State Jobs for Summer

Governor Jim Holshouser
today urged North Carolina college students interested in learning more about State government to apply for the 1976 State government intern programs. The Governor said that approximately 250 internship programs are available at college placement offices, the Instiutute of Government program and conducted by ETS for the Graduate Council for Graduate Study in Management.

Graduate Admissions Test Changes

PRINCETON, N.J - Educational Testing Service (ETS) reports several major changes in two national tests programs whose scores are used as part of the admissions process in many of the nation's graduate schools. Both programs, the newly-titled Graduate Management Admission Test (GMAT) and the Graduate Record Examinations (GRE), together test more than 400,000 prospective graduate students every year.

ETS says the changes were made to help simplify the test-taking process by making it more accommodating for student candidates. The GMAT formerly was called the Admission Test for Graduate Study in Business. The new name parallels a similar change in the sponsoring council's name - reflecting a trend among graduate business schools to broaden their curricula and degree titles to include other areas of administration, as well as business.

The program is developed and conducted by ETS for the Admission Council for Graduate Study in Management.

Adlai Stevenson To Speak

Senator Adlai E. Stevenson
III (D-Ill.) will speak at High Point College on February 9 at 8 p.m. in Memorial Auditorium. The public may attend and no admission will be charged.

Stevenson is a member of the committee on banking, housing and urban affairs, and the committee on labor and public welfare. He is chairman of the subcommittee on migratory labor.

Stevenson entered politics as a candidate for the Illinois
House of Representatives in the 1964 elections. Led by Stevenson, the Democrats swept the state election, putting all 118 candidates in office.

In the Illinois House, Stevenson had a key role in anti-crime legislation, lobby-control, and was active in legislation related to education, credit reform, and civil rights.

He served four years as Illinois treasurer and then ran for the U.S. Senate in 1970. Efforts by President Nixon, Vice President Agnew, and other Republican leaders failed to defeat Stevenson. His plurality was the second largest in Illinois history, surpassing only by his father's plurality in the 1948-gubernatotorial election. Stevenson was a partner in a law firm before centering politics.

Adlai E. Stevenson
Editorial

The United Nations was created in 1945 as the forum for world debate and the solution finder for global problems. Of late it has become the weapon of the socialist countries in their quest for world domination. The latest example of this is "Global-1," the title given by the United Nations Development Program to the U.N. concept for a new international economic order. This is simply a total redistribution of the wealth of nations. It is Marxist theory at a global level. Originally, within a country, it was the oppressed poor fighting against the rich. Marx wrote the law of the land should rise up, defeat the rich and redistribute the wealth equally. "Global-1" attempts to do that by a tax on the "oppressor states" which have to pay a free market, and by giving this money to the "under-developed states. Ob- viously, this is not compatible with our concepts of how to run an economy or a society.

Last year the United States contributed approximately $70 million to the U.N. Development Program. The USSR put up $4.1 million and this was non-convertible currency, that is, rubles that can be used only in the USSR. So, in effect, the USSR gave the U.N. $4.1 million to spend in the USSR. In times past the U.S. has contributed as much as 65% of the U.N.D.P.'s budget. Clearly, we are spending enormous amounts of money to finance a program which will establish a system totally against our principles.

This example is fairly specific. Generally speaking, we contribute more to the U.N. than anyone, but derive increasingly fewer and fewer benefits. We, and the handful of other democratic countries, can no longer take our problems to the U.N. for a solution. Our proposals are either outvoted or vetoed. The problems of the world's democracies will become increasingly more acute as they are continually shoved under the rug at the U.N.

Western Europe, as well as the U.S. and Japan, are heavily dependent on Mid-East oil. The economies of Italy, France and Japan face tremendous pressure and uncertainty. High unemployment, at a breeds a demand for tariffs and is pushing us all towards isolationism. Without the help of the U.N., each nation is taking measures it hopes will get itself out of immediate trouble, and is ignoring the interdependence of all. Unless we work together, we are courting disaster. As Benjamin Franklin said, "If we don't hang together, we will surely hang separately."

NATO and the European Common Market are steps in the right direction. But these are specialized organizations that deal with specific problems and carry little weight when dealing with the broad array of today's problems. The time is right for us to begin thinking of a new international organization composed of the democracies.

In 1973 the U.S. Senate unanimously passed the Atlantic Union Resolution.

Reflections: on the Church’s Profanity

by Dr. Earl Crow

It has become a truism that the most racially segregated hour in America is eleven o’clock Sunday morning... "the Church hour.”

White churches seek solace in the rationalization that cultural differences along with certain primitive instincts... "They’re all so obviously demonic that it tends to be self-destructive. But there is also a brand of prejudice within the Church which is more subtle and covert. ("We’re all equal in God’s sight.")"

The Church employs the rhetoric of liberty and equality, overt discrimination still exists in many so-called Christian Schools and Church Day Care Centers which without the decency of a blush announce that Blacks are excluded “as a matter of policy.” Such policy is so musical.” naturally and inevitably find expression in different forms of religious experience. (“They really don’t want to come to our church.”)

Inspite of the Church’s protestations on behalf of racial equality, overt discrimination still exists in many so-called Christian Schools and Church Day Care Centers which without the decency of a blush announce that Blacks are excluded “as a matter of policy.” Such policy is so

Undefeated

When the season began, everyone knew that the women's basketball team at High Point College would be good, but no one knew or even suspected that they would be undefeated at this point in the season. They have averaged together over 95 points per game and are undefeated at the moment. They have tallied over 120 assists for the season, better than 10 per game while keeping the opposition loose with her defense as is evidenced by the numerous steals that White makes each game. They have complemented the other new girls as they have added strength in the rebounding department (Simmons currently averaging 12.5 per game) and quickness in the outside shooting. Wanda Wilson, also a junior, from Elon, has been the leading scorer and second leading rebounder during the year.

Art Show in Campus Center

Anthony Swider, art coordinator of the Winston-Salem/Forsyth County schools, will have a show of serigraphs hanging in the lobby of the Holt McPherson Campus Center at High Point College from February 2 to February 23.

Swider's works have been accepted in many juried shows and are in individual and corporate collections. He has taught at Salem College and Wake Forest University, and has been State Art Supervisor of North Carolina.

Swider is a member of Art Gallery Originals and of the Gallery of Contemporary Art where his work was recently seen in an invitational exhibition, "10 Artists from Winston-Salem." He is past president of the North Carolina Art Education Association and a past vice-president of the National Art Education Association.

The public is invited to the College to view his works between 8 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. The next contest for the Lady Panthers is Thursday afternoon at 1:00 also in Alumni Gym.

25 points per game in giving the Panthers additional scoring punch. The Lady Panthers have averaged as a team almost 95 points per game and are giving up only about 60 per game. They are young and will continue to grow better each game as they become more used to each other's style of play.

The next contest for the Lady Panthers come this weekend as they host Division II rival Mars Hill on Friday night at 7:00 in Alumni Gym and then play NCAA School Western Carolina on Saturday afternoon at 1:00 also in Alumni Gym.
The Wright Bros.

Overland Stage Co.

Although the Wright Brothers look as if they just stepped off a stagecoach in Dodge City one hundred years ago, that is where the resemblance ends. When the music begins, it becomes obvious to anyone present that they are witnessing a most unusual and talented group. Audiences are taken on a musical tour that reflects the right of an individual to die. The group is composed of:

* Rex Thomas: 6 string electric guitar, 6 string acoustic lead guitar, pedal steel guitar, dobro guitar.
* John McDowell III: Lead vocal, bass guitar
* Stephen R. Walker: Lead vocal, percussion
* William E. Brown: Road manager, audio technician, visual effects engineer
* Ronald L. Perry: Manager, occasional harmonica

WELCOME SCHOLARSHIP NOMINEES AND ALUMNI

From the Speaker Hal Hughes

Monday February the ninth, a new open dorm policy was initiated. On a probationary basis for this semester, all dormitories will enjoy open visitation during week days. The new hours are from 3 p.m. - 7 p.m. Monday thru Thursday. Because of the experimental nature of this new policy, the responsibility of respecting this privilege is up to us, the students. The president has promised to take away these new hours if any abuse to the common courtesy. This semester the legislature will be investigating the possibility of having designated living units for people who do not wish to have open dorms during the same period of other individual residents. Anyone interested in this concern is invited to attend the next meeting of the legislature on February 17th, that's a Tuesday.

DEATH AND DYING TO BE DISCUSSED

A local attorney and a physician will join High Point College personnel for a discussion on death and dying on Saturday, February 14 at 1:15 p.m. in the Holt McPherson Campus Center. The symposium is open to the public.

Dr. Edwin L. Auman, specialist in internal medicine, and James R. Mattocks, attorney-at-law, will discuss the right to die with Dr. E. Vance Davis, religion professor, and Mrs. Carol Brannard, a student. The panel will be moderated by Dr. Earl Crow, chairman of the religion and philosophy department.

The discussion is being held as a featured event of Homecoming Day on the campus. Alumni and former students have been invited to return to High Point College for a day of reunion activities. Dr. Crow said that advancements in medical technology have made the question of 'right to die' one which cannot be avoided.

"The questions involved in euthanasia are medical and legal as well as moral, and deserve the best thinking and insight available from physicians, attorneys, and ethicists," he said.

"And beyond this kind of specialized expertise, every individual needs to confront and think through the issues as they related to his or her own life and death," he said.

STUDENT MUSICAL PLANNED

The next Tower Players' production will be an original script written by Tom Cope and Jim Shover. "Make It Another Old-Fashioned", a Cole Porter musical review, will be presented March 12, 13 in the Empty Space Theatre.

The show is being directed and choreographed by Jim Shover. Tom Cope is the assistant director. Dan Herfindahl is musical director, and Nanette Falls is assistant choreographer. The show takes place is New York in the penthouse suite of Clarkton Hartwell IV. It deals with the lives and the loves of the people of the Cole Porter era.

Tom Cope is the narrator in the show, Nanette Falls is Bianca, Dean Herfindahl is Bill, and Bill Middlebrook is Clarkson Hartwell IV. Bianca is a new stage star whom both Bill and Clarkson love.

The others member of the cast, in alphabetical order, are Karen Adams (Mrs. Lowsbrough Goodby), Richard Fults (Bartender), Martha Grady (Maggie), Rick Hines (Male #3), John Hooker (John), Jorge Laguerreul (waiter), Jack O'Daughter (Male #1), Sylvia Petrea (Dark Lady), Mike Pottier (Male #2), Diana Rhodes (Roberta), Sharon Russell (Ruby), Sandi Totten (Susan), Jeanne Selvaggio (Penelope Goodbye), Tom Valls (Butler). Donna Ciffricida is the stage manager.

This is a student production and is therefore on a limited budget. Any contributions will be greatly appreciated. Anyone donating 50 cents or more will be listed as Friends of the Tower Players in the programs. Students wanting to support the show may contact Rick Priddy, Sylvia Petrea, or Jim Shover.

A drummers is needed for the new Tower Players production, "Make It Another Old Fashioned." If interested please contact Jim Shover immediately.

The pragmatists who think that graduate schools should be relevant beyond the campus boundaries are represented by the National Board on Graduate Education which recently published forecasts for graduate students of this decade. To be pessimistic, the report says, as few as one in ten Ph.D.'s will find work teaching at colleges and universities. That means that nine out of ten will be "underemployed," working in trucks, factories, and high schools.

By 1980, one economist predicted, there would be at least two Ph.D.'s for every job that is closely related to the education provided in graduate school. The growing scarcity of jobs for people with graduate degrees has borne this out. For instance in 1968, 3.9 percent of Ph.D. recipients in English were still jobless when they got their degrees. In 1973, 21.5 percent were unemployed when their degrees were awarded.

Reflections on Earl Crow's "On the Church's Profanity"

I have been stimulated to write a brief response to my good friend Earl Crow's recent article in The Hi-Po, February 5, 1976. My first point is to say yes, I agree with Dr. Crow, there is indeed profanity in the Church. Secondly, there is also prejudice within the Church. Having said that, let me continue through to point out a few other areas of the Church's life. The Church is one of society's five basic social institutions. Having now paid homage to my sociological vocation, I must also proclaim that the Church is the Body of Christ. The Church alone proclaims itself to be the House of God; no other institution makes this claim. "The Church is indeed sui generis." It is a visible sign of the Kingdom of God, proclaiming liberty and a new way of life to those who follow its Lord.

Certainly the Church is a social institution in far from being perfect. Even though the Church has a divine nature, it oftentimes finds itself in a sinful condition, and must repent in order to receive God's forgiveness and liberation. Personally speaking, I find a great deal of hope when I analyze the Church and its involvement in the world. The Church in America for example as represented by the National Council of Churches, condemned segregation as part of its policy and urged its members to work for a "desegregated Church and a desegregated society," nearly a decade before the U.S. Supreme Court ruled on the issue. Certainly this was an example of the Church leading the way for society to follow. What would Dr. Crow make of this witness? Secondly, the Methodist Church's social witness during the 20th Century and involvement in the world in creating institutions of service, is a significant example of being faithful to God's love. Thirdly, the Church's present involvement in helping to solve the nation's and world's hunger problem is certainly a commendable effort. In conclusion, let me say that I indeed too can see the Church's profanity, but I pray that I will always be able to see beyond the sinfulness of the Church to its faithful witness to God's Grace and the redemptive work of liberation that it is carrying out in the world. "The Church ain't what's wrong with the world!" It still represents man's best hope for creating a more responsible and compassionate society.

Doubleheader

Usually the highlight of the Homecoming weekend is the men’s basketball game Saturday night. For the first time there will be a doubleheader played on Saturday with the HPC women playing at 5:30 against conference rival Catawba and the men playing the same Catawba Indians at 8 p.m.

In the women’s game the Panthers will be putting their unbeaten 14-0 record on the line along with their number one ranking in the state in women’s basketball. The women have been led all season by All-State performers Dawn Allred and Wanda Wilson, two juniors who will likely reap those All-State honors again this year. Also likely to reap those All-State honors are seniors Dawn Allred and Wanda Wilson and sophomores Germaine Mckeasly and Dee Ann Clapp, sophomore transfere Robyn Cooper or freshman Denise Washington.

The game promises to be an exciting affair as the Panthers are averaging over 93 points per game and are giving up around 60 per game. Wilson and Simmons recently had their season highs in scoring in a win over Western Carolina. Wilson had 30 and Simmons 28.

In the second contest the Panthers seek to avenge a one point loss suffered at Catawba three weeks ago. The Indians will come into the contest second in the conference, having recent wins over strong Guilford by two points and a nine point decision over No. 2 nationally ranked Gardner-Webb. The Panthers need a win if they are to have any thoughts about finishing in the first division of the conference.

HPC has had recent win streaks of four and three games and had played very well of late. The most recent game against Lenoir-Rhyne resulted in a loss but the Panthers hope to bounce back this Saturday.

The Panthers have been led during the year by seniors Pearlee Shaw and Ray Coble along with freshmen Dennis West and James Hayes. Hayes has been the leading scorer and rebounder the past few weeks and looks to be recovering from an ankle injury suffered last week.

Collegiate Press Announces
Poetry Publication and Award

American Collegiate Publications has announced it is now accepting applications for the second annual volume of Who’s Who In Poetry in American Colleges and Universities. This is the only non-vanity poetry publication for students which is published in direct cooperation with collegiate institutions.

This publishing program has been created to give noteworthy student poets recognition. Through publication and awards, this program provides talented students with incentive and a tangible goal for the continued development of their writing skills.

Poets selected to appear in the 1976 volume will have their bio published along with an original poem. The 1975 volume of Who’s Who In Poetry presented the work of 347 poets, representing 217 colleges and universities from 47 states.

Those accepted for publication in Who’s Who In Poetry receive:
1) a complimentary copy of the book
2) a certificate of honor

TRAFFIC PROBLEM IN FRONT OF ROBERTS HALL

Due to construction on East College Drive, a traffic problem has been created in front of Roberts Hall due to students, faculty, and staff going the wrong way in front of Roberts Hall. Our traffic pattern here at the college is for cars to go by Roberts Hall and not to be headed in any other direction. When this pattern of travel is not followed, a traffic hazard is created which could result in a serious accident sometime. The speed limit on our campus is 15 M.P.H. and this limit should be adhered to at all times. High Point College is not responsible for any accident that might occur between automobiles traveling on our campus.

HPC Students Meet With Governor

Three students recently met with the Governor of North Carolina. The students, Marty Jones, Steve Locke and Jim Merriam, spent an hour with Governor Jim Holshouser discussing the upcoming Presidential Primary in N.C.

Holshouser is the coordinator for President Ford’s campaign in the southeastern U.S. Merriam is head of Ford’s team here; Jones and Locke are working with him. The purpose of the meeting which was an informal over coffee affair, was to tell Ford supporters of progress in the campaign. As one of the students put it: “it was not so much a pep talk, because we are all strongly behind the President, as it was a realistic assessment of the Primary and November elections.

Locke is currently serving an internship with Guilford County. Merriam was active in national, state and local elections in Florida before transferring to HPC.

Spring Semester Fast-Talks

Three FAST-TALKS have been scheduled for the spring semester, the first of which is Tuesday, February 24. Entitled “1976: What’s to Celebrate?”, this TALK will focus on questions related to the bicentennial observance.

Basic to the discussion will be the question of what are the abiding values of the American tradition and how ought these values be affirmed in the present context. In other words, what ought be both the content and the manner of expressing “Celebration ’76”?

Panelists will include Mr. William Shirley of the History Department, Mr. Raymond Petrea, chairman of the campus Bicentennial Committee, Ms. Susan Matthews, Ms. Katrin Pharr and Mr. Richard Maltz.

“Sterilized Men or Castrated Rights?” forms the title of the second FAST-TALK to be held on March 23. The subject concerns the forced sterilization of individuals such as criminals and the mentally retarded. The concluding TALK is scheduled for April 20 and is entitled “The Youth Cults: Salvation of Seduction?” Under discussion will be contemporary religious cults which are attempting to enlist American youth as participants.

All FAST-TALKS are held at 7:00 p.m. in the Conference Room of the Campus Center. They carry cultural credit.

Deadline for Submission

Wright Bros. Overland Stage Company

Concert Feb. 24 8:00 Memorial Aud. Free to HPC Students

by Doug Staub

Wright Bros. Overland Stage Company

To look at them you'd think that they were promoters for one of the sequestercentennials which crop up every year in the Hoosier state, or possibly rodeo riders who had ducked-up in their Sunday-go-to-meetin' suits for a night on the town. But once they start their performance, you know that the WRIGHT BROS. OVERLAND STAGE CO. is not a Nick band—they are strictly professional, from their stage presence to their sound and lighting equipment.

The group: TOM WRIGHT—patter, vocals, electric guitar and bass; TIM WRIGHT—acoustic, electric and pedal steel guitars, vocals, banjo and harmonica; KARI HINKLE—electric guitar and bass, vocals; JIM SPELL—drums, flute and guitar; RON PERRY—personal manager, lights and sound.

It had been a little over a year since I had seen and heard Tim and Tom perform, up at the Stable Innfluence. At that time they were into a very western type gig with no real rapport between them and the audience except for their easy-listening style of music.

Today, the group has such a closeness with those who come to see them that a standing-room-only crowd is the least number of persons expected at any one performance. This popularity can be traced to a number of things: their musical variety, show, talent and humor.

Their old, but heavy, Sons of the Pioneers image is still utilized in comedy spoofs of old western movie actors, and on several country-western tunes; but the cut of their Texas cattle buyer suits is soon forgotten when they jump into selections by contemporary artists such as The Beatles, Dan Hicks, Neil Diamond, The Doobie Brothers, Stephen Stills and Creedence Clearwater Revival.

Speaking of Neil Diamond, the WBOSC does the finest medley of His tunes—and the most complete—I've heard since the last concert of Neil's I caught.

And it's not only the artists covered in a single evening by the WBOSC, but also the particular selections which bring to light the deep feelings the band has for music, ecology, brotherhood, and their fellow man.

In the show department we find another plus for the group. Ron Perry, the man behind the scenes as it were, makes good use of the WBOSC's lighting and sound system to enhance the impact of each number and each member of the band without sacrificing the pace of the performance.

When dealing with the talent of the WRIGHT BROS. OVERLAND STAGE CO., you're dealing with a handful. Each and every member of the group can and does use his voice to its fullest potential, making the total sound forceful without being overpowering. It's nice to have a group where everyone sings lead well.

Although Tim Wright has only had a banjo for a couple of months, he knows what he wants to get out of it and with a little time he'll be coolin' it just like he does on the other string instruments he's master of—and his mouth harp work ain't real shabby either.

When the WBOSC performs someone, the first thing that is done is to cover the dance floor with tables and chairs. Some club owners may not get off on this action, but the simple fact is: the audiences that come to hear and see THE WRIGHT BROS. OVERLAND STAGE CO. are there for just those reasons.

If all this band could do well was play music it would be sufficient, but with the addition of Tom Wright's down-home-sophisticated jokes and clever lead-ins, backed-up by Karl Hinkle's humorous sound effects and facial expression, the WBOSC's total on-stage show is dynamite.

I've said some pretty flattering things about the WRIGHT BROS. OVERLAND STAGE CO. so far, and they'll all true; but the fact that the members of the group range in age from twenty to twenty-three, and the band itself has only been in existence for one year, makes their tremendous popularity even more impressive.

All is not lost if you can't get away for an evening to catch the WBOSC's act, for they do have a record out, aptly titled: 'THE WRIGHT BROS. OVERLAND STAGE CO.' PHONO-GRAPH ALBUM.

They may all wear black hats, but musically they are definitely "good guys".

Common Man

Brent Johnson

A man of eighteen years passed the newsstand which sat like a perch on the streetside. He bought a paper and turning to the "wast ads" he found the entry which follows.

Wanted

This job is open to any white, fit, clean shaven, American born, well cultured young man. His age must fall between eighteen and fifty. He must not practice any negative habits such as drinking or smoking. We prefer Catholics, but Protestants will be accepted under certain circumstances, however, no Jews or other foreign religions. All we want are graduates from private colleges and universities with honors in their field of study. It is recommended that they speak not only two languages other than English and it is preferred if one of these is Latin. We admire organization and efficiency, but this will prove evident in the forty page thesis required before final acceptance. All potential employees should be neat in their speech as well as their manner. If you meet these qualifications and are not having a good reputation, you may apply at NYPD between the hours of six and four each week day.

The young man, having concluded the entry, tossed it among the garbage trash can, already filled with the waste of a society.

Reflections: by Dr. Earl Crow

An Open Letter to Mr. Ed Plowman

Dear Mr. Plowman:

Of course, the church has, at various times, related to society redemptively. But it is easy to leap from that modest assertion to an affirmation that the church is "man's best hope for creating a more responsible and compassionate society" is naive melancholy.

You accurately observed that the National Council of Churches (which, incidentally, a large portion of local churches regard as a dangerously radical group) urged a policy of desegregation nearly a decade before the decision of the Supreme Court. You seem to regard this as significant evidence of the church "being faithful to God's love." But you ignore the question of why it took the church 1900 years to finally take such a stand and why thirty years after the policy statement of the National Council, eleven o'clock Sunday morning remains the most segregated hour in the week.

The fact is, the church tends to support the status quo and to reflect the culture in which it exists rather than to relate to society in a prophetic and redemptive way. More specifically, in America, the church has allowed (and, at times, even propagated) the notion that what it means to be a Christian is most clearly reflected in what it means to be a good American.

It is precisely the sentiment reflected in your article, i.e., that the church may not be perfect, but it's the best we've got (my paraphrase), which tends to encourage and perpetuate its ineffectiveness.

The church confesses its failures but renders that confession meaningless by weak attempts at self-justification ("look how much we have given to the hungry of the world") and theological gibberish about, "after all, we must recognize that the church is human as well as divine."

The merits and failures of the church could be debated endlessly. But the heart of the matter is that the spirit of Christ is undying and continues to manifest itself in the world. The question is: Will those who gather in His name gather inside or outside the church?

Nothing is so sad as a mouse who finds himself inviting other nice to dinner with the cat. The mouse is assured his life will be spared if he carries invitations for the cat. But when dinner is done, who will bring dessert?

Him: Mixed metaphor.
Me: Nixon didn’t lie.
Him: It just didn’t belong in the newspaper. It wasn’t appropriate.
Me: If you decide it’s not appropriate, what’s the difference between that and censorship?
Him: It’s not literature.
I interpreted Deleeuw Mouse to mean by all this that my story was about some guy trying to lay a virgin. That’s literature. It should be in my column.

Him: Your thing was about some guy trying to lay a virgin.
Me: What? Come on, give me a break.
Him: It’s not journalism.
Me: To two-thirds of what I write isn’t. It’s not journalism.
Him: It belongs in the literary magazine, submit it to Apogee.
Me: You’ve published fiction in my column before. What about “Sex in the Basement”? (Remember my story about Jesus and R.J. Reynolds?)
Him: That had a punch line to it.
Me: What? Come on, give me a break.
Him: Your thing was about some guy trying to lay a virgin.
Me: That’s literature. It should be in my column.
Him: It’s not literature.
I interpreted Deleeuw Mouse to mean by all this that my story had been censored. Being the Joe Mouse that I am, I squeaked angrily about this censorship. Which prompted this confrontation between mice in the snack bar:

Him: I think you’re being pretty bigoted with all this這麼 talk. Your story wasn’t censored; it just wasn’t appropriate.
Me: If you decide it’s not appropriate, what’s the difference between that and censorship?
Him: It just didn’t belong in the newspaper. It wasn’t appropriate.
Me: Nixon didn’t lie.
Him: Mixed metaphor.
Let’s mix metaphors some other time, Dr. Deleeuw, and drink them on the porch while the sun goes down.

Let’s look at the faces of hungry cats who watch their bank accounts and run small “Christian” colleges without controversial stories in their newspapers.

These are the cats who never go away to let the mice play. Their claws are tucked beneath their paws and they point you in the direction of clean newspapers. You follow their standards with their cheese as reward and you have forgotten they are cats. But you cannot deny you are a mouse, an outsider, a man who likes the things that they believe are not clean, things like freedom.

I have learned in the past two months that there are many who walk a chalk-lined path in this “Christian” institution. There were two teachers who were “asked” not to show a movie in their class. They did not. There were five or six teachers heralded together with some “students’ who were “asked” to serve as a bicentennial committee for the college. Among them were some of the finest minds on the campus. They were “asked” to endorse our application to the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration for certification as a bicentennial campus. They asked them not to do so. I asked them instead to endorse the efforts of the Peoples Bicentennial Commission. The PBC is educating people about basic economic issues, distribution of income, corporate power, political power.

Reluctantly, all of them, admitting they did not like the position they were in, politely rejected by proposal and applied for certification as a bicentennial campus. Dr. Paul Gratiot articularized many feelings in the room when he said, “Let’s do it and denounce it.” “We can’t seem to appear unpatriotic” and finally the statement that sealed our doom, “What do we do? We’re just here because they need a committee.”

Of course, one can’t blame Ole Cat Cole, father of the faculty who appoints committees, asks that movies not be shown, hires and fires. Nor can one blame Cat Patton, Cole’s boss and the advocate of libertine behavior. Nor can one blame the Board of Trustees, the Church, the Alumni, the parents, the people who contribute to the college.

We are mice, because we are mice. We don’t show this movie or print that article or we consent to serve on this meaningless committee to ask for that superficial certificate because we consent.

We consent.

A copy of the censored story that was to appear in last week’s paper will appear in some form of another on this campus, even if I have to write it on the wall.

Note on Human Sexuality

Human sexuality is gender-genital orientation to life, thus it involves more than genitalia alone. Being female or male is a part of everyone’s social identity from birth till death. Gender is at the core of what we really are, just as blood lines tell us to whom we are “really related.” Gender, like race, is an identity. Moreover, the social development attached to gender affects individual women and men in every area of life and throughout its course. Value identification, decision making, reflection on personal experience— all are intrinsic to the process of being. Just as the physiology of sex can be understood only within the context of total body functioning, sexual activity must be viewed within the framework of human behavior in general.

In sexual interaction one may be assertive or docile, homosexual or heterosexual, feminine or masculine, according to traditional and contemporary definitions of sexual role. And in a society characterized by rapid social change it is often difficult to determine with any degree of comfort what a sexual role “should be.” Furthermore, while we have a great deal of interest in the subject of human sexuality, there are ambiguities and fears which, in some people, tend to inhibit the desired fulfillment of human relationships and in others create an attitude of distrust and spatial distance.

Though over the past 25 years we have become more open in discussing the many elements of human sexuality, there is no substantial evidence to indicate a proportionate change in behavioral patterns. Herein lies our conflict. For example, we are more willing to talk about— even express “Tolerance” for— homosexuality but there is still considerable fear of and misinformation about this element of human sexuality.

Additionally, there is an ambiguity regarding standards for engaging in pre-marital sexual intercourse, an ambiguity sometimes fostered by reactions to traditional Judeo-Christian interpretation.

Overall, in approaching the matter of human sexuality, it is necessary to interpret that sexuality wholistically that is, to see sexuality not just as something we have, or do, but something we are.
Auditions for Indians

by Rich Pulls

Auditions for the spring production, "Indians" will be held on Monday, February 23 at 6:00 p.m. on stage in Memorial Auditorium. The play will be produced by the Tower Players on April 27, 28, 29, 30, May 1, and 2 for a total of six performances in the Old Student Center (The Empty Space).

Arthur Kopit, the author, has described "Indians" as "a combination of Wild West Show, vaudeville, and circus...There are dances; phony horses; things go wrong all the time—mock murders turn into real murders, there are conversations with the dead. It's a hallucinatory mosaic; a nightmare panarama of BUFFALO BILL reliving his life and trying to work out where he went wrong."

The action takes place in the center ring of BUFFALO BILL's Wild West show. The performers include Billy the Kid, Jesse James, Ned Buntline, Wild Bill Hickock and assorted politicians and their victims—Geronimo, Chief Joseph, Sitting Bull, and other Plains Indians. As they re-enact their parts in the conquest of the West, the legend of the Western hero bravely taming a savage land is shown to be a fraudulent mythologing of greed and stupidity—just as the Wild West Show itself was. 35 men and 2 women are being cast. No singing is involved and minimal dance is done.

Panthers Face Second Division Finish

It has been a year of struggling and turmoil for the High Point College Panthers. As Head Coach Jerry Steele said recently "Next to the Vietnamese government, we have had more internal problems than anybody."

After dropping an exciting 89-87 Homecoming game to Catawba, the Panthers' chances of finishing in the top division are nil. They are faced with two conference games this week. The first was at Pfeiffer on Wednesday night while they host Mars Hill in the regular season finale.

The highest the Panthers can hope to finish is 5th. Under the new format of the conference tournament that means that the Panthers would have to go to the home site of the team which finishes fourth in the conference. All first round games will be played Wednesday night.

Six Students Suspended

Six students were placed on indefinite suspension following a drug bust here. The students, four men and two women, were suspended for possession of marijuana. Article III Section IV of the Ethics Code of the Student Government Association of HPC provides for expulsion from the college for conviction before the Supreme Court under the above charge. All of the students elected to plead guilty and accept an administrative decision. Dean Bill Guy said that the students may be allowed to re-enter the college next fall. Guy went on to say that he felt all the students involved were "well satisfied" with the action he took in suspending them.

Censorship at High Point College?
See Pages 2 and 3

Jorge Langueruela will be making his stage debut at High Point College in the Tower Player's next show "Make It Another Old Fashioned."

Jorge, who now resides in Miami, is originally from Cuba. He is a freshman business administration major and a soccer player.

In fact, conflicts with soccer almost forced Jorge to quit his role as the waiter. However, he's glad now he stayed.

About the show, Jorge says, "It gives me an idea of how things were and what fake lives they lead." The show is set in the era of Cole Porter and F.D. Roosevelt.

Jorge chose High Point because of its small size. Having attended a private high school in Miami, he prefers this to a large university. He was also impressed with the college's business department and the general location of the school.

In his spare time, Jorge enjoys backpacking, scuba diving, photography, and water skiing.

"Make It Another Old Fashioned" will be presented Mar. 11, 12, and 13 at 8 p.m. in the Old Student Center. Admission is 50 cents. Plan now to attend.

Do YOU Care About Student Publications?
Student Publications need new blood. In a Publications Committee meeting held Wednesday the 25th it was suggested that publications reach out to all departments for their staff members and advertisers. Editors strongly agree we are sure that there are people on this campus who have had experience in working with publication and who are interested in giving a helping hand at H.P.C. Is it a lack of interest on the part of these people. Are students and faculty members not interested in publications at H.P.C.? Have they published their duty and now ship it on its way out? On the other hand is it a matter of not being personally invited to become a part of publications (Apogee, Hi-Po, Zenith). In speaking for the Hi-Po and the other publications feel the same way, we want new blood, new life in publications and the only way is to get uninvolved people involved. Unions cannot exist without new life. The question is - do you care???

Letter to the Editor
I was thinking about writing a song today while I was dreaming about a pat on the back and a little glory just my own. I'll feel so sincere if the song and sing whatever the masses demand. and you can bet I'll be there when they hand out the American Music Awards like green stamps. And I'll hold that simly demon to the glory of record charts and shiny teeth, when art is rape and I'm laughing all the way to Chase Manhattan Bank.

I was thinking a few years back about Frank Serpico. He should have taken that gold shield, kept his mouth shut, and forgot he ever heard of police corruption. Maybe that's where it all started. I guess "humming on the forced throw lane" is always safer than proclaiming truth. But I'll be damned if I can find the punch line Dr. DeLeeuw

I'm hoping Pat Jobe will write that censored article on his underwear and hoist it up a flag pole next to the stars and stripes of freedom to speak and those Unites to irony. Or write his thoughts on the south wind and let them play on love-for Kurt Vonnegut Jr., for Philip Berrigan, and for Socrates, for the Apostle Paul, for the south wind and let them play on love-for Kurt Vonnegut Jr., for Philip Berrigan, and for those of us that like stripes of freedom to speak and those Unites to irony. Cafeteria S.O.S.
A grave atrocity is being aimed at HPC students. To wit: we are not allowed to have toast with our soup. At first this may seem petty. It is also ludicrous. The ban on toast is but one of many small, if you will, pettiness, things that if changed would make for a better cafeteria.
Apparantly some others share our views as Kendall Bidek is heading a student committee which is looking into improvements for meals and method of operation of the eatery. The committee has been taking a campus wide survey of the student opinion on ideas for cafeteria operation. While the general quality of the food is excellent we would like to add the following tidbits of advice.

1. If it is really necessary to forbid students to toast bread during lunch and dinner, how about breaking up the monotony of crackers with something like three bean soup but also in salads. Many students already circle the area surrounding the salad bar in the greatest rush. It is with the longest lines. It is needless for us to be subjected to hard cold toast, bacon with coagulated fat, wilted lettuce and smashed tomatoes (what little of the latter three there is). Let us make them ourselves with fresh bread or toast, lettuce and tomatoes. Finally but by no means the least, students need to take a greater active interest in the food. It is not uncommon to see a student after having emptied one milk dispenser to move to the next one. After both are empty students would rather not drink, than to tell anyone on the cafeteria staff that milk is out. The same goes for the iced tea, salad dressings and everything else. Instead of choosing to act like cattle accepting whatever befals them, it is time to speak up, loudly. Bon appetite!

A REPLY TO MR. JOBE AND CENSORSHIP
W.L. DeLeeuw
Advisor, Hi-Po

In reply to Mr. Jobe's contention last week that his short story was censored from the Hi-Po, I would like to outline again the reasons it was not printed.
When the story was received in the Hi-Po office, the editors asked for my advice on printing it. My advice to them, which they conveyed to Mr. Jobe, was as follows:
1. The content of the story (seduction of a virgin) and the form (short story) were not appropriate journalism for the Hi-Po. I suggested that Mr. Jobe submit it to the Apogee for consideration in this year's issue.
2. The story was not submitted in its entirety and was to be continued the following week. On Mr. Jobe's behalf, this would have been somewhat detrimental since few readers can remember what was printed in a newspaper a week ago. A portion of a letter which Dr. Daily sent last semester to the paper was printed and was to be continued. But the entire letter had to be printed the following week for sake of clarity and meaning.
3. When it came time to lay out the paper, it was found that there was no room for the story. Any editor has to make decisions based on available space and needed news items.

Mr. Jobe contends that the story was censored. Although I am not quite certain what he means by the term censorship, I assume he means censorship in terms of content and language. Although I did state that the subject of the story was not appropriate journalism, no statement was made that the language (the four letter words) was the cause for it not being printed. In fact, the winning poem in last year's Phoenix Literary Festival began with a four letter word, but the poem was printed along with other literary works. Finally, it must be pointed out that the story was not printed because I or the editors feared any administrative reprimand, as implied by Mr. Jobe in his cat and mouse allogory.
If Mr. Jobe's original intent in writing the story was to communicate to students, then he has three alternatives. First, he may print and circulate the story himself at his own expense (I implore him not to write it on the walls for the sake of the maintenance crew). Second, he may submit it to Apogee. Third, if he expressly wishes it printed in the Hi-Po, he may petition the Publications Committee, providing he submit to the committee the entire story, I and the editors of the Hi-Po will abide by the decision of the committee.
A Reply to Dr. Earl Crow's Roasting of the Church. Dear Dr. Crow, one way to settle our dialogue would be perhaps for you and me to team-teach a course next fall on the social witness of the church (or lack of it as you seem to believe) throughout history. Maybe we could call the course "Church and Society" and should limit the scope to include an analysis of the last 100 years. The course could commence with Dr. Crown's stoking the fires of hell with evil ones of the church. Thus having the church members now thoroughly roasted, I could next counter (not seeing any further need for hell-fire and damnation) by pointing out significant examples of the church's faithful witness and obedience to God's Word. Therefore we would have clearly before us both examples of the church's profanity as well as its obedient response to its Lord. Perhaps this type of analysis would allow for a more balanced picture of the church's relation to society to emerge. It has been my position for several years now that an interdependent relationship exists between the two, with society having influenced the church at points and the church having influenced society at others. I do admit though that having a great deal of faith in the church and its potential of being a redeeming agent in the world, I still maintain that the church is man's best hope for creating a more responsible and compassionate society even though you label this "naive idealism." Well Currently, there is a bill before the legislature concerning the maximum number of hours that a student may carry during the fall term of the first semester. The High Point College Bulletin states in paragraph 4 on p. 15 that a student is expected to register for 14 hours during the fall term and for three hours during the interim. The purpose of the legislation is to enable the individual student to take more than 14 semester hours during the fall term. The bill provides that more than 17 hours may be taken during the fall term and that no additional charge will be incurred if the total number of hours for the year does not exceed 34 semester hours. Dr. E. Roy Epperson met with the legislature this past Tuesday to discuss the week points of the bill. The bill has been sent back to committee for revision and will be reproposed at the next meeting of the legislature.

My comment for the week is that there is no respect. There are rules in this community as there are in any community. We don't like many of them, but we are expected to respect them. By respect, I mean that there should be no open and blatant defiance of them. The college has also hired employees who are bound to maintain some respect of the rules on this campus. Our responsibility is to respect the rules and the employees and not to defy them. Defiance will not solve any problems but will only cause more.

Delta Sigma Phi

Nine students just complet- ed a arduous week. The nine were involved in "Hell Week" of Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity. Completing the week was the final step to becoming brothers for Curt Albert, Bill Bucinsky, Jeff Burnell, Ken Clair, Ron Fielding, Les Hall, Drew Haynes, Mark Joram and Steve Ludwigsen. Burrell and Clair are Sophomores, the rest are freshmen. Prior to Hell Week the new brothers had been pledges, but on Sunday February 22 they underwent formal initiation to become full members. Hell Week consisted of a series of physical and emotional stress situations, endurance was waiting toward the end of the week but instructors and friends were understanding. Towns people in High Point were less sympathetic however. During one of the Hell Week activities, the pledges marched single file and expressionless into town. People who saw them and did not realize what was going on were taken aback, reactions ranged from crossing the street so as not to walk on the opposite side to standing and gaping. One group of old men reportedly threw rocks at the pledges, to all of this the pledges continued without reacting. Brothers are not allowed to talk about what happens to them during Hell Week (perhaps because if they did the Fraternity would not get any new members.)

my way, the way you see to take care of the sinners in the church by heaping hot coals of fire upon their heads. I have never been able to buy this kind of pessimism concerning the church as an effective way on treating its sin. Having said that, let me end though on a positive note by saying that yes, I thoroughly agree with you on one point that you make. That is, "the spirit of Christ is undying and continues to manifest itself in the world." All I can say to that is AMEN Brother Crow, Right On!

Carolina Conference Champions

The High Point College women's basketball team swept the first Carolina Conference basketball championship last Saturday night as they downed Pfeiffer College 83-82 in the finals. After going through the regular season with an unblemished record of 17-0 the Panthers were seeded first in the tournament and received a first round bye. Playing Elon in the semi-finals the Panthers struggled in the first half but pulled away in the second half with a 92-66 victory. In the finals on Saturday two free throws by Wanda Wilson put the Panthers up 83-80 and provided the margin for victory over the Falcons. Pfeiffer scored with 11 remaining to pull within one but High Point was able to run out the clock and preserve the victory.

Wanda Wilson, Robyn Cooper, Ethel White and Dawn Alley were named to the All-Tournament team while Alfred was also voted the Most Valuable Player in the tournament.

The Lady Panthers now are entered in the state Division II tournament being held at Wake Forest. They opened the tournament with a 1:00 game with Davidson yesterday and, barring an upset, will play the winner of the Campbell-Wake Forest game tonight at 8:30. If they win that game, they will play in the finals Saturday night at 8:30.

Four members of the team also were selected this past weekend as members of the All-Division II team in the state. They include Wanda Wilson, the leading vote getter, Dawn Alfred, Gracie Simmons and Ethel White. There were a total of 10 players selected to the team.

A win in the state Division II tournament would send the girls to North Carolina State for the Regional tournament on March 12-13.

Crime Seminar Today

Local law-enforcement officers will discuss the problem of crime in two seminars sponsored by the High Point College sociology department on February 27. The seminars will deal with the relation of juvenile delinquency.

Area high school seniors have been especially invited to attend the discussions to become better acquainted with the college-level study of sociology. The seminars are open also to any other interested persons.

Cpt. George Leverett, service division commander, High Point Police Department, will discuss organized crime at 3 p.m. in the conference room of the Holt McPherson Campus Center. Leverett has investigated organized crime in North Carolina.

The Panthers Finish Regular Season

In a campaign that has had its ups and downs the Panthers of High Point College finished the regular season on an up note last week as they defeated conference rivals Pfeiffer and Mars Hill. The two wins place the Panthers in fifth place in the conference standings and they traveled to fourth place Mars Hill this past Wednesday night in the first round of the Carolina Conference Tournament. They won that game, they will play Guilford College tonight in Lexington at the YMCA at 7:00.

In the final two games of the regular season the Panthers played as they have all year—consistently. But in these games that was good enough to win. Pearlee Shaw scored 18 and Sherman Johnson 14 as they downed Pfeiffer on the road by a score of 74-57. After a close game the first half and a flagged player played first ten minutes of the second half, the Panthers pulled away for the win.

On Saturday the Panthers trailed by three at the half but a spurt early in the second half enabled them to pull away for the 86-75 victory. Shaw once again led the winners with 27 points followed by Dennis West with 18 and James Hayes with 17.

HPC finished the season with a 5-7 conference mark and a 12-13 overall record. They now most continue winning in order to continue the season as it is and a game to game basis now.

businesslike, sober and hard working," Danielson, the Texas Dean, agrees. The "half hearted" students are gone, he says, and "the new crop is very interested in academics. They're attentive, good students who turn things in on time and the faculty has not adjusted to this."

In the meantime, with all the added student baggage, journalism schools are finding themselves in the unfamiliar light of hard scrutiny. Academics are asking if journalism is really the academic discipline it purports to be or rather a skill to be picked up on the job. Professors are griping about students who can't write or spell, students complain about grizzled old pros teaching "Front Page" style journalism in the era of Video Display Terminals and, crudest blow of all, some editors are questioning the worth of a B.S. degree in any case.

"I and most other editors I know would rather hire a reporter who knows something about something—economics, history, literature, political science, physics, anything—then a kid who can say 'who, what, where, why, when and how' but otherwise has an empty mind," says Frank, editor of The Texas Observer.

"Provided a kid is bright and can write, a good city editor can teach her (or him) everything she needs to know about a newspaper writing in six weeks," she continued. "Qualities of mind are more important than knowing a pine cone from a pig's eye."

1976 Baseball Season Opens

The High Point College Panthers open their 1976 baseball season tomorrow minus a lot of scoring punch they have had the past three years. Otis Foster and Danny Goins accounted for 44 home runs and 136 runs batted in last season enroute to a 42-6 campaign; steady catcher Chuck Sharp and good hitting shortstop Al Brumfield will also be missed. The Panthers will need to look to their strong pitching staff which returns three starters who compiled an overall record of 29-6 last year. Dan England (2100 North Main Street) led with 11 complete games, while Ronnie Smith, Terry Terrill and Brad Loucks in the outer garden.

Speed and pitching along with overall team defense will be the key to the Panthers this season. The Panthers will need to hold their opponents to a few runs in each game as they will be missing the hitting punch that helped carry them to the area finals last season.

The season opener will be with West Virginia Institute of Technology and will be the key to the Panthers this season. The Panthers will need to hold their opponents to a few runs in each game as they will be missing the hitting punch that helped carry them to the area finals last season.

An exciting program for young people called "Up With People" is outlined in an article which appears below. It is written by a member of the group. Lee Sellers. Lee had applied and had been accepted to High Point College until she was exposed to "Up With People." Lee and one of her associates, Nancy Jones, will be showing a film and conducting a discussion on campus next week. On Monday night they will have the program in Millis and McCulloch and Tuesday in Bell and the Complex. There will be a written reminder to you on Monday.

They sing about life and love, racial and age barriers, winners and losers with such enthusiasm that the audience becomes as much of the show as the performers. They’re black, Jewish, Hawaiians, Indian, Belgian, white, Buddhist. Most of all, they’re all working for the same thing: people.

The students, ages ranging from 17-25 are going a year of their lives to spend performing for schools, deaf and blind institutions, malls, convalescence homes, and prisons. The group of 50 performing in High Point will be staying with local families. There are 7 other casts of 50 reaching out across America as well as a cast of 30 touring Europe presently. They’ve performed at the Super Bowl Half-time Show as well as been on television.

They’ve performed in Yugoslavia, Venezuela, Canada, and other parts of the world. Some of the songs that have been written during Up With People’s 10 year existence have been written by cast members. One boy writes about a letter from his father, "...I must have not been listening, my eyes just couldn’t see, how much he really meant to me..." Another cast member writes of a farmhouse the cast came across while touring Yugoslavia. In this song, he realizes even though these people were economically, they were very rich inside.

Up With People’s stay in High Point will include 3 assemblies as well as a 2 hour musical presentation at the High Point Theatre on Wednesday, March 10. Tickets are on sale at the High Point Theatre box office presently, and at the door, the night of the performance. The High Point Art’s Council has made it possible for this group of young people to come to High Point by sponsoring them.

Interviews for next year’s cast will be held after the performance. Cast members are chosen on motivation and personality rather than talent. Those who are interested should ask one of cast members for more information.

‘Up With People’ expresses the true spirit of living and would like for you to be a part of it.

Second Senior Field Party

Pick out your partying hats AGAIN because the mighty SENIORS have planned ANOTHER FIELD PARTY. Two weeks from today (Friday, March 19th) starting at four (4) p.m. the LARGEST and BIGGEST party that has ever been thrown at High Point College will be held.

Many of you (250 in fact) remember the last field party. It was great wasn’t it? Well, this time it’s better planned, more food and drinks have been ordered, a LIVE MUSIC entertainment arrangement has been made (with a fabulous sound system). All the fun events from last time will be present plus more. Volleyball, softball, soccer, tug-o-war, kissing contest, apple dunking, egg toss, plus a larger BON-FIRE than before (the last BON-FIRE blazed about two-stories high!!)

I have ordered fifteen (15) kegs of ice-cold beverage (which is 187½ gallons for your information). The first keg will be tapped starting at 4 o’clock at the 40 acre abandoned car-race track. This place is beautiful for a field party. Its out in the country so we can ROCK-and-ROLL ALL NIGHT* and that is exactly what we intend on doing (you can bring a tent and a sleeping bag and camp out if you want).

There will be food served that includes cokes, hot-dogs, potato chips, baked-beans, and apples. The location is 15 miles from H.P.C. at Tarheel Speedway. Maps will be available one week in advance and in the next 2 issues of the Hi-Po. You can also ask anyone that went to the last party.

Site of Senior Field Party

This time we are not going to have a raffle to finance it. There will be a gate-admission of $2.50 per person / $4.50 couple (Cheap huh? for what will be there in the afternoon, evening and night... -- Compare Moose Lodge prices). All we are trying to do is break even. Any profit will be pumped back to the students.

Many people have told me that the last field party was the best student function that they’ve attended since they’ve been at High Point College. Ask anyone that went how much fun it was. This one is going to be even better and bigger.

Everyone from High Point College and their FRIENDS are invited. Field parties are the funnest when they’re the biggest and this one will be the biggest ever. Get psyched and put March 19th on your calendars because you don’t want to miss it.

North Carolina High School Art Exhibition

Seniors from high schools are invited to participate in the First Annual High Point College Art Exhibition of North Carolina High School Students Works. The statewide exhibition will accept works in any medium by high school seniors.

Each work accepted for the show requires the sponsorship of the student's high school art teacher or principal. The artist's work will compete for eight $25.00 prizes to be awarded by a recognized juror. The recipient of this scholarship must follow the regular Admissions procedure. The grant will be paid in four equal installments during the artist's four-year college career.

Each student's work will represent his high school. The exhibition will be hung in the galleries of the Holt McPherson Campus Center from March 13 to April 12, 1976.

For a work to enter the exhibition, the school should:

Finch Lectures

Students are invited to the three major sessions of the Finch Lectures scheduled for March 9 and 10 featuring Dr. Carlyle Marney, noted lecturer, author, and church leader. Dr. Marney's first event is Tuesday evening at 7 p.m. in the Conference Room, Campus Center. He will meet students informally and talk to them on topics of mutual interest.

The annual Lecatures is "The Church as Community and as Culture." Students are invited to address the topic in questions and discussions with Dr. Marney.

His first formal lecture will be on Wednesday at 10 a.m. in the Chapel.

A group of Methodist ministers will be on campus for Minister's Appreciation Day and noon. Dr. Marney will join them during lunch and at a special session at 1:30 p.m.

The concluding lecture will be at 8 p.m. in the Chapel.

Dr. Marney is director of Interpreters' House at Lake Junaluska. He has previously been the First Baptist Church, Austin, Texas, and Myers Park Baptist Church, Charlotte.

He has served on numerous agencies of the World Council of Churches, the Baptist World Alliance, and the National Council of Churches. He has had several books published and he has been guest lecturer at a number of leading universities and seminars.

Common Man

by Brent Johnson

I have forgotten how to count the days but I know they pass and that they are many. Not a night goes by that my body is not tiring and my soul does not weep. But my troubles can only increase, for I am on a journey that can never end. The men who once offered me power, heads, of whose color and glow made every woman proud, now administer only the blows of a whip and the threat of death.

We are a beaten Nation, a beaten race, we are the only true Americans.

So long ago they came with their ships, their greed for land, and their desire to change them all that they saw. They came with the idea of changing our ways, or killing us first. They have been successful in both! The good men who made us Christian, the men who set up our great government, are the same that raped our women, destroyed our homes, and made a people once proud, bow their heads in shame. And if they did not kill us with their weapons, their diseases would. One thing about this so called "civilized" people from Europe, they did not stop when they had destroyed our nation, but went on to rid themselves of our language and culture as well. Can you count the number of my people dead, at the hands of the white man? I doubt you can, and if you were to ask 'our' government, you would find they don't know either. How many tribes are no longer with us? What of the Pawtawan, the Nanaganset, and the Mohican? Is it possible to forget or allow our government to forget? If it is, God help us!

One hundred-years ago the Negro was given his freedom and still the Indian is a slave.

You will say, that he is a citizen, that he has all the rights of the Constitution, and that he has a place to live where he pays no tax to any government. And that he can leave this place anytime that he wishes. A poor concealment this makes for a land that was once free of pollution, overpopulation, disease, and I might add - political scandal!

Man has come a long way since the day of the Indian. He has traveled to a Moon that Indians once worshipped. He has invented a means of transportation equal to that of several horses. The place in which he lives does not even compare to that of the Indian. But has this man advanced to the extent where he can allow social injustice to endure? If he has, then history will not reward this move as an achievement, but rather a move back from which he came. To an age where he was a savage, to any age where he was an INDIAN.

Reflections

by Dr. Earl Crow

Man's inhumanity to man has nothing to do with his nature. The most oppressive and degrading idea ever conceived by man is the myth of original sin. What utter nonsense! ...that sin of some mythological first man resulted in the moral corruption of the nature of all men. The Church's claim and its claim to be the exclusive bearer of grace is a priestly conspiracy designed to subjugate men through shame and fear.

It is time to cast aside the myths (and myth bearers) which have engaged in the obscenity of human degradation and to affirm the inherent dignity and worth of the human spirit.

Robert R. Aylmer Scholarship Fund Established

High Point College received over $8,000 February 4 to be used as a scholarship fund in memory of Robert R. Aylmer, Jr. Aylmer was killed last year when a car struck his bicycle from the rear.

The Robert R. Aylmer Memorial Scholarship Fund was established by his wife, Patricia, his family, the wife's family, and their friends with contributions to High Point College.

An academic scholarship grant will be made annually with the income from the fund. "There is an excess of 85 contributors to the fund, and this figure will probably get larger," said Kletus Kruyer, Director of College Development. "The fund is now in excess of $8,000, and the award will be more than $300 in the first year," he said.

"First preference for the scholarship will be given to students majoring in biology," said Dr. Leo Weeks, professor of biology at the college. "Other preference will be given to natural science or physical science majors," he said.

A memorial service was held on Feb. 14 in Charles E. Hayworth Sr. Memorial Chapel at High Point College on behalf of Aylmer and other High Point College alumni who died in the last year. "The memorial service was the second of an annual tradition held by the college on Homecoming Day," said Kruyer.

Aylmer was killed last year when a car struck him as he was riding his bicycle home from work. A graduate of one month before the college, Aylmer was married to Patricia Pressley eight days before the accident.

Following the memorial service, a group gathered at Horace S. Hayworth Hall of Science, adjacent to the chapel, for a ceremony honoring Aylmer. A portrait was given to the college and is displayed in the Biology Seminar Room.

"Robert was to return to High Point College in the fall of 1975 to prepare for a teaching certificate," Dr. Weeks said.

Aylmer’s widow is presently living in Marion, Maine. Last summer she was the coordinator of the Davidson County Council on Aging.

Order of the Lighted Lamp

Fourteen students at High Point College are named for membership in the Order of the Lighted Lamp, the oldest society on the campus.

To be inducted into the Order, a student must maintain high grades, demonstrate campus leadership, render outstanding services to the College, and exemplify excellent character. The new members were nominated by the current student members and elected by the faculty.

The High Point students are Pat Joe, Suffolk Drive; and Mike Glover, High Point College.

Other members include Gary Hemby, Kinston; Barbara Rankin, Carol Gables, Florida; Benjamin Probert, Key West, Florida; Herald Hughes, Maitland, Florida; Mary Elizabeth Hancock, Metairie, Louisiana; and Barbara Jean Light, Baltimore, Maryland.

Also, Vicki Jeanne Huntley, California, Maryland; Bonnie Baldus, La Plata, Maryland; Carol Ann Spaulding, Potomac, Maryland; Kevin DeNicola, Wantagh, New York; David Clark Cawiness, Arlington, Virginia; and Richard Stephen Lott, Norfolk, Virginia.

Panthers Still Undefeated

The top seeded High Point College Panthers, with an undefeated record, swept through the North Carolina state Division II tournament last week as they earned the right to represent North Carolina in the regional playoffs beginning next week in Kentucky.

The Panthers defeated Davidson College 85-51, Wake Forest 70-53 and Mars Hill David College 10-0 as Dan England pitched five strong innings. Freshman Joe Gabarino led the Panther attack with three hits.

If the Panthers win that tournament, they would represent Region II in the national tournament at Ashland State in Ohio at the end of March.

Art Exhibition

Twenty-seven works by North Carolina artists will be exhibited at High Point College, Holt McPherson Campus Center, today through March 26. The public is invited to view the paintings and constructions.

The works are being circulated by the Associated Artists of North Carolina with the help of a grant from the North Carolina Arts Council. Award winners include Jill Flink, Raleigh; Pete Smith, Asheville; and Stephen G. Herman, Statesville.

The original showing in Asheville for the selection of works in the traveling exhibit was juried by James Hutcheson of Atlanta.

Mrs. Jane Burton, assistant professor of art at High Point College, is managing the college showing.

HPC Tennis and Baseball

The HPC baseball and tennis teams had a successful opening day this past weekend as they both won impressive victories.

The HPC baseballers defeated West Virginia Tech 10-0 as Dan England pitched five strong innings. Freshman Joe Gabarino led the Panther attack with three hits.

The HPC tennis team played the University of Virginia on Saturday at Oak Hollow tennis courts. The match begins at 2:00.
Field Party Approaches!!

It's just around the corner! Just one week from today (on Friday, March 19th), the largest party that has EVER been given for High Point College students will be held. The action starts at four (4) p.m. when the music starts a-playin' and the kegs begin-a-flowin'.

Afternoon entertainment includes volleyball, softball, soccer, and 60 acres of secluded partying land. The first of TWO DISCO Agencies will begin to crank the ROCK-AND-ROLL machines that will get our spirits high for an afternoon, evening and night of old-fashioned, good-times PARTYING.

Evening will bring our drafty spirits into realization that soon, the giant BON-FIRE will be set ablaze to warm even the chilliest heart. A serious attempt will be made by interested people to build the largest fire that we can construct. (All people interested in building the fire, a Bon-Fire building crew will leave H.P.C. at 1:30 on Wednesday from in front of McPhearson Campus Center. Contact John Veltman is interested -- party favors will be provided!)

Food and drink will be available throughout the party time. Hot dogs with all the trimmings, potato chips, baked beans, cokes, and 15 kegs of ice-cold beverage will be available (15 kegs equals 232.5 gallons) All beverage is provided! (Hot dogs with all the trimmings, potato chips, baked beans, cokes, and IS kegs of ice-cold beverage will be available throughout the party. Hot dogs with all the trimmings, potato chips, baked beans, cokes, and IS kegs of ice-cold beverage will be available throughout the party.)

Bring a tent and sleeping bag or sleep out under the stars. We can stay out here all night and I know that many of us intend on doing just that. Admission is just $2.50 stag and $4.50 couple. Pay at the gate. No profit is intended to be made. We're just looking to break even and have a good time.

A map is provided to help you find the party site. It will be at Tarheel Speedway. This is about 10 miles directly south of Greensboro, just off highway 220, and 15 miles from the college. Maps will also be provided at the cafeteria on Thursday and Friday, and will be printed in the Hi-Po next week.

All High Point College students and their FRIENDS are invited. This party is an experimental prototype and scouts from Duke University and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill will be in attendance.

Get psyched and lets make this the best party that has ever been given. There won't be another chance so don't miss it!

EASTERN SEABOARD

Seven members, all male, all white; five members play and the group features two lead vocalists while two other members also play and sing. Their instrumentation includes lead rhythm and bass guitars, drums and keyboards. EASTERN SEABOARD hails from Rockingham, N.C.

EASTERN SEABOARD has become the Myrtle Beach favorite for the past 3 summers. Their extensive engagements on the "Grand Strand" have led them to the honor of holding four all time attendance records over Easter, Sun Fun Week, Fourth of July and Labor Day at the Pavilion's "Magic Attic". Consequently, EASTERN SEABORD has a tremendous following throughout the Carolinas. Their musical and vocal styles are to be rated among the best. Material from old beach tunes like BILLY STEWART to current rock never fail to please everyone. Strong 3 and 4-part vocal harmony consequently amaze even the biggest critic.

Composed of seven of the friendliest and most talented guys around, EASTERN SEABOARD is a must for those who are looking for Bump 'n Boogie and Rock 'n Roll.

NEW REGISTRATION PROCEDURES TO BE INITIATED IN FALL: REGISTRAR

A new method of registration that will speed up the drop-add procedure, provide the faculty with more accurate class rools immediately after registration, and provide necessary information for the Business Office (Bursar) has been announced by the Registrar.

The main change will be a second (OFFICIAL) registration on September 2 for all pre-registered students. The course cards will be processed after pre-registration (UNOFFICIAL), tentative class rools will be printed, and a copy forwarded to the Faculty and the Dean of the College. The enrollment card and course cards will then be placed in a packet (envelope) with additional blank cards (Information, New's Bureau, Business Office-Bursar) added during the Summer. Pre-registered students will pick up this packet in the GYM on September 2, supply all information applicable, drop or add courses, prepare a Change Card for the Business Office, and turn in all completed cards to the Registrar after clearing the Business Office station.

This will eliminate the use of drop-add forms for changes before September 3, quickly spot those students who pre-registered but elected not to return to High Point College, and more quickly locate those students who pre-registered and returned, but failed to complete all phases of the registration procedure. All pre-registered students are encouraged to complete registration on September 2, as it will be difficult to locate the necessary faculty, advisors, and staff after this date. A late registration fee will be assessed all students who do not officially register by September 2, 5:00 p.m.

Buffalo Bill and Wild Bill Hickok will appear at High Point College as the college Tower Players present Author Kopit's play, "Indians".

The play will be performed on March 27-May 2 in the Empty Space Theater at the college.

"The play is a satire-comedy," said Ms. Carolyn Rauch, director of the Tower Players. "It is a kind of 'black comedy' with an approach similar to Monty Python's 'In Search of the Holy Graal,"' she said.

"The play exists by itself," said Rauch. "It is a fantasy which exists in the mind of Buffalo Bill Cody which opens in his Wild West Show. He is responsible for the slaughter of the plains buffalo which resulted in mass starvation and death among the plains Indians. The play centers on Cody's guilt feelings—'Am I responsible' and 'Why did I do it?' he asks himself," said Rauch.

"The characters include Billy the Kid, Jesse James, Ned Beaulion, Wild Bill Hickok, Gerorgous, Chief Joseph. Sitting Bull, John Wraith, and 28 others," said Richard Fulks, a member of the Tower Players.

"I was inspired to write the play by the Viet Nam War and unrest in the U.S. as exemplified by the Kent and Jackson State murders," said the author, Arthur Kopit, in an interview with John Lahr, theater critic of The Village Voice.

"I am intrigued by the fact that Americans can kill with a sense of right and wrong. It is inherent in U.S. culture! Kopit asks Lahr. "It is what we were doing to the Indians," Kopit said.

"I had the play as part of the bicentennial program," said Rauch. "It gives the Indian point-of-view, and is refreshing," she said.

The cast will be built by the Tower Players.

"The Empty Space Theater will seat 145 people and will be opened in time for the play to be presented," said Ms. Fulks. "The performance is open to the public and no admission will be charged."

Ms. Reisman's program consists of portrayals of Mary Hamilton, a Boston woman who strongly supports the Revolution; Alice Lee, a Southern-born woman living in the North with her husband from 1860-65; Daisy Gibbs, the child of '20's who sings songs of Berlin, Gershwin, and Herbert, dances the Charleston and discovers forbidden booze as well as sudden prosperity and depression; and Kate Matthews, a divorced woman living in New York, busy with her career and nostalgic for the years of freedom for civil rights and world peace.

Ms. Reisman's program traces social and cultural changes in the nation from the Revolution to modern times. She dresses in authentic costumes and sings songs of each era to interpret the prevailing mood.

Two outstanding Southern historians will be guest speakers at a seminar on the American Revolution at High Point College on March 12, at 3 p.m.

The seminar is open to the public and will be held in Room 38-A, Roberta Hall. A reception will follow.

Dr. Robert M. Weir of the University of South Carolina, and Dr. Peter Wood, Duke University, will each deliver a lecture.

Dr. Weir will discuss the background of some of the leading patriots in the Southern colonies during the Revolutionary period.

Weir is the author of several works on the history of the Carolinas during the Colonial and Revolutionary periods. His book 'The Empty Space Theater' has been published in the North Carolina Historical Review.

Dr. Wood's lecture is entitled 'Slavery and the Revolution,' and will be based on his recently published book 'Black Majority: Negroes in Colonial South Carolina from 1670 through the Revolution.' It will be awarded the Beveridge Prize for the Best First Book in American History.

Social science teachers in the area have received special invitations to the seminar. College hosts for the seminar are James Stitt and William Shirley of the history department.

LIBRARY BON MOT

The trusting citizens of an island wonder what happens if you elect a veteran football referee to the post of police commissioner. The very day he assumed office he used the community's outstanding stop-tissue. His charge: her back was illegally in motion.

There is a vicious animal which moves among our society today. It tears away at the very basis of humanity. It destroys the very peace we seek so hard to maintain. This animal knows his name and comes with great vigor whenever he is called. He is a moody creature that can take all a man's body or just his arms and legs. But woe unto him that allows his spirit to be captured by this being. He can wreck your soul into the shape he wants until it is of such a false magnitude that your own decrees will destroy that part of you which is left. The effect upon a man who comes in contact with this beast is seen only in his actions. Crowds often follow this animal whenever he might go, especially when he is victorious. They flock to his playgrounds and wallow in his disgusting filth. So corrupted are they after seeing this animal that they actually walk away with a feeling of great excitement. It is almost as if he can take the form of a disease like a cancerous growth that slowly, but inevitably feeds away at a man's soul. The essence of this savage is known to mankind, but one cure requires too much of those infected. Their problem can be compared to the handicapped when they learn a part of their body is no longer perfect. This organism, if allowed to continue, could well destroy the world so tenderly on the verge of distraction anyway. In the past he has expressed himself in all manner of violence, yet we have allowed him to invade our schools, homes, and private lives. He has taken our sons by the millions and now dines on our daughters as well. He leads them away from their true souls and in its place puts a notion of inhumanity. He has the power to rule over the mind, the body, and the spirit until he has destroyed the very essence in the name of pleasure. This animal's name is competition, as the kind expressed in sport-like activity.

Mr. H.P.C. Contest

On March 17th, at 7:30 p.m., in High Point Memorial Auditorium, the seniors of BM will be presenting the Mr. H.P.C. contest. Richard Malty, Bill Zeigler, Michael Porter, Brien. Marty Jones, Bob Brien, Paul Rynshel, Randy Bunnel, Marty Jones, and the infamous "Parrot" are just a sample of some of the contestants. Mr. H.P.C. will be judged on originality of costume, 3-5 minute talent skit and an all important question. Judges are Dean Hansen, Dean Guy, Mrs. Rawley and a senior member of each sorority.

Admission is $2 in advance & $5 at the door. Tickets will be on sale Friday on through noon on Wednesday.
From the Speaker

Hal Hughes

The good weather brought a wave of spring fever to the legislature last Tuesday night. We did not have a quorum to conduct regular business. However, committee chairman did give their reports. The executive committee and Kim Dillard’s committee reported on a meeting between Greensboro College-Pfeiffer College, and Brevard Jr. College. The topic of the meeting was how to approach the Methodist Conference on the dance concerning the policies on alcohol. The result of that meeting is a survey that will be circulated among the students, faculty, and administration of the four campuses. We will meet together again to discuss the results on April 17th at Brevard.

When the survey appears here on our campus, the campus community would be cooperation of the total appreciated by the SGA.

The budget committee will propose the plans to hold budget hearings for student organizations at the next regular meeting of the legislature. The hearings are for the purpose of preparing the budget for the 76-77 school year.

This past weekend, one of the campus vehicles was vandalized. Letting the air out of tires is sort of junior high schoolish, don’t you think? What would have happened if there had been an emergency that required the use of that vehicle? How would you like to be responsible for a crisis that could have been avoided if you ever see anyone or are thinking about doing something similar yourself, try to do something academic and think before you act!

Sock-Hop Greaser’s Dance

April 9th, at 8:00-11:30 p.m. in Harrison Hall, the Alpha Phi Omega Fraternity will sponsor a Sock-Hop/Greaser’s Dance. Admission will be $75; stag; $1.00 drag. The dress can be in the 50’s style and nickel Cokes will be sold! Last year’s Sock-Hop Greaser’s Dance will be Jigger than ever with gag gifts and roll to the 50’s sound!劝 your friend, get greased, and rock and roll to the 50’s sound!

Reading Learning Centers on Display

From March 17-20, there will be a display of reading learning centers on the elementary and secondary levels in the main lobby and main conference room of the Campus Center.

The learning centers are constructed by the student teachers now in education block courses. The centers are specifically designed to cover the units the students will be teaching during their internship in schools in the surrounding High Point areas. Covering such content areas as language arts, math, science, physical education, social studies, art, and music, the centers include games, puzzles, mimeographed sheets, cassette tapes, vocabulary wheels and cards, transparencies with overlays.

The cooperating teachers and many surrounding schools have been invited to attend the display from March 17-20.

On the secondary level, the Golden Books Award will be given for the best overall learning center. Silver Bea Award will be given for the best centers in the areas of physical education, science and math, social studies, and art.

Mokry’s eye was removed during surgery three years ago and was sent to the UT health Service Center for tests. While at the center a technician tipped over a container and the eyeball disappeared down a drain. Mokry tried to collect for the damages by the Texas Supreme Court. Mokry says that the loss has caused him mental anguish and nervousness.
Pantherettes Compete in Regional Tournament

The High Point College women's basketball team played in the first round of the Division II regional tournament yesterday afternoon against North Kentucky State College. They played North Kentucky on their home court as the tournament is being held in Highland Heights, Kentucky, just outside of Cincinnati, Ohio.

North Kentucky has a 26-1 mark with a victory string of 22-0 on the year. The winner 26 in a row. The Panthers are playing in the first round of the women's basketball team Regional Tournament held in Highland Heights, as the tournament is being played in the first round of the Division II regional tournament.

The HPC golf team finished 9th in the North Carolina Intercollegiate Invitational tournament this week after splitting two matches prior to that. In a match this past Friday afternoon at Stanley County Country Club the Panthers were defeated by Elon College but won over Pfeiffer College in a three-way match. Elon's total was 306, HPC 317 and Pfeiffer 331.

On Monday and Tuesday of this week the Panthers competed in Charlotte as part of a 16 team tournament. The rise to ninth place increased the Panthers finish of a year ago from 14th. On Monday the Panthers did not shoot well with the exception of Jim Ivey who carded a 73 to place among the leaders. The team total of 320 put the Panthers tied for 11th with Catawba College.

On Tuesday in spite of rain and cold weather three members of the team bettered their scores and the HPC team rose to finish in ninth place.

On the home court as the tournament is being played at the Raintree Country Club, a par 70 course.

The Panthers next travel to Lenoir Rhyne on Tuesday for a tri-match with LR and Catawba.

Tennis Suffers Setback

Last week the High Point men's tennis team suffered two setbacks at the hands of two ACC powers while defeating a team which was a district champion last season.

The two losses came on the road at Wake Forest where the Panthers dropped at 9-0 match and at home on Saturday where they lost to the University of Virginia 9-0.

In a match on Sunday the Panthers handed defending champion West Chester State a 6-3 loss. West Chester represented their district in the NAIA national tournament last year.

Singles were won by Kin Dillard, Bill Busick, Tom Fitzmaurice and Chris Brown. Doubles matches were won by Dillard and Fitzmaurice and Robert Goode and Busick.

The Panthers are now 2-1 for the season and face Rochester University here on Friday at 1:00. While work on the HPC tennis courts is in progress, all home matches will be played at Oak Hollow tennis courts.

YWCA Program on "RAPE"

Beginning on Monday, April 5, the YWCA will be offering a program of concern to all citizens. We are calling it "Understanding Rape" and will discuss prevention and will examine procedures when an alleged rape has occurred. The seminar will be held Monday evenings on April 5, 12 and 26 at 7:30 p.m.

There will be a charge of $4.00 for persons attending all 3 sessions or $2.00 per evening. Those interested in the total program should register before the start of the first session to take advantage of the reduced rate. The format will be as follows:

- April 5 - Part I - A Profile on Rape - The Victim and the Accused - Donna Smith, on the Board of Directors of the Rape Center in Greensboro, and member of the Lt. Governor's Commission on Crime Prevention and Law Enforcement.
- Part II - Rape Prevention - Officer Buster Crabb - High Point Police Department
- Part III - Court Room Procedures - Tom Kestner - Public Defender.

Important Notice to all Undergraduate Students

Reed & Barton Silversmiths have announced the opening of their 23rd Annual Scholarship Competition with over $12,000 scholarships and awards.

The Competition, which is open now, is Reed & Barton's means of providing worthy students with financial assistance as well as a way of compiling an up-to-date library of American art. All you have to do is match Reed & Barton sterling silver patterns with leading china and crystal patterns. Your choices are then compared with those of leading women's magazine editors and the choices which most closely match those of the editors are the prize winners. There are 110 prizes in all—excluding one $1,000 scholarship, one $500 scholarship, one $100 scholarship, and seven $100 scholarships, plus merchandise awards of sterling, china and crystal worth $100.00 each—all available to the students on this campus.

The Competition is open only until March 31, 1976. You may see the actual sterling featured in the Competition and obtain your entry blank form from: CAMPUS REPRESENTATIVE

The television networks and the newswictures have classified this as the most exciting primary yet. It is very clear that people do like to research the candidates, I'm prepared to submit my evaluation of the candidates running in our state. I won't make any predictions since I predicted in my column last fall that Terry Sanford would win next Tuesday.

Gerald Ford/The President has done a credible job in fighting inflation. Nobody can argue with that. People do like to stifle the unemployment picture. Mr. Ford contends that he is successful because he has brought unemployment down to 7.6%. Granted the figures did not go up as George Meany predicted to 10%, but 7.6% is high unemployment and because of that jobs will remain an issue in the campaign.

Field Party Tonight!!!

High Point College students are psyched for tonight when the BIGGEST party ever will be held at Tarheel Speedway. Everything is ready to roll (rock-and-roll that is). Starting at four (4) o'clock and going ALL NIGHT will the-time-of-your-life begin. An estimated 400 students will be there. If you won't be there, you'll be missing an event that only happens once in your stay at High Point!

A whole truckload of beverage will be provided (15 kegs equals 232.5 gallons) Two disco agencies will provide the music of our choice from four o'clock until two o'clock in the morning! (One of these two music agencies is the same one that is hired for TOP area Discos like the TROPHY ROOM) There will be $13,500 worth of sound equipment out there so be prepared to dance!!

And dancing there will be around the GIANT BON-FIRE that has already been built. The fire will be set ablaze at 6:30 p.m. Field events will be held in the afternoon such as volleyball, softball, soccer, and sac races.

Field events will also be held under lights at night that include dunking for apples and tug-o-war contests.

Food will be available; a plate including a hot dog (with trimmings), baked beans, and potato chips will cost 50¢. All the beverage you can drink is provided FREE!

The cost is $2.50 per student, $4.50 per couple. Bring a sleeping bag and stay all night if you wish. An estimated 100 people will be staying all night. Bring plenty of warm clothes. It gets cold at night and you can leave the warm clothes in the car until then.

All High Point College students are invited. You can also bring your friends that aren't students here.

Maps are provided for directions to Tarheel Speedway. One map is here in this issue of the Hi-Po. Also see leaflets that are on the tables and in your campus mail.

You will surely regret it if you miss this party. It will never happen again so you won't have another chance. High Point Partying AT ITS BEST will be there so add your voice to the cheers---Hurray!!!

Mr. Joe, I do not pretend to be as qualified as Mr. Frye. I feel that you have written better material. By better, I mean that you are more literate and point. I like reading pornographic literature occasionally; but the movement of your plot is lacking in fluidity, and the Hi-Po is the perfect place for pornography. Pornography is not journalism. It is (in this case) fiction and imaginative literature. Your short story would be more appropriate in the Apogee.

Structurally, the plot has some weak points. Some of the images that are used are too imaginative and too obscure to beQuartered. A “dying sailor clinging to the back of an angry whale” is weak imagery in relation to a toothpick being longed. Is a toothpick being longed. Is to me that the piece possesses a deep, sincere relationship with Jesus Christ. I pray that Mike will tread safely and WISELY down his path to the Lord. I would like to salute Mike for his act of faith and courage. I have talked to Mike on more than one occasion, and do not doubt that he possesses a deep, sincere relationship with Jesus Christ. I pray that Mike will tread safely and WISELY down his path to the Lord. I would like to salute Mike for his act of faith and courage.

However, I feel a great need to express my own opinion and beliefs concerning Mike’s much admired act.

For several years, highly imaginative, fundamentalist Christianity has put me on the defensive, and has attempted to force me to believe a specific doctrine. Many of my Christian brothers and sisters would be very happy to see me forget about critical, thoughtful analysis, and come to terms with the ultimate truths of their brand of Christianity.

Last week, in the midst of an enjoyable lunch with my friends, a voice told me to shut up and listen. I listened, against my will, and was forced to leave lunch early, simply because I did not want to hear Jesus Christ’s name being shouted into everyone’s ears.

I believe that somewhere in the Bible something is mentioned about not selling your religion on commodities, or cafeterias? In my opinion, actions speak much louder than all of the words in the world. I have observed the highly emotional types of Christianity in action many times, and am sorry to say that it is not uncommon for lives to be damaged and persons to be destroyed, as all intellect is abandoned in the name of Christ.

My philosophy is quite simple. I believe that God is love. I doubt that many people would disagree with me on this point. Is it loving to force people to listen or believe in something against their will or better judgement? Even God has given us a choice. Is it loving to force a devout Jew, a faithful Muslim, or a deeply believing Christian who holds to a contrasting theology, to listen or believe the way one very devout, sincere, and unique Christian believes?

I merely would like to say that I am a Christian. Jesus is my only reason for life. I pray that Christ will make me an instrument of His peace. Mike Miller and Christians like him are great. However, there are other Christians in the world besides those who are similar to Mike.

I am because I am one of them. My parents are Christians, and many of my best friends are Christians.

Dear Editor,

A friend of mine did something very brave and very daring last week, upon which I wish to make a small comment.

At approximately 12:30 last Thursday, March 11, Mike Miller found within himself the courage to stand before the microphone in our H.P.C. cafeteria and witness to his fellow Christian and non-Christian friends, his experiences and his relationship with the Lord. I would like to salute Mike for his act of faith and courage. I have talked to Mike on more than one occasion, and do not doubt that he possesses a deep, sincere relationship with Jesus Christ. I pray that Mike will tread safely and WISELY down his path to the Lord.

However, I feel a great need to express my own opinion and beliefs concerning Mike’s much admired act.

High School

Student's Art Work on Display

The first High Point College exhibit of North Carolina high school students’ art works is on display in the lounge gallery of the Student Center. The arts works will be shown through April 11.

Thirty-nine high schools in the state submitted one work of art done by one of their seniors. From these thirty-nine works, 14 prizes were awarded.

Thirteen seniors from Garner Senior High, near Raleigh, won the $2,000 Fogle scholarship to attend High Point College and major in art. This winning work was an acrylic painting titled “Peanut Man.”

Raiford Porter was the judge for the competition.

Yet, we do not adhere to Mike’s theology. Each Christian must bear his own cross, and each should have a special and very personal relationship with Christ. We should respect these differences, and love each other as much as we love ourselves.

Many great Christians throughout history have chosen to worship their savior in various, sometimes contradicting manners. Let us not condemn these differences; but let us be open to the love and unselfishness which is present today in our world because a man, a peasant, someone who said he was the son of God, died for the sins of mankind 2,000 years ago, in order that you and I may become free, dynamic individuals, today.

Ford's handling of foreign policy has also become an issue with focus on our relations with the Russians. Foreign policy is always whatever the government tells us it is, but we can measure its impact. If Angola is any gauge, we are at this time playing both ends against the middle in a dangerous chess game called Detente. We simply have no way of knowing what's really going on.

The issue that no opponent of his has raised is the environment. Gerald Ford has shifted the wheels of government into finding energy sources at all costs. His veto of the strip mining bill most clearly points out his lack of regard for the environment. Shaft mining would create more jobs than strip mining, but Mr. Ford supported the coal companies and strip mining.

Overall his performance has not been very bold, creative or inspiring, but by his own image-makers' view he isn't that kind of president. Ronald Reagon-at this point, North Carolina Republicans could completely change the political fortunes of Ronald Reagon. Our Republicans are the kind of conservatives who like Reagon's appeal for less government, lower taxes, and a return to self-reliance. And although Reagon has stalked Ford closely in two major primaries, he has yet to defeat the incumbent. North Carolina might be the place it will happen. As Governor of California Reagon did trim the beaurocracy to a degree, but inflationary pressures raised both taxes and spending, the two evils he so strongly opposes. He did remove a quarter of a million people from the California Welfare rolls and saved the state about a billion dollars in Welfare costs. When he left office the state had a surplus of $500 million dollars.

The greatest personal criticism he has received is his heavy reliance on close staff members. Critics feel he should be willing to work harder, longer hours.

Reagon's support comes from the people that tax structure exploits. While saying he favors tax reform for the little guy, his own state tilts toward the big guy through low corporate taxes, high sales taxes and allowing corporations to write off federal corporate taxes when paying their state taxes.

His constant claims to stop busing are promises he cannot keep. The courts have power over such constitutional issues. Only his promises to trim the beaurocracy are credible. Much of his appeal is still racist and the fact that he will likely win in our state is disgraceful.

Henry-Jackson-The Washington senator who was almost John Kennedy's running mate is a domestic liberal and a hawk on foreign policy. He doesn't trust the Russians and is very clear in his disaste for detente. He is a strong contender for the nomination because of broad appeal especially to traditional democratic supports, unions and big business.

Jackson believes jobs are a crucial issue and one way to put people to work is a corps to tackle environmental problems and mass transit. Jackson's record on civil rights is strong and his proposals on busing are politically well-timed. He believes the courts ought to have at their disposal alternatives to busing. He would advocate legislation to offer these alternatives.

Morris K. Udall-"I'm going to vote for this guy. He is willing to spend to get people back to work and off unemployment lines. He advocates strong action to stop price-fixing by major steel companies, automobile companies and food processors. They have all kept prices high in times of recession. He also advocates disarming the oil companies to allow for competition.

Udall's proposals on busing are politically well-timed. He believes the greatest rhetorical success of the population still stands as the greatest rhetorical double-talker in the history of American politics. While Alabama has the kind of tax structure that most clearly favors big business, Wallace's support comes from the people that tax structure exploits. While saying he favors tax reform for the little guy, his own state tilts toward the big guy through low corporate taxes, high sales taxes and allowing corporations to write off federal corporate taxes when paying their state taxes.

Overall his performance has not been very bold, creative or inspiring, but by his own image-makers' view he isn't that kind of president. Ronald Reagon-at this point, North Carolina Republicans could completely change the political fortunes of Ronald Reagon. Our Republicans are the kind of conservatives who like Reagon's appeal for less government, lower taxes, and a return to self-reliance.

Conservatives like his attack on big government and his pledge to streamline the beaurocracy. Liberals like his, "The Pentagon is the biggest waster of government money that there is." All supporters seem to feel he is honest and a fresh face. Carter has also benefited from favorable media treatment.

George Wallace-The long-time voice for a frustrated segment of the population still stands as the greatest rhetorical double-talker in the history of American politics. While Alabama has the kind of tax structure that most clearly favors big business, Wallace's support comes from the people that tax structure exploits. While saying he favors tax reform for the little guy, his own state tilts toward the big guy through low corporate taxes, high sales taxes and allowing corporations to write off federal corporate taxes when paying their state taxes.

He advocates strong action to stop price-fixing by major steel companies, automobile companies and food processors. They have all kept prices high in times of recession. He also advocates disarming the oil companies to allow for competition and independent development of resources.

His record is one of honesty and hard-work on capital hill. He has been endorsed by more than 50 of his peers in the house including our own Rep. Richardson Preyer. Both Preyer and former Governor Terry Sanford will vote for Udall next Tuesday. But since Udall has not campaigned actively here, he will not get much of a vote.

Fred Harris-Although he has been written off by the media, Fred Harris will be on the ballot in North Carolina and he has organization in Orange and Durham counties, two large counties. The former Oklahoma senator is much like Udall on the issues, but differs in style. Harris is a country-boy running a low-keyed campaign to put competition back in the market place and get people off unemployment.

Pantherettes — Third

The High Point College women’s basketball team finished third in the Region II, Division II basketball tournament last week in Kentucky. After defeating North Kentucky State on their home court, 83-76, the Panthers were upset in the semi-finals by Francis Marion College of South Carolina, 81-80, when a last second shot by Gracie Simmons refused to fall in for the Lady Panthers. In the playoff for third place the Panthers routed Clemson University 105-78 to take third place.

For the tournament Wanda Wilson tallied 58 points to lead the Panthers in the three games. Wilson and Simmons each pulled in 26 rebounds to pace the club in that department. Simmons set a school scoring mark for women as she poured in 36 points in the semi-final loss to Francis Marion.

The Lady Panthers now stand an outside chance of receiving an at-large bid to the national tournament to be held in Ashland, Ohio next week. Their record of 24-1 is one of the best in the nation. They will know the outcome of that tourney did prior to press time for the paper.

Baseball Keeps on Winning!

The High Point Panthers of Chuck Hartman got off to a relatively slow start a couple of weeks ago but are rapidly picking up steam. They have swept four straight doubleheaders for a total of eight victories in a row. The latest victims were from Heidelberg College who the Panthers beat 8-0 and 2-0 on Sunday and 18-1 and 5-4 on Tuesday. The highlight of the games was the strong pitching stint turned in by Dirk Gurley, a freshman, who hurled a one-hitter in his first college assignment. The only hit given up by Gurley was a bloop single in the fourth inning.

High Point had a game rained out with Carolina Tuesday and travels to N.C. State this afternoon. Tomorrow the Panthers host UNC at 2:00.

Now there’s a famous Parker’s Barbecue here in High Point.

Parker’s Barbecue in Wilson is the world’s largest barbecue restaurant. And you don’t get to be the world’s largest anything unless you’re doing things right. Parker’s does everything right, and the new Parker’s in High Point is just like the original Parker’s over in Wilson.

You’re served great big helpings of Parker’s famous Eastern North Carolina Barbecue, country fried chicken, steaming Brunswick Stew, tangy cole slaw, corn sticks and lots of other good things. Plus you’re served just minutes after you place your order and we have really reasonable prices.

Anything we serve on our menu is also ready to go hot and delicious for instant Take-Out. If you have a club or group that wants to get together for a luncheon or dinner, just call Parker’s and reserve a private dining room.

So now that Parker’s has come to High Point, why don’t you come to Parker’s. We serve the best-tasting barbecue and fried chicken you can buy.

Chemist Major

Wins Award

David Caldwell, a senior chemistry major from Arlington, Virginia, has been chosen to receive one of the 1976 Student Awards of the American Institute of Chemists. Each year the North Carolina Institute of Chemists, a division of the American Institute of Chemists, recognizes outstanding citizen-chemists in the colleges and universities of North Carolina. Dave is one of nineteen senior chemistry majors honored this year.

Currently Dave is participating in the Underground Research Program of the Argonne National Laboratory, Argonne, Illinois, in a study of the clearance rate of carbon-14 labelled benz(a) pyrene, a potent chemical carcinogen, in two different species of mice. He has previously had research experience at NASA, Language Field. A Dean's List student, Junior Marshall, Treasurer of the Senior class and elected to Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges, Dave will be a member of the 1976 entering class at the Bowman Gray School of Medicine of Wake Forest University.

SGA Appropriates Money To Publications

Due to financial difficulties we were forced to cancel the April 9th and 16th issues of the Hi-Po. These difficulties were the result of Hi-Po using up its allocated budget. The legislature voted to appropriate $650 from the SGA Contingency fund to the Hi-Po. The Hi-Po needs the money to print four final issues for this year.

The legislature is sort of a savings account for the Hi-Po that was set up by Dr. Patton several years ago in order to prevent the SGA from going into the red. The stipulation on this account is the maintenance of a minimum balance of $5,000. The current balance is just under $15,000. All income from refrigerator rentals is channeled into the SGA account. The Apogee lost a size of our account.

The legislature voted to appropriate $100 to the Apogee. The money made from refrigerator rentals have been responsible for the size of our account.

The state grant that subsidized its account. The Apogee lost a size of our account.

Hickok -- to numerous plains Indians such as Sitting Bull, Spotted Tail and Chief Joseph.

The play is meant for mature audiences not frightened by gunshots. It is hilarious and poignant, the study of a clash of two cultures -- Indian and white -- and their futile efforts to understand each other and co-exist on land everyone wants.

Tickets are available at the Fine Arts Department, High Point College at $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for students. The theatre seats only 120 persons, reservations or early arrival is recommended to guarantee seating. Curtain time is 8:15, the Sunday matinee at 2:15. Ladies are requested to wear slacks.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

To those readers who still believe they are attending a Liberal Arts College, I would like to provide some enlightenment. Based upon the aspirations of a large portion of the student body, the former High Point College has been transformed into High Point Trade School. Do not judge me wrong, I am not condemning trade schools, but I am condemning a college where students ideals contradict the principles on which the college was founded. Why do I say this?

I have recently learned that a liberal arts college is not a place where students strive to become "well-rounded" individuals, exposing themselves to all facets of knowledge. It is, instead, just the place where one goes to get those necessary courses to "land" that good job. Unfortunately, with the job market flooded as it is, even that idea is outdated. If you're looking for the skills, get into an apprenticeship with a plumber, electrician, or a carpenter.

I have also learned that a liberal arts college is not the place where a person learns to think. The "slide-by" process is much easier. Besides, one is not committed if they don't have an opinion. Right?

Finally, I have learned that a liberal arts college is not a place which provides an outlet for student expression and creativity. Since the primary concern of the students is obtaining the card that says "I am a graduate of High Point College," who needs publications anyway? Even if there are a few "thinking" survivors left, the majority's apathy tries to squelch even them.

Where is all this leading to? I implore you to look around at all the mechanical Mickey Mouse people in our midst. Granted, at times they may be eloquent in their presentation of "Thus and so's, in conclusion's." But, what happened to the meaning of the words in between?

Vickey Huntley

Dear Editor

A girl in South Carolina held me in her arms and from a sigh she said, "you'll be back soon won't you?" I never saw her again. And her mother cried. I just lied.

Jesus once told me to wash the feet of my brothers and sisters, because roads can get long and hot when you're out there chasing your dreams. And I remembered when we used to climb on top of the First National Bank and spit on the tuba players in the Christmas parade. Not a drop hit their feet. I can still spit a mile. I load my guns. I still turn my back and walk away a thousand times when you cry out in the nighttime; like a friend that dies along because we never stop to thank the people who make us feel a little more at home with ourselves.

It was Jackson Browne that said, "these days I seem to be afraid to live the life that I've made in song, but it's just that I have been loosing, so much". I've been a little like that.

I think it's time to do some changing. To see myself as I am. And just be thankful that there is forgiveness.

David Elkins

The APOGEES will be formally presented on Thursday April 29, 1975. The C.E. Mounts Award for Literary excellence will also be presented. All students are encouraged to attend.

HPC Launches 10-Year Plan

High Point College has begun work on a new 10-year plan to continue the development and growth of the liberal arts institution.

First step in the plan, approved by the trustees on March 10, will be the appointment of a committee named from the faculty, staff, students, and alumni. All constituents of the college will have opportunity to become involved in the development of the program.

The new program will include basic long-range goals related to buildings, equipment, personnel, cost of development, and resources available to meet the needs. The committee is expected to take a year to develop the details of the long-range program. Officers of the trustees expect the new program to go into effect at the beginning of the school year in 1977.

High Point College recently completed a 10-year plan marked by the successful completion of three capital campaigns. The College realized increased endowment, new facilities, and major building projects including the Holt McPherson Campus Center, Belk Dormitory, Hayworth Hall of Science, and the Chas. E. Hayworth Sr. Memorial Chapel.

Film Making On Campus

The 35 students in English 220, film making, were recently seen last Thursday and Friday drifting through the college cafeteria and snack bar, each filming a 20 second sound interviews with randomly selected students.

The questions covered a range of important issues on campus: What do you think of the open dorm policy? the food in the cafeteria? the food in the snack bar? alcohol in beverage on campus? The answers ranged from the serious, to the comic, to the indecorous.

Lab work such as this is preparing the 5 groups of students in the film class to make their own 8-10 minute sound color film, covering such subjects as life and death, college catalogue rules, and film interpretation of rock lyrics. The 5 films are scheduled for showing during the final exam period.

Library Bon Mot

The Wall Street Journal undertaking something of a Kino investigation with the opposite sex can be divided roughly in seven stages:

1. Whaaa! I want my mama!
2. G'wan, beat it, we don't want any old girl playing with us.
3. Gee, Myrtle, you're beautiful!
4. If you don't marry me, I'll shoot myself.
5. Go on home to your mother. See if I give a darn.
6. She's considerably younger than I am, Alice, I'll admit, but she understands me.
7. Kichy-kichy-kuh! Did you hear that, Alice? She asked "Grandpa"!

Does A Structural Prejudice Exist On The Hiring Practice of High Point College

This study was done for Religion Seminar 451. The purpose was to find if there is prejudice in hiring within the College. Once this had been determined, our study shifted toward the attitudes and moral obligations, rather than structure. In this effort, we talked with departmental chairmen, administrative officials and the President of the college—all of which are involved in the hiring practices within the college.

It must be stated now that the finding of this report are our personal reactions to the interviews we were involved in. We cannot point to specific quotes because we were afraid to record the conversations. Feeling perhaps these were talking to would not be as open with their answers. Therefore, the ideas and findings that we present are our own impressions. However, we do feel them to be accurate.

We found that there was no structural prejudice in the hiring practices of the college. There are no guidelines set up for the college which would seem to discriminate against blacks or any other group. But the question of attitudes is another story.

In talking to the different individuals responsible for hiring, the overriding issue was one of finances and economics. The question of why no black professors or administrators, or even secretaries are in attendance at High Point College was answered with an economic reason. The response was that HPC cannot meet the high price that blacks are asking. "Good" black professors are in high demand and therefore can seek a higher salary than HPC can offer. It is a matter of supply and demand. The answer by the administration is legitimate because it is true that blacks are demanding higher salaries than whites. But at the same time the statement is not legitimate because the term "good" actually refers to "better." In order for a black professor to be "good," according to one administrative official, he has to come from a reputable school. He very much implied that there were no reputable schools which are black, so he actually is saying from a reputable white school. Graduates from a predominately black school are to be written off as inferiorly educated. The term "good" black professor seems to be the crux of the hiring issue because it becomes an opinion of the person who is hiring. The situation seems to be different rules for different people. There is a problem with the financial situation, for if the college does hire a black professor, (at an estimated level of $15,000 or dollars) then there must be justification in this practice, or says the administration. This black professor must add something that his colleagues do not and this must be done in terms of added culture. This man must be a cultural experience for the students and he must think black, for a black that thinks white is of no cultural advantage to the college community. Thus the issue we raise is of more rule for the administration. How can a black go through a reputable white school, as he must to be accepted by this college, and keep his black awareness? Would this not be hard for him? What is the way this or that man thinks black? The example we were given as a black thinking black was Dick Gregory. It is not likely that High Point College would hire a Dick Gregory. Therefore it seems there is little hope for hiring a black professor under the guidelines given here.

All final hiring must be done with the final approval of the President of the college. Thus, this position becomes extremely important as to whether this college will actively seek to hire a black professor. Just as the pastor has a great influence over the progressive or nonprogressive actions of his church, the President of the college also occupies the same powerful and influential position in his relation to the college. It was evident to us in our interview with the President at the race issue was a very sensitive one for him and in fact he seemed to be a little defensive in some instances. The question we asked him was should the college actively seek a black professor in order that it may be an example of what a Christian witness must be to society? Does the college have a moral responsibility to seek a black professor? As mentioned previously, one official answered yes, if that person adds culturally to the college, but the response by the President and other officials supporting his opinion, was it is immoral to hire a person just because he is black and pay him some for the same job. The problem of resentment among existing professors was mentioned and the question was thrown to us as to whether it would in fact be moral to do this to the professors we already have teaching at HPC? To them, this was the moral question involved. But another response was given by the President and others that surprised us. That response was that we (HPC) have a moral obligation to the black colleges. If we get the cream of the crop then what position does that leave them in? We also have a moral obligation to them.

In doing this study we have come to realize that the college is indeed in a position of being disadvantaged. It seems fairly evident that the financial question is the important but we ask whether the facts of economics carries a higher importance than the moral question. All personnel that we interviewed gave us the impression that they wanted to see the college hire a black professor, but as far as actively seeking one became another issue altogether. The question of moral responsibility seems to hold little weight. One official told us that the college's business was strictly academic—that we hire a professor solely to teach the subject regardless of culture. But from his answer we can see the way the college has been moving on this issue and the way it will continue to move.

High Point College spring sports are in full swing and as we go into the last weeks of school, there are several tournaments ahead which HPC teams stand a chance of winning. Here is a sport-by-sport rundown.

BASEBALL - With their most recent victory being a 9-1 rout of Mars Hill, the Panthers stand atop the Carolinas Conference baseball race with a 6-2 conference mark and a 24-6 overall record. In a recent 11-6 win over UNCG, the Panthers have been ably supported by Paul Rapley, Jim Petraglia and Jeff Hall. Terry Terrill, Ronnie Smith and Charlie Burrell have been major contributors.

The Panthers are ready for the conference and district tournament, held May 6, 7, 8 in Salisbury while the District 26 playoffs will be May 12, 13 and 14 at a site to be determined. High Point is the defending champion in each.

The Carolina Conference tournament is scheduled for May 6, 7, 8 in Salisbury while the District 26 playoffs will be May 12, 13 and 14 at a site to be determined. High Point is the defending champion in each, having won the conference six of the last seven years and the district four of the past five seasons.

TENNIS - The HPC tennis team (male version) has been struggling for most of the season but finally seems to have righted itself just in time. With the District 26 tournament being held this weekend at High Point, the Panthers are coming into the tournament with three straight victories over district foes, Guilford, Elon and Pfeiffer. In fact, the netters have not lost a match to anyone in this district during the regular season which has produced a 11-9 record.

The winner of the district tournament will advance to the nationals in Kansas City the first week in June. High Point has won the district title each of the past four years and will seek to defend it this weekend.

Kim Dillard and Bill Busick return to defend individual titles in the singles fights while Robert Goode comes back after a year layoff.

S.A.M. Carwash

Members of S.A.M., the Society for the Advancement of Management, will hold a carwash Saturday, April 24 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the College Village Shopping Center at the NCNB building.

This activity is part of the S.A.M. fundraising program and we invite everyone to come get their cars washed and looking like new. The cost for each car washed will be only $1.50.

Chemistry and Biology Undergraduate Research

In fulfilling the objectives of "the development of the ability to reason logically," and "the analyze, understand and adapt to change," the major programs in biology and chemistry provide the opportunity for major students to undertake "a systematic investigation of some phenomena or series of phenomena by the experimental method, to discover facts or to coordinate them as laws." In short, senior biology and chemistry majors undertake and carry out a senior research project. Each student generates an individual project or works into an existing research program of one of the faculty members.

Currently there are ten biology majors and six chemistry majors involved in senior research projects. The projects that these students have developed are diverse and quite interesting.

Four of the biology majors have projects involving fungi, molds, or paramecia. BETTIE LEDWELL is studying thermophilic fungi. Such fungi are heat lovers and have an optimum growth temperature of 40°C. Bettie obtained samples from a saw dust pile and a sawdust barkmulch pile, materials that are microbially self-heated. Seven species were isolated and after being cultivated in a variety of media, the following growth curves were obtained. Aspergilus fumigatus was determined to be thermophile.

Dear Editor:
The elections were first scheduled to be held weren't appropriate people know and within the bounds of constitutional precaution. So, he let the appropriate people know and after they calmed them down they told them they had decided to change the date of the elections and that would be a legal change. This was the day before the elections were first scheduled to be held and no announcement about the change had been made. I printed a flyer that, without ever using the name of the S.G.A., the Elections Committee, or any of their members, simply stated the new date for the elections and the reason for the change. The flyer also had a cafeteria menu for the week, a schedule for Easter chapel services, an announcement for a free concert, and two "Jim Merriam for S.G.A. Vice-President" ads. He placed the flyers on the checkers' tables in the cafeteria for the students to see. These papers were confiscated by a member of the Elections Committee and shown to the chairman of that committee, who pronounced them in bad taste and contrary to the constitution. (By the way, according to the constitution, this wasn't the proper procedure. The chairman is the only one who can restrict political advertising that he feels is in bad taste, not a committee member.) That night the S.G.A. approved a recommendation that Jim should print a retraction of the flyer, saying he had no right to say it in what he did. Some S.G.A. members were upset because the student who might mislead students into thinking the S.G.A. was endorsing Jim (which would be hard to imagine, considering how they've treated him). At no time during the meeting did anyone explain where the "bad taste" in the flyer was.
The next day the wrong version of the recommendation was read during lunch in the cafeteria. There was no explanation about what Jim had done to make the S.G.A. ask him to retract it; students just got some idea that Jim Merriam had done something wrong since the S.G.A. was taking action against whatever it was he had done. The reader of this recommendation asked Jim if Jim would like to respond to it. It's interesting that Jim wasn't even in the cafeteria when he started reading.
Apparently the S.G.A. does not agree with the constitutionally guaranteed right of a person to print and distribute what he knows to be factual information, or believe that a person can advertise himself in a paper he pays for. These actions not only cost Jim a great many votes; they denied him a very important right. The members of the S.G.A. involved in these actions also those who condoned them displayed a very thoughtless use of their power and complete disregard of the rights of an individual. But let's not overreact, right? The elections are over; the voice of the students, determined and informed, has been heard. Let's hear it for Democracy.

Parachuting Display Set

You are invited to come see both films and listen to experienced parachuters talk on this topic May 8th at 7:30 in the student center. This sport is becoming more popular every day and you will find it in safety depends on the individual jumper. A demonstration will take place here at the HPC football field on May 8th at 4:00 for all those interested to see parachuting in person. Three or four men will jump for our enjoyment so take a break from studying and come see for yourself! These men jump every Saturday and Sunday between the hours of 1:30 to 6:00 in Thomasville at Hiatt's Airport if you would like to see them there. Follow the map to the airport and enjoy yourself! Don't forget the talk on May 8th and the demonstration jumps on May 8th at 4:00 here! Hope to see you there!

Elections Showed Apathy,
Misuse of S.G.A. Powers

Dear Editor:
The elections were over; the voice of the students, determined and informed, has been heard. Let's hear it for Democracy.

The student elections held last week showed not only the overwhelming apathy of those on campus not involved in student government, but also the irresponsibility and misuse of power on the part of those in student government. I am speaking, of course, of their attitude and actions toward one candidate in particular, Mr. Jim Merriam.

One of the things Jim did was to read the student constitution, something which members of the S.G.A.'s Election Committee apparently neglected to do. In it he found that the date the elections were originally scheduled to be held wasn't within the bounds of constitutional procedural. So, he let the appropriate people know and after they calmed them down they told him they had decided to change the date of the elections and that would be a legal change. This was the day before the elections were first scheduled to be held and no announcement about the change had been made. Bill Anderson

Where the biology major work with living systems, the chemistry majors concern themselves with chemical composition, physical constants, or changes in chemical composition. Both BILL ANDERSON and GEORGE BAUNCHALK are completing quantitative analytical studies of commercial health products. Bill is analyzing vitamin products fortified with iron for the total iron content. This is being done by a spectrophotometric study of the orthophenanthroline complex formed with the iron. George is developing a method to determine the fluoride content of toothpastes. After preparing a buffered solution of each kind of toothpaste, the fluoride content is determined by using a fluoride single-ion electrode and an expanded-scale pH meter. The results are consistent and in agreement with the date available on various labels of toothpaste. George will be a first-year graduate student in the Department of Chemistry at N.C. State University in September.

JOHN VELTMAN became interested in the sites in the human body where mercury in the environment comes to rest. On finding that human hair is a residual site, he set out to determine if there is a difference in mercury content of head hair, pubic hair, and armpit hair. The mercury content was determined by atomic absorption spectroscopy. The results are now being analyzed for conclusions. John has been accepted for the 1976 entering class of the Medical College of Virginia.

Postage stamps are produced with a phosphor in the fiber so that an ultra-violet detection device can locate and cancel the stamp on the piece of mail. KEVIN DeNICOLA wondered if it would be possible to remove this phosphor without removing any ink or changing the composition of the fibers in any way. Through a selection process, he has determined that there are solvents that can accomplish this. This concept is especially of interest to philatelists. Kevin has accepted a teaching assistantship in chemistry at Texas A&M University.

RICK LOTT is carrying out cryoscopic studies on symmetrical tetramethyleuca. This compound is an excellent solvent for many organic compounds and is a liquid at room temperature. It will be a useful solvent for determining the molecular weights of newly synthesized organic compounds if the molal freezing point constant can be obtained. Rick is currently making this determination, in spite of the hygroscopic nature of the tetramethyleuca. Rick will be studying chemistry at the University of Georgia as a teaching assistant next year.

As a participant in the Undergraduate Research Participation Program at Argonne National Laboratory, DAVID CALDWell has completed a project on the clearance rate of carbon-14 labelled benz(o)pyrene, a potent chemical carcinogen, in two different species of mice at different ages. He used BCR-1, a typical laboratory mouse, and P. leucopus (the white-footed deer mouse), a wild and very resistant species. The carbon-14 content in the liver, kidneys, lung, spleen, thymus and gastrointestinal tract was measured using the Packard 306 oxidizer and the Packard 3375 scintillation counter. Dave will be a first-year medical student at the Bowman Gray School of Medicine next September.

Student Criticizes S.G.A. Decision

Dear Editor:

I guess the zoo is a fine place to take your kids on a lazy Saturday when we’re a little older and we don’t take the monkeys quite so seriously. But Jim Merriam had no chuckles about the April 13 student legislative meeting, and neither did I.

It was David Fuller who confiscated Merriam’s flyers, and it it was Jim Merriam who discovered the violation of Article X Section F of the SGA Constitution which made the first elections date not legal, something Kevin Gudzak (chairman of the elections committee) failed to notice. It was also Merriam who took the initiative to print out flyers announcing the decision to postpone the elections, not Gudzak. And it was Merriam whose actions were branded “in bad taste” — again, not Gudzak’s.

It was David Fuller who confiscated Merriam’s flyers, and it it was the SGA legislature (excluding those dissenting) who supported this confiscation and recommended a retraction of Merriam’s flyers.

To express our appreciation for HPC students patronage we are offering a free glass of your favorite beverage with every purchase of pizza, lasagna, or spaghetti.

District Honors

For the fifth consecutive year the High Point tennis team will be going to Kansas City to the National NAIA Tournament. Led by Kim Dillard, who swept individual honors in the singles and doubles, the Panthers actually wrapped up the team title by the semi-finals. Contributing heavily to the team victory were Robert Goode, Bill Busick, Jack DeAndre and Chris Brown.

The Panthers wound up the tournament with a team score of 30 points followed by Elon with 23 and Pfeiffer with 13. The Carolinas Conference tournament will be held at High Point beginning today and will continue through tomorrow.

Kreeger Receives Research Grant

Wayne Kreeger, a junior chemistry major from Pfafftown, N.C., has been selected to participate in the Summer Undergraduate Research Program at Duke University for the period June 7-August 13, 1976.

Supported by the National Science Foundation, the program of independent research will focus on the theme CHEMICAL RESEARCH AT THE CHEMISTRY-BIOLOGY INTERFACE. Wayne hopes to be able to work under the direction of Dr. Ned Porter on prostaglandin biosynthesis.

Baseball Team in First Heads for Conference

With a 27-7 overall mark and a 7-3 conference record, the High Point Panthers have claimed first place in the regular season of the baseball race and are preparing for the conference tournament which will be next week in Salisbury. There is only one conference game left at Catawba Friday night at 7:30. The Panthers will be out to average a 4-1 setback at the hands of the Indians earlier in the year.

Terry Terrill continues to pace the hitting attack with a .406 mark while Dan England and Billy Sorrell each had racked up eight wins apiece. England also leads the nation in strikeouts with 116 through last Sunday's games.

Panther's Golf Second in Conference Tourney

After a dismal first day score, the High Point golf team roared back to claim second place in the Carolinas Conference tournament which was concluded Tuesday at Sapona Country Club in Lexington.

Jim Ivey paced the first day scores for High Point with a 78 in the cold and high winds that prevailed and sent scores soaring. The Panther team score of 326 placed them fifth in the overall standings. On the second day of the tournament the Panthers shot 15 better rounds and carded a 309 total. Tom Hartman with 76, Jeff Hall and Paul Rapley with 77's and Jim Ivey with 79 paced the Panthers on the final day.

Elon won the conference title while Gardiner-Webb won the District 26 crown. The Panthers finished third in the district.

Chemistry Majors Day To be this Monday

Monday, May 3, will be celebrated as CHEMISTRY MAJORS' DAY at High Point College. On that day all Chemistry and Chemistry-Business majors (including the Chemistry/Physics faculty) will wear special T-shirts. A model rocket blast-off will be held on the parking lot north of the stadium at 10:00 a.m. that morning and a Chemical Magic Show will be given in Room 106, Haworth Hall, at 7:00 p.m. that evening.

Interested persons are invited to share the rocket demonstration and Chemical Magic Show with the Chemistry majors.

 Theta Chi Fraternity
 Theta Chi Fraternity at High Point College is proud to announce the initiation of new Brothers, they are: Randy Michael Bledsoe, Douglas Wicher, Tab Lancaster, Raymond Hall, and Darryl Schoch. The initiation took place April 25th in the Theta Chi Lounge (Millis Dorm).

We are also proud to announce the acceptance of two new Pledges, they are: Chip Atkinson and Randy Sears.

The Chapter also helped collect donations for the Easter Seals Drive on April 10th. In all, they collected $1525.00. The Brothers and Pledges expressed a desire to collect for the Easter Seals every year. Bob O'Brien was responsible for organizing the collection. Special thanks should go out to Pam Peggan and Sherry Lyons for their help, without which the Drive would not have been as successful.

Two Theta Chi's will be graduating this Spring, they are Larry Potter and Keith McNab.

Sherlock T. (Terry) McNab will also be leaving High Point College this Spring, he will be transferring to Univ. of South Carolina. We will no doubt miss Terry very much, his wisdom and guidance were a true asset to our fraternity. We wish these three the best of luck in future endeavors.

We would also like to wish the students, the faculty, and the administration a happy and safe summer vacation!
