in your dormitory room." This change was made in order to clear up a delicate point, but the rule has become somewhat more severe. In other words, what you once couldn't do, now you can't even look at. And the band played on....

But kudos must go to Dan and Phil. They remained relatively calm through the ordeal and came out with their position quite clear; they plan to run a tight ship. And tight it has been. McCulloch is almost a decent place to live with noise under control in the late hours of night and early morning. These guys are doing well with an impossible job.

And finally the "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition Award" goes to Dr. William Locke. His convocation speech was a strong wind and those of you who missed it slipped. I was delighted to learn that McCulloch's hot water situation is more a matter of tradition than mechanics. He kept us entertained with anecdotes and made some interesting observations, but he caused my blood pressure to shift a mite when he talked about dancing.

He told of how the students worked two years to get dancing at HPC and how the Church went haywire and how in the end, the devilish practice came to our campus more like a seasonal change than the damnation it was thought to be.

"And you may work for change," the gauntlet flung out, "and if you're right, you'll get it." Bless his heart for he has challenged us to act from a forum that has rarely done so. He has focused our obstacles for us and they are formidable, but he has also given us an opportunity to think and hopefully move.

A birthday is a good time to think of growth. Why not?

HPC unless they had become an active Greek, and I am one of them. I encourage students to get to know the Greeks for we have something to offer and we are people, "individuals" first and Greek second.

the ideals and meaning that each chapter on campus possesses. Each individual is discussed in the secrecy of the chapter, voted on, and then some are given bids. One should remember that there are several organizations which use the power to accept and reject individuals on the basis of qualifications and adaptability to the organization, such is true here at High Point College with the Greeks, and even the Admissions Office.

The third reason Pat gave for not going Greek was the cash. I feel that Pat has very little conception of how much it costs to go Greek and what becomes of the money. All initiation fees are given directly to the chapter's national headquarters, and monthly dues are used to carry out functions by the Greeks. All the Greek chapters have a formal dance during the year, some have functions with welfare families, orphanages, and social parties to help alleviate the tensions of classes and are used to meet new people on campus through the dating procedure. Some fraternities and sororities even hold "mixers" which are designed to get to know exactly who the Greeks are. By my last comment I feel Pat's terminology "Greek Mafia" is very far from true. If we too were a "mafia" we too would have power, but we are just social groups working together and still encourage the members to maintain a sense of individualism.

I would like to close by saying that many upper-classmen would not be here at

Film Festival Nears

On Thursday, Sept. 19, at 7:00 p.m. in the Old Student Center the Writer's Club will begin the Classic Film Festival with a showing of "The Phantom of the Opera", starring Lon Chaney Sr.

Anyone interested in classic cinema art will enjoy attending this event. As part of an attempt to encourage more than passive consideration of such art, students are urged to write a review of the film, as it may be interpreted today. There will be a five dollar aware to the student submitting the best review.

Incoming freshmen who will be needing cultural credits should note that attendance at this event has been approved by the Assembly and Artist Committee as counting for Cultural Credit.

The Writer's Club welcomes all students to attend free of charge this chance to see one of the greatest actors of all time in one of his most famous roles.

Moose Lodge Dance Success

The Student Union Association sponsored it's first Moose Lodge dance for the 1974-75 year on Friday, September 13. The action began at 8:00 p.m. as HPC students arrived at the High Point Moose Lodge aquipted with personal mugs and anticipation for an evening of fun and brew. Students danced to the music of Frost of Charlotte, North Carolina. As the evening progressed the approximately 400 students managed to drain the kegs of 155 gallons of beverage. In spite of the cries of thirst and the lack of fresh air the Student Union reports that the dance was a success. Please mark your calendars for the next Moose Lodge dance which will be October 12, with Brice Street Band providing the entertainment.

Zodiac Track

Horoscope

ARIES [Mar. 21-Apr. 20] You should have no difficulty grasping new ideas. You may find yourself leading others who are having more trouble.

TAURUS [Apr. 21-May 20] You have been standing firm on your principles and now the things you have wanted are coming to you.

GEMINI [May 21-June 21] You've been changing your opinions and friends rapidly lately, and now is a good time to get your mind settled.

CANCER [June 22-July 22] Your sensitive nature may have kept you looking for security from the harsh or unknown. But now that you've found that something, you'll keep it for a long time.

LEO [July 23-Aug. 23] Take care that your natural pride and ability to lead doesn't turn into arrogance and bossiness.

VIRGO [Aug. 24-Sept. 22] Your sarcastic nature may not have been paying off lately. The weekend could be profitable if you curb your practical tendencies.

LIBRA [Sept. 23-Oct. 22] Your natural talent for grace and beauty may be profitable now. Take advantage of your ability; a mutual interest can boost a friendship.

SCORPIO [Oct. 23-Nov. 22] Your quest for knowledge is being satisfied now. Relax your fixed mask and let some of your emotions show.

SAGITTARIUS [Nov. 23-Dec. 21] Your good nature and sharp wit have been of benefit lately, but now you may have a tendency to act before thinking. Take care.

CAPRICORN [Dec. 22-Jan. 20] Do not let temporary setbacks disappoint you. You have the ability to overcome any obstacles. Put some of your plans into action.

AQUARIUS [Jan. 21-Feb. 19] As usual your mind is running ahead of those around you. Take care not to rebel against everything - you do need a few friends.

PISCES [Feb. 20-Mar. 20] Because you are sympathetic and discreet you may feel bogged down with the problems of others. Stand up for your own rights - don't let others take advantage of you.

Greek News

The Phi Mu Sorority did very well in rush this year in that they have eleven new pledges. They are Barb Bolton, Robin Deal, Diane Edwards, Jessie Harrington, Rhonda Lolk, Valerie Luedke, Janice Mize, Lori McDade, Patti Rusenko, Donna Welsh, and Wanda Hartman. These girls will be honored at the annual pledge dance to be held on November 16th. Phi Mu would like to extend thanks to all those who made the Phi Mu Sorority so successful.

Alpha Gamma Delta Sorority has just ribboned nine new girls. They are to be pledged into the Sorority on Wednesday, September 18, 1974. We are very happy with our new girls and would like to welcome: Mig Jarzynski, Joda Hayman, Susan Miles, Susan Rice, Bunnie Piddycord, Janice Leland, Margie Rogers, Donna Lyman, Susie Galup.

After an exciting rush Kappa Delta Sorority pledged five girls: Beth Cothran from Asheboro; Julie Ebsory from Miami, Florida; Donna Luff from Milford, Delaware; Cheryle Nowicke from High Point, North Carolina, and Janie Solomon a national representative who came to assist the four sororities with rush. We are looking forward to a very successful year!

The Zeta Tau Alpha Sorority had seven new girls to pledge into their sorority. The pledges are Kathy Black from Thomasville, N.C.; Sharon Janssen from Hackettstown, N.J.; Cindy Maley from Thomasville, N.C.; Carol Neary from Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; Tricia Parks from Chagrin Falls, Ohio; Joy Powers from Winston-Salem N.C.; and Dana Williams from Lavallete, N.J. Presently five more pledges have been added during open rush. They are Debbie Baker from Concord, N.C.; Cathey Callo-way from Winston Salem, N.C.; Nina Cameron from Southern Pines, N.C.; and Sharon Stanback from Matthews, N.C.

The Zeta's were not idle through the summer with attending weddings and other activities. Susan Hartley was married to Warren Boyer on June 22, 1974 in Winston-Salem; Pat Evans was married to Paul English on June 29, 1974 in Bethesda, Maryland; and Susan Fain was married to Welcome Mr. Carl Walton!

Along with the new "Food-Ecology" posters and "Waste-Not-Awards" in the HPC cafeteria, we have a new Assistant Cafeteria Supervisor; Mr. Carl Walton. Mr. Walton has a record of 27 years of experience in the food service area. Twenty years of his experience was gained when he was in the United States Marine Corps. After retiring from the Marine Supervisor of the S&S Cafeterias in Greensboro, where he has been employed for the past seven years. Mr. Walton is originally from West Virginia. Mr. and Mrs. Walton and their seven children are presently living in Greensboro. The staff of the Hi-Po on behalf of the HPC students would like to extend a warm WELCOME to Mr. Walton!!

The Tutorial Program Needs You

by Susan Matthews

The Youth Services Bureau invites you to become a part of their Tutorial Program. The Youth Services Bureau is sponsored by Model Cities and is funded by LEAA. Across the city of High Point there are many children (ages 6-16) who need a friend and some help making it in their school work. These children come from frustrating homes and social environments filled with disappointment. Some have already had contact with juvenile authorities. All are facing adjustment problems which if not alleviated immediately will hinder them for their entire lives. Your participation as a tutor and friend requires only two hours a week on a voluntary basis. That's not very much time, when you think of what a great difference YOU can make! An optional one-hour credit may be earned. Join with us! For more information contact: Lydia Brown, Box 3122, or Ken Phaiah, Box 3480.

Women In Hockey

by Cindy Wood

Sore muscles, blisters, and bruises are beginning to disappear after the first two weeks of conditioning and stickwork of Hockey practice.

High Point's six returning team members combined with the seven new athletes composes this year's 13 member Hockey team. Mrs. Michael Quinto, an addition to the Physical Education teaching staff is this season's Hockey Coach. Coach Quinto is optimistic with the team. She realizes that a team can't always start out on top, but by the middle of October the team should be tough to beat.

The ultimate goal of the team is to develop to it's greatest potential by Deep South Tournament in November.

The Hockey season officially begins Thursday, September the 26th in our home field. Our first three conference games are on our own field. The Lady Panthers will meet Guilford College on the 26th, Wake Forest on September 30th, and then meet UNCG the next day, October 1st. Game time is 4:00 p.m.

If you have no idea of what Hockey is or never even heard of it, please come down to field, we'll be glad to introduce you to our world in women's sports.

Women's Volleyball

by Karen Redfern

On September 5 approximately 30 young ladies invaded Alumni Gymnasium anticipating the first intercollegiate volleyball practice. Over the past couple of weeks, excitement and enthusiasm has been building among the girls. The season will get under way on September 26.

This year's team will include six members of last year's team, Karen Koelsch, Wanda Walton, Carolina Clements, Pam Silar, Karen Redfern and Julie Rochelle. With many freshman trying out for the team, it could prove to be a very interesting season.

Coach Jennifer Alley has great hopes for the team. "We have great material to work with and the team looks to be very promising."

The women's volleyball team will be traveling a great deal during the season with only two home matches. Any and all support will be greatly appreciated.

Creative Contributions Requested

by Vickie Huntly

If you enjoy creative writing and would like to see your work in print, then the Synthesis and Apogee are for you. Published by students of High Point College, the Synthesis and Apogee are literary magazines consisting of contributions submitted by students, faculty, and members of the community. All types of literary contributions are accepted for possible publication, including poetry, short stories, drama and journalistic writings. Art work is also accepted but must be limited to block prints, sketches or black and white photography due to the expense of printing.

All work submitted to the Synthesis or Apogee goes before a reading committee made up of members of the Writer's Club, editors, and faculty advisors. A contribution is published when in the judgement of the committee, it is complete in its present form and has achieved a finished overall effect. If a work is selected for publication, it will appear in the next monthly issue of the Synthesis. If a work is thought to need improvement by the committee, the advisors (Dr. DeLeeuw, Dr. Piacentino) and the editors of both literary magazines (Jane Curtis, Bucky Hooker) invite the contributor to attend a workshop of the Writer's Club or a personal conference to discuss his work. Whether or not a contribution is published, all work is kept on file to be reviewed by the Apogee for possible publication in its yearly issue.

Everyone is invited to submit their work to the Apogee and Synthesis. The first deadline for submitting contributions is OCTOBER 2, 1974. Drop them by the Apogee office (Publication room) or send them through campus mail.

Physical Education Major's Convention

On October 4-5, the fourth annual North Carolina Physical Education, Health and Recreational Student Major's Convention will be held here at High Point College.

Students from schools all over the state will be presenting, attending, and participating in the different program sessions. The program's will include: gymnastics, clogging, acrobatic square dancing, modern dance, skeet shooting, legal liability, athletic taping, tennis fundamentals and many more. Each session will be an hour long.

The Physical Education Majors of HPC would like to open the two day convention to any student, whether a major or not, to attend any presentation that may be of interest. The convention will begin on Friday at 12 noon, with a registration fee of $1.00 for those who plan to attend the sessions. Registration will be held on the first floor of Holt McPherson Campus Center between 12:00 and 2:00. Sessions will begin on Friday at 2 o'clock and end Saturday at noon.

Tower Player's Production: "Mame"

This year H.P.C. is planning to do the musical comedy "Mame", as a parents weekend activity.

This Tower Player production is approved by the Culture and Artists Committee as counting for credit on the Cultural enrichment program.

The show is the story of a certain Miss Mame Dennis and the crazy, carefree life she leads. The show opens in the Roaring 20's, in the year 1928. Agnes Gouch (the nanny) and Patrick Dennis (an orphan of ten) have just arrived in New York. They are on their way to Mame's Apartment to live, since Mame is Patrick's only living relative. As they meet Mame a rip-roaring party is taking place.

The show progresses and presents the far-out life that Mame Dennis leads. The depression hits and Mame goes through a series of jobs, at one of which she meets Beauregard Jackson Pickett Burnside (a southern gentleman who has money) Mame and young Patrick go down to Georgia to meet Beau's family and find they are not the most welcome sight for sore eyes, However, Mame charms and coaxes the blues out of the south by bringing back the fox alive in a fox hunt. Not long after Mame and Beau marry, Beauregard falls off the Materhorn and dies. Mame comes back to Beckman Place and finds young Patrick, who was away at boarding school. Mame goes to a party at the Upson's and is turned off completely by them. She decided to have a little get together of her own and perhaps show Patrick that bigots and snobs the Upsons really are. As always Mame succeeds. The show closes with Patrick and Pegeen (the interior decorator who Mame just happens to have around to meet Patrick) are trying to forbid their son Peter to go to India with his Auntie Mame. You're left knowing it's all going to happen again.

As of press time casting for the play is not complete. A listing of the cast and characters will be published in the next issue of the Hi-Po. The Tower Players invite everyone to attend their performance for an enjoyable evening of entertainment.

Cosmic Cowboys Blast Off

Saturday, September 14, 1974, the auditorium at H.P.C. rocked with the sounds of Elvis Presley, Ray Charles, "The Temptations", and various golden oldies of the '50's. The vocal stars were not here in person but we had the next best thing- The Dean Scott Show, compliments of the Student Union.

Dean Scott, along with his partner Bobby Bradshaw and the rest of the "Cosmic Cowboys", gave us a glimpse of the '50's lead up to the sounds of today. Ray Charles (Dean Scott) was ushered his piano and the audience was caught up in his hand clapping, soul version of "O Happy Day". Before helped off stage, Ray left us with words of love and acceptance of our fellow man.

Next the King of Rock'n Roll himself, Elvis Presley (Dean Scott), was escorted in under the protection of Officer Peter C. Pigg. He brought the show to a close with two golden hits done in the typical dazzling style Elvis is noted for.

After a thunderous applause and standing ovation, the "Cosmic Cowboys" obliged us with one last song "He ain't heavy, he's my brother."

The New President

by Pat Jobe

As Gerald Ford's rise to the presidency signals an end to our country political nightmare, Steve Lawson's election last spring to the presidency of our Student Government Association signals an abrupt change in policy and attitude. Lawson, a human relations major, was the first eighteen-year-old to run for public office in Florida. Transferring his junior year to HPC he quickly acclimated himself to campus and established enough support to win last spring's election. But winning the election was only the beginning as Lawson enters an office plagued by gutter politics, back-door deals, and high-rolling politicos who traveled extensively on student government money. Only thirty-one percent of the student body (according to the college's self-study) believe the S.G.A. is an effective organization. Enter Steve Lawson.

"I'm not sure how the statistics pertain to the here and now. I've found the freshmen and transfers are a different breed of people. They fit right in and the response I'm getting from them is great. Now maybe I'm only talking to the thirty-one percent, but the response I'm getting from people is fantastic." Lawson rattles enthusiastically. "People are beginning to realize that we're here to help the students."

"I was elected by the students and my job is to serve them. My office is a service type of job wherein the rules and regulations are carried out and any suggestions or criticisms are greatly accepted."

When asked if he hoped to attack any specific problems as a student leader, he responded, "I don't see anything that I want to attack personally. I'd rather have a student or a group of students come to me and say that they've found a problem."

Already he has moved to solve motorcycle parking problems, the muddy hill behind the cafeteria, the radio station. In reference to the radio station Lawson said that the money is available for a transmitter but that it will be spring at the earliest before we have a campus radio station. He is working with day students to try and bring them back into the mainstream of campus life. Julie Parish has expressed an interest in chairing the day student committee.

He talked about spending and the shifts in spending priorities by his administration and the legislature. "One of the things that has happened is that several organizations asked for money; cheerleaders, Writer's Club, and Tower Players. Rather than give these people budget allotments we've absorbed their money into the budget of the executive council. This saves them the trouble of requisitioning money, instead they get it from Clark and Cole (SGA treasurer). This way they don't need to worry about the restrictions of a budget should an unexpected need arise."

When questioned more closely about spending we got into the issue of travel, one the blackest scars on his office. "We're trying to firm up our credibility. I want to stay away from conferences and save the money to spend on campus. We may attend one free conference at St. Andrews, but the one we consider to be very important is the North Carolina Student Legislature. Our specific spending priorities have been to allocate a thousand dollars for the chapel (altar table, candle sticks, etc.), fifteen hundred for the radio transmitter, a twenty-five dollar ad in the Panther magazine to support our athletes, and five dollars for suggestion boxes."

I asked Lawson the question that has stalked S.G.A. presidents since Welch's grape juice came to the Methodist altar, "How do you feel about the ethics of a college trying to impose a standard of conduct on the students, specifically in reference to the drinking regulations?"

"Number one, I'm a strong believer in people being treated as individuals and in individual rights, however I think this is an issue which has come up over and over again, calls for much debate, people get involved. Let's look at the state and local laws. A person must be twenty-one to drink."

"Hard liquor, beer and wine is eighteen," I inserted.

"Right, hard liquor. But if the college changes its rule, people will be drinking hard liquor on campus. I'm not saying they don't now, but it's against the law. We're also affiliated with the Methodist Church and as such are more or less governed by the Western North Carolina Conference of that church. They spend a large amount of money to support High Point College (over $200,000.00 yearly). Since we're involved with this type of system and it is a system, we must bend and bow to certain regulations and rules."

"Selling our souls to the Church?" I asked.

"I didn't say that," he laughed. "I think the way the policy is set up, it's hard, it's maybe a little unrealistic, because I think students are going to drink on campus. But then again, I think rules need to be implemented. It is a rule and as a rule, it should be respected. I heard in Legislature that every year one of the first things that comes up is a motion to legalize drinking. We have to face the fact that at this point in time we aren't going to gain anything by presenting another bill. The trustees are standing firm, we're receiving funds from the Western Conference, the college has rules, and therefore we need to focus our attention on better ways to serve the students here."

Phoenix III Festival

Coming soon, October 18-19, the Phoenix will once again sponsor a Poetry Festival. The Phoenix III Festival is still in the "polishing-up" stages under the student leadership of co-directors Ron Dobson and Richard Brookes, as well as the unending devotion of the English Department faculty, and people power of the entire Phoenix Club. This year's Festival will include poetry readings, short story study, workshops and panel discussions. Area High School and College students will be visiting the High Point Campus to meet with Short Story writer, Doris Waugh Betts of Chapel Hill; Guy Owen of Eastern Carolina; and John Beecher of Duke University.

Mrs. Betts is a native North Carolinian, born in Statesville and educated at UNC Greensboro and UNC Chapel Hill. All of her writing is very deeply rooted in the North Carolina that she knows so well. Although her locales may be provincial, her themes are universal as she recreates the impact of changing times on the lives of generations of North Carolinians.

Mrs. Betts has probably always loved writing, but her career began in high school when she edited the school paper and worked after school on the Statesville Daily Record. At UNC Greensboro she studied writing under Peter Taylor and Frances Gray Patton. Success was almost immediate because at the end of her sophomore year she won Mademoiselle's fiction prize for her short story "Mrs. Shawn and Father Scott." Two years later at UNC Chapel Hill she won the Putnam fiction award of $2000.00 for The Gentle Insurrection, a collection of short stories. Putnam then published her first novel, Tall Houses in Winter, which won the Sir Walter Raleigh Fiction Award given by the North Carolina Historical Book Club in 1957.

The Scarlet Thread, published by Harper's in 1965, is a strong novel depicting the inner and outer lives of a Piedmont North Carolina family back in the 1890's and early 1900's when the South's whole pattern of living was being revolutionized. In The River to Pickle Beach, Mrs. Betts' most recent novel, the scene and time switch to the North Carolina coast during the 1930's.

At the present time Mrs. Betts commutes daily from Sanford, where she lives with her lawyer husband and three

To Learn

There is a dilemma which the educators on this campus face which has plagued every teacher since the profession began. It is the constant battle between the utilitarian and the academic approach to the learning process, or to put it more simply, between practical training for a job and the concept of knowledge for the sake of knowledge.

Perhaps surprisingly for many of you, it is the academic which has the general ascendancy at High Point College. Many of the classes are fascinating, but how many of you are getting actual training that will be instrumental in helping you to make a living? Very few. Of course Education majors are being trained to be teachers. There is a rumor from the Chemistry department of a class that will lead to a job with the local furniture companies for those of you who like to play with polymers (you already know how to make aspirin). Few other classes lead directly to a practical, direct application.

Before I go further and before dozens of protestors lead a march on my office, let me state that I do not at all agree with the utilitarian approach, as such. It is not only naive in the belief that it can prepare me "for life", but presumptuous in the belief that I want to "make a living" at all in the usual sense of the words. It is not knowledge in itself but a fundamental flexible attitude which is essential to the actual survival of an individual; it extends far beyond the "always cut the cards" reasoning and (to extend the analogy) goes to an examination of the deck itself.

What I'm trying to say in my obtuse and often obscure way is that there is a third approach of sorts which goes beyond the bounds of their theory. It has no name that I know of, but Columbus applied it when he sailed toward the edge of the earth, and with it Occam's razor is much too dull to shave the barber.

On this campus the Contract Method and the arrangements of independent study courses are the first moves toward this third approach. It is not the elimination of teaching which is significant, but the added flexibility which carries the importance. Most of the scientific and technological discoveries we have today came about when someone went off on a tangent from their original research. I believe that it is through a freer (I avoid the term "liberal") guidance in the college education that one can go beyond the limitations of the current system of education.

While change is occurring here at High Point, as elsewhere, the biggest stumbling block is the frank opposition to experimentalness in a Methodist school. Official policy almost forbids change as a matter of course. You don't believe me? Test it. Any of you interested in a real study of psychology (i.e. people's reactions), parapsychology or the workings of the universe, try something like getting together, studying witchcraft and forming a witches Coven on this campus. If you do, I'll wager that administrative reaction is immediate and vigorous. Those of you in biology who plan to be physical therapists, consider what would happen if you got together, formed a class to study massage, and began practicing what you have been learning from books. Again the reaction would be swift and rest assured - preemptive. It makes no difference if what you practice is practical, or useful for what you intend to do when you graduate, it must only be "moral". Who decides? Guess.

It is my belief that what is taught should be in the hands of the students to a far greater extent than it is at the present time. Of course degree requirements must be regulated, but there are legitimate areas of study which are forbidden on this campus as a matter of policy. As someone who has been brought up with the belief that education should be a free and open process, I can not condone this policy. Basically I am calling for students to learn that which they wish to learn, in the way that they wish to learn it; to delve into the learning process to a greater degree than our present system allows. I am not inciting anarchy on this campus, merely urging students to press for change; change which, as someone said, is the essence of life.

If there is anything that you the student, need to further your education, or anything that is a true hinderance to your education, you should complain to the administration. You should also find out exactly why the situation is the way it is. Don't let someone pass the buck and just tell you "that's the policy", find out who made it the policy, why, by what right.

It's An Old Story

by Pat Jobe

Thirty-two years ago a sophomore at N.C. State (who enjoyed an occasional moderate drink himself) was confronted with an amazing dilemma. At the time he was living with a middle-aged couple who rented room to college students. The man was a warm personality and a devoted husband - until he wanted a drink. When he felt a craving for alcohol, he gave his wife all the money he had on him, his watch and his car keys. Then he waited, but in those days he never won. By whatever means possible he scored some whiskey. The young man never forgot the gentlemen's problem and for the next thirty-two years he took a personal interest in the lives of individual alcoholics.

He also later married my mother.

I'll admit to being a proud son so that you've got a clear picture of my bias on the matter. My father ordinarily is a jovial card with an eye for good times; he's Postmaster of my home town so he'll have money to feed the family, play golf, poker, and gin rummy, and support the Church. But his grin melts into a sour grimace when he confronts an alcoholic. They shuffle into his office, tell him of problem after problem facing their families and my pa shakes his head. "Tom, that's all real sad, but you've been drinking again; you're drunk now and it ain't even lunch time."

"Oh, Nossir, Mr. Jobe, I ain't been drinking."

"Yes you have. I can smell it."

Then there is an uncomfortable silence as the two men seem to be overcome by a problem that is larger than both of them.

"Come on," sometimes he can leave the office, take them to jail, to the grocery store, to the hospital, whichever place seems to hold some hope of patching up the problem for the moment. It is the urgency of the moment that presses them toward him and him toward whatever can be done for that moment.

I told Pappa I was thinking about a column on him and alcoholics.

"Good, that'll be fine. Say that I've attended the funerals of over twenty of them, none of them ever reached the age of fifty."

Needless to say there have been times when my brother and I and of course, my mother have been drawn into the tragedies. My first memory is the time my brother and I were out with Pappa and he learned from a man in a gas station that one of his "friends" was tearing his house up a few miles down the road. We were about ten and eight at the time and when Daddy said we were going to see a drunk man, it scared a few years off of us. We pulled into the drive and the front of the house was dark. It was an old frame farmhouse and there was a full moon and there wasn't another house around for what looked like miles to two kids cowering in the front seat of a blue Ford. Pa walked up to the front door and knocked. Silence. He went around back and we didn't see him again for about an hour. At least, it seemed like an hour.

"Pat, do you think they've killed him?" my brother asked me.

"No, Bill they haven't killed him," I responded not at all certain my statement was true. "They might've beat him up, though. Listen, we might need to go for help. Let's wait another five minutes."

"Okay." Silence. We sat listening and heard nothing violent. "Pat, how are we gonna know when five minutes is up?"

"Shh." A light came on in the front room. Pa emerged unharmed. "You okay Daddy?"

"Sure son, they never hurt me."

They are desperate when it comes time for a drink. They knock on our door at any hour and if it's late enough Pappa gives 'em hell. They get drunk; Pappa either takes them to the hospital or pays somebody else to do it. I've brought them out of hospitals, taken them to court, carried them into Police cars, bought cigarettes for one who died the next day. Once I was in court with an alcoholic who wanted a divorce. He got the divorce, but as we were leaving a deputy whispered to the D.A., who turned to the judge. "Your Honor we've got more public drunk charges on this man than a dog's got fleas and he's never been to trial on any of them." The Defense lawyer grabbed me, told me to go call Pa. Pa said tell the judge the court had put off trial until the guy was released from V.A. hospital in Salisbury. I went back into the courtroom as the guy was telling the judge whose custody he was in. "Allen Jobe's boy brought me down here."

We got him out of court and back in the hospital by sundown.

But enough of this rambling. Nobody on High Point College's campus has blood-shot eyes, yellow skin, infected gums, or severe shaking. And as Doug Potter so eloquently informed us two weeks ago, there are alot of people who drink on this campus. Myself included. So why talk about these desperate characters off in the foothills of North Carolina? Because alcoholics start somewhere and there are people with drinking problems on this campus.

Ironically because we are a church-related institution we are unable to deal with this problem from an administrative level. Alcoholics are not only sick, they're illegal at H.P.C.

We refuse from a student level to even recognize there is a problem since booze fuels the ship of social activity. So we're stuck for answers. I recommend a campus-wide re-examination of drinking habits, maybe a Moose-Lodge where four or five kegs are consumed rather than eight or ten that went down at the last Moose-Lodge. Secondly, I recommend a re-examination of the college's ban on the use of alcohol on campus.

The way you are trained here will affect the rest of your life. Don't let it be any other way than the way you want it.

Read Thoreau's "Civil Disobedience". Read Emerson's "Self-Reliance". Read the writings of Thomas Jefferson. Read the poetry of Whitman. To push for change is also the essence of the American tradition. Since this country has existed the worst of all sins has been considered to be complacency. As I am sure our administration would wish me to say, "Sin ye not!"

Zodiac Track

by Sylvester Horace Manwicke

ARIES [Mar. 21-Apr. 20] You may be moving about more than usual now - always searching for new frontiers. Sports activities will probably take up most of your time.

TAURUS [Apr. 21-May 20] Sometimes you need to let your emotions show and now is that time. There are new interests now and you may have to change some old habits.

GEMINI [May 21-June 21] Guard against injuries to the shoulders, arms, or hands. You will probably be busy with parties or other social events. Curb your scatterbrain tendencies in making decisions.

CANCER [June 22-July 22] Traveling may take up your time and water will play an important role now. You really are a romantic person and now is the time to prove it.

LEO [July 23-Aug. 23] Your flair for entertaining will be obvious now. Don't be dismayed if not all your generousities are accepted with friendliness and thanks.

VIRGO [Aug. 24-Sept. 22] Your great attention to small details may come in handy this weekend. You will face difficulties with apparent calm - don't be too proud to ask for help.

LIBRA [Sep. 23-Oct. 22] Things may be changing too fast for you to keep balanced. Take your time, but make your decisions carefully and then don't change your mind.

SCORPIO [Oct. 23-Nov. 22] Sometimes your determination to reach your goal makes you seem cold and ruthless. Try letting others see how sympathetic and understanding you really are.

SAGITTARIUS [Nov. 23-Dec. 21] Take care that your eternal search for truth and wisdom doesn't get you in trouble. Take care of responsibilities that are rightfully yours.

CAPRICORN [Dec. 22-Jan 20] Though you have an innate dislike of help, let others take on some of your work load. Don't let timetables and rules govern your life too much.

AQUARIUS [Jan. 21-Feb. 19] Your erratic, impulsive actions may startle others now, no matter how harmless they are. Your respect for the feelings of others will win your praise.

PISCES [Feb. 20-Mar. 20] While you appear calm, your emotions may be churning deep inside. Take care or your constantly changing moods will pull in too many directions.

Here's to Mrs. Blake

Thursday Afternoon around 2:30, a surprise birthday party was given for Mrs. Martha Blake by the Orientation Core Committee, The Deans of Students, and the office workers. Mrs. Blake is the secretary in the Student Personnel Office, but those who have had the pleasure of getting to know her realize that she is much more than that. It would be needless to say that orientation itself would never have run smoothly, much less efficiently, if Mrs. Blake had not been right in there working with us. She's the one we always turn to for comfort, humor, and most of all the right answer. It takes quite a bit of patience to work with nine students for six days straight and never lose your cool. It's far too difficult to put down on paper just how special someone is, especially when she touches so many. If you ever have the chance, get to know this really special person.

Hope

by Paul Hildreth

The weapons of the mind, stand ready to wage war, on any idea or hope that cannot immediately be seen. The reason for acceptance of any given idea, is due to it's nowability. If it cannot be used or understood today then why tomorrow? Our picture of hope, our belief in anything that affects our lives, must be immediate. This view is clouded and on the surface of the actual, real or reality. Hope is the sunrise we hope for next week, not the one just coming into our sight. The unseen and casual things are what we should place our hope on. All meaning for me exists in hope, and my faith in that hope. I work at tasks which have seemingly no end, not my seeing, and yet wanting to see sustains my hope. The journey of life is much the same, we live for today because we hope for tomorrow, we save and collect wisdom, for then as well as now, Immediate hope, is not hope, for what is immediate, is what we see. Hope is faithfully enduring the troubles around us, hoping for what we don't see or have; a peaceful world.

Guy Owen's work deals with his native Bladen County and Eastern North Carolina. He was born in Clarkton and frequently summers at Pores Knob near Moravian Falls, his wife's homeplace. His roots are in the farmlands and his stories reflect every facet of the Southern life he knows. Guy Owen, however, is not only a writer of stories, but he is also a poet, an editor, and a critic. As editor and founder of the Southern Poetry Review, he knows, perhaps, more than any one else just what the current state of poetry is in the South and what directions the younger poets are taking. He co-edited an anthology in 1962, entitled Southern Poetry Today, and as a critic he has published New Essays in Modern American Literature.

Dr. Owen's writing career began officially in 1958 with the publication of Cape Fear Country and Other Poems. He next turned to fiction with Seasons of Fear in 1960. His latest and most famous work is The Ballas of the Flim-Flam Man, published by MacMillan's in 1965. The scene is Ellers Bend, North Carolina, "a dinky burg you never heard of." Anyone who lives in North Carolina will feel at home in Ellers Bend.

In addition to writing and editing, Dr. Owen teaches English at North Carolina State University. He has previously taught at Elm, Davidson, and also at Stetson University in Florida. He received his PH.D degree from UNC at Chapel Hill.

John Beecher is a poet who has truly experienced the life of which he writes. In addition to being a steelworker, he has been rancher, correspondent covering the civil rights revolution in the South and sociology professor at San Francisco State College, refusing to sign the California "loyalty" oath later declared unconstitutional by the courts. He has been merchant seaman relief administrator. Poet-in-Residence at a number of colleges and visiting scholar at Duke University in 1973. After eight published books of poetry his present Collected Poems compiles the selected work of a lifetime. Whether writing of men crushed and rejected by 50 years of work in the mills, or of an old black woman tormented by "capering white brats" his rhythms and his voice stem from outrage and compassion and love. Moving beyond the individual tragedy he captures a primal, authentic rendering of the human condition.

John Beecher is presently Poet in residence at Duke University.

In addition to the outstanding guests and program of the festival there will also be an art exhibition, with creations by two Appalachian State University professors. The art work is a display of written and woven art. The show, entitled "Poems and Fibers" attempts to reveal the bond between man and nature through word pictures and fabrics.

"The purpose of this subtle interplay of words and fibers is to lead the viewer back to experiences re-created and to the rhythms which help identify man's place in the universe."

The artists believe that "survival in these mountains means looking at nature from some point of view common to all life rather than man's own special desires."

Frantz has been on the ASU faculty since 1970. He received the B.A. degree from Redlands University, the M.A. degree from Stanford University and the Ph.D. degree from the University of Southern California.

Force has taught art at ASU since 1968. She received the B.S. degree from Southwest Missouri State University, the M.Ed. degree at the University of Miami and the Ph.D. degree at Florida State University.

The Phoenix Club would like to invite each student and faculty member to share in the many aspects of the Phoenix III Poetry Festival.

Circle K- The Alternative

If you were interested in joining one of the social fraternities or sororities on this campus, I hope you read the editorial by Pat Jobe which appeared in the HI-PO just recently. If you did read it, you may now be looking for alternatives to these organizations for enriching your college experience. I hope you are, because I want to introduce you to the fastest growing collegiate organization in this country -- CIRCLE K. Read through this page, and see for yourself why Circle K has more to offer you than any other organization on campus.

OPEN MEMBERSHIP - any and everyone is encouraged to join Circle K, men and women, day students and dorm students. You are always welcomed, any time, and you always "get in". You and you alone decide if you want to become a member, and whether or not you stay is pretty much up to you. I think if you do join that you will want to stay.

EXPENSE - compared with the high cost of joining a fraternity or sorority, joining Circle K is well worth the money. Only seven dollars per semester makes you a part of the most vital and interesting organization on this campus. This fourteen dollars per year should be compared with the hundreds of dollars frat members spend annually. Then compare what you will receive in return. I think you will choose Circle K.

FRIENDSHIP - when you join Circle K, you make friends not only on campus, but all over the state and the United States. Because of the nature of our organization, we are very much involved with the other clubs on campuses near us. There are clubs at UNC-G in Greensboro, NC State, Wake Forest, plus many of the two year schools in the area. Plus the friends you make in your own club, will probably be your best friends in college. Not fair weather friends who hang around as long as your money does, but people who are always there to help you. We really offer friendship for free, but you have to make the first move by joining.

PURPOSE - Circle K is founded on the idea of service first and foremost, but we also know how to have fun. We are always having parties, cook-outs, beach trips. We try to balance our fun and our service aspects in order to produce the greatest sense of accomplishment and fulfillment. Then there is district convention, international convention, plus numerous rallies and conferences throughout the year. Together they provide a sense of direction, when you become involved in Circle K you discover that you really do know where you're heading, you can see the goals and you know how to work for them.

For the time that you want to spend in outside activities, don't you think it makes a lot of sense to look into Circle K?

Initiating new programs on the High Point College campus is becoming a regular practice. This year dormitory rules and policies are becoming standardized between all college dorms, male and female.

Each dorm has its own elected dorm council which is responsible for dealing with dormitory problems and rule infractions.

Dorm Council Seminars were held Sept. 23, 24, and Oct. 2. Dean Guy was the leader of the discussions for the seminars. The purpose for the sessions was to acquaint dorm council members, hall proctors, officers, resident counselors and dorm "mothers" with the dormitory rules issued by the college.

At the first meeting the participants went over the General College Dormitory rules. Dean Guy offered explanations as to the purpose and originations of the rules. The sessions didn't invite much participation from attending members but was beneficial in that members should now have a clearer understanding of the rules and their purposes.

The Tuesday night meeting was a different story. The meeting began with Karl Cagle, supreme justice of the Judiciary branch of the Student Government, explaining the general procedures of conducting a trial. Dean Guy stressed that our individual dorm councils will not be conducting "trials". Our judiciary purpose is to conduct needed "hearings". A dorm council will conduct hearings when ever an infraction of a general or individual dorm rule is committed. Please not that if a General College rule such as alcohol consumption, room damage, drug violations, etc. is broken, the case will be handled by the judiciary branch of the SGA.

Following the discussion of the procedures to be followed for dorm hearings, Dean Guy opened the floor for questions regarding rules, problems, procedures, gripes, or anything anyone wanted to say. Students raised questions about the need, value and purpose of certain rules.

The agenda for the third and final meeting included continued discussions on rules and their values and clarifications and discussions about other dorm responsibilities and projects.

In conclusion, I'd like to stress that all dormitory officers and members are students and are human, just as you are. We, just like many of you, don't always agree with the rules we are to follow and enforce but regardless of our personal opinions, if something is a rule, it must be enforced. If rules have no value and aren't needed, let's eliminate them. Hopefully, we have gained some understanding of the rules and policies from attending the seminars.

Please make your gripes known. Communicate with your dorm council members or write an editorial to the paper so we can work for what you as residents want. We are elected by residents and are working for you.

Notice

Do you want a chance to "learn it like it is?" Consider the STATE LEGISLATIVE INTERNSHIP PROGRAM for Spring Semester 1975 sponsored by the North Carolina General Assembly and the Department of Politics at North Carolina State University. Here is an opportunity for you to serve as a staff assistant to members of the North Carolina General Assembly, and to receive both academic credit and a stipend. It is an unequalled educational experience for students who are interested in the governmental process.

WHAT YOU DO AS AN INTERN: Work 25 hours a week as a legislative assistant for members of the 1975 General Assembly and pursue a parallel course of academic study at North Carolina State University.

WHAT YOU RECEIVE: $1,000 paid in twenty weekly checks and 12 hours of transferable academic credit.

WHEN: October 25, 1974 - Application deadline: January 13, 1975 - Registration Day at N.C. State University; January 15, 1975 - N.C. General Assembly convenes.

APPLY NOW: Juniors and Seniors studying political science, economics, sociology, or other social sciences are eligible.

Applications and details are available from your Political Science Department Chairman or from Ms. Lucy Hancock, Acting Director, 201 Tompkins Hall, NCSU, Raleigh, N.C. 27607. Telephone (919) 737-2482.

Fall Concerts

by Richard Owens

Anyone who likes rock music will be glad to know that there is a large selection of good concerts in the area.

On September 14, Mountain started the season at the Greensboro Coliseum. The lead off group was Wet Willie, who played selections from their new album.

Mountain consisted of the original cast of Leslie West, Felix Pappalard, Jack Bruce, Pete Brown and Gail Collins. West played a drum solo that had his audience in total capitvity. Pappalardi is always fantastic and this concert was no exception with his unbelievable solos.

Concerts in this area annually follow a pattern. The fall season has many concerts, less in the winter, more in the spring, and very few during the summer.

The upcoming concerts at the Greensboro Coliseum are as follows: Black Oak Arkansas, Oct. 4; Stevie Wonder, Oct. 5; John Denver, Oct. 11; Earth, Wind, and Fire, Oct. 25; and the great ZZTop, Oct. 27; ending the fall season with Elon John, November 8.

Go get your tickets at Marty's Record Shop at the Westchester Mall or at the Coliseum and be there by 8:00 p.m. and enjoy the season.

Fastalk

The Department of Religion and Philosophy will sponsor "Fastalk" again this year. "Fastalk", faculty-student talk, is a discussion between faculty and students on key social and moral issues of the day.

Last year's topics included liquor by the drink, abortion, women's liberation, and pornography and censorship.

The first Fastalk this year will be Monday, October 7, 7:00 p.m. in the Campus Center Conference Room. The subject for the discussion will be amnesty and the panel participants will be Richard Brooks, Pat Jobe, Ms. Rawley, and Dr. Matthews.

Dance Theatre at HPC

by Pete Petrea
News Bureau

The North Carolina Dance Theatre will appear in concert at High Point College Memorial Auditorium on October 8, at 8 p.m. A varied program including both ballet and modern works will be presented by this young professional company.

Tickets are available in advance at the college business office and before curtain time the night of the performance. Students may attend without admission fee.

The Dance Theatre is a professional company of fourteen dancers resident at the North Carolina School of the Arts in Winston-Salem. The majority of the dancers are graduates of the School of the Arts.

The High Point College program will open with Vis-a-Vis, a work for eight dancers described as both athletic and hyphotic, with flashes of wit and humor. Music is by Johannes Brahms, and the choreographer is Charles Czarny.

The second work is Myth, set for the Dance Theatre two years ago by choreographer

Alvin Ailey. With music by Igor Stravinsky, this work captures the exotic quality of woodland creatures, numpys and fauns. This is a story of love and rejection, and is known as an outstanding example of the work of one of America's finest modern choreographers.

The major work of the evening is The Grey Goose of Silence, a story ballet suggested by an Appalachian legend. Kathleen Fitzgerald, who has had guest appearances at Wolf Trap, Virginia, danced the role of Jenny Goodwin, a teenager married to a brutish old man. Warren Lucas, a native of Brooklyn, New York, was Liberty Ames, the blind black boy she falls in love with.

Steps suggesting mountain clogs are used in one section for the men, and one section for the women is filled with patterns that recall mountain courtship dances. The troupe had a dozen curtain calls earlier this year when they performed the work in Reynolds Auditorium, Winston-Salem.

Block Courses Prepare Teacher Interns

by Debbie Ray

Education Majors as well as students seeking a teacher's certificate are in the process of preparing for their teacher internship in block courses taught by the Department of Education. The block courses are basically the "how-to" courses of teaching methods.

On behalf of the Department of Education, Mrs. Shelton, stated the objective of the block courses. "We attempt to teach the principles and techniques of teaching in the various subject matter areas." The subject matter areas consist of Math; Science; Reading; Language; Arts; Psychology; and Teaching Practicum. The block courses last eight weeks, then the teaching internship begins, October 17, through December 13.

We wish our future teachers best of luck in their upcoming teaching experiences!

Zealots in Action:

by Charles Halipillias

Every Monday night from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. the Students for Christian Action are having a bible study get-together for all interested students. The bible study is held in meeting room 11 on the top floor of the campus center. The purpose of the study is to provide the opportunity for students to gather and be lead in fellowship and study the holy scriptures.

The S.C.A. is off to a brand new start with a refreshing new attitude. The bible study is just one of many activities that it's sponsoring. The bible study has been going on now for four weeks and the topics of discussion have been varied and intriguing. One discussion, for instance, was named "Jesus would have lived in McCulloch", which focused on the fact that Jesus' ministry was one of humility with an appeal not to the well-to-do aristocracy, but to the underdogs of society with both physical and spiritual needs. For those of you who are in question about that last sentence, "McCulloch" was used in the symbolic sense.

Some of the past guests who have been asked to lead were Dr. Murphy Osborne, Dr. Gordon Arnold, Rev. Charles Teague, and Mr. Ed Plowman. The meeting consists of music and singing about a half an hour, a presentation and discussion for about an hour, and then a time to just be together and enjoy each others company. Occasionally refreshments will be served but the S.C.A. is limited in this effort because of the lack of funds.

For those of you who are interested in coming, there will be announcements prior to the meeting announcing the speaker and the scripture topic so that you will have enough notice to prepare for discussion if you wish. The Students for Christian Action most sincerely hope that you will take advantage of this opportunity and service not only to study, but to gather to meet new people and make new friends.

Fall Sports Open in New Homes

By David Wooten
Sports Editor

Fall Sports at High Point College has alot to offer this year, starting off with new homes. The Cross Country team has changed its home course and the Soccer team has moved into Albion Millis Stadium.

Though the new homes mean very little the talent in the midst of all this is fantastic. The seasons are underway, and the Soccer team host a 4-0 record, while the cross country team is having a hard time, getting off to a slow start at 1-4.

Would you believe that at one time High Point College Soccer team went undefeated, well it's true, in the late 1930's the Panthers hosted a five year undefeated streak. Soccer was discontinued here, but came back into existence three years ago under the direction of Ray Alley. The team won only one game that first year of the new era of Soccer, while losing eleven. Last year the Panther kickers finished with an over all record of 4-7-2, and a 4-2-1 in the conference. This year the team is off to a flying start, outscoring their opponents 13-2 including two shutouts. The four wins thus far this year is the number of wins from last year, but that number will be changed, due mainly to the team work and talent of this years team.

Ray Alley has a young team, consisting of mainly freshmen and sophomores along with one senior. In the starting 11 there are no seniors, which holds not only alot in store for this year but alot in the years to come.

The Panthers have conquered three conference goes this year, one of which was Guilford last Monday afternoon here in High Point, pushing past the Quakers 2-1. The win was a very important one to High Point, since Guilford is the defending champion. Other conference wins include a 3-0 win over Atlantic Christian here at home, and a road win over Elon 3-1 last Saturday. The Panthers had opened the season with a 4-0 win over North Carolina Wesleyan. With the wins it leaves High Point in the drivers seat holding the Carolinas Conference lead.

One point of interest arrived in the game with Guilford, a freshman fullback Skip King from Syracuse, New York was involved in a motorcycle crash last Monday night, and was a doubtful starter for the game, however he was there and played the entire 90 minutes, minus two front teeth and a bruised leg.

Coach Alley commented on King, "I think its great that he came back and played the whole game after something like that, you just don't expect a guy to play, but he did."

King is only one of many talented people on the team. Gary Downing a Junior from Smithtown, New York is captain of the team this year, with sophomores Bill Redfern and Wayne Wright alternates. Downing is in his second year with High Point, but last year after one year of play he was voted to the All District 26 team.

There are twenty-five guys on the team this year, and Alley feels that there is more depth than in the previous two years. He pointed out that experience is the key factor this year and will help the team.

This years team has only one player from a foreign country, and that being Christopher Isagoozo from Nigeria. Out of the starting eleven nine of them are from Maryland or New York. The top players this year are Timm Nichols-Soph. - Townson, Md.; Doug Challenger-Fresh - Wilmington, Del.; Jeff Potter-Fresh - Baltimore, Md.; Mike Ludwigson-Soph.-Seaford, N.Y.; Hunter Brett- Fresh - Smithtown, N.Y.; Tom Mackintosh-Junior - Bethesda, Md.; Jerry Gostic - Fresh. Smithtown, N.Y. Wayne Wright - Soph. Timoniuni, Md. Top Reserves -- Joe Ramsbotham, Mel Mailer, Paul Goalie, Orrin Magill, David Husmann, Jon Haislip, Eric Kerr, Fuller Beasley, Peter Ramey, and Tom Hartman.

Coach Alley summed up everything, saying "I'm sort of like George Allen, Young team mostly freshmen and sophomore and we can win right now if we play well, we're improved and so is everybody else, we're stronger in the line and extremely strong in the fullbacks, only weak areas are halfbacks and goalie."

The quote came right before the season and alot of the expectations Alley had are coming true, the halfbacks and goalie are doing a great job, and if there is anyone to doubt this just look at the record.

This years Cross Country team is being led by Mike Trumala and Joe Meek. Both are seniors and have placed the highest of all the runners in the three previous meets, and if you think the four losses is any indication of what is to come this year you're wrong. The High Point Cross Country team have that knack for winning and will shine on through before the season is over. Top Freshmen this year are Perry Macheras from Reynolds High School in Winston-Salem, N.C. Richard Hearn of Kinnelon, N.J., and Brian Sullivan of McLean, Va.

Cross Country is like Soccer, it has alot to look forward to in the future with alot of young and good runners.

Coach Bob Davidson said, "This is the most people we've had with cross country backgrounds in a number of years. We have good depth, but from a quality standpoint we may still be one outstanding runner away from having a very good team. However, with the people we have I expect us to do well this year."

by David Wooten
Sports Editor

Although a new season is under way it is always good to look at last year and see how the individual teams at High Point College came out.

The Panthers was the dominate force in the District 26, for the second year in a row. High Point fielded teams in seven varsity sports for men and captured four NAIA District 26 championships. The women fielded four sports and enjoyed a successful year.

The Panthers captured district titles in tennis for the third straight year, and cross country for the fifth straight year. Track and baseball also captured district championships. Soccer finished third in the district, and golf finished second in the conference, and fifth in the district.

High Point's baseball team captured the area playoffs for the second time in two years and advanced to the NAIA World Series in Saint Joseph and finished the year ranked fifth among all NAIA schools nationally.

Tennis finished fourteen among the nation's top fifteen teams for small colleges, and swept the Carolina's Conference crown along with the Campbell College Invitational. They won eight out of the nine individual conference titles and placed five men on the All-District 26 squad.

The track team either tied or broke eight school records this past year. Mike Bogdon finished number fifteen nationally this spring in the javelin. The team was 6-1 in dual meets and captured the conference and district titles. It was an outstanding year for both cross country and track, which saw the Panther runners place two on the All-District 26.

The golf team completed its first winning season in seven years, with a predominately freshman team. They finished number one in the league and fifth in the district.

The basketball team had a season of close calls, losing the majority of its games between one to five points, while compiling a 9-10 record. One of the highlights for the Panthers was the win over defending national champion Guilford. The leader of last years team was 6'8 center Pete Collins, who set a four year rebounding record with 1,661 recoveries and became the first All-American since Gene Littles was named to that honor in 1969. Collins was also drafted by the Washington Bullets in the NBA draft.

Soccer closed strong with a basically freshman and sophomore squad to finish second behind Guilford in the conference, and third in the district and placed two men on the All-Conference team and All District.

Golf Team Opens Fall Practice

The 1974-75 golf team opened practice last week at the Oak Hollow Golf Course. This is their home course during the season. The team which has a new coach, Woody Gibson, has seven lettermen from last year's team that finished very respectable in the district and conference tournament.

The returning players are Mike Sullivan, Ricky Watkins, Tom Crane, Tom Hartman, Jim Ivy, Stan Minka, and James Pagnaglia. The only member of last year's team who will not be back is Eddie Forward who this past summer became the assistant pro at Willow Creek.

Coach Gibson, a student here, has already began setting up matches and plans to play several matches this fall against Pfeiffer and Catawba. The team will also make a trip to Myrtle Beach for a weekend this fall to play the University of South Carolina at Conway.

The tryouts for the team should be interesting because of eight freshmen trying to make the team. The members of last year's team will not have it easy in gaining their regular position. The team consists of ten golfers who are positioned according to what they shoot in the qualifying rounds. The top six are the golfers who play in the matches each week and will remain in that position unless someone can beat them out.

Next March the golf team will participate in the invitational tournament at Elon. This is the first year that High Point has been invited. Elon, who last year participated in the NAIA tournament in South Dakota, will be the tournament favorite. Other teams participating in the tournament will be Garner-Webb, Atlantic Christian and Catawba.

Women's Field Hockey

by Cindy Wood

The only word I can use to describe the progress of the hockey team is FANTASTIC.

After our first few practices we realized our work was cut out for us, but we were not discouraged and have worked on skills and with learning to work together. It has been paying off. The field hockey record to date is 2-0-1.

The first game of the season was with Guilford College. The final score was High Point over Guilford 2-0. The scorers for this game were, forward, Ann Lombardi and center halfback, Joda Hayman. On Monday September 30th, High Point met Wake Forest on our own field. Wake was defeated by the Lady Panthers by the score 1-0. Susie Winchester, the right wing, was credited with the only score of the day. On Tuesday the hockey team was again on the field, this time for a game with UNCG. UNC-G has always had a tuff hockey team. High Point controlled the ball the majority of the game and remain undefeated. Ann Lombardi pushed the ball into UNC-G's goal early in the first half putting High Point ahead 1-0. Later in the same half, one of UNC-G's defensive members committed a servere foul while the ball was three inches from being in UNC-G's goal. High Point was given a penalty stroke and Joda Hayman successfully flicked the ball into the cage bringing the score to 2-0. By half-time UNC-G had scored one goal, but High Point was still leading. Throughout the entire second half the Lady Panthers played hard to increase their lead. So many times we just couldn't have gotten any closer to the goal without the ball rolling into the cage, but it didn't. With approximately seven minutes to go UNC-G scored again, tying the score at 2-2. The game ended with this score with the Lady Panthers remaining undefeated. You can't classify to tie as a win, but it certainly is not a loss.

Players on this year's squad include Donna Johnson, Ann Lombardi, Dianne Edwards, Susan Winchester, Joyce Diamond, Joda Hayman, Barb Abbott, Kim VanAcker, Sharon Glover, Sharon O'Brien, Sandy Grim, Jane Sinks, with Ann Smith and Cindy Wood as co-captains. We're all excited and looking forward to a fantastic season and we're on the way with an undefeated record. But we are down about one aspect of our hockey season and that is the support we have or should I say don't have. We really appreciate those of you who have been supporting us,

HPC Footballers Beat ACC

The High Point Purple Panthers upped their winning streak to two consecutive games after crushing Atlantic Christian College, 4-0, on Tuesday afternoon, September 24, at the Panther soccer stadium.

The first goal came at approximately 10 minutes into the first half on a ball crossed by freshman Jeff Potter which was kicked into the net by sophomore Bill Redfern from about 10 yards out. The second goal came about twenty minutes later on a tremendous follow up effort by captain Gary Downing to give the Panthers a 2-0 lead at halftime.

In prelude to the third goal sophomore Tim Nichols tricked his way past two Atlantic Christian defenders and unloaded a blazing shot from about 25 yards out which bounced off the goalies chest and trickled to his feet. The goalkeeper tried desperately to recapture the ball in front of the goal when he collided with High Point's Jeff Potter and the ball skittered out from underneath the goalie and rolled gently into the net.

Potter was credited with the goal.

The final goal came with about five minutes left in the game on a picture-perfect play. The ball was crossed from the corner by freshman Doug Challenger and was headed out of the air into the upper right-hand corner by sophomore Joe Ramsbotham.

The last goal seemed to be a perfect ending to a perfect afternoon for the Panthers. The opposition did manage to roll a few shots in on the Panther goal; however, sophomore goalie Wayne Wright was there each time to collect the loose balls and start the Panther attack upfield.

The win was Wayne and the team's second successive shut-out of the season. The victory was the result of a fine effort from every member of the squad. Coach Ray Alley was extremely impressed with his team's performance; however, he feels the team still has many areas which need to be improved upon if there is to be a championship soccer team at High Point College in 1974.

Women's Volleyball

by Karen Redfern

On September 26th, the women's intercollegiate volleyball team traveled to Durham, N.C. to take on the Duke Blue Devils. Being the first match of the season, it proved to be very exciting.

In the first game, High Point College was dominating the game 13-6 when Duke called a time out. Duke's determination was overwhelming and the Devils came back to win the first game 16-14. The HPC women, not pleased with the outcome went into the second game with high hopes of victory. Success was inevitable when the women entered the game and they came back to win the second game 15-12.

Both teams, wanting the third game, entered the match with strong determination. Many aggressive actions were made by each team but Duke came out the victors. The score of the third game was 15-6 and even though the win was that of Duke's, the Panther's pride was strong because they played the best they could.

The Panthers next match is October 3rd at home at 7:00 PM against Pembroke and Guilford. Come support your team.

FALL INTRAMURALS

by Joyce Diamond and Dale Williams

This fall intramural sports are alive again at High Point College.

The girls tennis intramurals, sponsored by "Kacky" W. is going strong with matches being played all through the week. There are four eliminations, and a big final match.

Playing as the "pros" do, the players have to play eight matches, winning by two.

The matches are played on the college tennis courts in the afternoons. You are invited to participate, as a spectator or player. If you wish to play you may sign up in the gym.

Intramural football started its season on Thursday, September 26, with Lambda Chi against the Buss on Boys.

Intramural football consists of eight teams, each having a minimum of fifteen players with nine participating on the field at a time. This game of flag football, plus other intramural sports was created to give the student body a wide range of activities to participate in. Although these are open to every student, only 60 percent participate.

At the close of football season a small trophy will be given to the team winning the most games. A playoff will result only if there's a tie between two or more teams.

Anyone wishing to play may contact Barry Miller at the Physical Education Department.

Ambassadors Club Formed

A new service organization called the Ambassadors Club has been formed by the Student Government Association as an aid to the College Admissions Office. Problems have been encountered in the past in finding friendly, well informed students to act as tour guides for prospective students, and the basic purpose of the new organization will be the promotion of good campus and community relations through filling this need for campus tour guides and escorts.

Membership in the Ambassadors Club requires filling out an application, being recommended by a member of the faculty, and attending a weekend seminar on methods and techniques of communications and public relations. Approximately twenty-five applications were reviewed and accepted by the Club Committee for the 1974-75 school year, and the new members, under the direction of Mrs. Shelton and Mr. VonCannon and other interested members of the faculty and staff, will assume their duties in providing this much needed service to the college during the month of October.

Greek News

by Sharon Stanback

Zeta Tau Alpha held its first official meeting for the 12 new pledges in the old student union on September 16, 1974 at 7:00 p.m.

The meeting began with the discussion of the future events for the upcoming year. Lee Jackson, the Vice President of the sorority gave us a brief idea of these events.

The Zetas will have two formal dances this year. The girls will be honored at the annual pledge dance to be held on Nov. 23.

A Spring Formal will be held to celebrate the 100th link ball of the Zetas, with awards to be given as recognition.

The Zetas will be holding "mixers" with your own favorite beverages served to get to know exactly who the Greeks are during the year.

At different times retreats will be planned for exciting weekends of fun at Mrs. Wards cabin in the mountains. Vice President Lee Jackson stated the need to encourage students to get to know the Greeks for we have something to offer as a group and as individuals.

Student Elected to Honorary Society

Peggy G. Collins and Jerry L. Jones, both Juniors at High Point College, have been elected to membership in Alpha Mu, the National Honor Society in Business Administration. Miss Collins and Mr. Jones are both residents of High Point, N.C.

Requirements for induction include maintaining a minimum of a 2.2 grade average throughout the first half of the college curriculum.

The High Point College chapter of Alpha Mu was organized in 1970. Since that date twenty members have been inducted.

NC Council of Teachers of Foreign Languages

Stressing the importance of the study of foreign languages is the central theme of the fall meeting of the North Carolina Council of Teachers of Foreign Languages. Approximately 100 teachers are expected to be present at High Point College on Saturday, October 12, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

On schedule for the day are opening preliminaries (9:30-9:45), a speech by High Point College's chairman of foreign languages, Dr. Inslee Graininger on "Promoting Foreign Languages" and election of representatives. Other topics for the days activities include: "Foreign Language Culture in this Hemisphere --Canada", Dr. Roch Smith (UNCG), "The Status of Women in Modern Columbia", Dr. Maritza Almeida (Guilford College), "German Culture", Dr. Waldemar Eger (UNC Chapel Hill; and "The Influence of Latin on Western Civilization", Dr. Luis Acevez (Eastern Carolina University).

The afternoon holds in store discussions of problems common to each classroom of foreign languages and talks by Mr. Don Arnold (T. Wingate Andrew High School) on "The Teaching of French and Spanish Culture as an Inter-disciplinary Course." The grand finale of the day is a musical one presented by Dr. Sara Smith (Asheboro, N.C.) and Mr. Roger Surcegood (Charlotte, N.C.).

The day promises to be both fun and educational for anyone interested in the study or just the enjoyment of foreign languages.

Student Union Shows Movies

by Rob Cagle

The Student Union is in the process of presenting a selection of movies for the entertainment of H.P.C.'s students. Heading the movies and lecture section is Mart Slater.

The movies are shown on Thursdays at 3:00 p.m. and at 8:00 p.m. Admission at the door is fifty cents, which is considerably cheap compared to the prices at local theaters.

The first movie shown, "Dirty Harry" on September 19 and 20 was a success. Student Union Chairman, Robert Goode was pleased with the turnout of over two hundred students and he expects greater results for the coming attractions.

"The Train Robbers" will be shown on October 3rd and 4th; and "Omega Man" will appear the following week. Coming soon will be "Summer of '42", "Billy Jack", "Deliverance", and "The Candidate". Remember to check your Student Union calendar for these dates.

'What's Happening Around H P'

by Vicki Huntley

If you're wondering what is happening in the High Point area this month, the following upcoming events may be of interest to you.

How about a circus? The Greensboro Jaycees are sponsoring the Hoxie Brothers Circus under the "big top" on Sunday, Oct. 6. The three-ring circus will feature animal acts, acrobats and clowns. The show will be located between the Holiday Inn and Airport on I-40. For advance discount tickets, contact the Greensboro Jaycees.

Or, if an ice show is more your idea of a great time, don't forget Holiday on Ice opens at the Greensboro Coliseum on Oct. 15 with eight performances running through Oct. 20.

For those interested in the theatre, there's the UNC-G Theatre production of Cole Porter's musical, "Anything Goes." Performances are scheduled for 8:15 p.m. in the Taylor Building at UNC-G, and the show will run through Oct. 6. There is also the production of "Oedipus, the King" by the Greensboro College Players in the Parlor Theatre at Greensboro College, Oct. 2-4.

Want to see a great movie-free? The High Point

Public Library is featuring "History of the Cinema", a series of monthly cinema classics. The film for this month is "The Madwoman of Chaillot", starring Katharine Hepburn and Danny Kaye. Showtime is Oct. 3 at 7:00 p.m. in the library community room. "History of the Cinema" films are presented by the High Point Public Library as a community service, free of charge, on the first Thursday night of the month.

Attention all avid H.P.C. fishermen! Parks and Recreation is sponsoring a fishing Derby at City Lake, Oct. 12. The fee for entering the derby is the regular fishing rate. Prizes will be awarded for the biggest catch.

The High Point Golf Association is sponsoring their Autumn Open on Oct. 26. Entrees must be members of the Golf Association.

An Evening With John Denver

by Don Williamson

John Denver will appear in concert on October 11 at 8:00 p.m. in the Greensboro Coliseum in Greensboro. Advance tickets are now on sale at the Coliseum box office and at several record bars throughout the triad area.

Denver's latest album is entitled "Poems, Prayers, and Promises" and is on the RCA label. He is best known for his earlier songs entitled "Rocky Mountain High" and "Sunshine on my Shoulder".

John Denver is currently one of the top recording artists in the country. This concert promises to be excellent entertainment.

President

"I've heard this argument before. I think that involvement by a massive number of students on campus is impaired by the fact that students consider this particular ethical stand to be absurd.

"I think though that we have to look at it from a financial point of view. If the college is to exist and remain on firm financial grounds, we need the money from the Church," he inserted.

"So what it really comes down to is we're selling our soul to the Church?" I asked again.

"I didn't say that."

"Thank you, Mr. President."

Humanities Fall Retreat

The Fall Retreat, which took place on Sept. 13, 14, 15, was the first major activity of the year in the Human Relations Department. The retreat gives an opportunity for new and returning students to interact with each other and to learn more about what Humanities has to offer them.

The purpose of American Humanities is to recruit, educate, and develop young people for careers in youth agency leadership. This is done through a total program consisting of a Human Relations academic major and co-curricular program coordinated by a counselor provided by American Humanities. These co-curricular opportunities are seminars with agency speakers, field trips to agency events and activities, and a student association operated similarly to a model youth agency.

This year is retreat featured several distinguished guest speakers - Mr. Don Snider, Mr. Daren Hutchinson, and Dr. W. Hobart Hill. Activities included lectures by the speakers, followed by recreation and fellowship in the evenings.

On Sunday, October 6 and Monday October 7, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Rositzky will be visiting the Human Relations Department students here at High Point College. Mr. Rositzky is chairman of the board of American Humanities, Inc., and both he and his wife are very dedicated to American Humanities and what it stands for. During their stay here they will be talking to as many students as possible, and a pizza party is being planned for Sunday night at 8:00. This get together will be held at Peppi's Pizza Den and all Humanities students are encouraged to attend.

Tutorial Program

by Cathy Calloway

The orientational meeting of the tutorial program was held on Thursday, September 19. The purpose of this meeting was to explain the program to the tutors.

The tutorial program is a branch of the Youth Services Bureau. A counseling service located in High Point, the Bureau is a kind of liaison with the juvenile court system. They try to keep children out of trouble and out of the court system. It is believed that a lot of problems begin at school when the children have not learned at early ages and will not pay attention in class.

On September 24, Mrs. Graves, a professor at A and T University, spoke to the High Point College tutors about the task that lies ahead of them. The tutorial program tutors children from ages six to sixteen. However, the majority of the children are from ten to thirteen years of age. Most of the children come from broken homes or are slow learners. They are on very low reading levels and math levels. Many children have parents who do not care about them. Therefore, the tutors serve as big brothers and sisters as well. Mrs. Graves gave the tutors a formula called LACE. L is for listen. A is for acceptance. C is for communicate. E is for experiment. These four qualities are essential for the tutors to possess. The children being tutored need not only reading and math skills, but a friend as well.

The High Point College tutorial program desperately needs people who are willing to give their time and friendship as tutors. Anyone interested should contact Lydia Brown, Box 3122 Campus or Ken Phaiyah, Box 3480 Campus. Mr. Cope is the College advisor.

It's New.. Reading Lab Proves Helpful

This year, in addition to the regular program of English courses abundantly found in Cooke Hall, there is now a new course; Developmental Reading 151, with Dr. William DeLeeuw. Developmental reading 151 is designed to aid students in developing reading and study skills. This one hour credit course requires one hour of class per week as well as two hours of lab study. The course carries with it the benefits of the newly created and organized Reading Lab, which is located adjacent to the Writer's Lab on the second floor of Cooke Hall.

Aside from the bright color scheme and comfortable atmosphere, the lab is also equipped with reading aids and special programs designed to make learning more pleasant and enjoyable. The lab provides SRA Reading Programs, EDL Readers and Pacers, auto-tutoring composition and reading, Craig Readers, cassette programs as well as a large range of text books, paper backs, and scads of information of reading habits and skills.

Dr. William DeLeeuw, a course teacher as well as lab manager, has two student aids: Miss Anne Stanfield and Miss Vickie Overman, who work with him keeping materials up to date and helping the lab run smoothly.

Dr. William DeLeeuw also takes care of skills testing, for course students as well as testing for students outside of the course who are interested in becoming more familiar with their own reading and study skills and habits.

Looking toward the future the Reading Lab will soon add to its resources, study carrels (you know, those little individual booths) which will offer a better study opportunity and atmosphere.

The Reading Lab is open from 9:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m. daily and 7:00 p.m. - 9:00 p.m. on Monday and Wednesday. Dr. DeLeeuw invites students and faculty who have not yet had an opportunity to visit the Lab to come by and check the place out.

Is it that deep, Pat?

New Cheerleaders

Cheerleading tryouts were held Thursday, September 26 at 6:30 p.m. in the gymnasium. The judges were the returning cheerleaders, Cheri Benjamin, Dean Guy, and two Guilford College cheerleaders. The following girls were chosen: Denneal Burdette, Jeanne Hodgins, Pam Boheler, Karen Kruyer, and Lori McDade. The returning cheerleaders are: Theresa Moran (captain), Linda Wells (co-captain), Diana Rhodes, Donna Walls, and Linda Marvel. The squad has been increased from eight to ten, and they will be sponsoring competition for signs, attendance, and enthusiastic support of the different organizations on campus. The first game of the season will be a home game on November 19 against Warren Wilson. The cheerleaders hope to see you there.

Education, job, then life insurance. That's usually how it goes. But Pilot's Senior Plan changes the traditional order of events. If you are a senior in college, you are eligible for this plan that recognizes your need for life insurance right now.

Establish your life insurance while you are finishing your education. It makes sense. The younger you are the lower the premium rates are. The sooner you start, the sooner your policy builds cash and loan values and becomes an important part of your financial planning program.

Fall Play Production Cancelled

In a surprising announcement it was made known yesterday that the HPC Tower Players Fall play of "Mame" has been canceled. The play, which was originally scheduled to open on Parent's Day weekend, was beset with troubles from the first, but the mysterious and sudden cancellation of the show came as a shock to everyone involved. Such an event has never occurred in the college's drama department before.

As of press time Caroline Rauch, Department Head, was unavailable for comment.

However the original posted notice of the cancellation offers these explanations: costs have risen in all areas - royalties, lumber, musicians, costume rentals. A lack of musicians to make up the pit orchestra. Numerous other events were scheduled for the same weekend at conflicting times. Also the show started rehearsals late and fell steadily behind as opening night drew closer.

Even in the face of all the difficulties, however, many of the cast members are shocked and extremely disappointed at the cancellation. People have spent time locating such unlikely things as a stuffed giraffe, an antique barber chair, a fox, etc. The set crew has constructed an entire room (on wheels yet) complete with stairs, closet, a mobile bar counter, etc. Of course many costumes were already

Halloween Carnival

The Halloween Carnival was a success this year both financially and in terms of amusement and enthusiastic response. A total of five hundred and sixty-one dollars was raised at this year's carnival. After expenses, half of the proceeds is donated to the United Appeal Drive and half is divided evenly between the participating campus organizations. Everyone who worked so hard to get this show on the road is gratefully thanked for their labor.

HPC Library Accepts Donations

High Point College and Dr. Conrad of the History Department were hosts to a distinguished guest bearing gifts recently. Mr. Robin McNab, Vice Consul and Assistant Trade Commissioner of the Canadian Consulate in Atlanta, donated, on behalf of his Government, 100 books to the High Point College Library. Subjects of the volumes ranged from economics to Canadian novels and poetry.

This is also being done at other colleges and universities across the country for the purpose, according to Mr. McNab, of enlightening Americans about their neighbors to the north. Mr. McNab explained that former President Nixon once referred to Japan as America's biggest trading partner when in reality, it is Canada, with about 25% of America's exports going to Canada. The United States buys more from Canada than it buys from Great Britain, Japan, and West Germany combined.

Mr. McNab, and presumably his counterparts at other Canadian Consulates across the country, hope to correct misconceptions such as these and, hopefully, improve relations between two neighboring giants which have seen a certain amount of strain develop recently in their affairs with each other.

SGA Referendum

On Wednesday, November 20, a campus wide referendum will be held on a proposed constitutional amendment to establish an inauguration date for elected Student Government Association officers. The proposed amendment reads as follows:

"Section 1. Article 10 of the Student Government Constitution amended to add section Q. "The inauguration of the elected S.G.A. officers shall be conducted within seventy-two (72) hours after the results of the election have been announced, providing there are no appeals. The location of the ceremony shall be established by the chairman of the elections committee of the Student Legislature.

Section 2. This act shall become effective upon ratification."

According to the Constitution of the Student Government Association, "An amendment shall become a part of this constitution when ratified by a two-thirds majority vote of the student body voting."

This proposal was approved by the Student Legislature last spring. It came as a result of the controversy concerning the spring S.G.A. elections. Copies of this amendment will soon be available at various locations on campus. The referendum will be held Wednesday, November 20 from 10:00 A.M. until 3:00 P.M. ALL High Point College students are eligible to vote.

Barber Shop Quartet

The Music Department and Student Union is sponsoring the Aristocrat Barber Shop Quartet Thursday, November 7, 6:15 P.M. in the Cafeteria. The Aristocrats are International finalists and the winner of the Dixie Division of the Society for the Preservation of Barbershop Singing in America. They are in demand throughout the nation. They have been given standing ovations wherever they have performed. We are most fortunate to have this entertaining group to sing for us.

The Music department will offer a course in Barbershop Singing during the 1975 Interim. You may pre-register for "Barbershop Singing" for Men and Women 3 Hours Credit. Course No. 2921.

Everyone enjoys the Halloween Carnival.

Notes From All Over

It is always nice to open a column with an optimistic note. Dean Guy has recently talked to me about the dorm seminar program, which I consider to be one of the best ideas to come along in a great while. I urge everyone to take notice of this program, and by the way to join in a hearty round of applause in appreciation of such a richly thought provoking activity.

Philosophical observation: I happened to be in the room last week when my room mate made a phone call home - to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. Inside of five minutes time he was engaged in an animated conversation with his mother, from the other side of the equator. The world has shrunk to the size of a marble.

"The truth of a statement has nothing to do with it's credibility. And visa versa."

In my last editorial I am not certain whether I stuck my foot into a large hornets nest or simply into my mouth, but you formerly innocent appendage certainly seems to have reached a noticeable location. I refer the reader to the letter of rebuttal from Dean Cole. I urge the reader to re-read the editorial carefully. Numerous back issues have been saved for the purpose, if anyone is in need of a copy.

Let me especially direct the reader's attention to the final paragraph of the Dean's letter, in which he delivers a "put up or shut up" challenge to the editorialist to meet in open debate over the subject. I am sincerely grateful to the Dean for showing that much interest on the subject, but I consider such a debate to be inconclusive: it will prove little or nothing. I intend instead to investigate the practical procedure a student should follow in organizing a new course, and then to attempt to initiate a new course into the curriculum of this college. If such a course is approved I will be delightfully surprised and the school will have a useful addition to the curriculum, if it is not approved then I will have proved in a practical way the point I was trying to make in my editorial. It must be emphasized that cost, teacher availability, etc., play an important role in the approval of courses. Since my editorial argued the "moral" approval of a course, my point can only be proved by refusal of the course on that basis.

I would also like to mention here the Dean's use of the term "yellow journalism". I do not consider that remark to be aimed so much at the editorial as at the editorialist. I am quite dismayed by what I take to be a personal insult. It is depressing to be unable to argue over academic questions without suffering a personal attack.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Sir:

The average citizen has learned not to become involved in verbal conflict with the Fourth Estate as that august body will always have the last word. I feel, however, that I must reply to an editorial in your recent issue which casts aspersions upon the academic program of High Point College.

The gist of the editorialist's comments seemed to be that High Point College was not offering "relevant" courses because the Methodist Church opposed new curriculums or courses. It was also indicated that anytime a new course was proposed that course was turned down by the academic administration.

In answer to the charges let me say that neither Methodist Church, the High Point College Board of Trustees, nor any other group has ever directed the curriculum at this institution. In the ten years that I have headed the academic area, I have never been approached by the Church, trustees, or other

On Writing Columns

By Pat Jobe

Writing something worthwhile is nearly impossible. I've been staring down at a blank sheet of typing paper for several minutes, rolling ideas around in my mind, trying to deal with questions that I think are central, important, and whose answers will unravel some sort of key for the best in myself and the best in High Point College. Of course, I face the fact that what's good for the former may not be for the latter.

I've asked myself what good it does to write a column for people to read? I've written about ten or twelve columns for this newspaper in the past two years. Three of those columns dealt with the alcohol policy of the college or the alcohol practices of the student body. Nothing much has changed, in fact, the mere longevity of the situation makes it seem that much worse. The alcohol policy of students and the school has become like war. Nobody likes it, but it is a tradition.

Then I asked myself what good it is to talk about Christianity? The God squad-ders think I'm a heretic for saying Ghandi went to heaven and people ought to be nice to sinners. And the cynics think I'm a fool for believing that Christianity will ever put Jesus back in the Church. Why bother? Everybody thinks Jesus was a good dude but why is that important when we've got a trade deficit, the Democrats are about to landslide, and the Oakland A's may win their third World Series in a row? Obviously my priorities are out of whack.

organization in regard to curriculum matters. In addition I should mention that, historically and practically, the Methodist Church has been in the forefront of innovative education and is recognized as the leading educational denomination among Protestant sects.

In regard to academic administrations refusal to consider new courses, I would like to issue a challenge to the editorialist. I challenge the editorialist to meet with me in open forum and state when an innovative course has been

Then I say don't daydream about H.P.C. ever being a fortress of idealism. Steve Lawson is worried about a sidewalk to Cooke Hall so people won't get muddy feet, the legislature meets for twelve minutes and hears the Chairman say, "Go out and find some problems so we'll have something to talk about next time," and the editor of this newspaper thinks we ought to practice massage to see if Dean Cole is a reactionary. I'm a patient guy, but my hope is dim. What I'd really like to do is get some pliers and a screwdriver, maybe a hammer, and go down to Wesley Memorial on a Sunday Morning with Paul Hildreth and Chuck Hallepe-neas. I'd grab the Bible and read from Matthew 25 about feeding the hungry, while Paul and Chuck unhooked the organ and rolled it down the center aisle. (I'd let them roll the organ 'cause they're bigger than me. Then I'd pray as seriously as I knew how that God would strike the steeple of that mammoth structure (stretching like a varicose vein across the face of the earth) with a bolt of lightning. After that I'd go outside where Paul and Chuck would be waiting with the organ and we'd drive it over somewhere and hock it. Then we'd take the money and start organic gardens in backyards on Commerce Avenue. That's what I'd really like to do, but those guys down at Wesley Memorial would likely have me arrested which would upset my parents.

But that would be the life. (If you've read Hildreth's article elsewhere in the paper, you know he'd enjoy it, too.)

presented by students or faculty which has been discouraged by either the administration or the Educational Policies Committee. If the editorialist had made an investigation by conferring with the Dean of the College or the Educational Policies Committee, his statements could not have been made in a context other than "yellow journalism."

Dear Editor,

I am writing to voice my opinion on the conditions of the Day Student Parking Lot.

We could rob from the rich and plant gardens, repair houses, hang curtains, and sing after supper for the poor. I think singing, laughing, planting, robbing people who really don't need all that stuff anyway, and then sleeping, the grass would be such fine things to do. But I don't have the nerve and besides stealing is against the ten commandments, so I can't do that.

I'm sure that there really are alternatives to the way things are. Jesus was such a grand sort and he was nothing like the people who go to Churches and sleep through sermons. He seemed to have great time living, running around knocking over tables and beating up money-changers. His water to wine trick was a real hit in his day, but I doubt it would go over too well in the High Point College library.

I look at the vast moldy facade we call reality and mourn for the zeal, the fire, the sense of adventure that made men become apostle knights, and main course attractions for Roman lions. It's gone, folks. We've replaced magic with television, adventure with football, and Jesus has become a mere figure on a stained-glass window that is worth more money than he ever saved or heard tell of, or had any use for.

It makes me wonder about why I write columns instead of living right. It makes me ashamed.

Parking for day students is far below the acceptable standard. My comments will be pointed only toward the abuses and possible corrections of the available space and the deplorable conditions of the lot.

The space allotted for day students to park is not adequate for the present enrollment. Dorm students also park on the lot illegally which makes it virtually impossible to find a place to park. May I suggest that the parking lot be policed as an immediate measure to relieve the parking pressure. Then as a permanent measure, someone should seriously consider increasing the present lot or constructing more space in another area for day students.

ZODIAC TRACK FOR NOV. 1 - NOV. 3

ARIES [Mar. 21-Apr.20] Curb your anger this weekend. Things may tend to provoke you rather easily. Now is a good time to finish one of those many projects you've begun and abandoned half-done.

TAURUS [Apr. 21-May 20] Life is likely to appeal to your sense of humor this weekend. You may acquire some possession for your room or home that you've wanted for a long time. Good time financially.

GEMINI [May 21-June 21] Spend some time on domestic affairs now. You've done lots of partying lately and probably need a rest. Things are easy moving now, with nothing really exciting happening.

CANCER [June 22-July 22] You're back at your home base now, content with life, and ready for a quiet time of solitude. Others however, may not understand this basic trait and may disturb you frequently.

LEO [July 23-Aug. 23] Honors or recognition may come your way now. Take time out from work to do something you enjoy. And remember to treat so-called "inferiors" as equals - you'll have more friends.

VIRGO [Aug. 24-Sept. 23] Sarcasm does not become you, nor will it win you friends. Your perception of others thoughts may cause friction if you want it to. Show a more friendly attitude.

LIBRA [Sept. 23-Oct. 22] Your moods may alternate like the symbolic scales, and others may find you hard to cope with. You may get involved in several club or group activities now, which is good.

SCORPIO [Oct. 23-Nov. 22] Your love of solitude may keep you in right now. Get out and meet people. Let someone know what's going on in your head. A good time for research or bookwork.

SAGITTARIUS [Nov. 23-Dec. 21] Watch those sudden impulses of yours. Your honesty and complete frankness may come in handy now. Should be a good time for travelling and meeting new people.

CAPRICORN [Dec. 22-Jan. 20] Your far-ahead planning may have gotten slightly out of hand, but things should straighten out soon. Organization will help you through the rough spots.

AQUARIUS [Jan. 21-Feb. 19] Probably a humdrum time because few people share your ideas and opinions, no matter how great. You may feel unappreciated now, but that will change soon.

PISCES [Feb. 20-Mar. 20] Someone may take advantage of your willingness to help. Use that vivid imagination of yours for a worthwhile project.

Interium Registration

Registration for interium term begins on November 11, 1974. During interium it is customary to take no more than three credit hours. The theory is that the student can concentrate better when taking one course every day for several hours than when he is taking numerous courses but only several times a week. This system, which is used at many other colleges is designed to break up the fall semester in such a way that while taking the same amount of hours a student will have more time to devote to each class. It is meant to be a change of pace and a rest from the normal routine, and to make that long first semester seem shorter.

Students are encouraged to evaluate the interium system and the courses taught during the time. It is the time when innovations in courses are likely to be tried out for size, so investigate carefully and see what can be gained from this period.

Scarrit Admissions

Arden Schlesinger from Scarritt College in Nashville, Tennessee will be on the campus of High Point College on Nov. 20 from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. He will be in the Religion Department. He will be available to speak to interested students about careers in church work. Mr. Schlesinger will be discussing the major offerings at Scarritt in religion, Christian education, drama, behavioral science, church and community work, and evangelism.

Scarrit College is a senior college and graduate school of The United Methodist Church designed for the education of lay workers. Its graduates serve the church in every state of the union and in fifty-nine foreign countries. Graduates from Scarritt are in great demand in the church. Members of last year's class received between five and thirty job offers upon graduation.

Those interested in discussing full-time careers should contact Mr. Schlesinger when he is on campus.

The Rah-Rah Days

Entertaining, nostalgic, humorous, irresistible glimpses of days gone by are provided by Oliver Jensen and the Editors of American Heritage in College Album (McGraw-Hill, $8.95 to 12/31/74; $10 thereafter).

Rare photographs collected all over the country bring back the whole range of campus life from the early days, when only a handful of young men attended a small number of institutions, to the bustling present, when education is America's biggest business.

Here are the Ivy League of long ago and the new, raw colleges of the windswept prairies; the classrooms, the August preceptors, the sports, the clowning; the coming of higher education for women; and the fads and revolutions that students, aping the outside world, have inflicted on bedeviled administrations.

"Our aim has been to recall the changing look and the lasting flavor of the American college experience across the past century and more," writes Jensen in his Foreword.

Eight sections make up the book's curriculum, abundantly illustrated and highlighted by vivid anecdotes. "In the Beginning" reveals, among other things, that a Harvard student's quarterly bill in 1804 amounted to $33.57. "A Primitive Brotherhood" recalls the college man's world of the 19th century. "And a Sisterhood" shows how women slowly infiltrated the masculine retreats, then established a full-fledged college of their own.

"Light and Learning" delves into the charisma of great teachers. "Cheering Section" celebrates such glories as the season the Yale football team scored 698 points to 0. "High Spirits" runs the gamut from goldfish to nudity to riots. "Signs of the Times" revives hay rides and Marijuana Smoke-Ins. "Last Words" echoes pompous blessings on the eve of the conquest of the world.

Freedom

By Paul Hildreth

What is freedom? Do we define freedom or, do we exercise it? Freedom is not always freedom from but, is in many cases freedom to. To be free means being able to direct one's will in any desired direction. Freedom from is like escaping from bondage. The pushing away of existing circumstances and developing our own ideas.

Freedom to, is being able to choose that which we desire, after we have gained freedom from our former situation. Do we consider ourselves free, when we conform to every passing tide, of the majority's approval?

Freedom consists in exercising the right to be ourself. We disagree and yet we adhere.

Freedom is not adhering unless we believe or wish to believe. The basis for freedom is formed by the individual, not the tide of popular opinion. We all at one time or another say we want to be free, but never realize what we want to be free from or free to.

The word freedom is used loosely and carelessly. Freedom for me has a deeper meaning, a meaning that goes back to man's creation. In his evolution or his divine creation, man had or acquired the ability to come out of himself, and hope to be where he was not; to see that which others did not see. Freedom or to freedom from is expressed by the I in everyone, if ever it is expressed at all.

Undefeated and virtually assured of a berth in the NAIA District 26 soccer playoffs High Point College can clinch at least a tie for its first Carolinas Conference soccer championship Saturday afternoon in Wilson, N.C., against Atlantic Christian College.

The Panthers have romped to a 7-0-1 record this season, including a perfect 4-0 conference mark. The tie was a 3-3 deadlock against a strong Davidson team, and one of the non-league victories was a 2-1 win over UNC-Wilmington, a contender for the NAIA District 29 championship.

Last year the Panther suffered from a lack of scoring potential. This year they are averaging better than three goals a game. In the eight games this season nine different players have shared in the 27 goals scored, while the defense has limited the opposition to only nine goals.

With no one dominating offensive scoring threat in the Panthers lineup, the opposing defenses have had to contend with lineup filled with potential scorers. Freshmen Jeff Potter and Hunter Brett and sophomore Bill Redfern are the leading goal makers for the Panthers, and they have only five goals to their credit each.

"Balance has been the key to our attack this year," offered Panther coach Ray Alley. "We have gotten good scoring from our halfbacks, which adds another dimension to our offense. Jeff Potter and Tim Nichols have strengthened us on the wings, and our bench has given us a big boost all season long.

"Joe Ramsbotham came off the bench to score the winning goal in the 2-1 win over Guilford, while Paul Goehle got the winning goal as a reserve with only 1:17 left in the game against Pembroke State."

Potter and Nichols, both Baltimore area products, are two newcomers in the Panthers lineup which includes three players from the same Smithtown (N.Y.) East High School team. In addition to Goehle, the other two Smithtown freshmen are Brett and Jerry Gostic, who is being touted as one of the top fullbacks in the state. A fourth member of that Smithtown team, Mel Mahler, will miss the rest of the season with a leg injury, while junior captain Gary Downing is yet another Smithtown product.

Against Atlantic Christian the Panthers will face an improving Bulldog team with a lineup of freshmen who have gained valuable experience since the early part of the season. High Point downed ACC in the second game of the season 4-0 but the rematch figures to be an even closer challenge.

Following the ACC clash the Panthers travel to UNC-Greensboro on Tuesday, Oct. 22, and then host Delmont Abbey, the defending NAIA District 26 champion on Saturday, Oct. 26. High Point will close out the regular season on Wednesday, Oct. 30, against Pfeiffer College in another conference rematch.

Fall basketball drills at High Point College have opened with a note of optimism with the addition of a number of newcomers as the Panthers prepare for their season opener on November 19 against Warren Wilson College.

Six lettermen return to join three transfers and several talented freshmen. Returning are sophomores Ray Coble and Pearlee Shaw, who started a year ago as freshmen, and 6-1 swingman Paul Maddox, only of three seniors on the club. Paul Cloud and Greg Bennett, a pair of 5-11 guards from Winston-Salem are the other two seniors, while Mike Glover, a 6-1 junior is the other lettermen.

Transfers eligible to play right away will be guard Leon Dickens who played at N.C. A&T last year, and Tom Jones, a Brooklyn, N.Y. product, who played junior college ball in Scottsdale, Arizona. A third transfer, Glen Bethea, a High Pointer who played as a freshman at Winston-Salem State last year, will be eligible to play second semester.

Among the freshmen the player most likely to see action in a starting role is Sherman Johnson, a 6-8 center from East Forsyth High School. Johnson, Shaw at 6-6 and Jones at 6-7 give the Panthers strong rebounding potential, a frontline scoring threat and speed on the fast break.

The Panthers will play 24 regular season games and participate in the annual Fayetteville holiday tournament. In addition to home-and-home games with all seven of the other Carolinas Conference schools, the Panthers have non-conference games set with Warren Wilson, Limestone, Campbell, UNC-Wilmington, Pembroke, St. Mary's (Md.), and hopefully a long week of participation in both the Carolinas Conference and NAIA District 26 tournaments.

Women's Field Hockey

High Point College's field hockey team travels to Catawba College Friday, Oct. 18 for a rematch against the Indians and will be looking for its fifth win of the season. The Lady Panthers downed Catawba 3-1 in the latest victory of the season, which has been the most productive from a won-lost standpoint in a number of years.

Other victories this year were against Guilford, Wake Forest and Campbell, and the 4-2-1 record includes a 2-2 tie with UNC-Greensboro. The losses were 1-0 to Duke and 3-0 to Appalachian State.

Keying the defense has been junior Barbara Abbott, a Deep South selection at fullback a year ago, and freshman Kim Van Acker. Leading the offense has been junior Ann Lombardy and freshman Joda Hayman.

High Point returns home on Tuesday, Oct. 29, against East Carolina University in the only home match remaining on the schedule as the squad points towards the Deep South tournament at UNC-Greensboro in early November.

parking.

The existing parking lot needs to be resurfaced immediately. Why should day students park in an eroded area when enormous ruts and holes place their cars in jeopardy? Dorm students have decent parking facilities. Am I to assume that day students deserve less? It seems that the college could afford to at least fill in the holes; then when it rains we could get out of the lot without fourwheel drive.

In closing I would like to say that this problem may seem trivial, but to the day student it is a major problem that should be looked into immediately.

Thank you,
Mark Miller

Dear Sir:

Recently I had the opportunity to have lunch with my freshman group in the cafeteria. After hearing repeatedly over the years of the poor quality of food that the cafeteria offers, I was pleasantly surprised to hear many favorable comments from students concerning their meals.

It is my observation that Mr. Frank Caulfield and his staff do an excellent job in providing food service to our college and I commend the cafeteria staff for a job pleasing to the palate.

Sincerely,
William F. Cope

ordered, scripts and chorus books from Tams-Whitmark had to be returned, dancers have made themselves sore for nothing, and almost the entire cast has a vague feeling somewhat like a person who has just completed a large and intricate jigsaw puzzle and then had it fall to the ground. Perhaps for those students who plan to be professional actors it is a feeling they should get used to. For the rest of the students and the faculty who are used to a fine Parents Day production, it is a feeling they should never have to encounter. It is a shame that they have to.

Atlanta Road Race

ATLANTA, Ga. -- By almost any measure, the Champion Spark Plug Road Racing Classic at Road Atlanta, October 27 -- November 3, is a goliath affair. It is a logistical masterpiece. A statistician's dream. Quite simply, it is the longest and largest championship auto race in the world.

Known as the "Olympics of Auto Racing," the Champion Classic brings together 450 Sports Car Club of America amateurs from 35 states for a week-long runoff event which ultimately decided the club's national champions in a clockwork series of 21 half-hour sprint races November 1-3.

Including pit crews and officials, more than 2,500 participants will make the annual pilgrimage to Road Atlanta beginning next week.

For the statistician, the field of 450 drivers includes 17 of last year's 21 national champs back to defend their titles, and 31 former champions dating back in several cases to the very first "runoff" which was held at Riverside Raceway, California, in 1964.

Participants will cover a total of more than 20,000 miles in practice and competition over Road Atlanta's 2.52 mile circuit, and spectators will be treated to more than 900 miles of actual championship racing in the final 3 days of the speedfest.

The Champion Classic is an amateur -- or club racing -- event, and as such there is no "purse" for winners. That doesn't keep the event from ranking as one of the world's richest races, however. More than $140,000 will change hands, in the form of travel expenses paid for by the SCCA, and manufacturer's contingency awards, paid to winners based on exclusive use and endorsement of certain products.

Gregory at HPC

HIGH POINT, N.C. -- Dick Gregory, human rights activist, will speak at High Point College on Thursday, November 21, at 7 p.m. He will discuss current social problems. Tickets may be purchased in advance at the College business office or at the door of Memorial Auditorium immediately before his appearance.

Gregory has reached his widest audience as a guest on late-night television talk shows, although he has become one of the most sought-after speakers in America on college campuses. He visits more than 300 colleges annually.

He became famous in the Danieal Berrigan Comes to High Point

Danieal Berrigan will be on our campus in the Chapel, on Nov. 25. He will be here from two in the afternoon until five. Some of you may remember the spring play last year, "The Trial of the Catonsville Nine", which was written by Danieal Berrigan, and tells the story of the Berrigan brothers and some faithful friends who in protest of the Vietnam War turned a large file of draft records in order to keep the men on record from being drafted and to symbolically show their disgust over the use of napalm in Vietnam. Berrigan was a priest of the suit order, probably the most progressive, and certainly the most out-going part of the Catholic Church.

early 1960's as a comedian. One of his first highly-acclaimed bookings was at Chicago's Playboy Club. Following that engagement, he appeared in top clubs all over the country and on major television shows. His last show as a nightclub entertainer was in August, 1973 when he curtailed further appearances. He felt the late hours of night club life interfered with his potential for human service.

Gregory's prolific activities make him difficult to categorize. He is a recording artist, author, lecturer, actor, human rights activist, social satirist, critic, philosopher and political activist analyst. He says all of these roles permit him to serve the cause of human liberation and to alleviate human suffering.

During the civil rights movement of the 1960's, Gregory participated in every major and most minor demonstrations for human rights in America. He has served prison sentences growing out of his involvement with segregation in Chicago and discrimination against Indians in the state of Washington.

In protest against the armed hostilities in Southeast Asia, Gregory has not eaten solid food since April 24, 1971. He is a pacifist and a vegetarian. He has recently turned his attention to the problem of hunger. Earlier this year he ran from Chicago to Washington, covering some thirty to forty miles a day of the 900 miles, as part of his crusade to focus attention on the problem of hunger.

The Amazing World of Kreskin

by Gary Keaton

"Extra! Extra! Extra!..." "The Devil made me do it!..." To those of you who didn't attend Monday night's performance of Kreskin at High Point College Auditorium, these quotes may seem unrelated and meaningless. Even the students who shouted them still don't quite understand why. For most purposes these quotes are unrelated but Kreskin used them effectively to show that our minds may yield power greater than our wildest dreams, if developed properly. Kreskin himself seemed to be amazed and delighted as his feats were continually successful. His performance at HPC was the most successful event this year, without five hundred people attending.

Even the most hard nosed skeptics were stunned by the feats which seemed to have no scientific explanation. Before a nearly full house, Kreskin such things as reading thoughts, naming cards hands and even controlling students physical actions through the power of suggestion, which he claims has no hypnotic foundation.

On Monday afternoon I had the pleasure of interviewing the Amazing Kreskin and I found him to be receptive and extremely cooperative. He wanted to stress two things at the first, "I don't claim to be a psychic," he said, "and I don't read minds - nobody does - but I am able occasionally to read a thought." This point contradicts the cover of his book, The Amazing World of Kreskin which states that the book "reveals how he 'reads' minds".

I asked him if he does specific exercises to keep his powers in shape and he said that this being his three hundred and third performance in ten and one half months, he needs little practice aside from performances. Kreskin does meditate twice daily, and just prior to his shows he walks about a mile by himself.

Kreskin, when asked if he amazes himself occasionally, said the "mind has no limits" and "I am always finding new powers or things I can do recently on the Carson show I tried a new thing and failed, but I don't consider myself a failure because my too are not mechanical and can not be checked in advance. I feel that the human mind is a mysterious entity in that it can improve upon past failures by itself. So sometime I'll try that stunt again and it will succeed.

Kreskin admits that he is a showman: "Anyone who commands an audience is in show business". He also admits that when performing he does his act in such a way as to create awe, for the effect, but he also wants to create respect for the human mind and its powers.

"I do not give people magical powers," he said, referring to a recent incident in Dayton Ohio where he helped an eyewitness to a bank robbery recall the license number of the getaway car. "I merely help people organize their own thoughts to help them use their own mental powers. I can not hope to make someone remember something that they never knew before."

Is it possible for others to develop similar powers? "I can't teach others to do my feats; I can help them prepare themselves to organized thoughts more effectively, but practice and an inborn ability also is part of my power, much as a master violinist or athlete has inborn skill that must be developed over years of hard work."

In speaking of his audience, Kreskin said, "I love the skeptics, for they are the ones that make my work worthwhile. Without them I would not be where I am today. Some, however, treat me as a liar and a fraud merely because they can't understand - call it a fear of the unknown maybe, I don't know."

I feel that Kreskin uses his apparent wisely - for when you consider the possibilities - Let me pose one question. Assuming that Kreskin's powers are real (and I have come across no instance where they have seemed otherwise) if Kreskin had been born two thousand years ago, would we be reading about him today as merely a showman, or perhaps the leader of a respected school of thought?

For all to those interested, Kreskin is teaching a course in Parapsychology at Seton Hall University in New Jersey next fall.

Halftime

In an otherwise dark building, one light in one room shone forth. From that room came the sound of what seemed to be someone brutally beating a defenseless typewriter - almost to death. It was well after midnight.

Early the next day this same person could be seen in a car, scribbling furiously on a pad he held in his lap. After reaching his destination, he proceeded to beat the dickens out of still another typewriter. Earlier that week this same person could be seen talking to numerous people, and once again writing like a maniac the entire time. He could be seen in stores, talking business, gaining the goodwill of merchants and proprietors, smoothing complaints and making promises.

This person was constantly fatigued and had not had time to shave. This person frequently was totally alone and found himself "stood up" on important appointments. This person wrote over half of the last issue of the Hi-Po all by himself. This person was me.

I'd like to tell you what I think of this, but I'm hampered in speech by proper writing etiquette. Reader, I want very badly at this moment to use a certain well known word; a short, sharp, syllabic sounding expletive. According to the Oxford Universal Dictionary this word has existed in the English language since at least 1506. Your great-great-grandfather would have known exactly what it meant. It would be an enormous relief to be able to employ that word right now. But I can't unfortunately.

When asked to take the position of editor of this paper, I was told that it would be highly educational. They were right. I've learned many important principles which I shall remember for the future; by far the biggest principle being concerned with the word "half": half of what people tell you they will do, they won't; half of what people tell you is garbage period; no matter how long a time they have to do anything, they will take half again as long to accomplish it, even if they assure you they are very fast - remember that they're always really half fast. This concerns not only the Hi-Po and my staff, but a basic attitude on the campus, maybe everyone in the world. But let me amuse you with my particular problems as an example, the problems involved in running a student newspaper.

My staff. Yes. I've got an Associate Editor that doesn't associate, a Lay-Out Editor that must lay out in the sun, I sure don't see her around here, a Business Manager that pretty much minds his own business-no one else's, and an Advertising Manager that as of this writing I haven't seen in over a week. Most of my reporters don't report and the last time I called an organizational meeting no one came. Not even our Advisor. I sat for half an hour in the publication room, all by myself.

Many of our advertisers do not pay their bills, many people expect free services of the paper with nothing in return. Many people gripe about the paper, its quality, what it says, or how its handled. On one occasion I remember a rather pretty young lady who told me quite plainly and frankly that the Hi-Po was one mass of technical errors which was poorly written and sloppily handled. "Very nice for you to be so honest in your opinion; would you like to work with us and make it better?" With the same exasperating smile - "No."

After the last issue was printed I was running around campus putting out stacks of papers in the appropriate places (our Circulation Department is non-existent) when I happened to recross my path upstairs in the Campus Center. I found a mass of shredded papers on and around one of the tables where someone had ripped a two-for-one pizza ad out of every issue and then left the rest of the paper scattered all over the place, apparently without having even read it.

I have written several editorials attacking some policy or other of the administration, but this one is attacking the students. I have rarely even imagined a more self-concerned and apathetic group of people anywhere before. This shred-the-newspaper-for-pizza trick occurred all over the campus. Many students never got to read that issue because they were all torn into birdcage lining by the time they got to a stack.

If you have been reading Pat Jobe's columns lately you know that he has said that probably nothing will ever change in the near future - speaking mainly of the student body. He's right. There is nothing that can shake you out there of your stupor. I've tried everything. Not only does anything this paper says have little effect on those who read it, but most of you blithering

Dear Mr. Editor,

The continuing routine of the "Dan O'Toole and Phill D'Agnostino Show" has now seen quite a few curtains and I feel that it is about time to make a few comments.

McCulloch is an old dormitory in obvious need of a face life. This has been a problem for the dormitory for years and has been the source of rationalization for destructive behavior by residents and non-residents alike. This has not been the case this year, and it is my contention that in the past it was the case because of a combination of a lower quality resident and a lack of pride (or of something to be proud of). It has been shown by this year's residents that it does not necessarily follow that if you have an old building, you have an uncivilized environment.

We have had run-ins with our residents, of course. We have given out numerous warnings and fines. But when Mr. O'Toole and myself went out on a limb to have our 3rd floor lounge carpeted and renewed, they came through. For weeks that carpet has lain in its original condition. There are NO stains, NO tears, and NO burns at all. Can any other dormitory make that claim?

Because of our dormitory's location we have been plagued with lack of hot water and similar problems. I have been informed of our problems numerous times by our residents, but, in general it's been extremely good.

The point of this letter, Mr. Editor, is to make our campus aware that to live in McCulloch is not like living in the Hilton, but for what we have to work with, it is the best it can be, at least for now.

PERCHANCE

to Dream

by T.W.V.

Sweet, silent Slumber
when sawing lumber, happily catching Z's.
like a yellow chiffon breeze lightly wrapping thy bod
in a soft silent pod;
a cocoon causing metamorphosis.
It at length gets boring
then commences a snoring to waken the living dead
with rattle-ringing i'th'head.
The dull light shining oak-willows pining; cowering to the breeze.
Thru time's swift passage,
slow progress slashes
while happily catching Z's.

So may I take my hat off to Mr. Bill Guy and Ann Boyles, Mr. Jack Thompson, Mr. Carl Dalbey and in particular our men for making living in McCulloch not something to be ashamed of, but something to actually be proud of.

Thank you,
P. D'Agnostino

Dear Editor,

For the last few weeks, especially on weekends, the residents of McCulloch have been plagued with a most unusual problem. The problem is that someone has been breaking into our basements and liberating the oppressed fourteen year old girls, who we have kept locked in our boiler room...Now let's look at this situation from a humane point of view: without those girls working their fingers to the bone in our boiler room, where are we going to get our hot water?

I understand that last year Russia had a surplus of hot water; but since we are threatening to cut off all aid to them, it is doubtful that they would even consider helping us out of our "hot water shortage" even in this time of desperate need.

Now that the alternative is closed, there is only one thing we can do - ask the college to do something about it. Since there has been no official statement about the hot water situation, I must assume that the hot water is turned off for financial reasons. Financial reasons are fine, but why stop there? Why not cut off all the heat and electricity? Turn the ovens off in the cafeteria. Or close the cafeteria altogether. Why not shut the school down? That would save a lot of

by Pat Jobe

Evaluating a group action from the inside is, at best, highly biased. But I suppose if you make a habit of reading this column, you're used to bias. I'm attempting to evaluate the what and why and how and why again of what has come to be known as the CAN movement and I'm also trying to sell its attributes to this campus. CAN is derived from the initials of the phrase Christian Action Now, but it's more than that. When Chaplain Teague opened a can of chow mein noodles before some fifty students and faculty members in Belk Dorm, he said he was opening a can of worms hoping to stir the conscious, the spirit of HPC to action, affirmative action to confront crucial issues in the college and community.

The response, though positive, was less than thundering. Yet the appeal to action has not been completely unheard. By November 14 students and faculty will have met with city officials to confront the problems of sub-standard housing in the city. If this meeting is a success, students may find themselves working with the poor of this city to help them face a winter that is predicted to be rough.

But let's back up to the examine the roots of this movement and to challenge its potential. On September 23 seven administrators and faculty members showed up a McCulloch dorm to engage the residents of that dorm in some thought provoking dialogue. Dr. Earl Crow questioned the validity of High Point College's claim to being a Christian College. He stated that our graduates fit the mold of middle class America far better than the standards set by Jesus of Nazareth. Dr. Allen Thacker responded to Crow's contentions by saying that one might be able to fit both molds. Needless to say the question was left unresolved in the minds of most observers. In fact, I observed that most of the students didn't give a holy hoot whether or not the school met its claim of Christian institution. That fact alone seemed to justify Dr. Crow's asking, "Does High Point College challenge you to face questions of ultimate concern?"

Few answered.

Dr. Murphy Osborne presented evidence that High Point College has offered a Christian option to those who wish to involve themselves in Christianity as the college sees it. He noted that many fraternity and sorority projects are service oriented, that many forms of worship

Zodiac Track for Nov. 14-17

by Sylvester Horace Manwicke

ARIES [Mar. 21-Apr. 20] Remember you can't always be a leader - try taking direction or advice from someone else for a change. It may be very beneficial.

TAURUS [Apr. 21-May 20] Listening to advice from people not directly concerned with your problems may hinder you. Talk to the people who can help.

GEMINI [May 21-June 21] Avoid making radical changes in the direction of your life. Get advice from experts, and move slowly in everything you do.

CANCER [June 22-July 22] A good time to show your romantic tendencies. Don't be too suspicious of those around you - they're probably being friendly or helpful.

LEO [July 23-Aug. 23] Your flair for entertainment will continue to be evident as you play host or hostess. Just remember that you can command without showing off.

VIRGO [Aug. 24-Sept. 22] Your care of details will help you now, since paying attention to them can eliminate several problems.

LIBRA [Sept. 23-Oct. 22] Your ideas may begin to change about current relationships. A good time to decide what you really want.

SCORPIO [Oct. 23-Nov. 22] Do not let minor misunderstandings set you back. Rise to the occasion and take command, staying calm.

SAGITTARIUS [Nov. 23-Dec. 21] Bold moves made recently may pay off now. But be careful of such actions in the future, your luck may run the other way.

CAPRICORN [Dec. 22-Jan 20] Take precautions in what you do and say, or you could lose a close friend. A good time to examine your values.

AQUARIUS [Jan. 21-Feb. 19] Not everyone may appreciate your feelings about brotherly love. But don't withdraw into your dreams - eventually they will share your ideas.

PISCES [Feb. 20-Mar. 20] Being adaptable may come in very handy now as new situations arise that call for a change in ideas or actions. More carefully but quickly.

Foreign Students At H.P.C.

Every year foreign students come to the U.S. to attend High Point College. One such student is Deborah Buell, of Cali, Columbia; South America. The States are not totally new to her, when she was a sophomore in high school she was a foreign exchange student in Canton, Ohio.

When asked why she came to High Point College, Ms. Buell replied, "I wanted to attend a small conservative college in North Carolina."

Debbie commented, "My first impression of High Point College was that I had chosen a school which was too conservative." At first instead of finding a variety of people on campus with different interests, Ms. Buell was disillusioned by the stagnant and apathetic attitude of the students. In spite of this, Debbie made many close and wonderful friends.

When asked about the academic situation at HPC, Debbie said that there weren't enough challenging choices within each major. Ms. Buell's major is theatre-education. She is presently teaching Creative Dramatics at Westchester Academy, and is finding the experience rewarding. "I believe the best way to learn to teach is through experience."

Debbie thinks that both the city of High Point and HPC are culturally deprived. There is a lack of stimulating activities such as concerts, lectures, musical and theatrical performances.

Ms. Buell feels that there should be a gathering of all foreign students at the beginning of each school year. "This way we could meet one another and learn from different cultures."

"As for holidays, there should be something organized for the foreign students who can not go home over the vacation." The dormitories remain open for those students but it becomes boring and lonely with the campus otherwise empty. Fortunately, Debbie has been able to visit relatives living in the U.S., or return to her family in Cali.

This year Debbie is living off campus for the first time. By meeting her neighbors she is being exposed to older people who are native North Carolinians. "When you live off campus you acquire a greater freedom, but not without discipline and responsibility."

Ms. Buell finds the American way of life challenging and fast-paced.

The Spirit To Act

by Sylvia Petrea

People crowd into the room talking nervously, some laughing to ease the tension. Make-up is applied skillfully, females helping males with the finishing touches. Then street clothes are exchanged for lavish bold costumes, some velvet, some with sequins, others with bold stripes.

The stage manager takes a quick inventory of people, then calls them into place. The orchestra begins to play, the audience is silent. The curtains rustle gently as actors take their stands. At last the music swells, and the grand drape begins to part, and the actors begin to perform to an empty auditorium.

The show has been cancelled, the set destroyed, the costumes returned, and the make-up never ordered. But the spirit remains with the desire to perform.

The further adventures of Hermie, Oscy and Benjy.

They've come a long way since that summer of '42!

Panther Kickers Finish Season

By David Wooten
Sports Editor

The setting was perfect, the weather was right, the crowd good and the Northeast Junior High School band played. Yes, everything was perfect except the District 26 Championship was won by Belmont Abbey 3-1.

The Panthers, who finish this year 11-1-2 gave a valiant try but Belmont Abbey's Mosadak Soussi and Kualid Khalifa got in the Panthers way to capture the crown away from High Point.

Peter Ranney is to be commended for a fantastic season as goalie 11-1-2 is not bad for a guy who has never played soccer before in his life. Of course he was not goalie for all the games but worked and proved he could contend with the best in the state. In the game against Elon he was hurt and even though the blood showed through from his knee he continued to play.

Some outstanding freshman pulled through for the team this year, Jeff Potter - 10 goals, Hunter Brett - nine goals, Skip King, Jerry Gostic, Doug Challenger, Paul Goehle and Richard "Moose" Kellerher. All these guys come from up north, four from New York, and one from Washington, D.C., Maryland and Delaware.

Outstanding sophomores - Bill Redfern, Tim Nichols, Mike Ludwigson, Wayne Wright, Tom Hartman, and Joe Ransbothan. Juniors - Gary Downing, Tom MacIntosh and Eric Herr. The seniors that leave the team Pete Ranney, Fuller Beasley and Orrin Magill.

Head Coach Ray Alley is to be commended for the outstanding work he has done this year. I have observed and have seen a bunch of guys work their hearts out for a great cause and have brought High Point back into the soccer scene in North Carolina and the nation. Many years ago High Point was very prominent in soccer and this year is the third year that soccer has been reorganized. I personally want to thank each player, manager, coach and all the people for a fantastic year.

I think Wayne Wright put it right when he said last Monday, "We thank everyone of the support, and WE WILL BE BACK NEXT YEAR."

Now back to the story, the Panthers reached the finals by virtue of its 5-0 win over Elon in the first round.

In the win the Panthers used its speed and defense to perfection, taking 52 shots at the goal to Elon's 19. Scoring for High Point were, Gary Downing, Jeff Potter, Bill Redfern, and two by Eric Herr.

Downing scored the only goal in the first half powering one in from in front of the goal, getting it unassisted.

Potter got the second half rally going on a direct kick after Elon was called for hands. Herr got his first one of the game on an assist from Jerry Gostic. Redfern tallied the fourth goal unassisted after a great save at the other end by Paul Goehle. The last goal came on a head butt by Herr after Potter cornered kick the ball from the left side. Everyone saw action in the game, even manager George de la Vega.

The championship game was a repeat from the regular season match between the two schools, which was won by High Point 1-0 on a Jeff Potter goal in the second half.

The two clubs battled to a 0-0 tie in the first half with neither club being able to score but having some great opportunities to be saved by some outstanding defense. The defense of both goalies was really super and the scoring that came in the second half was gotten by slipping it through.

Mosadak Soussi scored the first goal on a midfield fly that fell into the left corner of the goal. High Point tied it up a minute later on a Tim Nichols feed to Eric Herr for his third goal of the playoffs.

With 8:43 showing on the clock Soussi broke in with a head butt to give Belmont Abbey the lead and win. Kualid Khalifa came back with 5:45 left and pushed one from the corner.

The game ended with the Christians victorious but the struggle and the true form of championship teams were seen.

The High Point College Purple Panthers will have to go to the hard wood without the assistance of Pete Collins this year, but Jerry Steele will be relying on a lot of speed and quickness to pull the Panthers through.

The Panthers will be coming off a 10-18 record, but have hopes of making the nine close games from last year turn the other way. The team lost nine of their games within one to three points last year.

There will be six returning men from last years squad, all coming back with a lot of hope and dedication to put High Point high in both the District 26 and Carolina's Conference. The men returning are: Paul Cloud - Senior - Winston Salem, N.C.; Paul Mattox - Senior - Rocky Mount, Va.; Greg Bennett - Senior - Winston Salem, N.C.; Ray Coble - Soph. - Greensboro, N.C.; Mike Glover - Junior - Jamestown, N.C.; and Pearlee Shaw - Soph. - Gibsonville, N.C.

Newcomers to the team this year bring a little bit more height, with two standing 6'8 and one 6'7. The new men are: Leon Dickens - Soph. Roboxo, N.C.; Glenn Bethea - Soph. - High Point, N.C.; Ron Engelhaup - Fresh - Baltimore, Md.; Tom Jones - Junior - Brooklyn, N.Y.; Sherman Johnson - Fresh - Walkertown, N.C.; Billy Lee - Fresh - Statesville, N.C.; Mark Bishoff - Soph. Camp Springs, Md. Dickens has been in school since the beginning of last semester, but was not eligible to play the second half of the season for the Panthers. Bethea is not eligible this semester due to transfer, but will be seeing action in the spring term.

Shaw and Mattox are the two leading scorers from last years team, Shaw averaged 12.0 a game and Mattox 11.1. Collins was the leading scorer with a 23.6 average.

Collins was also the leading rebounder with 13.0 average, but once again Shaw and Mattox jump in there with 6.9 and 5.7 respectively.

Johnson will be the man Steele will probably go with in the center position, but will be getting a lot of added help from the forwards. The forward position is a race between Jones, Shaw, and Glover.

The men fighting in the backcourt will be Dickens, Mattox, Coble, Bennett, and Cloud. Mattox and Coble will also see some action at the forwards position. Coble was a forward in high school but was switched to guard because of his outside shooting potential. "We're trying to develop poise, because we feel that is the biggest thing to do, control the tempo, control the break, just keeping together."

Steele plans on using the speed techniques this year and he said, "We're going to play a smart press, pass and run with the ball. We will also be playing more people so as we won't have to rely on just one man for the scoring, like last year."

Last year Collins was the big point getter for the Panthers, but this year Steele feels it will be more balanced with the load not being dumped on one man's shoulders.

The Panthers lost quite a few games last year in the closing minutes of the game, and I ask Steele what he plans on doing to avoid that this year. "Use a little more quickness. In the closing minutes it's a little mans game and we are definitely improved in that department this year."

Steele picked out four teams in the conference that will be the teams to beat this year. "First off the freshman in this league play an important role, but I think Guilford, Elon, Lenoir Rhyne and Catawba will be the teams, but it is hard to say with new faces in the lineups."

The Panthers open their season this Tuesday night, when they take on Warren Wilson here in the Alumni Gym at 8:00. It will be the first meeting of the two schools and should be an exciting game. The team will also be involved in one other game against Limestone, here on November 21 and on Friday and Saturday of that week the Panthers will be involved in the Fayetteville tournament with Campbell, Pembroke, and Catawba.

Steele added a few extra thoughts at the end of the interview, "We think the team is really working hard, they've shown up fairly good in three scrimages, and were the interest of the study body. We are going to try and add some entertainment to our half time shows this year. I would also like to express my appreciation to the cheerleaders for their hard work."

In conclusion, there will be some thrillers in store this year and all thoughts point to go as the Panthers take to the floor Tuesday night and leave victorious. GOOD LUCK PANTHERS!!!

Film Festival No. Two

The Writer's Club is sponsoring Film Festival Number Two on November 18, 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. in the Empty Space Theatre. Three short movies will be shown, The Great Train Robbery, Dream of a Rarebit Friend, and Rescued from an Eagle's Nest, which will last approximately 30 minutes. Also featured will be The Gold Rush, starring Charlie Chaplin and Mack Swain.

Edwin S. Porter (1870-1941) became a permanent employee of the Edison Company at the turn of the century, soon assuming the position of cameraman-director making commercial films. As a pioneer, his achievements were important. He was the first to devise the "Story film," and created the first narrative western in The Great Robbery (Edison, 1903). He introduced social consciousness into the cinema, inaugurated film editing to heighten suspense, was the first American to use visual effect, and was among the first to employ trick photography.

In retrospect, The Great Train Robbery was Porter's most outstanding achievement. Photographed in a track of the Delaware and Lackawanna Railroad outside Dover, New Jersey, the film featured G.M. Andrews in four roles, who as Bronco Billy would become the screen's first cowboy star. Using adroit cutting and parallel action, the photography had a tremendous impact on audiences and confirmed the future of the motion picture industry. The Edison Company sold thousands of prints to newly organized nickelodems and the plot of crime-pursuit-retribution became standard in future western productions.

Of Porter's many trick films the most technically advanced was Dream of a Rarebit Fiend (Edison 1906). Influenced by the French Melies films, the picture depicts the nightmare of a man who has wolfed down ale and welsh rabbit before retiring. Devils drum a tattoo on his head, his shoes creep out of the room, the furniture dances about and his bed sails out of the window, carrying him high above the New York City skyline. After some stirring escapades, he is caught in a whirlwind and falls through the roof of his house. To accomplish all this Porter managed to combine creative editing with stop motion photography, matte shots, dissolves, double exposures, and a mobile camera. The picture was a top grosser in its time.

These films are approved for the Freshman Culture Arts by the Assembly and Artists Committee. Students are asked to turn in their cards before the beginning of the film. A brief 5 minute talk will be held before the film by a member of the Writer's Club. Admission will be 25 cents, which will be used to sponsor a large outdoor film festival a week before exams.

The Writer's Club is offering a 5 dollar prize for the best review of the movies. Send your reviews to box 3047.

Reading Lab Offers New Courses

Beginning its first year at High Point College, the Reading Lab is designed to aid incoming freshmen and new transfer students in developing necessary reading and study skills for the college level. Located in Cook Hall, room 20, the lab contains SRA reading programs for all levels, timed reading programs, tapes, and over 100 recent paperback books. Under the direction of Dr. William DeLeeuw, the Reading Lab also offers two courses, English 151 and 152.

The basic criteria for English 151 and 152 is the California Reading Test which determines reading vocabulary and comprehension skills. The test consists of six basic parts: general, mathematics, science, and social studies vocabulary and reading comprehension in following directions, reference skills, and the interpretation of materials. Each area is separately scored so an evaluation can be made of the areas where work is needed.

English 151 is a one credit hour course which meets one hour a week and requires two hours a week in the Reading Lab. This course stressed reading power, not speed, and emphasizes the study skills needed for college level work. Any student scoring below the 25 percentile on the California Reading Test is required to take English 151 and can complete the course when he makes a satisfactory score (within the 50th percentile). Until this score is obtained, the student must attend all class sessions and complete lab work. By scoring high on the California Reading Test (75th percentile), a student can earn two hours credit, and since English 151 is offered for credit/non-credit, it is impossible to fail.

English 152 is designed for those students who have no reading problem, but want to increase their reading skills. Like English 151, it is also a one credit hour course meeting one hour a week and requiring two hours a week in the Reading Lab. To complete English 152, a student must score within the 75th percentile on the California Reading Test.

The lab work for both English 151 and 152 is individualized, concentrating on the areas in which each student needs help. Reading Lab materials include: resources on listening and taking notes, study methods, comprehension, and taking examinations. Students may also bring readings from their other classes to lab, and are encouraged to do their studying for other courses in the Reading Lab.

At the completion of English 151 or 152, students will be asked to evaluate the Reading Lab. Problems which have already been cited are: conflicts in the afternoon scheduling of lab, inadequate lab space for the 55 students presently enrolled, and the adjustment problems in learning new reading and study skills. A major problem is the time factor involved in taking the courses. Even though the class meets only one hour a week, two hours of lab may still be a burden for some students.

As a new program, the Reading Lab has also had its accomplishments. Out of the six students who took the California Reading Test mid-semester, two were able to complete the course with scores in the 50th and 75th percentile. This just proves, as Dr. DeLeeuw says, "it can be done." The Reading Lab will also serve as a liaison for the new three credit hour course offered in secondary education, Education 302, The High School. Students, therefore, will be able to use lab materials to help them with their student teaching.

According to one student presently involved in the Reading Lab 151 course, "the Reading Lab is a good place for studying because it is quiet. I can get three hours of studying done in one hour because there are less interruptions. The only problem I see is that there could be more evening lab hours."

Reading Lab is open during the following times: Mon. 9-12, 2-5, 5-7; Tues. 9-12, 1-2:30, 3:30-5; Wed. 9-12, 2-5, 5-7; Thurs. 9-12, 1-2:30, 3:30-5; Fri. 9-10, 11-12, 1-3.

All students are welcomed and encouraged to use these facilities.

Parents Day Talent Show

Friday, Nov. 16, the High Point College Student Union is sponsoring a talent show. The show starts at 8:00 p.m. in Memorial Auditorium. Admission is free and all are invited.

Very qualified judges have been selected to award the three cash prizes offered. These prizes are $35.00 to the first place winner, $25.00 to the second, and $15.00 to the third. The judges are Dean Boyles, Barbara Probert - a member of the N.C. Art's Council, Howard Coble - Choir director at Wesley Methodist Church, Ray Moody who is a member of the student activities and alumni office.

Anyone interested in participating should sign up on the list posted on the door of the Student Union Office.

Campus Police Reorganized

by Ray Harris

It is strange what people learn to take for granted. Some people and services become so much a part of the environment that they become just that - extras in the background while we concentrate on the real action, ignoring the furniture. To many of the students the Campus Police are just another part of that unobtrusive background. Who are these people who you just might notice walking around, or gliding by in their car at night?

In search of an answer to this and other questions this reporter entered a small (and unobtrusive, naturally) office located in the rear of Harrison Hall - you know, it's just across from the washing machines.

By chance and unaccustomed luck the officer on duty happened to be Lieutenant Oakley, who is the Supervisor of our Campus Police. I found out from him that there six members of our current force, all of whom are new here. In other words, our Campus Police has been rebuilt into an entirely new force. All men come from Welch Detective Agency, which apparently arranges the contract through the college. Also for the first time, this year the Campus Police is on 24 hour call, day and night.

As the interview proceeded, I sized up Lt. Oakley as a powerful and friendly man who was seriously professional about his job. When asked about the requirements of such a job in Welch Agency, a slight note of pride entered Oakley's voice as he told me about examinations by the S.B.I., the county sheriff, the police, and of course the agency.

I observed that the Campus Police do not carry firearms at any time and for the first time a faint trace of distaste crossed Oakley's features. "It is something the school insists upon, but I tell you we need some way to back ourselves up and protect ourselves. You can feel kind of helpless out there sometimes, trying to chase away some trespasser, if you have no way to back yourself up." Lt. Oakley is a big man. A powerful man. I just couldn't quite imagine him feeling helpless, but I saw his point.

These men walk around unarmed and are expected to protect the students from any intruder that comes on campus, apparently with threats or their billy club, they have little else to help them. As everyone else in their agency who guards other establishments does carry a gun, they must feel doubly frustrated. "I really have no way to enforce what I tell someone who is causing trouble," said Oakley. "We don't have a direct radio link with the city police; I don't have a gun to hold someone I catch if they just refuse to stand on my orders, and not many people are going to listen when I tell them to wait right here while I go back to the office and call the police on the phone."

"We've been using one of the regular campus cars to make our rounds, we need a car of our own which is always available and which has a radio link with the city police. In a real emergency, if it every happens, our present system is way too slow."

I quickly became convinced that our Campus Police are doing a fantastic job with what they have available to them, and we should appreciate their responsibility.

The one thing that Lt. Oakley requested me to emphasize in this article is that the Campus Police don't just exist on this campus to hand out parking tickets to students. They all quite seriously regard their prime responsibility as the protection and safeguarding of the people who live on this campus. They are literally guardians of our welfare.

Cross Country Men

By David Wooten
Sports Editor

"Our season as a whole was our first losing season in several years, but we kept our hard schedule and it paid off," commented Cross Country coach Bill Davidson. "It is our seventh straight District 26 championship."

This years cross country team had to tangle with some hard opponents in Western Carolina, Pembroke, Wake Forest, Pembroke, Davidson, and Campbell, but two weeks ago the glory for the team came through as they captured the District championship, taking three out of the first five places. They scored a total of 26 points in defeating Johnson C. Smith 37, Gardner-Webb - 81, and

St. Augustine - 85.

Mike Trumala captured first place with a 30:35 time over a 5.3 mile course. It was the senior runners third straight District title, and his fourth finish in the top two. He finished second his freshman year. It was his fourth straight All District 26 team.

Joe Meek finished third with a 32:11 time, and he also joined Trumala on the All District Team. The last member of the All District was a freshman- Perry Macheras from Winston-Salem. He finished fifth with a time of 33:25. This is only his second year in running cross country.

Kevin Sullivan finished eighth with a 33:55 time and Dave Painter finished ninth with a 34:18, to round out the top five for High Point.

Field Hockey Has A Winner

By David Wooten
Sports Editor

There was a little bit of glory going around for everybody this year, the Soccer team going 11-1-2, the Cross Country team winning the District championship, and the women decided they wanted a little bit, so they went out a finished up with its best season ever in Field Hockey, going 6-5-5 for the year.

The girls experienced some good times and some bad, but one of the good times was a 2-2 tie with UNC-G earlier this year. UNC-G was ranked as the number one team in the state. The Lady Panthers bowed to number two ranked Duke 1-0 in a real tough battle also.

It was a fairly young team, having seven freshmen, with five of those in the starting lineup, two sophomores, three juniors, and two seniors. The team will only lose one of its starting 11 and that being Cindy Wood.

Ann Lombardi was the leading scorer for the team, ramming in nine goals for the year. Lombardi a junior played left end position.

The team went 2-3 in the Deep South Tournament in Greensboro last weekend, taking a 3-1 win over Catawba and a 1-0 win over Converse on Friday and bowing to Coker on Saturday. Sharon Glover was one of four goalies selected to the trails for the All Deep South team.

Members of the team were: Donna Johnson, Ann Lombardi, Dianne Edwards, Susan Winchester, Joyce Diamond, Joda Hayman, Barb Abbott, Kim Van Acker, Sharon Glover, Sharon O'Brien, Sandy Grim, Jane Sinks, with Ann Smith and Cindy Wood as co-captains.

Results from this years matches were: High Point 2 Guilford 0; High Point 1 Wake Forest 0; High Point 2 UNC-G 2; High Point 5 Campbell 1; Appalachian 3 High Point 0; Duke 1 High Point 0; High Point 2 Catawba 1; Catawba 2 High Point 1; Appalachian 2 High Point 1; High Point 0 East Carolina 0; High Point 1 Wake Forest 1; High Point 0 UNC-Chapel Hill 0; Winthrop 2 High Point 1; High Point 3 Catawba 1; High Point 1 Converse 0; Coker 1 High Point 0.

idiots don't read it. I can't even get enough of you to work on it to put it out on time. If the college didn't accept almost anyone who graduates from high school, and offer courses in better ways to make bayberry candles most of you wouldn't be here anyway. I'd be willing to bet that half of you aren't learning anything. You should just get Mamma and Daddy to invest your tuition money in a good nanny and leave it at that. I bet the faculty and administration is the only one to read this editorial. I bet I can sit here and insult the entire student body and not get any reaction, verbal or written.

For those of you out there with brains in your head, I'm not asking you to work, I'm not even asking you to think much-you may be out of practice. I just want you to tell me that you think sometimes, and sometimes have motivation to do more than eat and sleep. Write me a note, or tell me, or send smoke signals, I'm not picky. I need to be reassured. I just want to see how many of you answer.

money. But let's not go to extremes.

I must hand it to whoever is in control to the hot water; he must have an IQ of at least...four. But he is consistent. For the last three weeks we have been getting hot water on the same schedule: erratically on week-days and never on weekends. And "thanks and a tip of the hat" go to our dorm daddies, who somehow seem to disappear every Saturday morning when we need hot water the most (they've probably gone home to take showers.)

Really, everyone talks about how bad it is to take a cold shower, and how it's pure hell to wash your hair. But what's worse is to shave with cold water - that is, to try to shave with cold water. It can't be done. Last week I tried; before I had done two square inches of my face, I went through two blades and three styptic pencils. I had a date with a girl that weekend; I told her that I wouldn't be able to shave before we went out. She told me to come to her room and shave. Boy, did I get some strange stares as I walked into her room with my shaving kit.

I do believe I'm getting off the topic. The question arises "What can we do about it?" Complain? Obviously that's not going to help; we've complained before and no one has listened. So what can we do? I suggest that if the college wants to turn off our hot water, we let them. But until we get hot water regularly, why don't we leave the lights in our room on twenty-four hours a day. Not just the big florescent lights, but every light in the room. If we drive up the electrical bill, even a little bit, there is a good chance that we would get some attention from the college. Maybe even a little consideration. This is the way big businesses works, this is the way little business works.

this is the way we work, this is the way the college works. They ignore you until you start costing them money. And come on guys, don't start saying that you can't sleep with the lights on...you've been through a lot worse than that. Think of the end result, hot water, isn't it worth a little more discomfort? But let's not let this get out of hand; we don't want it to be a "show-down of power". Just let's show whoever's responsible that we want our hot water, that's all!

Dear Sir:

I would like to take this opportunity to express my appreciation and that of the 1974 soccer team to a number of individuals who's efforts added much to our soccer program this year. I would like to thank Ben Probert, Joe Mann and the other students who worked in the press box for the job they did in presenting the game to the spectators, and to the cheerleaders for their efforts in the two playoff games.

Most of all we are appreciative of the support given the team by the students and faculty this season. Your enthusiasm and encouragement was a big asset and we hope that this support will continue as grow as our program grows.

We are extremely proud of the young men who are a part of our program and feel that soccer here at High Point College has a very bright future. We hope before too long we will be filling the stadium at Albion-Millis, and feel that the support we received in the playoffs is a big first step towards that goal.

Sincerely,
Ray S. Alley
Soccer Coach

Summit. Dr. Lockrow came to High Point because he taught public school in North Carolina and liked the area so much that he wanted to stay. His special interests lie in directing. Dr. Lockrow will be directing the spring show.

Dr. David Linn as a BS degree in chemistry from the University of Dayton. He earned his PhD in organic chemistry from the University of Arizona. Dr. Linn taught for two years and a half at Pima Jr. College in Tucson. Now residing in High Point, Dr. Linn thinks HPC is a good school to teach at. He enjoys outdoor activities.

Mrs. Stanley is a 1974 HPC graduate. She entered teaching because "every day is a new challenge." Mrs. Stanley says there is nothing more rewarding than seeing a student be excited about learning and making the knowledge his own treasure.

Mrs. Stanley and her husband have three children. They live in High Point. Mrs. Stanley collects antiques, does a variety of artwork and is currently involved in creative writing.

Mrs. Karmel, in education, was not available for interview.

High Point's three new part-time instructors are Mr. Bigham, band; Mr. Ruth, instrument instruction; and Mr. Marks, journalism.

services are conducted on campus, that many organizations have a religious flavor.

Students defended the school, complained about the school, attacked the school. They spoke of the effect the school had made and had not made on their spiritual lives. But Paul Hildreth is soap box fashion echoed the sentiments of the action movement. He said there is no vehicle for Christian action.

On October 8 another meeting was held this one in Women's dorm. Dr. Crow, Mrs. Rawley, and Rev. Teague attended as did Paul Hildreth and I. The discussion centered around the nature of the man Jesus, his posture as a hypothetical modern American and the contrasts between that man and the upper and middle-class American of today.

For the first time in this meeting the movement was challenged as possibly stirring up trouble for sake of itself. The women that night were reluctant to cast Christianity as a creed of boldness, radicalism, or anything but traditional old time religion. But there was a bright side. Maybe I read too much into faces but that night they were calm, then frowning, then smiling. I thought perhaps something had begun to prick their imaginations.

The next time a volley was fired came at the "CAN of worms" meeting when the Chaplain layed his worms on the table. The phrase had been coined, people were wondering, there was motion in the movement. And while votes were being counted in the national election last Tuesday, the CAN crowd assembled to begin in earnest.

The group was small and it became smaller as the evening went along. I came nearly an hour into the meeting. The action they proposed seemed vague. Chaplain Teague asked if we were addressing ourselves to the essential questions. Finally Dr. Crow said he felt he was in the wrong meeting, but at the same time he emphasized at earlier proposal. The crowd bought it. The proposal was to confront the issue of sub-standard housing in High Point and work to lighten the load on poor people facing a severe winter. Liberal hogwash? Apparently not. Mr. Ed Plowman expressed an interest in the project at the meeting and students like Warren Obes, Ben Probert, and Mike Bash joined in support.

It may work. But what do we mean by working? How will the CANNERS measure success?

Whatever the action movement is it has already touched many students from varied "groups" on campus. Greeks (who despite certain opinions I've expressed do give us a stock of good leaders) athletes, artists, politicoes, and of course, God-squadders? All have been touched. How do they view idealism, action, compassion converted into repairing a window pane, and the potential of High Point College to be an active beacon of the common sense life-style of Christ? What more could be done if serious inroads are made on the housing issue? How will we respond if serious opposition to our efforts comes from realators and government officials? How will the administration react to pressure from the city and business? Can we count on the student body to swing behind us?

The questions run numerously. As I ask one, I think of another and in asking I realize that High Point College should accept the CAN challenge. That our energies, our time, our imaginations should go to work for good stuff seems all too obvious. Good stuff like possibly an honor system, something which seems impossible in the present climate but decent ideally.

I suppose what I'm really appealing for is decent idealism. Sometimes the whole campus seems hung over when instead it should be alive with the passion of life. Right now some of our finest artists are muzzled by a situation sad and unfair, yet they are incapable of shaking the yoke of circumstance.

I said last week in this column that our facade is moldy and that the zeal of life has been mutilated. The CAN movement will not freshen the scene and restore us to lusty goodness, but it might tilt a little in that direction.
