Five New Faces Join HPC Staff

By Linda Cain

The opening of each new school year brings many new faces to the staff at High Point College.

Dr. Carole A. Head, instructor of foreign language, comes to HPC with an educational and teaching background that spans two continents. Dr. Head received her Bachelor's Degree from the University of Oklahoma in 1967. Upon receiving her degree, she went on to the University of Strasbourg in France for a year of further study. After completing her year abroad, she returned to the states to do her graduate work at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. It was here, where she received her Master's and her Doctorate. Dr. Head has taught at UNC-Chapel Hill, English and French at a leading University in France, and at the IBM School in Raleigh.

Dr. Everard H. Smith, like Dr. Head, comes from UNC-Chapel Hill. Dr. Smith earned his Bachelor's Degree at Yale University in 1971 and his Doctorate at UNC-Chapel Hill. This past year, he was a lecturer in the History Department at Chapel Hill. At HPC, Dr. Smith is instructor of History, Political Science, and Geography.

Dr. Stella B. Jones, assistant professor of sociology, has a career in sociology that covers three states across the nation. She did her undergraduate work in sociology at Seattle Pacific College and her graduate work at the University of Washington. She was chairperson of the department of sociology at Franklin College in Franklin, Indiana. Dr. Jones has also taught at Indiana University in South Bend, Indiana. Before coming to HPC, she was a research assistant at the Bowman Gray School of Medicine in Winston-Salem, North Carolina. Dr. Jones has spoken to national audiences on the subject of family mobility and has written many articles that have appeared in leading magazines. Several years ago, she received a grant from Allied Van Lines to study geographic mobility.

Mr. James Forster, assistant professor of theater, comes to HPC from A&T State University in Greensboro, North Carolina. He received his Bachelor's of Fine Art and his Master of Fine Art from Drake University. In addition to his teaching duties at A&T, Mr. Forster has appeared in numerous theatrical productions such as: "Clarence Darrow," "Billy Liar," and "Short Eyes." His play continued on page 5

Retired General Speaks

Rev. Medaris Addresses Students and Faculty

At the college's Convocation, the guest speaker, Father Bruce Medaris charged the student body and faculty to capitalize on what the Lord has assigned them to do. Father Medaris is a living example of his doctrine. Twenty years ago the Reverend Father Medaris was in command of the space satellite program which started the space race with Russia.

Father Medaris retired from the Army after organizing the space program which shaped events for years to come. Working with Wernher von Braun, he launched Explorer 1 into space, the first American orbiting satellite. Today the Reverend Father Medaris is a leading figure of the Episcopal Church.

The theme of the General turned Priest's speech was "The Business of Being a Person." He said that life will have no purpose without expending the energy to maintain one's individuality. He said, "This country needs young people who will do the best they can under God's guidance."

The official opening of school was evidenced last Wednesday when Opening Convocation was held in the auditorium. Former Mayor General of the U.S. Army and now the Rev. Bruce Medaris was guest speaker.

United Way Opens Campaign

by David L. Bobbitt

The Greater High Point United Way officially kicked off the $675,430 fund raising campaign at a luncheon on Thursday September 7.

Members of the United Way, Kiwanians and Rotarians were hosted to the Top of the Mart luncheon by High Point area businesses and industries.

Campaign director for the 1978 fund raising is Maggie Froelich, the first woman director for High Point United Way. Bill Lindsay will serve as president.

Murphy Osborne, member of the Board of Directors and past president of United Way said, "Judging by present indicators, we will reach our goal this year." The organization has not met its goal for the past three years, said Osborne, but they are optimistic this year.

Mrs. Nancy Shelton, a second year solicitor for education, said the cause for not meeting the budget may be due to the fact that people who can't give hundreds feel they shouldn't give at all. "Many times the people United Way helps most support us the least," said Shelton. She added that small donations are a "big factor" in the overall campaign.

Osborne said the fiscal budget deficiency is made up for by the concentrated fall campaign. This year's monies collected will be distributed to 24 agencies, said Osborne, adding that "no other agency is allowed to campaign for funds during the United Way campaign, but are expected to participate since they will be receiving part of the monies".

Some changes may be seen for next years campaign, said Osborne, referring to the contracted agreements presently being studied by the United Way and the agencies it helps sponsor. It is hoped that the agreements will spell out the United Way responsibilities and the agencies, and offer more cooperation between them.

Agency presidents, and executives, volunteer community members, and United Way directors are working together on the contracts and little opposition is anticipated.

Osborne remarked that contributors to the United Way were participants in a community "betterment" program that the High Point Community could not do without. "It's not the amount people give, but the fact that they do give," he said.

The staff of the Hi-Po

would like to extend a warm welcome to all freshmen and transfers.

We urge all of you

This Year's Drama Productions Announced

The Tower Players have announced their schedule of drama productions for the 1978-79 season which, by the way, is the 50th anniversary season of drama on the HPC campus. According to Tower Players historian Dave Douglass, "The season will lead off with Tennessee Williams' American classic The Glass Menagerie. Director James Forster emphasizes that since the play's main focus is on its strong female roles, he hopes especially to see females on campus who have not been previously involved with the Tower Players to come out in large numbers for auditions, which will be held in early October. Production dates are November 15-18."

The second production of the season will be Frederick Knot's Dial M for Murder, described by director David Christovich as 'an unusually chilling murder mystery in which the audience knows all along who the culprit is, but he spins such a brilliant alibi that he seems to be uncatchable. The ending is a real shocker, very satisfying for the audience.' Auditions for Dial M, which will have a predominantly male cast, will be held after Christmas vacation, and production dates are February 14-17 at eight p.m. in Memorial Auditorium.

The spring production has not been set at this time. Christovich says the choice of a play will depend upon the degree of participation and number of auditioners for the parts. Jim Forster and I would like very much to bring Shakespeare to the campus", says Christovich, "but Shakespeare requires a lot of actors. We'll have to wait and see how many people are auditioning this year, and then decide whether to go with a large or smallcast show."

Word from Theatre Arts has it that this year's freshmen are showing unprecedented interest in theatre activities, so things are looking good this year for drama at HPC.
Freshmen and Transfer Thrust into New World Called RUSH

By Kim Darden

As RUSH opened officially and in full swing last week, it became many different things to different people. For some, it was little more than the hottest conversation piece in the lunch line. For others, it was hours of planning, rehearsing, and counseling. Technically, to the officials of Panhellenic, the "representative organization unifying all national sororities on campus," RUSH was a campaign to induct new girls into the campus sororities. (Fraternities, meanwhile, were and are seeking new members.)

The campaign, at least on the girls' side of campus, involved scheduled ice-breakers, parties, and skits. Freshmen girls first gathered nervously in the dorm halls, asking each other, "Do I look okay?". They were whisked from one party to another where they were graciously entertained by each of the sororities. The ultimate purpose of the parties was the confrontation of "rushee" and sorority. Explained simply by one freshman, "RUSH is when the fraternities see if they want you, and vice-versa. They're looking you over, and you're looking them over."

One thing is for sure, RUSH was an item that couldn't be ignored. Even those not involved couldn't have missed the countless signs of this infectious, viracious movement on campus - the nightly processions of freshmen girls who emerged from Woman's Dorm, later to disappear into various buildings for mysterious "Second Preferential Parties"; the posters around school loudly proclaiming Fraternity "open houses"; the suddenly-vogue sorority T-Shirts of every color in the rainbow, sporting every conceivable Greek letter. Yes, RUSH demanded attention, and it got it.

Approximately 86 out of 120 freshmen and transfer girls signed up for RUSH; and reportedly, the girls' open houses were equally successful. The girls rushed for various reasons. Said freshman Michelle Truax, "I wanted to meet more people, and we got together with a giggle, "and I told lots of people I would."

Other reasons were similar - "I was curious about sororities - it was something to do - I liked dressing up for the parties..." Many girls who rushed never intended to join a sorority and only rushed for the sheer fun of it. But freshman Gary Allen was a serious fraternity "rushee". He rushed because he hopes to join a fraternity.

"I'd like to join because - you know - I'm far away from home, I'd like to make friends here."

"And I understand that the general thing with the fraternity brothers is a close relationship in which you have someone to talk to - you have someone who's there when you need them."

Adds freshman Rob Moss, "A sorority or fraternity is kind of your family here on campus."

Before the RUSH parties began, last Monday night, RUSH was a mysterious, effusive item - a venture into the unknown.

"I was so nervous - I didn't know what to expect (at the parties) or what to say or do," said freshman Jan Harrison.

"I thought: Are they gonna embarrass me, or make me say something in front of alot of other people?" said freshman Lori Forman.

When the "unknown" RUSH was finally experienced, many girls were surprised.

"It's like it more than I expected I ever would. I hadn't planned to join at all, but now I think I've changed my mind," says Jan Harrison.

"I thought they (the sororities) were just gonna be clicky groups," says Patty Fortus, "But they turned out to be really friendly people - everyday people."

"I had no idea they were gonna do skits and singing and all that stuff," says one freshman.

The "skits", and "singing" became the colorful highlights of RUSH. The entertainment was grand. For the "Hall Parties", sorority girls dressed in pajamas and carried teddy bears, welcoming the "rushees" to their "swinging pajama party". Others wrapped sheets creatively around them to produce "togas" for "toga parties". On "Second Preferential Night", the bandroom became the "Red Garter Saloon", complete with red checked tablecloths and candlelight. Gangsters and saloon girls put on a show featuring a barber-shop quartet, the notorious Bonnie and Clyde, and dancing girls performing the "Charleston". The Old Student Center became an awesome Emerald City. Yellow construction paper did fine as the Yellow Brick Road, and a little glitter gave the sparkle for a perfect pair of magic slippers.

Some of the girls, viewing the girls 'rushees', thought the entertainment was pure nonsense. One freshman shook his head, half in amusement, half in mild disgust, as he told of a RUSH night encounter.

"Man, I couldn't believe it. Tonight I saw girls running around in their pajamas. We were jogging, and a girl called us over to the window. She had on striped pajamas with a flap pocket in the back and 'teddy bear stick ing out of it. I think this kinda dumb. I mean, as guys don't have to go around clappin' our hands in our pajamas, or singing 'When The Greeks Go Marchin' In' and all that."

Gary Allen looks at "the Nonsense" differently.

"I don't think its dumb at all. I think it's pretty good. It shows they're dedicated and it shows their spirit. I mean, what's the difference in running around in pajamas and in carrying a banner?"

The guys also complained occasionally that RUSH took away all the girls.

"All I know is, everytime I came over here, they've gone off somewhere (with RUSH)," said one dismayed freshman.

The most frequent complaints from the girls were: One, that RUSH took time away from their studies, and two, that RUSH was held too early.

"Yeah - here we are, not even adjusted to school, and all of a sudden it's decided! (on a sorority)," says freshman Sue Luppino.

Last year RUSH was held a week later at H.P.C.

Ellen Carmine, president of Panhellenic, explained why RUSH was held so soon this year.

"It's good to get it over with before the really bad tests start coming," she says. "Last year, 'rushees' dropped out because they had big tests the next day."

Panhellenic feels an obligation to continue on page 4

tion to scholarship as well as a social obligation."
Whatever its weak points, RUSH will not soon be forgotten, especially in the hearts of the sorority girls who made it possible. After Exhaustion, perhaps from the eyes—perhaps from utter extinction, until tears flowed from their hoarse; they had performed

The Lawless Zone

PARKING LOTS
They're a lawless zone. I've had my share of them.
The normal outlay of a parking lot, any lot, is effectively unsafe and harboring many wrecking incentives.
Usually unlined, or if lined, without proper planning the parking lots across this state are not regulated by any law or policing agency are not recognized by the Dept. of Transportation.
No one (rarely) is killed in parking lots. Thus no public outcry or pressure to resolve this social problem.

Although no local insurance companies breakdown the number of accidents in parking lots, the insurance industry assures us that millions of dollars are paid out yearly involving thouands of accidents in parking lots and private property.

And these figures don't begin to reveal the real problem. The dollar figure is surely way low, since everyone has a 50-100 dollar deductible insurance policy.
And surely for every reported tender bender there is at least one unreported accident.

Everyone is familiar with the sinking feeling that comes when walking into the lot and finding door scraspings, bent fenders and bumpers, scrapes and odd colors on the vehicle.

I've been on both ends of these blood curting smashes where the most harm done is usually done to the blood pressure. It's no fun, a lot of hassle and generally an embarassing and unpleasant incident.

Here at High Point College we've been lucky. Few accidents have come across the High Point College Campus Police desk. Last year (1977-78) we were bestowed with such accidents.

But this year we have a few more cars around. This usually results in a greater chance of and more actual ability to have an accident in the "Lawless Zone." It hap-penes even to the best of us.
There is no solution to this problem. Only the great hindsight of prevention by education.

A Campus
Get Well

"He's from the old school and they just don't make them like that anymore. He wasn't the fastest man in the world but he sure got the job done."

Those were the words of Jack Thompson, High Point College's maintenance superintendent, on Willy Davis, a former groundskeeper and handyman on campus.
You probably have seen Davis up at the crack of dawn, raking, sweeping and busily continuing that course until the setting of the sun.
Davis, who is approximately 77 years old, has worked for HPC for about 23 years.
Recently he became ill while doing yardwork at his home.
The staff of the Hi-Po would like to recognize Davis' many hours of work above and beyond duty and wish him a speedy recovery.

"The Halyon Room," about an aging couple who live in the past to avert their financial and lifestyle style problems, was recently published by the American Play Service.

Mr. Alfred S. Hassell, the new Director of Admissions, is replacing A.E. Von Cannon. Mr. Hassell comes to HPC from Elon College, where he was Associate Director of Admissions. He received his Bachelor’s Degree from Elon College and did his graduate work at UNC-Chapel Hill. Concerning the students and his goals, Hassell remarked, that he “is impressed with the quality of students enrolled and will strive to maintain the same quality of students admitted in the past.”

Let’s all extend a hearty "Hello" and a warm welcome to the five new staff members and make them feel like they are truly a part of the High Point College family.

Committee Applications Available

Applications for Student-Faculty committees are now available at the S.G.A. office. There students will be selected for the Student Personnel Committee and the Publications Committee, and two students for the Library Committee. Those serving on the Educational Policies Committee have already been selected.

Students on these committees have the same voting privileges as the faculty members.

Theatre Open House Set

Tower Players and the Alpha Psi Omega dramatics honor fraternity will jointly host an open house on Monday, September 18.

The open house will take place in the auditorium and will last from 6:30 until. Entertainment will be provided by present and past members of the societies.

"Brainstorming" Session Set By SGA

The S.G.A. Executive Council will be conducting a "Brainstorming" session on September 18 at 7:30 p.m. This will be held during the Ice Cream Social in the rear of the cafeteria.

During the session, students will have the opportunity to voice their opinions about various campus activities and to offer suggestions on how the S.G.A. can be more effective.

S.G.A. President Caryn Marie Reinhart said that she hopes many students will attend because the seven members on the council are not aware of all the wants of the students. This, she continued, is a time when everyone has a chance to not only offer suggestions, out also voice their complaints.

The Ice Cream Social was originally scheduled for the 14th but was changed due to a conflict with a soccer game.

Comedy Team to Appear Here

The comedy team of EDMONDS & CURLEY, who have been seen many times on the Tonight Show, Mike Douglas, Merv Griffin, various PBS Specials and up coming appearances on Saturday Night Live will be appearing here.

In concerts, EDMONDS & CURLEY performed as the opening act for such stars as Melissa Manchester, B B King, John Denver, Harry Chapin, Billy Joel, David Bromberg Band, George Benson and many others.

The Advanced Giving of the High Point University will head the 1979 Annual Giving Fund of the High Point College Alumni Association.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Sherrill will serve as co-chairmen of the organizing committee, which was used in the "Self" presentation. Three books were also used in the project, these were: Alternative Realities, By A Woman Writt, and The l-Opener. Discussion and lecture leaders ranged from our own HPC faculty of Dr. Karmel, Ms. Rawley, Dr. Moehlman, Rev. Lowdermilk, and Dr. Crow to State Senator Rachael Gray and Dr. Richard Bardolph, History Department Head at UNC-G. Many other prominent scholars also contributed to the Shakespeare and Woman Today program.

The majority of the students involved in the program are women from the triad area. Most are well educated and interested in probing into the societal problems of today. Many of the fifty persons enrolled in the program lived in Belk dorm for the week. The living accommodations encouraged further discussions and a development of a comradeship among participants.

No grades or evaluations were given for "Shakespeare and Woman Today." Dr. Karmel believes that the lack of grades greatly benefited the program. Participants came and involved themselves because of a desire to learn.

This was the first time High Point College has offered this type of thought-provoking program. It is the desire of Dr. Karmel, along with other participants in "Shakespeare and Woman Today," that such a program be offered again next summer. Perhaps this type of program could also be offered during the school year, thus enabling greater student participation.

Dr. William DeLeeuw, associate professor of English at High Point College, has been appointed to the student faculty of the North Carolina Council, International Reading Assn.

Alumni to Begin Giving Fund

Mrs. Edgar Snider and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Sherrill will head the 1979 Annual Giving Fund of the High Point College Alumni Association. All three are from High Point.

Mrs. Snider, Class of '39, will serve as National Chairman; Mr. and Mrs. Sherrill, both with the Class of 37, will serve as co-chairmen of the Advanced Giving.

A tentative goal of $100,000 is expected to be adopted by the Alumni Association executive committee at their meeting this fall.

The Advanced Giving drive, for selected alumni, will begin in October; the general canvass will start in February.

Mrs. Snider is president of National Electronic Card Company. She is a member of the administrative board of Wesley Memorial United Methodist Church, a board member of the High Point Chapter of the American Cancer Society, and a member of the Board of Visitors of High Point College.

Sherrill is a salesman for Minnesota, Mining and Manufacturing Co.; Mrs. Sherrill is affiliated with Conduct Group Tours. Both are members of First United Methodist Church, High Point.

The last two year's Funds have exceeded their $76,000 and $77,000 goals, respectively.

The Fund supports scholarship programs, the Golden Decade capital improvement campaign, and the Alumni Chair of Higher Learning.

The "Shakespeare and Woman Today" program which was presented at High Point College this summer turned out to be a success. Ms. Rawley, who was active in the program, reported that she was "pleased with the intensity, involvement, and the passion of learning that the participants brought to it." Dr. Karmel, program director, commented that the program, which was funded by the North Carolina Humanities Committee, was considered a success by all participants.

The week-long program used the humanities to study various contemporary social problems and enabled Northern Carolinian humanities scholars to reach out to the public. An interdisciplinary approach to the program was followed; involving lecture, small group discussion, and the presentation of three Shakespearean plays at the High Point Theater.

One area of the program was "Consciousness," which was accompanied by the play "Much Ado About Nothing," "Law and Social Custom" incorporated the play "A Merchant in Venice" and "A Man For All Seasons" was used in the "Self" presentation. Three books were also used in the project, these were: Alternative Realities, By A Woman Writt, and The l-Opener.

"Consciousness," was the first time High Point College has offered this type of thought-provoking program. It is the desire of Dr. Karmel, along with other participants in "Shakespeare and Woman Today," that such a program be offered again next summer. Perhaps this type of program could also be offered during the school year, thus enabling greater student participation.

- End of year: .50
- End of year: .80

Cultural Credit Decision Final

By Ray Daniel

The faculty decided last year to drop the Cultural Credit program completely. When asked why they had decided against it, one professor replied that he felt it was not fair to force students to attend the events, and since they had been forced, they probably had not learned anything from them. Others felt that the program was not beneficial and it simply did not work.

Since the program has been dropped, the four semester hours that were previously required for graduation, have been subtracted from the list of requirements. Any hours already completed do not count as credits.

Great Religions Course Offered

The world's great religions will be taught in a special course at High Point College beginning September 21. The thirteen-week sessions, meeting on Thursday evenings at 6:15, will be instructed by Dr. Owen Weatherly and will be of particular interest to lay leaders in religious organizations. The course will coincide with the PBS broadcast of "The Long Search," a study of religions prepared for public television and will feature guest lecturers. Further information is available from the office of the dean of the College.

New Faces in Theatre Department

By Robin Henson

"it's hard to explain," says senior Myra Williams. "It's like a presence in the building that just isn't there anymore." Everyone who knew Lynn Lockrow and Nan Stephenson must admit that their presence was a powerful presence. Both were strong individuals who were professional in their attitudes and actions.

Says Melissa Patton, a junior Theatre major, “They weren't only instructors, they were close personal friends. I miss them both a lot. Before, anytime I wanted to talk, I could just walk over to the auditorium and either one or both would be there. I'll miss our conversations we all had.”

Seniors Must Apply for Graduation

All seniors who plan to complete their requirements for graduation in May 1979 should make formal application to the Dean of the College by September 30.

Both professors now hold teaching positions with other institutions. Stephenson instructs at Youngstown State University in Youngstown, Ohio and Lockrow is at Indiana University in Pennsylvania.

This year will see many changes in the department. Set construction will be almost entirely in student hands. They will build by a set of working drawings provided by the faculty, and have only supervision instead of direct help from the faculty.

"It will be good for us," says Williams. "I only hope that I've learned my lessons well. It will be strange not to have Lockrow there to be up to his ears in the work like the rest of us."

With all respect to the present Theatre department. Mr. Lockrow and Miss Stephenson will be sorely missed on both educational and personal levels. Theatre is one of the only educational areas where a student can get to know his professors on a personal basis.

For many of us who work closely in the theatre, their leaving is the very personal loss of two well-respected, well-loved mentors.

The two new additions to the Theatre department are Mr. J. Walter Forster and Mr. Pedro Sylva. The students of the department welcome them and wish to express their hopes for a successful 1978-79 theatre season.
Tough Season Ahead

By Dennis Tuttle

Modesty seems to escape HPC field hockey coach Kitty Steele's nature. Yet, after only two years at the women's reign, success has established itself within her.

Coach Steele guided her squad to the state finals in the AIAW tournament last year before bowing to Carolina 9-0 for the crown. A 14-2-1 record showed for the team's efforts and as the Sept. 28 opener at Avonette College of Danville, Va. awaits, anticipation is that the team's third straight winning season under the enthusiastic coach is almost assured.

Only three players have departed from the Lady Panthers from last fall. Two by graduation and one via transfer. Returning are the nucleus of what Steele foresees as winning season No. 3 for her are three seniors: Leading scorer Patti Wootten, 1977 MVP Debbie Weber and left-inner Linda Ensey.

Although the Panthers marched through a successful campaign in '77 against some so-so opponents, Fall 78 appears to be another matter. The key to success will be the play of the three seniors, for a new alignment has been set for the state tournament this season in which five of the qualified teams can participate in the tourney must be slated for the regular season.

Among the scheduled opponents are East Carolina, Duke, Wake Forest, Carolina, Appalachian and UNC-G.

"We play a tough schedule this year but we hope that our depth will help us achieve the team tournament this year," Steele said.

"It's going to be a demanding season because of the new alignment. If we win the state, we'll go on to the regional, and then to the national and so on. It's going to be a challenge."

To accept Steele's anticipated challenge are 12 overall returnees Juniors Allison Wilk, Kim Hall and Vicky Williams are surely to add the needed depth and Soph's Sharon Kaler, Alice Wainwright and Stephanie Higgins are back after a year's experience.

Freshmen Ann Cudwigson, Patty Foster and Jannette Welch are certain to be an inviting situation. Still, they beams with hope, and suffices with a little prayer.

Cautiously optimistic and anxious for the first match, Steele realizes that the road back to the finals is going to be an inviting situation. Still, she beams with hope, and succives with a little prayer.

Defense should be a strong point where the Panther coach feels an adequate job will be done. But the punch will be the offense. "We need to be able to score more efficiently this year," says Steele. "There were lots of times last year when we would have three for four shots at the goal and didn't get a goal from it. I hope by having the people back that most of the slots (positions) are full because we're basically the same team. We'll be just as good as in the past."

Intramurals to Begin Soon

By Chris Harrington

Intramurals have always been a very important aspect of the High Point College extracurricular activities. This season should prove no different. The intramural program has a variety of both team and individual sports. Returning from last year will be soccer, basketball, tennis, bowling, badminton, volleyball, and softball. Along with the old, 3-on-3 basketball makes its debut this year.

One of the biggest problems with last year's program was the lack of communication and general confusion about the program. Students should keep alert for signs in the post office, cafeteria, student center, and in the dorm lobbies. If there are any questions concerning the program, students should go by the office on Mon. - Wed. - Fri. from 11:00 - 12:00 in the student center.

Soccer is scheduled to start Sept. 18 with the Lambda Chi Alpha team returning to defend their title. Tennis is tentatively set for the week of Sept. 11. Basketball should prove interesting this year with the inevitable disappearance of the Oreos, three year champs.

Intramurals is a service of the High Point College. It is the hope of the staff that every student will avail himself of this service. Staff: Coach Bob Davidson, Director Tom Trice, Men's Head Brian Anderson Gary Mein Patti Wootten, Women's Head Robin Ray Robin Slate

Spikers in a Building Year

By Irish Gaymon

This year's volleyball team is expected to be exciting and different. The team consists of eleven players - five of which are freshmen. Although the team lacks some depth, Coach Wanda Briley feels that this year will be a building year. The coach is very excited about her returning players, especially Sylvia Chambers who has improved her game considerably. She is looking for alot of court leadership from Ethel White, Karen Christofferson and Marie Riley.

Defense and offense will be primarily run by Ana Marie Gonzalez. The spirited Vickie McLean will also be exercising her playing abilities.

The freshman joining the team this year are Deborah Jones of Greensboro, N.C.; B.B. Scriven of Raeford, N.C.; Bonny Lynch of Farmington Conn.; Carrie Matthews of Maryland and Martha Letchford of High Point N.C. These girls all have great attitudes toward the game mentally and physically. Coach Briley is very pleased with her new players and is looking forward to their contributions to the team.

This year's volleyball schedule will be a very competitive one for some of the top ranked teams in the state and nation. High Point will also host the Carolinas Conference Tournament during the 27th and 28th of October. Tournament games will prove exciting for all panther fans.
"Supersport" Comes to HPC
Lynch Adds Even More to Lady Panthers

By Paula PriUman

Thanks to the ingenuity of coach Wanda Briley’s recruiting methods, five former high school superstars will be participating in the HPC women’s athletic program this year. Debra Jones, from Eastern Guilford High School and B.B. Scriven, from Hoke County High, show promising potential on the volleyball court. Coach Briley feels that both girls will eventually become excellent front line players. In basketball, coach Briley was lucky enough to recruit the most sought after guard in North Carolina, Roxanne Moody. Ms. Moody, from Chadam Central High, in Bear Creek, averaged 20 points a game in the state play-offs; she also played in the East-West all star game. Another freshman, Wendy Knight, represented Madison High in the East-West game, is a good rebounding, 6’11" forward.

In regard to her recruiting methods, coach Briley stated, “When considering athletic scholarship applicants, I look for three main things: a player’s skill, coachability and ability to cooperate with teammates and officials.” Judging by her performance in the past and thus far, freshman superstar Bonnie Lynch is monopolizing on these winning traits. Lynch, from Farmington, Conn., was chosen from 36 outstanding athletes from all over the country as Burlington Socks/Teen Magazine’s “Supersport of The Year”. She received a trophy and a $1,000 scholarship for her efforts. As an entry to the contest, Bonnie’s mother wrote an essay describing Bonnie’s amazing athletic accomplishments. In four years of basketball, Bonnie scored an impressive 1,211 points - an average of 24 points a game. She also made the all conference and all state teams; her coach named her Most Valuable Player. Bonnie is presently aspiring to be a member of the 1980 Women’s Olympic Basketball Team.

Although basketball is Bonnie’s favorite sport, she claims that she is, “More relaxed and has more fun on the volleyball court.” She was captain of her varsity volleyball team last year, as she was in basketball and softball. Once again, she made the all conference team and was voted Best Offensive Player.

In a part of the country where fastpitch softball is a way of life, Bonnie had little trouble continuing her athletic excellence on the pitching mound. In three years of varsity pitching, she lost only three games and was voted Most Valuable Player.

Coach Briley is very pleased with Bonnie’s progress thus far in volleyball; she stated, “Bonnie just seemed to fit in perfectly with the other girls. It’s like she’s been here a few years rather than a few days.”

Bonnie’s easy-going nature seems to be coupled with intense concentration during practice sessions. She confessed that practices are much harder on the college level as she stated, “Coach Briley is much more demanding than my high school coach. It’s a big change and a big challenge; but, the upperclassmen give me a lot of help and encourage ment.”

So far, Bonnie is impressed with High Point’s small college atmosphere. She was overwhelmed by the congeniality of the Volleyball team, coach Briley, and the student body in general. She summed up her feelings very well by stating, “I didn’t think I could be happy in this part of the country ... now I don’t think I could be happier anywhere else.” Chalk one up for “southern hospitality.”

The Law School Admission Test, required of candidates for admission to most American law schools, will be given at five different dates this year. Since many law schools select their freshman classes in the spring preceding entrance, candidates for admission to next year's classes are advised to take either the October or the December test. The test is designed to measure certain mental abilities deemed important in the study of law, and thus to aid law schools in assessing the academic promise of their applicants.

Any student wishing further information should report to the placement office which is located in Student Personnel.

The Federal Government has released a booklet to aid the consumers of America in their interests in everything from automobiles to general nutrition. The booklet lists publications that you may order either free of charge or at a nominal fee. Write and request your free issue of the Consumer Information Catalog at the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

There will be a Writer's Club meeting every Thursday at 2:30 p.m. in room 1 (one) in the Student Center. Everyone is welcome to attend.

The third annual Tower Players' touring play, Two by Woody Allen, will tour the Washington, D.C. area during fall break, October 15-20. The show consists of two short plays, Death Knocks and Mr. Big, by the acknowledged master of American comedy, Wood Allen. Two by Woody Allen will be directed by Mr. David Christovich of the Fine Arts Department and will be designed by Mr. James Foster, who recently joined the HPC faculty, coming from North Carolina A & T University.

Christovich calls the plays "pure farce, with wildly improbable characters involved in wildly improbable situations. Directing them is going to be a lot of fun." In Death Knocks, the Angel of Death calls upon Nat Ackerman, a Bronx furniture wholesaler who quickly engages Death in a game of gin rummy, playing for one more day of life. Mr. Big is a satire of the hard-boiled detective movie genre, involving a private eye (Kaiser Lupo-zit) who sets about the ultimate missing-man caper--his job is to find God (not he doesn!). Auditions for Two by Woody Allen are scheduled for this Friday, September 8 at 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. at the stage of Memorial Auditorium. Christovich says he is hoping for a large turnout of potential actors for the two roles available, especially from members of the Theatre Participation and Communications classes.

Dr. Yarborough
A Man Who Has Watched HPC Grow

By Linda Cain

Many of us wonder what it would be like to go back in time to another decade. Many of us depend upon our parents or grandparents to tell us what it was like. The stories of how Mother and Dad met or how Grandpa shot the big grizzly bear during the big winter snow storm were a steady part of our diet while growing up.

Dr. N.P. Yarborough, professor of German, is High Point College's link with the past.

Dr. Yarborough came to HPC in 1924 to teach foreign languages. During his 54 years of service with the college, he has also served as Dean of Men and Registrar, a position he held until 1969. He has seen the campus grow from three buildings to almost twenty and been witness to various social changes that have kept up with the times.

When Yarborough arrived, the campus consisted of Roberts Hall and Woman's and McCulloch Dormitories. Roberts Hall at this time contained classrooms, administrative offices, library, chapel, and the cafeteria. The basement, for instance, held the cafeteria and the Chemistry and Biology Laboratories. The Chapel and the Library were located on the third floor, where the foreign language and religion classrooms are today.

The students were governed by rigid rules concerning conduct. The girls in Woman's Dorm had to sign rules and regulations, the men in McCulloch had to wear neckties when in the dining room of the cafeteria. Girls were not allowed to show their knees and they were required to dress neatly. There was even a specific study hour set up for Freshmen each evening.

If a student violated the rules, he or she would receive a demerit. After so many demerits, a student was suspended. Despite the rules and regulations, the students always managed to get around them.

The first students at HPC came from rural North Carolina and attended small county high schools. "These students," according to Yarborough, "came for an education; no matter how poor they were." Today, students come from large high schools in all parts of the country and the world. They are better prepared and more experienced.

For over half-a-century Dr. Yarborough has been an integral part of the academic and social life at HPC. He has seen the campus grow and the students change. Today at 75, he is still teaching and telling stories about the way High Point College used to be.
After the Thrills are Done
By Lisa D. Mickey

Maybe I haven’t been at High Point College long enough to really understand the backgrounds of the majority of the students. Maybe too, I am wrong to believe that students our age are old enough to control themselves with or without intoxicating substances. Whatever the case, someone has some growing up to do.

Being a native North Carolinian, occasionally on weekends I go home. The surprise is on me when I return. Vandals have found recreation in tearing down memo boards, smearing composite pictures and generally declaring themselves the defacement of private property. This doesn’t become evident until after lock up time and after I return. The surprise is on me when I return. Vandals have grown up to do.

Dorm residents should see the need to band together and rid ourselves of these irresponsible people. They have no right to abolish our rights and certainly no right to overstep the bounds of private property. This doesn’t become an issue of finking, but an issue of self-protection and continuation of the liberties we already have.

HPC Needs to Light Up For Safety
By Suzanne Karpinen

Light up! That’s exactly what our school needs to do... light up. Not light up a cigarette, but light up the campus with outside lighting.

This year more than ever we need more outside lighting on campus. We have an increase in students, a decrease in parking spaces and more night classes than we’ve ever had. Because of these incidents we have more people walking around campus at night.

Many people have night classes in Cooke Hall. Furthermore, many of us end up parking at the gym because parking near the dorms is usually not available. Therefore, many girls are forced to walk alone from the gym area to the dorms. This is a major part of these incidents. From the gym to the women’s dormitories is a very dark walk. This is the ideal place for any innocent girl to be assaulted. The trees are the perfect place for any weirdo to hide and the absence of lighting makes this path the ideal spot for someone to be physically abused. For this reason, I strongly urge that we light up our campus.

We have had several girls chased by would-be rapists in the past... I believe if we had better outside lighting, it would discourage rapists and make it much safer for everyone who has to walk alone at night. With better outside lighting our campus security could spot trouble before it occurred. I feel if we can afford to light the tennis courts for recreational purposes, we can afford to light the dark pathways on campus for safety purposes.

For safety purposes, to discourage assailants and to help our security cops spot trouble easier, are three very valid reasons for more outside lighting. Let’s light up our campus and make it a safer place for everyone.

Enrollment Up

Food Lines Longer, Parking Spots Fewer

By Scott Hance

It has been evident to most people who were here last year that there has been an increase in the number of students on campus this semester. The cafeteria lines have been last. The number of students has increased steadily. The lines have been known to wind their way throughout the cafeteria on one side or up the stairs to the lobby on the other.

Other evidences of the larger number of people around are the lack of parking spaces. Even the day student parking lot has been full for the last four. After trying to avoid the numerous rut rats that run throughout the unpaved lot, one often finds no available spots.

Let’s take a look at the figures. Approximately 265-270 freshmen entered HPC this fall compared to 225 last fall. The number of transfers practically doubled this year. Almost 100 transfers enrolled this year while only 56 students transferred to High Point last year. Out of last Spring’s 960 students, close to 584 returned this year. With 15 students re-admitted this fall plus 33 special and unclassified students, the total enrollment for the fall semester nears 1,000.

A new addition to the enrollment figure this year is the 65 or so people enrolled in the continuing education program. This would bring the total college enrollment to about 1075 students.

One problem not caused by the larger number of students is in the housing area. According to Dean Hanson, there has been no real housing problems this year. As a matter of fact, the biggest problem so far has been trying to fill all the rooms in Millis and Belk. As of last Spring, all of the dorms are almost full.

The new director of admissions, Alfred Hassell, was pleased with the admissions this year even though most of the new admissions had been taken care of before he arrived. He was also quick to add that the quality of students is very high compared to most other small colleges in the area.

The number of students from the north continues to remain high with a good many students coming from Maryland, New York, New Jersey, and Delaware.

With students dropping out and new students coming in, the enrollment figures will change slightly before dropping off a little in the second semester which is not uncommon.
Coping with Academic Regurgitation

By Jill Christianson

Studying for a test at 1 a.m., many thoughts pass through my head... Will I learn all this get out? What good is it to prepare for a test when I'll forget everything afterwards? Imagine what a class without tests would look like... Surely my concrete thoughts of accounting wander from the book off into the clouds. Think of a time without tests. Learning would take place because of a desire to do so, not because of grades.

An education without tests is quite possible, but it takes a good deal of motivation and maturity. The student must be willing to accept the responsibility of his/her own education. Success would be determined by the student's increase of knowledge through independent study. Maturity would have to exist, otherwise laziness would prevail. One would have to realize the importance of learning in order to do well.

Motivation for this type of learning is very necessary. A student without a purpose and desire would have no where. Setting of goals is needed in order to accomplish challenges. Without motivation, no progress would be made.

On the professor's side, a system without tests would be much more challenging. Students would need to be provided with stimuli by the professors. Professors thus would need to beef up their teaching methods to promote more involvement from the students. Teaching would be much easier for the professors; they would not need to spend time making tests, grading, and informing students of their grade in the course.

The lack of tests would ease the worries of students.

Cheating would be almost non-existent in the system. Students would have no need to cheat without test grades. Education without tests would cut down the amount of cheating in courses by a considerable amount.

Is this idea of learning in a school without tests all too idealistic? There are many different ways to run such a school. Here at High Point College there is a mathematics course offered which is without tests.

Dr. Page head of the Mathematics Department is teaching Geometry without any tests. Throughout the semester there is daily class work, which gives the entire class an idea about how everyone is doing. The class is small and all of the students have either had Dr. Page as a professor or an advisor before.

This is the first time for Dr. Page to offer such a course at HPC, though he has taught courses of this type before at UNC-G. He believes that a small class of mature people is necessary in order for it to run well. Dr. Page said, as one of his students did too, that students work very hard in the course. At the end of the course there will be a final exam offered for those who want it, but it is not mandatory.

Asked if he thought a college could run efficiently without any grades, Dr. Page replied no, students have to have some type of reward for their work. He believes that students are so geared to having grades as motivation that such a system would not work.

Dr. Page suggested an alternative type of learning, one which is often used in European universities. He recommended an educational system that would perhaps last four years, the entire time without grades. Then at the end of that period the student would be called up before an examining board of scholars. These scholars would determine if the student professed enough knowledge to be given a diploma. If so, the student receives a diploma; if not the student either leaves school or studies more. This type of an educational system would require great maturity on the part of the student.

Ms. Rawley shared an idea of hers about a grade-less school. She would like to advise ten highly motivated students over the court of four years. These students would have their classes together with no tests or grades. The education of these students would be free enough to allow them to leave school for different educational trips. The professors of these students would report to her as to the progress of the students. At the end of their studies then, students would receive written recognition of their unusual studies.

There are some colleges around that have stopped giving tests and grades to students. The Prescott College in Arizona offers a contract system. Students draw up contracts of what they wish to accomplish; they are free to leave school when they have completed these contracts. Raymond-Callison College in California runs on a pass/fail evaluation grading system. Western Washington University has a written evaluatory grading system.

'It is possible to get away from traditional tests and grades. Until you decide to escape from the system, study your material tonight, memorize it, digest it, and then vomit the whole mess back up for your tests tomorrow. Do that well and you'll get an "A."'

Student Legislature Meets

By Nancy Reichle

The HPC student legislature met Tues., Sept. 19 in Meeting Rm. 1 of the Student Center. Norris Woody, speaker, presided over the meeting. Newly appointed legislature members are Milky Green, parliamentarian, and April Kear, senior representative.

Some important topics of discussion at the meeting included: the possibility of getting cablevision for a campus TV in the student center, the beginning of the re-organization of the student union rules of order by visiting other schools and studying their systems, and the good turn out of candidates for freshman elections.

Caryn Reinhart, SGA president, reported that student-faculty committees have been selected and members have been notified. Reinhart also stated that the brainstorming session went well. Some of the ideas brought up are as follows: changing cafeteria supper hours to 5:00-6:00 p.m., changing refrigerator temperatures from a 3.0 to a 4.0, and having the soccer field bleachers fixed to possibly hold graduation there.

Reinhart also informed the body that Mike Wallace handed in his resignation as general manager of the radio station. Fred Patterson is serving temporarily in that position now. The radio station will officially go on the air Sun., Sept. 24. It will operate six days a week from 6:00 p.m.-2:00 a.m. The station is 90.5 on the radio dial.

Chip Aldridge reported that traffic court will meet next Wed., Sept. 27 at 11:00 a.m. in Meeting Rm. 1. Aldridge also informed the body that those caught for alcohol on campus -- first offense -- are now being allowed to complete 10 hours of work to benefit the school instead of paying the $25.00 fine. Other judicial news included the selection of William Price as prosecutor of the supreme court.

Two committee chairmen were elected as follows: April Kear as chairman of the security committee and French Bolen as chairman of the faculty evaluation committee.

Final orders of business included the allocation of money to buy five new refrigerators to be rented to students and the allocation of money to send Mike Showalter and Rhonda Banker to the student leadership conference at Pfeiffer College this past weekend.

Security Suggestions Offered

The High Point College Campus Security Department has made the following suggestions for campus safety and security:

Protect yourself in the dorm, on campus, or off campus.

1. Keep your door locked. Leaving it open for even one minute is an invitation to robbery or attack.
2. Always know who is knocking before you open the door.
3. Never leave doors open for friends who are coming "later."
4. Don't leave your room keys lying around in your room; keep them out of sight.
5. Always lock your dorm room if you are alone after hours, at night.
6. If approached by a stranger, never answer questions concerning your self. Advise any stranger on campus to see the right office - Student Personnel or the Business Office.

Protect property.
1. Report any suspicious activity by any one hanging around your dormitory, classroom, or other campus buildings.
2. Help protect school property and equipment from theft, unauthorized use, or vandalism.
3. Mark all items of value with your name & social security number.
4. Keep all serial numbers and mark identification on all radios, tape players, and similar property.
5. Keep bicycles locked with chain in a lighted area.
6. Check your automobile often if it has been parked for a while. Most cars are broken into when left unattended and parked in the same location for a lengthy time.

In handing the suggestions to the Hi-Po, Lt. Don Walton said that "In the long run, all students can help reduce acts of vandalism on campus by helping each other. Help us to help you. Report anything out of the ordinary on our campus. An act of vandalism is costly to all of us."

*50 HPC students said most professors at the college are dedicated scholars in their fields - only four strongly disagreed; *31 said there is a recognized group of leaders on campus, such as the Student Government Association (average); *45 said the upperclassmen play an active role in helping freshmen adjust to college life (way above any university figure, but most small private colleges such as High Point should excel in this area). Finally, the college has a reputation for being friendly - 51 responded affirmative.

Dean Guy took the results of the survey and compared them to a National Scale of colleges and universities surveyed recently. He concluded that students here are in the top 18 schools of higher education in their attitudes toward professors. Sixty-two of the 100 colleges and universities surveyed fell below High Point College. So this area turned out very positive.

He concluded that the educational benefits mentioned earlier don't vary significantly with the nation, although HPC was considerably more positive in the humanistic area.

In the area of feelings toward the college environmental HPC in general, Dean Guy concluded HPC ranks about 10 percent above the national average. He said there needs to be more awareness of national issues and other frills.

Dean Guy said the students here are really involved in their courses, grades, and jobs, but are not involved in their courses, grades, and jobs, but are not interested in frills, speakers, discussion topics - or they are heavily involved in social aspects rather than national events.

He went on to say this is the reason for the series of discussion forums set up with faculty this year, so that students may have the opportunity to get involved in the discussion interaction increase their awareness.

"But at no time or on any category did we fall on the negative side of the scale," said Dean Guy, "and I consider anything below the national average as negative."

The majority will find this a good college with dedicated professors who know students names, and take a personal interest in them;" said Dean Guy. "And the reason for this," he continued, "is that we are a small private college and we have the time to give personal attention that large colleges and universities don't have the time to give."

Dean Guy said the biggest reason he finds as to why students transfer is financial, "High Point College is not state supported," he said, "and the majority of transfers to state supported schools such as Appalachian State University, University of Maryland, University of North Carolina at Greensboro, and North Carolina A&T."

"You don't see students transferring to other private colleges unless they just don't fit in here and want to go to a prestige school such as Davidson, Wake Forest, or other prestigious private schools."

As to how to decide which college is suited for each student, Dean Guy said prospective students have to eat where students eat, sleep where students sleep, and socialize where students socialize, to see if they fit in.
Philosophy Returns to Rightful Rule

By Ray Daniel

Philosophy has been sought to be declining, by one, in today's colleges. Dr. Weatherly, head of the department, disputes that. He feels that at one time, however, it had been dominated by Philosophy of Analysis, which was more related to the field of science. Now he feels it is returning to its rightful role and is greatly important to be individual, as well as to culture and society as a whole.

Historically, philosophy has been behind every major religious, economical, and political movement ever made. Historic philosophers who have begun such movements include Buddha, Adam Smith, Karl Marx, Thomas Payne, and Thomas Jefferson.

Educationally, it exercises the mind and broadens understanding. Therefore, it stimulates learning. Philosophy pulls the facts together from all the specialized sciences, analyzes them, and then makes a unified philosophy on a wide basis. In this way, it forms a total world view of ideas and allows a student to speak carefully, and logically on a subject. It also attempts to answer the ultimate questions of life and the universe. Philosophy does not claim to answer all of them, but it will seek the truth.

Occupationally, it opens several doors. Unlike most people, who usually have either religious or scientific philosophies, those who major in philosophy have been able to tie the two fields together. Because of their broad base of knowledge and thought, businesses snap up these open minded students.

By Paula Prillman

High Point College has added a new program to its curriculum this year: the Reserve Officers Training Corp. ROTC may be the key to a successful future for many HPC students.

The programs at HPU and Winston-Salem State University are both affiliates of Wake Forest's highly successful program. At High Point, 22 students have enrolled in the course. Many of the students that took ROTC to fill a gap in their schedules are now considering continuing with the final 2 years of the program. One such student is sophomore Andreia Blanchard who stated, "I like the idea of a guaranteed income when I graduate; anyway, I think I'm going to like that kind of job..."

A student who stays in the program through his or her junior and senior year, will be assured $100 a month until graduation and would also be guaranteed employment upon graduation.

Following completion of the program, the student enters into the Army as a 2nd lieutenant for 3 years. The individual is placed, upon request, into one of 23 divisions -- the division in which he or she is best suited.

Captain Dave Walters is presently instructing HPC's ROTC program.

He is very supportive of this method of training and feels that, "ROTC stresses the presence of the university in the military, rather than the presence of the military in the university."

Upperclassmen Steve Moss and Frank Whalin are both members of the advanced ROTC program. Steve Moss expressed his feelings about the program by stating, "Now that I'm in the advanced program, I'm enjoying the financial benefits."

Since there was no program offered last year, Steve and Frank got their Basic Training at Fort Knox. Steve found that, "Fort Knox did a good job in preparing me for my higher level training courses. In fact, I find that I'm pretty much ahead of the program."

The male/female enrollment ratio seems to be fairly even in all three schools. There are more men than women enrolled in High Point's program. The uneven ratio may be due to the lack of knowledge of the program. Anyone in need of information concerning ROTC, please contact Capt. Dave Walters in office 2, Cooke Hall. Class is held on Tuesdays at 2:00 p.m.

Drinking for Jerry's Kids

By Leslie Davis

Theta Chi Fraternity, in cooperation with Tom's Brass Rail, sponsored a fund raiser for Muscular Dystrophy, Sunday, September 17.

For four hours, approximately one hundred people entered "the rail" to drink for Jerry's kids. All but about 10% were from the college.

When asked how they came up with the idea, social chairman John Machekoski said, "We always try to help out other organizations."

Panthers Sweep Home Doubleheader

By Irish Gaymon

The Lady Panthers traveled to Chapel Hill, September 19th, to play the unpredictable Tarheels of Carolina. High Point ran up against some very tough competition. Injuries proved to be a determining factor with Marie Riley, returning MVP, suffering from strained stomach muscles and Ana Gonzalez with ankle trouble, as the girls lost a well contested match against the Heels.

But, as all Panther fans know, nothing stops Coach Briley and her girls from reaching their main goal -- the nationals. This point was well proved in the first home game as High Point went up against the very energetic team from Pembroke. The Lady Indians were well prepared for what High Point had to give. With Pembroke taking the first game and High Point the second, the Panthers dug in for the final game. Freshman Bonnie Lynch's booming serve and excellent spiked ability coupled with Ana Gonzalez' setting techniques set the pace for the Panthers win.

The second game of the evening involved High Point and U.N.C.--Asheville. This game proved to be less contested as the Lady Panthers took the win in two straight games.

The next home game for the Lady Panthers will be September 27 against Le- nor-Rhyne and Wake Forest.

The Shriver Family

By Paula Prillman

Freshman Marion Shriver is very proud of her superstar family. Most tennis enthusiasts watched Marion's sister Pam, attempt to melt away Chris Evrett's "Ice Maiden" title in the 1978 U.S. Open in Forest Hills, N.Y. Evrett's concentration was clearly hindered by 16 year old Pam's explosive serve and volley game. She barely struggled by Shriver with scores of (7-5), (6-4). I believe that Pam's height was a definite advantage. "Pam is 6'0" and has excellent reach; it's very difficult to get a shot by her at net."

The first half ended scoreless with neither team showing any threat. However, the Panthers were more effective in the second half. Senior Laura Billings scored with six minutes remaining in the game, but the goal was called back because of an offsides penalty. The Panthers have 12 veterans returning from last year's 14-2-1 squad. Four seniors form the nucleus around which the Panthers have built. Centerforward Patti Wootten tallied 16 goals last season to set a school record. Team MVP Debbie Weber, Laura Billings and Linda Ensey are adept at getting the ball to Wootten and will team with her in the forward line.

Three juniors, Kim Hall, Alyson Wilk, and Vickie Higgin, are the key to a strong defense which helped sophomore goalkeeper Stephanie Higgin record 10 shutouts last year.

The Panthers face their toughest season this year. They must play five out of the eight teams in the state in order to be seeded for the state tournament. Their schedule includes UNC-CH, Duke, UNC-G, Wake Forest, East Carolina, and Appalachian State, all tough teams to beat. The team will also go to Virginia Tech for a weekend in which six or seven teams will play each other for two days.

Mrs. Steele commented about the upcoming season. "We'll have to be ready to play each game because of our success last year. (The Panthers finished second in the state to UNC-Ch.) Everybody across the state seems to be stronger and they will be up for us. It will be an interesting year.

The Lady Panthers will travel to Catawba on Thursday, Sept. 28 and will be back at High Point on Sunday, Oct. 1st to play a double header against Phieffer and UNC-CH beginning at 1:00.

Field Hockey Squad Opens With Win

By Colleen Blackney

The High Point College Panthers opened their 1978 field hockey season on Friday, Sept. 22nd with a 1-0 victory over Averett College. The much-improved Averett team and poor field conditions of rain, lightning, and thunder proved to be a tough struggle for the Panthers.

The first half ended scoreless with neither team showing any threat. However, the Panthers were more effective in the second half. Senior Laura Billings scored with six minutes remaining in the game, but the goal was called back because of an offsides penalty. The game remained scoreless until less than 30 seconds remained when Sophomore Sharon Kalhner scored on an assist from Patti Wootten.

Coach Kitty Steele commented about the game. "We are playing a new system with some new girls and we need a little more time to get used to it and to work together."

The Panthers have 12 veterans returning from last year's 14-2-1 squad. Four seniors form the nucleus around which the Panthers have built. Three juniors, Kim Hall, Alyson Wilk, and Vickie Higgin, are the key to a strong defense which helped sophomore goalkeeper Stephanie Higgin record 10 shutouts last year.

Two freshmen have made an immediate contribution to the Panthers. They are Jeannett Welsh and Patty Fortun. The Panthers face their toughest season this year. AUSPICIOUS is the key word to describe the High Point College athletic teams past and present. Gene Littles was an All-America basketball player during the 60s and Marie Riley is beginning to make some noise of her own across the nation; just to name a few who have contributed to the Panthers winning ways.

Now that a new school year has arrived, anticipation in the autumn months is almost certain to make future teams a success before their graduation in 1982.

Soccer-track star Ralph Barnes of Bay Shore, Long Island, N.Y. and All-North Carolina girls basketball Roxann Moody of Bear Creek were highly recruited by HPC officials during their touted high school careers. Panther Profiles examines both:

RALPH BARNES, 5-5, 130-pounds, Bay Shore, Long Island, N.Y. - After only a month of school it's no secret that Barnes is one of the most promising soccer players on the HPC field. Presently, Barnes is playing second man off the bench, which is pleasing enough to the likable New Yorker. Barnes was a three sport star at Bay Shore High School. Soccer was where he gained all his fame being named All-LI three years and all three at different positions. Of his three positions, Barnes takes a special liking to the halfback spot he played his senior year when he was named All-County, for the second straight year.

"I wanted to help the team out and control the field some," Barnes said. "It helped cut away some of the inexperience we had and it helped our team overall."

College has been an pleasant surprise for Barnes thus far. One reason he chose High Point was to escape the Long Island area. But, he had to work vigorously for his scholarship for the eventual departure. "I knew college was expensive so I really worked on my game. I worked so that colleges would look at me. I played basketball and I ran track so practice time to perfect one of those games was hard to find," he added.

"It's hard to put time in all three sports and sharpen your skills."

Track isn't off his perogatives during his collegiate days, although he realizes his height is a definite disadvantage to try-out for the Panther basketball team. His brother, Edward was a contributing factor to Barnes' high school success in track.

Edward convinced Barnes that his contributing events would be the jumping events. So, Barnes switched over from the running department to the high jump and triple jump. The 21-8 long jump leap he recorded his junior year was his best ever, but to no avail - no visit to the New York state meet. Still, it would have placed third in the North Carolina State meet in 1978. Barnes vaulted 44-9 in the triple jump his senior year that was 3rd best in Suffolk County and got him a trip to the state. That leap would have placed fifth in the N.C. meet this year.

Part of Barnes' scholar- ship is to run track, or jump it, here at HPC. "Track is a part of Barnes' scholar- ship is to run track, or jump it, here at HPC. "Track is a pain instead of enjoyment."

ROXANN MOODY, 5-5, 110-pounds, Bear Creeks, N.C. - Roxann's climb to state stardom resembles that of Barnes. During her younger days, she played basketball with her six brothers in the backyard while being coached by her daddy. All the neighborhood gang would gather for a roundball game with her brothers considered it a worry want to let their little sister play, they did anyhow. And by her senior year, with all that backyard seasoning, Roxann Moody had been named All-State, All-East, named to the North Carolina East-West All-Star game in Greensboro and the ultimate -- a state championship.

Tony Nieliubowicz is the leading scorer for the Panthers. Larry Morris, Walter Rowe, Steve Asbury, John Bourdis, Scott Tomsic, and Jorge Nobre are other scorers. The defense is headed by sweeperback Paul Lessard and goalkeeper Todd Miller.

The opening match was a 3-2 loss to UNC-Greensboro. The next game the Panthers controlled and beat Greensboro College 4-1. Warren Wilson was the next victim as HPC won 2-1 in overtime. The Panther's second loss was at the hands of N.C. State 2-0. In their first conference match, the Panthers overwhelmed Catawba 7-0.

The next scheduled soccer match is Thursday, Sept. 28, at Appalachian State starting at 7:30.

Continuing Education

Program For Adults Underway At Night

By Kim Darden

High Point College, in the quest of becoming a more vital institution more meeting the needs of the community, opened a program this August
Continuing Education.

A Continuing Education program is designed especially to meet the needs of adults and other non-traditional students.

The program makes a college promotion and degree accesle to the student while allowing him to maintain regular job and/or a family possibility. Students have access to H.P.C. from all rural and urban areas. Nonans, housewives, those le in their present jobs, or those seeking just knowledge fill the rooms of Robert Hall, where the classes are taught on Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday nights. Ages of students range from senior citizens to as young as 21.

Mrs. Rawley says that High Point "had been talking about" starting Continuing Education here for a couple of years or so. According to Rawley, the need for such programs in colleges is a growing one.

"The population of 18 year olds is decreasing and the 25-35 age group is becoming the largest in our society," she says. "Our society is getting older, so this age group has the greatest need for education." So, Mrs.
Rawley did some "investigative work" this summer, visiting other schools with Continuing Education.

"Then I pretty much decided we could start here," she says.

The turnout for the first 8-week session was much greater than expected-67 students pre-registered.

"We were hoping for 40 or so at the most," says Raw-ley. The higher number put High Point in a good position because there we're more than enough students to fill the classroom and to employ the night teachers.

High Point College now joins the ranks of the few small colleges in the state that operate a Continuing Education Program.

2nd Chance

If the response of the students is any indication, many adults are hungry for the opportunity for education High Point is offering. For one middle-aged man. His studies at High Point is the realization of a lifetime dream. He is a mechanic at Thomas Car Works who always dreamed of coming to High Point to further his education. Before it was impossible but now he may work and go to school. He is working towards a business degree that will undoubtedly boost him professionally.

For others, it is a second chance. 23-year old Jeff Eddinger started college out of high school but, "majored in partying and had too good a time." So he flunked the first semester and went home. But now he is dedicated to his education and is seeking a degree in accounting at High Point.

"I really enjoy these class," he says. "And they fit my schedule perfectly."

Growing

The Continuing Education program is growing and moving forward at High Point College.

"Everyday I get 3 or 4 calls from more interested people," says Rawley. "I've already received 15 new applications for next session, and all this before we even started advertising."

When asked how far the program could expand here, Mrs. Rawley replied: "Well, we have class space for 1000 and plenty of qualified tea-cers available."

In a bathing suit ad, only torso standing in water were shown. Key says that the man and woman in the photograph had switched bat-sing suit bottoms. The water was touching the her inferring, said Key, "that the female needs washing more than the male." And if you look closely, Key said, you could "see the image of a face leering at her crotch."

The point, according to Key, is that through these small details that the eye is not consciously aware of picking up, advertisers sell products. The human being is sexual in nature and it is the sexual inferences that sell the public.

"The photographs that you think you see in many liquor advertisements, said Dr.
Key, are actually air brush paintings. An artists does a picture on a six by eight foot panel, paints sexual symbols into the shadows and then photographs and reduces the image.

In one ad, not only sexual stimuli were used, but also symbols of the hallucinations that alcoholics have during withdrawal symptoms. According to Key, alcoholics have hallucinations of danging in mid air with no support and dreams of reptiles. In this ad, a severed torso was hanging in the air and there was an image of a snake charmer with a cobra.
There was also a nude body and a castrated penis to convey sexuality.

WOMEN FEEL THEY NEED A CHANGE

Suzanne Karppinen

Rules, regulations and restrictions. Sure, we have more than our share of rules and regulations, considering we decided to attend a Methodist oriented college. But why are some students at HPC faced with more restrictions than others? I believe the answer to this lies within the dorms. Not exactly within the entire dorm, but within those dormitory heads and resident assistants. This is why, when occasionally one of these rules is broken, there should be someone that we (the women) could go to. Someone we could relate with and become friends with. Someone we could go to with any problem. I feel this type of situation exists within the men's dorms, for the simple reason that the guys have young, reasonable resident assistants. This is why, when trouble does occur within the men's quarters it is not reported as frequently as that of the women's dorms.

That is why I feel it is time to take action. We are not living in the 1920's anymore. There are young responsible women on this campus who need the direction of young, understanding dorm assistants. This is why we need a change! To benefit the women as well as the college.

Ten Dollar Concert Tickets Given Away

By Chip Aldridge

Did you receive one of the free ten dollar concert tickets that the Student Union gave away? You didn't? Well it's not your fault. At the Mountain Wood Band Concert (Sat. Sept. 22) only about a hundred and eighty students showed up. This is a generous "guess-timate". Considering the fact that the two and half hour show took us three hours to prepare for and cost the Student Union right at $1800.00 the audience that showed up showed us that we were very privileged. Oh, don't think too much about where the money came from. You've already paid it as part of your student activities fee.

We're not a big college.

We can't afford to bring in big-name stars that cost ten times the money for the same amount of entertainment. You can go to a big school to see a top-forty performer for $200, but you're also going to pay four to six dollars for a seat.

I guess I'm a bit put-off when people would turn down a free concert. What really amazes me is that people would have to be tempted to a concert by the chance of winning free records.

I hope those of you who went to the Wood Band concert enjoyed it. There just might not be another Student Union concert this year. Too much work, too much money and too little interest. The Student Union is tired of banging their heads against the wall trying to find new ways to babysit college students.

Babysitting is what I do when you have to go to people out and feed them what they want so you can have the housing of students. We all have certain rules concerning dorm regulations. 1) Can privately owned refrigerators be searched by dormitory heads and resident assistants as well as those rented from the college and 2) If an empty beer can is found in the room, can the student's name be turned into Student Personnel office and that warrant enough evidence for a search of a room.

It has long been a popular misconception among students that privately owned refrigerators cannot be searched unless a warrant is obtained. However, this is not true. Private fridges as well as those rented from the college can be searched at any time by administrative personnel.

Of course, this isn't to say, that a dorm mother or dorm RA will come into your room at any time and open your fridge door. There should be some evidence to warrant suspicion of the possession of alcoholic beverages.

For example, if a half full can of beer is found lying in your room, then this would be evidence enough to warrant suspicion and have your fridge searched.

Dean of Students, Bill Guy, said, "The notion that private refrigerators cannot be searched is what students would like to believe rather than being the actual case and that it is stated in the handbook that the college reserves the right to search any room at any time.'

High Point College is not unique in this ruling, as traditionally, all colleges and universities reserve the right to evict students from dorms and search rooms at any time. Thus it is not anything like a tenant-landlord situation in which the renter has certain privacy rights.

Dean Guy said colleges originated these regulations as it was thought that a primary function of college was to provide environment in which students would choose to live and live under as normal a college experience.

So, all colleges and universities built dormitory campuses for their students to live in, instead of having students rent rooms outside apartments.

Dean Guy said he has no college or university in the country that does not have students who have the housing set up on landlord-tenant lines.

He added that he foresees colleges and universities forging this trend in the near future.

At the beginning of the semester, many students rented Belk Dorm were come over a rumor that this: if any empty liquor, or other alcoholic beverage container is in the room or suite, the Student Personnel Office and will warrant search of the room.

Once again in talking to Dean Guy, we found that it is just what is going on - a rumor.

No 'Kings In Castles' at At HP

[Editor's note: On a small college campus, communication between students and administrative & faculty personnel is supposed to be excellent.

However, this is not always the case as students with problems, questions, or just needing information do not always know who to go to or where to find the information they need.

Thus, Actionline is a column designed to bridge the communication gap and help students find the answers they need.

If any student has a question or needs information, let us try and help you out. Just drop a letter off to the campus post office for the Hi-Po, Box 3510 or slide the letter under the Hi-Po door on the second floor of the Campus Center.]

Today Actionline takes a look at a couple of questions concerning dorm regulations. 1) Can privately owned refrigerators be searched by dormitory heads and resident assistants as well as those rented from the college and 2) If an empty beer can is found in the room, can the student's name be turned into Student Personnel office and that warrant enough evidence for a search of a room.

It has long been a popular misconception among students that privately owned refrigerators cannot be searched unless a warrant is obtained. However, this is not true. Private fridges as well as those rented from the college can be searched at any time by administrative personnel.

Of course, this isn't to say, that a dorm mother or dorm RA will come into your room at any time and open your fridge door. There should be some evidence to warrant suspicion of the possession of alcoholic beverages.

For example, if a half full can of beer is found lying in your room, then this would be evidence enough to warrant suspicion and have your fridge searched.

Dean of Students, Bill Guy, said, "The notion that private refrigerators cannot be searched is what students would like to believe rather than being the actual case and that it is stated in the handbook that the college reserves the right to search any room at any time.'

High Point College is not unique in this ruling, as traditionally, all colleges and universities reserve the right to evict students from dorms and search rooms at any time. Thus it is not anything like a tenant-landlord situation in which the renter has certain privacy rights.

Dean Guy said colleges originated these regulations as it was thought that Why Do We Fail A Course?

By Jill Christianson

What is the result of lack of motivation? Failure. On average, one out of every 10 HPC students failed a course during last fall semester and interim. I didn't have motivation," said one student who took a mathematics course. I didn't go to class like I should have. I read the assignments, but never was tested in class work. My scores dropped and finally I failed the course," said another student. I didn't deserve to flunk," a teacher and I had counseling appointments. I didn't homework because of a lack of interest in the course," yet another student. According to Dean Guy, third of all freshmen have deficiencies in their course by midterm of semester. He stated that are "happens because student has not yet learned how to organize his time." Freshman in a "a lack of freedom and social opportunities" to advantage of. The course that I failed not in my major area, so that the failure will order my future," said one student.

Many students at HPC claim that they came to college for the first semester, and using task forces in the student center. Some important issues discussed were encouraging dorm courts to write by-laws for the individual and the beginning of reorganization of the student union rules of order reviewing other schools. Votes for freshmen office were held yesterday, Wednesday, Oct. 10. The candidates for office were as follows: Steve Smith and Mark Ma for president, Ron Ross and Gay Goldtrap for treasurer, Paul Bellingham for secretary, Nancy Richardson and an Christian for chairman, and Nancy Berg for legislature, and "Roehl for judicial representative.

High Point College will sponsor a Carolina Conference Seminar on Oct. 20 and 21. Dean Guy will be speaking on problem solving and using task forces in the process. Students from schools in the conference will attend the seminar. Mike Showalter and Sharon Billings will represent HPC at the seminar. In response to the brainstorming session, "the change to a 4.0 scale is being checked into, and Mr. Caul-dridge will be asked to come by the Student Personnel office. It seems then that RA's have gotten started over the weekend concersing drinking on campus. As one student said, "It wasn't affected by that failure. It's on my record, but that doesn't mean much to me.'" Another continued, "I studied more after I failed my math course. After a while though, I realized that studying wasn't so important. Slowly I lost motivation in learning again."

Students at High Point College are not overly concerned about getting high marks in school. Many, from one time to another, experience the lack of motivation which often leads to failure of a course. As a student fails a course, interest in the subject is lost, leading to further slipping of grades. Some say that they have to do anything about the lack of motivation.

Dean Guy said the rumor may have gotten started over clarification he made at the beginning of the year concerning drinking on campus. It seems then that RA's thought they had to actually see the student drinking alcoholic beverages before they could report the student to the personnel office. Dean Guy said the RA's had the wrong idea of what a drinking violation of campus meant. A violation also includes the possession of alcoholic beverages in the room or suite. In other words, if a half of a can of beer is sitting in the room and a RA finds it sitting there on inspection, then the possession is present. If the can was empty, there would be no violation, but if any alcoholic content is present it violates the campus rules as specified in the student handbook. It If there is possession of alcohol, the student will be asked to come by the Student Personnel office on Monday or Wednesday at 11:00 a.m. to fill out a violation form. This form must be filled out in the presence of Dean Guy or Dean Hanson and the Chief Justice of the Student Judicial Court, Chip Albridge. The student will be asked if he/she wants to plead whether or not they are guilty. If the student admits they are guilty, then they must sign a right to trial waiver form and accept the punishment handed down by the administrative personnel, which would be Dean Guy or Dean Hanson. Otherwise, if the student does not admit they are guilty, they can take the case to the student court, where they will be tried by the judicial court and his peers. But, Dean Guy said most students admit they are guilty, they can take the case to the student court, where they will be tried by the judicial court and his peers. Punishment is a $25 fine or ten hours working for the college for the first violation. It used to be automatic suspension.
The Life Of A College Journalist

By Linda Cain

Many avid newspaper readers view the business of putting out a newspaper as glamorous and exciting. They visualize journalists as leading lives full of handsome men, beautiful women, and money. This is untrue of the average college journalist.

The college journalist is a mixture of empty aspirin bottles a worn-out typewriter, and a trash can full of crumpled paper. He is always trying to find ways to stretch a day from 24 hours to 48 hours. The college journalist is constantly rearranging his schedule to make everything fit within what is humanly possible.

The budding journalist writes with skill and tactfulness. Everything he writes a sentence he must take it apart like a puzzle to make sure that all the words fit together properly. He must check the subject and verb for agreement. He, then, should inspect the sentence closely to see if there are any mispelled words or that he did not correct it immediately.

There are four important days in the life of a college journalist.

The first is doing a story on a person he has never met before. When the inexperienced writer talks with the person, he is armed with a set of questions, note pad, and pencil. He is trying hard to appear self-confident; when in reality, his knees are shaking and he is scared stiff.

The next is the day he sees his first article in print. The young newspaper person goes over his articles with a fine tooth to make sure there are no errors.

The third is layout day. This day occurs once every two weeks and involves cooperation on the part of the entire staff of the newspaper. Layout lasts half a day and it tests the ability of each journalist to stay sane. The time is spent putting down fine black lines, proofreading, counting lines, and laying typed copy down on lined paper. The only other affects are wax on one's finger tips from the backs of the articles.

The final day is when the college journalist interviews his first famous person. The young reporter tries to hide his fright by remembering that the famous person is human too. He hopes that he will not mispronounce a word or take down the wrong information.

A college journalist's work is never done. There are always articles to write and papers to lay out, but all the hard work is not in vain when the young reporter sees his article being read.

Blooming Over With Daffodils

By Leslie Davis

This spring, High Point College students can look forward to an array of various colored daffodils blooming all over campus. Thanks to the generous donation from Duck Bain Carrick.

Carrick, a noted horticulturist from High Point, donated thousands of daffodil bulbs to High Point College after this death in 1962. This prompted Jack Thompson, Superintendent of Building and Grounds, to salvage the remaining bricks from Carrick's torn down house and have a memorial monument built out of them. This monument is located behind Belk Dormitory in what High Point College calls "Carrick Gardens". There are several benches donated by various Carrick admirers which give the garden a park atmosphere.

Mr. Ira Carter, horticulturist, and Donald Balz are in charge of coordinating and replanting the bulbs. They are in the process now of replanting over 20,000 bulbs to help beautify our campus.

Be sure to keep your eyes open for all the daffodils this spring. They will be in all colors, shapes, and sizes, including one shape that will be familiar to all. This recognizable shape will be in the form of the letters HPC.

HPC's Professional Putte

Jay Gammon:

By Ray Daniel

Jay Gammon is one of the many interesting personalities here at High Point College. He is a senior, majoring in Accounting. That may not be too astonishing to most, but one aspect that is a little unusual, is that he gets paid for having fun. Not many of us are that lucky, but Jay plays Putt-Putt professionally.

He began playing as an amateur in 1974. After about one year, he turned pro. During his first professional year, he managed to break the world's record for three rounds of Putt-Putt. His scores were 23, 23, and 22, for a total of 68. That record stood until a year ago, when Steve Lyon, of Greensboro, made it in 66. In 1975, he won his most important contest. It was a $1500 world qualifying tournament.

After his first year, he quit until recently. His reason for quitting was that college left him no time to play. But he has come back. He has won the High Point state qualifying tournament, and later finished tenth in the state since his return to the sport.

When asked, what he enjoys about the sport, he said that he really likes the competition. "North Carolina has the best putters in the world." But the tournaments really put pressure on a player, in cause of the competition. Great champions. However, even with his demands, Jay says of Putt-Putt, "I enjoy more than anything I've done before."

Concerning the finance aspects, Jay modestly says that he has not really made much money from it -- "not about $3500." That sort like pretty good pay for having fun.

With or without play Putt-Putt, Jay has found years at HPC to be "most rewarding years" of his life. Although he was at first skeptical, he now firmly believes in the quality of the college and the professional relationships of the sport. He feels that not only does students get along together well, but the faculty can also be more for the individuals than at most of the other colleges.

After graduation, he plans to be either a Certified Public Accountant, and for a firm, or work in the accounting department of the industry. He also wants to continue competing as he as able.
Cloning Is Only A Matter Of Time

By Paula Prillman

Students and teachers alike filled the trustees dining room to hear Dr. Weeks' lecture on the controversial topic of cloning.

True cloning is the process of taking an egg cell, removing the nucleus from that cell, then replacing that nucleus with any body cell -- from any donor. Although cloning is presently in the planning stage, Dr. Weeks contends that, "It is only a matter of time before an actual clone will be produced."

These clones will possess the same genetic structure as the cell donor. The clone's inherent mental and physical potential will be totally dependent on that of the donor. Dr. Weeks mentioned that cloning has been performed on a small scale. Theory was changed to reality when scientists successfully cloned a frog and a carrot.

The process of cloning food, such as a carrot, is very different from true human cloning; true cloning was performed on a small scale with a body cell from a frog. A procedure called "somatic hybridization" is used in food cloning. In this process, the scientist mixes chromosomes to produce higher food quality. Various qualities, such as taste, appearance, and nutrients are theoretically cloneable in food.

Dr. Weeks recently attended a National Science Foundation conference held at the Chatauga Institute/University of Maryland. The format of this conference was "Genetics in Society -- A Dynamic Interaction." The group in attendance ranged from biologists, to Catholic priests, which lead to the expression of the scientific as well as the ethical aspects of cloning.

From a scientific standpoint, Dr. Weeks is fascinated with cloning and feels that experimentation should be continued. Ethically, however, he confessed that true cloning may be a threat to individuality and stated, "Personally, I'm quite satisfied with the present genetic variation."

Mr. William F. Cope, head of HPC's Sociology Department, was very impressed by Dr. Weeks' presentation -- yet very apprehensive in regard to the societal acceptance of clones. He stated, "I don't think society is quite ready for the age of clones." Exact genetic reproduction will present threats that we (society and sociologists) are not ready to work with."

From a strictly scientific standpoint, Cope contended that "cloning would be an almost flawless method to assess the role environment plays in emotional make up."

Dr. Weeks and Mr. Cope agreed on one major point: the ethical aspects of cloning must be thoroughly examined by each member of society. Dr. Weeks stated, "We must remember -- we are talking about human beings, not guinea pigs."

Wildlife Group Seeks Applicants

The National Wildlife Federation has set a deadline of December 31, 1978, for applications from graduate students for its 1979-80 Environmental Conservation Fellowships.

To be eligible applicants must be citizens of the United States, Canada or Mexico who are pursuing degrees in a college or university graduate program or law school. They must be principally engaged in research, rather than course work, in fields related to wildlife, natural resources management, or the protection of environmental quality. The grants range up to $4,000.

In addition to the NWF fellowships, which have been awarded for the past 21 years, the Federation has since 1971 also awarded joint fellowships with the American Petroleum Institute for studies involving petroleum and the conservation of resources.

Traffic Court To Meet

THE HIGH POINT COLLEGE TRAFFIC COURT WILL MEET ON WEDNESDAY MORNINGS AT 11:00 in meeting room ONE of the Campus Center. Dates for Traffic court are: October 11, 25; November 15, 29; and December 13.

Elected student representatives will hear pleading of tickets and rule either to void or uphold the tickets. If ticket is voided, it will not have to be paid. If the ticket is not voided it will have to be paid, but the three dollar late fee will not be attached. Should you receive a traffic ticket and ignore it until the end of the month, it is credited to your account with the the three dollar late fee attached -- making a total of eight dollars. A student may make additional protest to the bursar, but the decision of the courts is normally upheld.

The courts would like to warn students about receiving repeated tickets. According to new handbook rules "If a student receives more than five violations in a semester, it will result in suspension of the offender's car from campus by the Dean of Students." At the time a student receives his fourth ticket the courts will try to contact him. When he receives his sixth ticket he will instructed to remove his car from campus.

If you have any questions concerning Traffic Court or Supreme court, either consult your current Student Handbook or one of the elected court representatives. The representatives are: Chip Aldridge, Junior Class and Chief Justice; Jan Dunkelburzer, Day Student; Tom Miller, Sophomore Class; Matt Dunton, Senior Class and Jackie Hendrix, Attorney General.

Traffic Court will meet in the meeting room in the Campus Center on Wednesday, November 15, 1978 at 11:00 a.m. for the hearing of tickets.

Panthers Sweep Third Straight Joby Hawn Cup

By Chris Harrington

For the third year in a row, High Point College has captured the coveted Joby Hawn Cup, the Carolinas Conference symbol of athletic supremacy. The award was started in 1976 in honor of Mr. H.C. "Joby" Hawn, the first conference commissioner. Points are awarded for each of the eleven conference sports based on the finish. The Panthers have received the cup every year of its existence while only participating in ten out of the eleven sports.

The first cup was won in 76-77 by capturing the women's volleyball and basketball conference championships and finishing second in four other sports. In 77-78, Point amassed 51 points by winning five conference titles (soccer, baseball, women's tennis, volleyball, and basketball) and finishing second in two others.

The 77-78 season proved to be the best year yet as the Panther teams racked up an amazing 57 out of a possible 60 points in taking the award for the third year in a row. In addition, both the men's and women's basketball teams won their conference titles in the first televised conference tournament.

The following is a capsule review of the individual teams in the 77-78 season.

Field Hockey -- Coach Kitty "Ma" Steele

Compiled the best record in school's history of 14-2-1 which included a 14 game win streak. Finished second in NCAAW State Tournament.

Soccer -- Coach Ken Chartier

Won second conference title in a row with a 6-0-0 conference record which included eight shutouts (seven in a row). Overall record of 9-6-0.

Women's Tennis -- Coach Kitty Steele

Completed the best season in the school's history. Finished the regular season at 15-0. Won the Carolina's Conference Tournament, N.C. Division I Tournament, and finished fourth out of twelve in Region II Tournament.

Volleyball -- Coach Wanda Briley

Compiled the best record in history with a 42-10 record. Won Carolinas Conference Tournament, NCAIAW Division II Tournament, and Region II Tournament.

Men's Basketball -- Coach Jerry Steele

Finished the season with an 8-4 conference and 16-14 overall record. Won the regular season crown, Carolina Conference Tournament, and District 26 Tournament.

Women's Basketball -- Coach Wanda Briley

Finished third in the conference and District 26. Overall record of 14-12.

Track -- Coach Bob Davidson

Golf -- Coach Woody Gibson

Won the top four teams in seven out of eight tournaments. Finished second in the Carolinas Conference and third in District 26.

Baseball -- Coach Chuck Hartman

Won 30+ games for the ninth year in a row with a 32-9 record. Rated #12 in final NAIA rankings. Won regular season crown, Carolina Conference Tournament, and District 26 Tournament.

Men's Basketball -- Coach Jerry Steele

Finished the season with an 8-4 conference and 16-14 overall record. Won the regular season title, Carolina Conference Tournament, and co-petitioned in the District 26 Tournament.

Women's Basketball -- Coach Wanda Briley

Finished the season with a 30-8 record. Won 30+ games for the ninth year in a row with a 32-9 record. Rated #12 in final NAIA rankings. Won regular season crown, Carolina Conference Tournament, and District 26 Tournament.

Panther Baseball Ranked 12th

By Chris Harrington

At the close of last semester, the baseball team was gearing up for post-season play. The team moved into the Carolinas Conference Tournament with a 27-7 record. High Point outlasted Elon (11-3) and Pfeiffer (12-5) moving them into the finals against Catawba, the only conference team to beat the Panthers in both previous outings (7-6) and (3-2).

The Pointers won a close (14-10) game to gain the District 26 title. High Point finished the season with a 32-9 record overall and a 10-2 record in the conference. The Panthers were ranked 12th in the nation in the final poll, the seventh straight top twenty ranking for the Panthers.
Summer of '78

No Parties For Mugele

Former High Point star infielder Jim Mugele could probably find 50 different ways to spend his summer—and with more enjoyment than he did during the hot months preceding his graduation from HPC.

The Carolinas Conference Players of the Year in 1978 and a first team NAIA All-America shortstop, Mugele was drafted by the Cincinnati Reds in the late stages of the June 9 free agent draft. He reported to the Reds Shelby, N.C. Farm club and his success wasn't exactly superior compared to his senior year for the Panthers. The Lutherville, Md. native hit .400 jacking 14 home runs and driving 46 RBIs during his final year at HPC. Mugele had started at shortstop since his sophomore year, but didn't suddenly start swinging a sufficient bat until his senior season. Mugele also contributed 20 stolen bases to the Panther attack.

But, after gaining all his honors that also included All-Carolinas Conference, All-District and All-State his senior year, Mugele's summer with Shelby is one he'd rather quickly forget. He played only sparingly at times and when he finally did see some action, he hit a raw .240.

According to High Point Sports Information Director Woody Gibson, Mugele was unhappy about the amount of playing time he got in with Shelby.

So, according to Gibson, Mugele isn't sure whether he'll return to the Reds or not. Mugele is back at High Point finishing school in business where he was named Academic All-America.

Mugele is an excellent fielder with wide range and an excellent throwing arm. Still, he's disgusted about his stay with Shelby and his apparent future in pro baseball.

But Mugele must remember that Dave Concepcion hit in the .300s during his first five years with Cincinnati; former Detroit Tiger great Ed Brinkman couldn't hit that much; and that Larry Bowa of the Philadelphia Phillies is in the running for the 1978 National League Most Valuable Player Award when he hit .290. Bowa gains most of his fame on his defensive heroics.

Field Hockey Splashes Down to Win

The Panther field hockey team boosted its record to 5-2-2 in the past two weeks in route to the state tournament. High Point lost to both UNC-G and Pfeiffer and tied Catawba before they turned their play around and won four games.

The Panther's loss to rival UNC-G was a real heart breaker. After much hard play, the half ended scoreless. UNC-G scored immediately in the second half and High Point rallied to tie the score with ten minutes remaining on a goal by Sharon Kaler. The game ended tied at 1-1. Under the new rules, the two teams played a five minute overtime in which UNC-G scored winning the game 2-1.

Both the Pfeiffer and Catawba matches were hard fought matches in which the Panthers seemed to dominate but could not score. Pfeiffer scored on a break away in the second half to win the game 1-0 and the Catawba game ended in a 0-0 tie.

The Panthers trounced the Carolina Club 5-0 on goals from Linda Ensey, Sharon Kaler, Janelle Welsh, and two by Alice Wainwright.

Then, just two days later the Lady Panthers traveled to Wake Forest to beat the Deacons by a score of 2-0. These goals came from Janelle Welsh with an assist from Patti Wooten and Alice' Wainwright with an assist from Alyson Wilk.

On Oct. 6th and 7th, High Point traveled to VPI for a four game tournament where they won two, lost one, and tied one. While in Virginia, the Panthers played indoors on lighted astro-turf.

The field hockey team's spirit is fabulous and show that they are back on the winning track. They only have three regular seasons games left. They travel to ASU on Oct. 19th and then return home for ECU on Oct. 21st and Duke on Oct. 24th.
Intramurals In Full Swing

by Chris Harrington

Intramurals have moved into high gear as men's tennis and women's volleyball are well underway.

Man's tennis has moved in its final stages. In singles, the winner of the Dagol-Pinol-Anthony Wall match will play Daryl Garner for the championship. In doubles, Scott Johnson and George Phillips will play Daryl Garner and Anthony Wall.

Women's volleyball action started on Oct. 4 with the KD's successfully defeating the Zeta's two out of three; while the Independents had an easy time defeating the Phi Mu's 2-0; with semi-final action beginning on Oct. 23. Four matches will tap off the schedule Wednesday evening beginning at 7:30.

Bringing Woody To HPC

Two by Woody Allen will be presented in the Empty Space Theater (Old Student Center) October 26, 27 and 28 at 8:00 p.m. Admission is free.

The evening consists of two short plays, Death Knocks and Mr. Big. In Death Knocks, dress manufacturer Natalie Ackerman (played by Theatre Arts Education major Noll Torain) is visited by Death, who is played by Cheryl Holmes. Natalie is not ready to go yet, and so she engages Death in a game of gin rummy, with the stakes being an extra day among the living. Mr. Big involves a detective (Mark LaFranco) who is assigned the task of finding God by a beautiful blonde client (Melissa Patton). The detective, Kaiser Lupowitz, questions various individuals including Rabbi Itzak Wiseman (David Douglas) and Chicago Phyllis, an atheist gangster played by Paula Joan Prillman, only to find that the blonde has been leading him on a wild-goose chase.

Study Abroad Program

Scandinavian Seminar is now accepting applications for its study abroad program in Denmark, Finland, Norway or Sweden for the academic year 1979-80. This living-and-learning experience is designed for college students, graduates and other adults who want to become part of another culture while acquiring a second language.

An initial 3-weeks language course, followed by a family stay whenever possible, will give the student opportunity to practice the language on a daily basis and to share in the life of the community. For the major part of the year he is separated from his fellow American students, living and studying among Scandinavians at a "People's College" (residential school for continuing adult education) or some other specialized institution.

All Seminar students participate in the Introductory, Midyear and Final Sessions, where matters related to their studies, experiences and individual progress are reviewed and discussed. The focus of the Scandinavian Seminar program is an independent Study Project in the student's own field of interest. An increasing number of American colleges and universities are giving full or partial credit for the Seminar year.

The fee, covering tuition, room, board, and all course-connected travels in Scandinavia, is $4,600. Interest-free loans are granted on the basis of need, as are a few special scholarships.

new major at High Point College that deals with these special people. The field of study is called Gerontology — the study of old age and aging. To those students interested in preparing for careers working with people, this major has become a progressively appealing option. And now High Point, with existing programs meeting the needs of youth, introduces this new program which covers the other end of the life-span continuum.

Great needs for trained persons are predicted in the expanding field of aging in the next twenty years. The reason for these needs, according to Dr. Marylin Karmel, named director of the Gerontology major of High Point, is that our population is both getting older and living longer. According to statistics researched by Dr. Karmel, since 1900, “the population of the U.S. has increased 3 times, but the numbers of persons over 60 has increased eight times. In 1900 three per cent of the population was over 65; now 10.5 per cent is over 65 and indications are that this trend will continue. In addition, those people who reach 65 are living longer with increased medical care, and the prediction is that they will continue to add years to their lives.” These additional years will demand additional services and it is “to meet these needs of the future that the college has instituted the major in Gerontology,” says Dr. Karmel.

Presently the program offers two options for majors — administration and service. The administration concentration would equip a graduate to administer a nursing home, an agency such as a Council on Aging, recreation for the aging, or other administrative position. The service concentration trains students to work personally, on a one-to-one basis with the elderly in a medical, educational, recreational, or counseling relationship.” Contrary to the stereotype ideas of most people, many service relationships are outside of the classic nursing home. “Only 4% of people over 65 are in nursing homes,” says Dr. Karmel. “Most are living in their own homes, living individual lives in the community — and it is there that we serve them,” says Dr. Karmel.

All majors study a nucleus of five courses in Gerontology — Introduction to Gerontology, Life Problems of Aging, Social Policy in Gerontology, Theory and Research, and Seminar. The major includes an internship program in which each student spends one semester working full time in an agency or institution for older citizens. Additionally, students who choose the administration option study Principles of Medical Care and Psychology of Patient Care. Other requirements for the major are selected from existing offerings in business administration, human relations, psychology, sociology, physical education and art.

This usually means limited accommodations on campus that too often fold at the humiliating for them to beg. Their only alternative is the It is expensive for many of them to go home and it is disadvantage of High Point College. Belk dorm occupants the advantages of High Point College. Of course there are disadvantages.

High Point College has a rather unambitious student body. Most students do not take advantage of the excellent facilities or the methods of self expression which exists outside the classroom. Lester Maddox once made the statement that the way to improve prison conditions is to get a better grade of inmate. The analogy holds true for HPC. One of the disadvantages of this school is the apathy and lackluster performance of a majority of the students. High Point College has a rather uninspiring faculty. Many have been teaching college for over ten years. They are trying to prepare students for the modern world. Many give the same canned tests and teach the same courses using the same books year after year. With some professors’ grading scales, students work harder for grades than for know–ledge.

High Point College has an uncaring administration for the most part. One student was forsook by the college because an administrator forbid a student to take the one more hour credit necessary for his graduation. The faculty and the administration refuse to give the students at the school’s social functions or “hang–outs.”

Inspite of all the impressive facilities at High Point there is still no programmable computer at the college. In the computer age HPC is still in the Dark Age. A basic knowledge and experience with computers is a necessity for math, business, science and social science majors. This is certainly a disadvantage of High Point College, from which the student can question of “What kind of college is this?” be answered.

Parking Still Problem On Campus

BY SCOTT HANCE

Now that mid–terms have passed and the semester is better than half over, it’s time for those students who have cars on the campus to speak out about the parking problems that seem to exist. The real problem occurs when there are special events, to be attended, on campus for those people that are not regularly on campus and that come in from surrounding communities. These people don’t seem to care where they park.

A situation of this type occurred last Tuesday night when the campus was full of these people here for continuing education classes. The day student parking lot looked like the infield at a stock car race. Cars and trucks were parked in every available inch, regardless of whether it was actually a parking spot or not. One inconsiderate person parked his pick up truck in the entrance leaving just barely enough room for one vehicle to pass. It was virtually impossible to get your car out of certain spots and in other cases it was totally impossible. I went out to get a friend’s car that was there. I could only find a car pulled directly behind it. I had about a foot space to try and get through or I could try making it over the logs that line the lot. I was forced to wait until the classes were over for the evening before moving the car. Did any of these people get tickets for not parking properly? I doubt it. Yet if one regular student here parked his car in a faculty spot over night for lack of somewhere else to park, chances he would be in front of the traffic court on an upcoming Wednesday morning.

They can’t be these people be made to limit their parking to the areas in front of Robert’s Hall and the parking lot behind Haworth Hall. This lot is not used very often and is not that much further to walk to Roberts than the walk from Day Student. This would make it easier for those students who park way up hill. Only to find a place to park and also to get out of that place when we need to.

It is about time for the administration and or security to limit the areas in which visitors and night students can park. There should be designated areas for them to park and the lots used by day students should remain open for their use only. Then it might be worth paying the eight dollar parking fee to park on campus.
Health Services Available For The Sexually Active

BY JILL CHRISTIANSON

In High Point there are several services available to sexually active young people. Many of these services are free and invite High Point College students to take advantage of the services offered. Guilford County Family Planning Program, the YWCA, and the Guilford County Health Department offer contraceptives, information about sex, pregnancy and VD testing.

"We are here to serve any woman who is a resident of Guilford County," said Gene Vaughn, educational director at the Guilford County Family Planning Program.

Family Planning, Before prescriptive contraceptives are given, an examination is given. All participants in the Family Planning Program must take part in a class in which the birth process and contraceptives are discussed.

High Point student said, "For a free clinic I thought the Family Planning Program was very organized and run very efficiently. The doctors and nurses couldn’t have been friendlier or more helpful. They never gave me any hassle about being unmarried and coming for birth control."

Another student said, "The nurses at the Family Planning Program make you feel comfortable. They give you an open view of every method of birth control."

While talking about the staff at Family Planning, a High Point College student said, "They really took time with me and explained everything thoroughly so that I left with no unanswered questions."

Any college student wanting to use the services of the Family Planning Program should call the office (886-4562) for an appointment. All introductory sessions are held on Wednesdays at 4 p.m., at the Family Planning Program Building at 407 Elm Street.

The High Point YWCA offers pregnancy testing every Saturday from 10-11:30 a.m. at the YWCA. The charge for the service is five dollars and takes approximately five minutes. An appointment must be made in advance. Six weeks must have elapsed since one’s last menstrual period for the test results to be accurate. The YWCA offers birth control information along with counseling for women who use the testing service.

The Guilford County Health Department, which is located next to Hayworth Hall, offers VD testing. The service is available on Wednesdays at 11:30 a.m., the testing is free. No appointment is necessary.

The Guilford County Family Planning Program, YWCA, and Guilford County Health Department services are available to all residents of High Point, including the students at High Point College. Anyone with questions about the services offered by these organizations should phone the various places.

Opportunity Featured in Program

BY LINDA CAIN

The American poet, Joel Oppenheimer, was featured as part of the Visiting Scholars Program at High Point College on Monday. Mr. Oppenheimer’s visit was sponsored by the English Department, in conjunction with the college.

Oppenheimer spoke on the impact of the Black Mountain School in a morning lecture.

Black Mountain School was an experimental school set up in the mountains of North Carolina in the early part of the twentieth century. The school’s faculty was carefully chosen and given free reign to teach anything they wished, in the manner they saw fit. The primary contribution of the school was that it turned back the hands of time to an era when teachers knew more than students, and there was an apprenticeship between students and faculty. The school closed its doors in 1966.

Today there is a renewed interest in the Black Mountain School because of its contribution to the arts. The school was home to many poets such as Robert Creeley, Edward Dorn, and Charles Olson. It existed without any endowments and each student did work at the school in addition to his own school work. When asked if he foresaw the re-opening of the school, Oppenheimer replied that he did not because of the large amount of money it would take to get faculty members and maintain a physical plant.

Joel Oppenheimer is a native of New York. He studied at Cornell University (1947-1948) and the University of Chicago (1948-1949). He left the environment of the university to study at Black Mountain College. He has written seven volumes of poetry including The Dutiful Son, In Time, and The Woman Poems. He has also written several Broadway plays and a book about the New York Mets’ 1972 baseball season.

Currently, he is artist in residence at City College in New York City. He also serves as a poetry consultant for Bobs and Merrill Publishers and a columnist for "The Village Voice."

"To be a poet," according to Oppenheimer, "is not to be separate from humanity."

Gerontological To Begin

that you must look at the entire spectrum of life in order to work and understand it," says Dr. Karmel. "When you work with children, you can really quit at 16 or 21 -- you don’t have to think beyond that. Another difference is that with the older citizen, you’re not trying to mold the person -- you’re dealing with what they already are."

"And it is what the older citizen is that is so special. Many are at a very happy time in their lives. They don’t have to pretend any more, or meet social pressures. They become what they are," says Karmel. Two 3-hour courses will be offered Spring Semester -- Intro. to Gerontology and Life Problems of Aging. In addition, a one-hour Orientation to Gerontology will be offered to those who wish to investigate the field with little commitment. Dr. Karmel envisions that these new offerings in Gerontology will also be beneficial to majors in religion, psychology, and sociology.
Comedies Presented

BY LINDA CAIN

Members of the High Point College Community were taken away from tests, term papers, and projects and whisked into the world of Woody Allen this past weekend with the Tower Players' production of Allen's, "Death Knocks" and 'Mr. Big.' Woody Allen is a twentieth century American humorist known for his plays and movies. His works include "Blonde," "Play It Again, Sam," and "Annie Hall." Allen is best known for taking a serious point and making it funny. The plays clearly show this point.

"Death Knocks" is the story of a well-to-do dressmaker, played by Neil Toraicius, who is visited by Death, played by Cheryl Holmes. Natalie is unwilling to die yet, so she stails for time by engaging Death in a game of gin rummy. During the game, she constantly bombard's Death with questions about what death is like and insters an after-life. To most of her questions Death replies that she will see. Natalie wins the game and her extra time. Both actresses do a superb job with their parts and clearly show the audience that death is always unexpected and the material possessions that one has in this life are worthless when death comes.

The second play "Mr. Big" is the story of Detective Kaiser to be played by Mark LaFranco, who is hired by a beautiful woman, played by Melissa Patton, to find God. Miss Patton plays Dr. Ellen Shepherd, a mixed-up woman who is bombarded with the philosophical teachings of Socrates, Kant, Hegel, Descartes. She lies to Lupowitz about her identity and profession so he'll accept the case and her Lupowitz questions Rabbi Wiseman, played by David Douglas, and Chicago Philis, an atheist gambler, played by Paul Jean Frilman. From his questioning, he deduces that the Jews are involved in a protection racket with God, since they are his chosen people. Chicago Phyllis tells him that she could not have passed all of her bad checks if there was a God. Lewowitz decides that Dr. Shepherd has lied to him and tracks Misses on her. All the actors and actresses in the play put up a fine performance. The plays were directed by Dave Christovich and the sets were designed by James Forster.

unfair for these students that can't go home to spend their days of leisure in total misery and wonder of where they'll be the next night. This ping-pong ball theory of bouncing them around should come to a halt, if for nothing more, than to secure them safety and revise the system in the best interests of a few students that are tired of being bounced around.

Over Thanksgiving break, all High Point College dorms will remain open, but the cafeteria will close November 22 at lunch and will reopen November 26, at dinner. No doubt, there will be a few students left on campus that will eat peanut butter and jelly sandwiches instead of turkey for Thanksgiving. At least they'll have a place to sleep. After all, what are a few chockebutter sandwiches to several days of wandering, wondering and losing self-respect.

Dr. Matthews

BY RAY DANIEL

Look up in the sky some day. You may see your psychology professor up there flying around. Dr. Matthews just started taking flying lessons in September. After completing a very technical course at OTI, and performing forty hours of actual flying, he plans to get his private pilot's license in late November.

He began to get interested during an illness. A close friend would fly down from Virginia just to cut his grass for him. Since then, he has come down for different reasons. Once, he called Dr. Matthews and said that he had a job that was terrific, and he would like to have some. In a short time, his Virginia friend was at the door with the pie. This speed and ease of travel greatly impressed Dr. Matthews.

But he has become even more impressed with the immense amount of knowledge that is necessary to be a good pilot. "You've always learning." The list of sciences and procedures involved is overwhelming. The actual flying of the plane is also complicated. He notes that a plane is flown in a three-dimensional space as opposed to the two-dimensional course of an automobile. 'This multiplies the problem.'

However, Dr. Matthews says, "It's fun, I really enjoy it." He finds the number of people flying now fascinating, "especially during the Furniture Market, hundreds of private jets come into the airport." He likes the freedom of flight and being away from everything, but, he says, "you have to trust yourself." Most of all, he enjoys "the challenge of learning."

Dr. Matthews is obviously a very active man. He and his wife began sailing last summer. They bought a place on Bald Head Island. After he gets his license, he will enjoy flying to the island in an hour and a half instead of taking over seven hours by boat. He does not plan to buy a plane in the future because of the amount of expense and upkeep necessary, but he does plan to join a club where he will only have to pay dues and so much each mile for the use of a plane. He says in this way, "it would usually cost no more than driving, and maybe even less."

Whatever else his future involves, his interest and enthusiasm assures his success as a pilot, and the continuation of his enjoyment.
Piedmont Crafts Fair To Be Held

The 16th annual Piedmont Crafts Fair will be held this year on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, November 3, 4, and 5, 1978, at Memorial Coliseum in Winston-Salem, N.C., 10-9 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, and 1-6 p.m. on Sunday.

The 15th exhibition of crafts for sale, sponsored by Piedmont Craftsmen, Inc., is devoted to bringing wide public attention to the exciting, high quality work being created today in the field of craft art. Over 100 juried members of Piedmont Craftsmen, Inc. will exhibit and sell a wide range of contemporary and traditional craft work. In all instances the booths will be manned by the craftsmen themselves, so spectators and buyers can discuss the crafts with their designers and creators.

Last year's Piedmont Crafts Fair was recognized nationally as one of the most outstanding in quality, variety, attendance and sales. From the enthusiasm already expressed, we expect the 1978 Fair to have even greater significance.

Some 50 different crafts will be represented. These include pottery, weaving, glass, wood, jewelry, enameling, photographs, prints, batik, iron works, leather, stitchery, and quilting.

In addition to the craftsmen's exhibits, there will be live entertainment, a sidewalk cafe, demonstrations by master craftsmen, and educational exhibits.

The closing date for the submission of manuscripts by College Students is November 5. ANY STUDENT attending either junior or senior college is eligible to submit his verse. There is no limitation as to form or theme. Shorter works are preferred because of space limitations. Each poem must be TYPED or PRINTED on a separate sheet, and must bear the NAME and HOME ADDRESS of the student, and the COLLEGE ADDRESS as well.

MANSRIPTS should be sent to the OFFICE OF THE PRESS.

Menu Changes Taking Place

Last week, 252 diet conscious HPC students decided to do something about changing their menu. They drew up a petition and with the backing of the SGA, Mr. Frank Caulfield, Cafeteria Director, agreed on new items for the school menu. They are as follows: Fresh fruit available at all meals; all-natural yogurt, provided on food line and in snack bar; cheese will be available more often—especially cheddar and muenster cheeses to be added; and fish and other seafood will be served more often.

Mr. Caulfield welcomes suggestions from you to improve food services at HPC.

Rocking With The KD's

This weekend, Kappa Delta sorority of HPC will sponsor a Rock-a-Thon for the Diabetic Association. They will begin rocking at 6:00 p.m. Friday and plan to continue until 6:00 p.m. Saturday. All donations will go to the Diabetic Association. High Point's Burger King and Krispy Kreme will donate meals to the rockers; Chatham Company, U.S. Furniture Industry will furnish the rocking chairs; and master craftsmen will be represented. These include pottery, weaving, glass, wood, jewelry, enameling, photographs, prints, batik, iron works, leather, stitchery, andquilting.

Students Pass FCC Exam

Of the 18 students enrolled in English 340, TV and Radio, seven passed all three elements of the FCC Third Class License exam in Winston-Salem in October.

The students are John Hallis, Robin Henson, Glenn Jones, Rick Shelton, Wendy Stewart, Kathy Wolfe, and Chris Larson. Five other students in the course passed Elements One and Two but not Nine. They will retake Element Nine in December.

According to Dr. DeLeeuw, the course instructor, this percentage of students passing is the highest ever for the course.

Other students planning to take the test in December can secure an application form from Dr. DeLeeuw. The bookstore carries two textbooks as study guides for the test.

Successful completion of this FCC test will allow the students to broadcast at FM and AM radio stations without critical antenna arrays.

High Point Volleyball Dominates Conference

BY IRISH GAYMON

The High Point Panthers have been dominating the Carolina Conference. Competing against the Lady Panthers were the Guilford College, Elon College, Atlantic Christian College, and Catawba College.

Conference play started Friday and ended on Saturday. The tournament play was double elimination. This made the volleyball games more exciting and competitive. The Panthers defeated Elon Friday in their first game of the conference 15-1, 15-7. This moved High Point into the semi-finals on Saturday against Guilford, where they had a victorious win 15-2, 15-7. Other contests Saturday, Pembroke defeated Elon, 15-9, 15-7, and Guilford edged Pembroke, 15-2, 15-10. With Guilford defeating Pembroke this moved High Point and Guilford into the finals at 3 p.m. The final game was a 3 out of 5 match. The Lady Panthers came away with a straight 3 game win, 15-3, 15-14, 16-14.

This year’s all tournament team included Marie Riley, Sylvia Chambers, Ethel White, from High Point, Lynn Zahurba, Edie Bailey from Guilford and Faye Council from Pembroke, M.V.P.s were Ethel White and Marie Riley.

This is the last Carolina Conference for senior Ethel White. She has contributed a lot to the team over her four years here at HPC. She will be dearly missed.

High Point traveled to Durham Oct. 30th to play the lady Blue Devils of Duke University then on Nov. 1, they will play Mars Hill and Western Carolina at Mars Hill.

HPC Cheerleaders Chosen

The 1978-79 High Point College cheerleaders have been selected for this year’s sports season. Five girls were chosen for the squad with three of the members returning from last year. Returning are Tina Lynch, Betty Maynor and Marianne Phillips, who is the captain. Freshmen Leslie Delderfield and Claudia Bryan are the new members.

This year’s cheerleaders are interested in having males on the squad. Any male interested in the program would help in performing stunts. Practice is required once a week.

Anyone interested in serving as a male cheerleader should contact Marianne Phillips, Box 3701 Campus Mall, or on the first floor of North Hall.

While we were home during fall break, the Lady Panthers were traveling to James Madison Invitational Tournament in Harrisonburg, Va. They came away with a #1 position in the tournament and a good over all win. They then played the Lady Alps of Appalachian a 3 out of 5 game where they had another victorious win. Carolina Conference Tournament this year is at H.P.C. That is the next tournament for the Panthers.

An old proverb says ‘Go where the money is and when the well runs dry, search the Bodesian oasis for its resources are pure and rich.” Freshman Jennell Welsh followed the proverb by going where the money was -- to High Point College -- and now finds herself blessed with the riches of being a walk-on -- a successful one at that -- on the High Point field hockey team. Welsh, a 5-8 left wing from Randallston, Md., came to HPC after they gave the attractive frosch a Presidential Scholarship. She played field hockey, lacrosse and basketball at Randallston High School but wasn’t recruited for any of her athletic talents.

She came to HPC also seeking a future in oceanology, a field that High Point excels in because of the Florida Technical Institute program. Yet, when she arrived in late August, she had already made plans to try out for the field hockey team. Although she didn’t know if she was good enough to play collegiate hockey, she never dreamed she would earn a starting berth in her opening year in college.

“I just went to practice and tried my best because I wanted to start,” Welsh said. “I don’t like to watch but I wasn’t really planning on starting when I came down here. But I’m glad I’m starting.”

Welsh is in her fourth year playing the sport. She was Co-Captain of her team in Randallston. She has contributed to HPC’s winning ways this season by scoring four goals giving coach Kitty Steele something to smile about when considering the Panthers future. “My mother was a referee and my father is an athlete, also,” Welsh noted. “And my brother and sister play sports. I guess my family is just athletically inclined.”

Welsh decided High Point was the place to go after a visit to the University of Tampa and a brief stay at High Point last year. Like many of the students here, he enjoyed the campus. “I went to the U of Tampa and I didn’t really like it there,” Welsh says. “I got the Presidential Scholarship here and that helped a lot. But the friendliness among the students made a big difference.”

Now that Jennelle Welsh has gone where the money is, searched the oasis for its resources and discovered happiness lies within confidence, field hockey has turned out to be a pleasant bonus to her college life.
Field Hockey Team
Advances to Regionals

BY COLLEEN BLACKNEY

The High Point Field Hockey Team finished their regular season with a thrilling victory over East Carolina University to boost their record to 7-6-2 before heading for the state tournament. Even though this record was not as impressive as in past years, the panthers proved themselves to be an excellent hockey team as they placed second in the state by defeating UNC-G, Carolina, and Pfeiffer in the AIAW tournament this past weekend.

On Saturday, Oct. 21st, the panthers played ECU to a 1-1 tie in regulation time. After two, hard fought 7 1/2 minute overtimes the score remained tied at 1-1. This meant that each team would have to take five penalty strokes (a one on one situation in which a player takes a shot on goal from seven yards out) to determine the winner of the game. High Point scored three penalty strokes to East Carolina's two to give them the victory.

The panthers then traveled to Boone, N.C. for the AIAW tournament on Oct. 27th, 28th, and 29th. The first day of the tournament was excellent for High Point as they defeated UNC-G by a score of 2-0, and Carolina by a score of 2-1. The next morning the panthers lost to Duke (2-1), and Carolina by a score of 2-1. The next means out of the competition. That afternoon they came back to beat top seeded Pfeiffer by a score of 5-1. Then on Sunday, Oct. 29th, for the third consecutive year, the hockey team was in the finals of the N.C. State tournament. The panthers played an outstanding game, but lost to Carolina (1-0) in overtime.

High Point was seeded #5 in the tournament, but like a true underdog, they were determined to show that they were as good, if not better than other teams in the state and that is exactly what they did! The coaches, players, students, and faculty should be very proud of this team because even though things weren't always going well and there were many injuries, the team kept their spirit and stayed together.

The panthers will compete in the Regional tournament in Hollins College, Virginia in two weeks. We wish them the very best of luck.

Dorm Theft Working On Pocketbooks

BY LISA MICKEY, EDITOR

The women's dormitories have quite a problem on their hands. Close to $1,000 worth of money, jewelry and calculators have been stolen in a few weeks and not always because doors weren't locked.

One student stated, "We'd leave our room for not even a total of four minutes to go to the bathroom or to get ice and come back to find watches and/or money gone. Sometimes we'd come in and our closet would be demolished with clothes and shoes thrown all over the floor. This happened three or four times.

"Then somebody took a screwdriver to our door and got in. It got to the point where we were sleeping with a chair against our door at night. That's when we decided to call the cops. It took a lot of talking to convince the administration that it wasn't our fault that we weren't locking our doors. We were locking our doors. At least two rooms on this hall have had their locks changed since then. Approximately $600 worth of money, watches and calculators have been taken on this hall alone."

She continued, "One girl down the hall had a phone call so she went to the phone. When she came back, $15.00 was gone. Her wallet was in her pocketbook hidden in a drawer. Somebody knew where to look because everything was like it should be -- in place -- except for the money and it was gone. It was a clean job."

Another girl on the same hall commented, "The theft changed for a while from money to personal items. Many times it was things like textbooks that were missing and things were often found messed up and knocked over. Just in the time it takes for a trip to the bathroom to come back, things get missing."

One freshman stated her views saying, "A lot of things were taken because of people not locking their doors while they were in the shower. I was guilty of this at first. I started missing my toothpaste. Soon I got to be a dollar here and there every time. I estimated about $10 was taken that way. I got wise and started locking up."

"Then about $40 was taken from my room. It was our sorority's pledge money. That wasn't enough. They took about $300 worth of family jewelry -- my grandmother's cameo, an opal necklace and a diamond pendant. They also broke in and stole some rare coins I was saving to put in my collection. I had the lock changed and eventually changed rooms."

She surmised, "A lot of books have been stolen along with money and jewelry. Most books are never found. I found mine laying on the bathroom floor. The only thing I can figure out is that they're taking things and putting them inside the books to get them out of the room. After they get what they want, they probably just discard the books."

One sophomore was an exception to the game. She had $48.50 stolen from her room at an undetermined time. Most of it was phone bill money. Her roommate stated that if they were on the hall, like across the hall in another room, the room was most likely unlocked. If the money was taken with both of them out of the building, then the room would have been locked. Since they do not know exactly when the money was taken, that can't be determined.

They realized the money was gone and contacted the police. The next step they took was to place a sign up on their hall stating the money was taken, the police had a lead and if the money was not returned in the next 24 hours, the police would take the proper actions.

The money was returned -- every bit of it -- in an envelope slid under their door. No further questions were asked. The roommate concluded, "They probably returned the money because we brought in the law. They must have gotten scared. Now the hall is tighter. The doors are locked more.

Everyone wonders why they took the money and how they knew we had it."

Not everyone is as lucky as that one person. Ms. Boyles, Resident Advisor of Woman's Dorm, said, "I feel the girls themselves are their own best security where the outside doors are concerned and where keeping their own doors closed and locked is concerned. They have the right to investigate on their own or find someone who has the authority to take more action. The main thing we can control is the opportunity for them to steal and that is by not giving it (the opportunity) to them."

Students living in the dorms involved have a greater sense of awareness in regard to the protection of...
Competency Test Causes Stir

The North Carolina high school competency exam was recently administered to approximately 80,000 high school juniors. The test has caused great controversy throughout the state with several groups who claim that it is discriminatory to minorities. Students failing the test are given several chances to pass it. Those who do not pass it are given a certificate of attendance rather than a high school diploma.

Whereas the test is a joke and a breeze to most students in the high schools, it has been a topic of protest for many concerned parents and anti-competency test activists. The test, having 240 questions divided into comprehension and math sections, concentrates on the student's ability to use his skills in solving everyday problems and situations.

Opposition to the test is the claim that minority students generally do not have access to the best schools or the best learning materials that would sufficiently prepare them for the standardized test; however, a racially mixed state panel disproved this in their findings. The test, they said, was culturally neutral.

One black Winston-Salem teacher stated that the problem lied in the foundation years of general learning. She related her own experiences in school with textbooks. "Textbooks," she said, "are updated in the public schools every five years. Many times the students of black schools got the white schools' discarded books while the white students got the new ones."

This occurred in parts of the state without forced integration and probably still happens in some places although it has been about twelve years that total integration took place in North Carolina.

With this hypothesis taken into consideration, it is possible for a black student to be five years or more behind the white student in regard to textbook's updated information. The argument behind the competency test is that blacks feel that there should be a delay in giving the test until black students have had time to catch up with their learning. This would take approximately five years or longer. They go on to say that black students graduating now have not had a full school career of integration and need to catch up. Integration, in this case and according to representative blacks, is synonymous with up-to-date materials and teaching methods. They state that education is equal now, but the equality tests give encompass the black student's past twelve years of high school and his life and may not match up to the average white student's educational life and career.

One white Winston-Salem student discussed the test and expressed opinions of the Editors of the Hi-Po.

Students Should Help Security

BY JILL CHRISTIANSON

The time has come for High Point College students to become involved with the security of the college. The campus has had its share of security problems lately. Theft are becoming more prevalent, seeing strangers wander around campus late at night is not uncommon.

Students are the answer to security problems on campus. If students were to employ guards, campus security would be greatly benefitted. Students, trained in the security field, could save the college money and make the campus safer.

We, as students of High Point College, are the sole life of the college; we should be given the responsibility of keeping the campus safe. An increase in security problems would result if students were hired as security guards. Students would feel more comfortable relating to student security guards and be more apt to report security problems.

The college could offer a security course, with college credit available for those participating in the course. The security course could cover the rules and regulations of the college, criminology, and self-defense. Upon passing the course with high marks, students would be offered a job as security guards on campus.

Payment for student services would be less than what the campus police are currently making, thus saving the college money. Like other jobs on campus, the security police job would be offered through the Financial Aid program. There are students here at the college who are desiring part-time work which is close to their dormitories. It is to be one security guard on duty on the premises.

Another idea in the same vein is to encourage individual faculty, individual student dining. Each semester a student should make an appointment with each of his professors for a breakfast or lunch discussion. Each faculty member has so much to offer that a student should take advantage of it. A faculty member should view this as an opportunity to help the students.

One student body is so lackluster that they have nothing to lose by attempting something. But considering the maturity and responsibility students exhibit, the faculty and administration should take the initiative to improve the atmosphere.

The Hi-Po welcomes contributions and letters to the editor. All letters are subject to editing. Those chosen for publication must be signed.

Students Named To Who's Who

Eight High Point College students have been named to Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. They are Jeffrey Allen Apperson, Cindy Jane Briggs, Ellen Leslie Carmine, George Robert Gillis, Catherine Martin Groom, Robert Jennings Marley, Jr., James Warren Sweeney, and Debra Grace Weber.

In selecting nominees for Who's Who, each faculty member submitted names of juniors and seniors who met the qualifications, which include scholarship, ability, participation in extra-curricular activities and grade point average.

The Student Personnel Committee then selected the names of the candidates to be sent to the national headquarters of Who's Who for final verification.

Present seniors who were named to Who's Who last year are Caryn Marie Reinhard and Sandra Sue Grin.

Fall Weekend Coming

There will be new faces around campus this weekend. Prospective students will be taking part in the Annual SGA Fall Weekend. Registration for the students will begin Friday in the Campus Center. They will be staying on campus in the dorms, and will be participating in campus activities.

The activities provided this weekend will consist of an Animal House Disco and Ice Cream Social sponsored by the Student Union as well as a Co-Recon afternoon sponsored by the P.E. Majors Club. The students will also get a chance to attend the Fall Theater Production: Tennessee Williams' 'The Glass Menagerie."

We are expecting approximately 75 students. So let's show our Panther spirit and answer all their questions about our campus.

Mrs. Louise C. They will review past practice of qualification, how the Office of Education determines eligibility, what items of information would result in rejection of a student, what items of information would request a review of that student's application, as well as, the kinds of information that a student must furnish to the Financial Aid Office should a request be made, and, how the Office of Education determines eligibility.

Jaycees Seek Members

The late Dag Hammarskjold once said, "Never for the sake of silence deny yourself your experiences and convictions." Are you lacking the skills necessary to lead others and delegate work, and to set your goals and develop a plan to achieve them? Or would you simply like to become more skilled in leadership and management? Do you care about High Point College and the surrounding community enough to get involved? If so, you should attend the meetings of the High Point Jaycees and the one this month every Monday night at 9:30 in Meeting Room #1 of the Campus Center.

Our purpose is a three-fold one. First, we strive to serve our community. Opportunities are available to work in all kinds of worthwhile projects such as helping underprivileged children and senior citizens. Projects are also available and necessary right here on the High Point College campus.

Secondly, our members are given opportunities to develop communications skills. We have programs such as Personal Dynamics in which you can learn who you are and a workshop on how and when to lead others to a common goal.

The third segment of our purpose is the development of managerial skills. By learning good management techniques and practicing these skills on Jaycees projects, you can become a stronger manager in your school life, professional life, and personal life.

In addition to being a group with high ideals and common goals, it's also a fun group. Will you consider helping us help each other and the college community in which we live? Or will you continue to sit on the sidelines and let others do the work? Will you continue to complain that there is nothing to do? There is much to be done and it must be done. I hope you'll decide to do your share and join us at our next meeting.

Sincerely,

Controversial Tests Given

saying, "It was easy. I usually finished each test and had about five to ten minutes left on the clock. Students who have gone through eleven years of school should be able to pass the test. I think that the one student who thought it was unfair were the ones that don't want to put any effort into anything anyway. The only hard thing about it was that it about bored you to death."

The competency test has raised quite a stir. As usual, anything new in schools usually becomes not only an educational issue, but a racial one. I believe that it is true that many schools were educationally discriminated against before forced integration; however, busing has been around for a while in North Carolina, giving equal educational opportunities for its residents, and it is a fact that textbooks do not change in content that much over a five year period.

I am inclined to agree with the student aforementioned that after eleven years and three chances of taking the test do it (steal) and the opportunity.

Much can be said concerning the matter, but one student summed it up in her own words saying, "Whoever it is needs help. I think she steals from people she knows - people who won't get her back."

Vegetarians Say Thanks

Dear Editor,

The members of the Vegetarian Committee and I would like to sincerely thank the High Point College students and Mr. Frank Caufield, for their help in altering the cafeteria menu. Because of your help, the cafeteria now has available fresh fruit at all meals cheeses and hard boiled eggs at the salad bar, yogurt and fish products more often.

Mr. Caufield was very considerate when the Vegetarian Committee members offered suggestions for the improvement of the food services. After short consideration of the suggestions was made, improvements began immediately. Changes in the cafeteria menu would not have taken place without the support of the dorm students. Petitions for the improvements were signed by 252 dorm students.

Thanks for the good support, both students and faculty are now enjoying the benefits of the food service changes. We greatly appreciate your assistance in our cause.

Sincerely,
Jill Christianson, Sponsor for the Vegetarian Committee

Chris Larson: Frisbee Is More Than A Pastime

BY RAY DANIEL.

If you've ever walked outside on a warm sunny day here at H.P.C. you've probably seen Chris Larson. She's the girl with the frisbee. But she is not the average frisbee fumbler.

Although Chris just began throwing seriously this summer, she was able to win a first place in the North Carolina Frisbee Festival. She threw the disc 162 feet in the women's distance competition. For winning, she received a lighted frisbee and a trophy.

Her enthusiasm is obvious. When asked how much she practices, she replied, "I play everyday, but it's never practice to me." Chris and her "frisbee partner," known as "Zeke," teach each other new techniques.

But the person who has really inspired her a lot is her boyfriend, who happens to be a professional. When asked how much she practices, she replied, "I get out there throwing the frisbee around and all of a sudden you've got instant friends."

Furthermore, Chris wants to start a Frisbee Club in High Point. From asking around, she has found about forty interested people, and feels assured of having at least twenty definite members. Only $4 would be needed to gain a lifetime membership. If the club materializes, it could probably use either the Gym or Harrison Hall, on nights that they are not needed by the College, for practices and meetings. However, the club is still just a dream for Chris.

"She advises beginners to "go for it." They should keep it to and branch out. They should observe the experts. "They would be amazed." In one stunt, The Canadian Mindblower, the receiver allows the frisbee to spin from the left hand, run across the front of both arms and the chest, then run behind the right hand and around the backside before catching it finally back in the left hand. "It's remarkable the things they can make a frisbee do now."

In the future, her main dream is to qualify to go to the Rose Bowl competition in California. Even if she does not qualify to play, she wants to go just to watch. The other plans after graduation for this Junior, majoring in Communications, are to take some time off and do some traveling. "Then," she says, "I'll either work in T.V. or a recording studio, and if that doesn't work, I'll join a circus!"

Mass Forced Out Of Campus Center

BY LESLIE DAVIS

The Catholic mass in the Campus Center has been relocated to the chapel. Because the Campus Center is partially funded by a loan from HUD (the Department of Housing and Urban Development), church affiliated groups may not hold meetings there.

Mr. Max Redding, Regional Attorney for HUD, stated that "the law is based on the first amendment to the Constitution... separation of Church and State." Therefore, the Catholic service had to be moved.

HUD has the power to foreclose the loan that funds the Campus Center if the law is not enforced. They also have the power to withdraw grants.

Mr. Redding said the law has to be enforced or HUD received enormous pressure from various liberal organizations, such as the Civil Liberties Union.

Wooden Speaks Out On Child Abuse

BY SUZANNE KARPPINEN

The tortured, battered, and abused. This was the topic of discussion Tuesday, November 7, when Ken Wooden addressed the student body on child abuse.

Ken Wooden is a child advocate and investigating journalist who has dealt with the problem of child abuse for many years. Wooden himself was a problem child who was locked up and experienced many of the things he spoke on. He eventually overcame his own situation and graduated from Glassboro State College and became a high school teacher. He recently has been involved with solving the problem of child abuse.

His book, Weeping in the Playtime of Others, is based on his findings of corruption and child abuse in American detention homes. He describes the mistreatment, torture, and commercialization of children by profiteers at taxpayers' expense.

Wooden began his lecture by putting forth to the audience the fact that many of our country's manipacs and killers were at one time children of detention homes. He cited examples such as The Boston Strangler and Charles Manson.

He described in vivid detail how innocent children who were in detention homes were thrown in solitary confinement and tear gased for doing absolutely nothing wrong.

One detention home he spoke of was finally closed down by the federal court. This was done by much work by the FBI, as well as many federal court trials. It was discovered that from excessive mistreatment in this particular Texas detention home, 70 boys went insane.

He went on to speak of a book titled Where Are the Children, which has sold 70 thousand copies or more. This book tells where one can pick up a teenager for sexual abuse in 50 major cities. It tells where to pick them up, the best times, the

A Tale Of Rafting On The Chattooga

BY ROBIN HENSON

Whitewater! The word brings up thoughts of "delivrance" and danger. Fifteen High Point College students braved the rapids of the Chattooga River on Saturday, October 28. The boundary between South Carolina and Georgia, the Chattooga is the river on which parts of "Delivrance" were filmed.

Shooting down the rapids on a rubber raft, bouldering off rocks, going down a waterfall backwards, paddling for dear life — little did we know what we were in for when we signed up for this Student Union sponsored activity.

Excitement was in the air when we left for Oconee State Park on Friday afternoon. Many of the students were from out of state and had never been to the South Carolina or Georgia. We were to camp Friday night in the park and continue to Long Creek, South Carolina the next morning.

Saturday morning, we hit the road after oversleeping. Then we missed the turnoff three times, but when we finally arrived, the guides were holding the trip for us.

We were hustled out to pick up our gear. There was lots of groaning and good-natured laughing, but soon each member of our party was outfitted with a protective helmet and life vest.

We piled into the back of a pickup with our rafts and guides on how to maneuver the group had ever rafted before. Only two people in five seasons of operation, our guide company, Ltd., our guide company, had an unblemished record at taxpayers' expense.

By the time the big rapid "Bull Sluice" came up, everyone pretty well had had the rapids of the operation. The sluice was the most dangerous and by far the most exciting rapid of all. All the rafters can see is churning whitewater and rocks, and then suddenly there is a wall of water that looks like you'll never live over. Several moments of expectation, one of sudden fear and then it's all over.

As the fourth mile of the seven-mile trip went by and we were close to exhaustion, the guides called for a lunch break. All the rafts were beached and everyone dug into the huge coldcut buffet lunch. Then after everyone had rested and gotten out some of the morning's kinks, we started off again.

As we continued, the rapids became rockier and needed a little finesse to get through. Sometimes we had to get out and pull the rafts through shallow areas.

Suddenly out of nowhere, a wall of water hit our raft. We looked around amazed and heard gurgles from the next raft. Its occupants had started a water fight. Splashing went on the remainder of the afternoon. Every time we pulled up behind an unsuspecting raft, we drenched them with 55-degree water.

When we hit the final set of rapids, we were exhausted. But it was a tricky cove and we still had enough determination to finish with a flair. We got stuck in couple of times, were drenched from the spray, but happy our trip had come to an end.

There were a lot of tired, sore students driving back to HPC, but all agreed the scenery and the excitement were worth the sore muscles and liniment which was to come later.

Survey On Government Affairs

BY CURT EWING

An attitude of apathy towards U.S. governmental affairs was the conclusion of a small survey of High Point students.

The students spelled out the following reasons for their apathy:

- No trust in government officials.
- The government does not put emphasis on the most important issues.
- Politicians don't do all the jobs they 'aim' they will in their campaign for election.
- Too much money is being wasted on foreign affairs and defense.

In the students opinions the most important issues to be dealt with by the government were domestic:

- Spending more money on education.
- Spending more money on energy.
- Restricting corporations.
- Environment protection.
- Unemployment.

There are other problems with the government the students thought to be hopeless. The government can never be efficient to its potential because the bureaucracy is too large and in some cases useless. Another stubborn drawback is important issues never receive attention until years after they are needed.

Although the students feel disillusioned by the government, they seemed to like President Carter. The students thought that Carter is doing all that he can to achieve a peaceful settlement in the Middle East and to ease inflation. As expected though, one student expressed that pressure against inflation is too late and the country is headed straight for a recession if not already in one.

Frisbee Playing Two Sided

BY TERESA L. MARTIN AND CARYN MARIE REINHART

For over six years, students at High Point College have played frisbee and football in the area between North-Yadkin and Belk dormitories and, to many, it has become a tradition.

In a memo sent out by Student Personnel two weeks ago, students were informed they would have to move their games.

"Damages to college and personal property have prompted this decision," Assistant Dean of Students Diane Hanson said. Furthermore, the area was not designed for playing football and frisbee.

The extensiveness of the problem was brought to Hanson's attention when a frisbee broke a window and shattered glass onto the bed where a coed was studying.

Many students, however, feel the directive is too harsh. "I don't understand why they are so upset about the situation outside when they can't control the stereo blaring and the kids yelling inside our (Belk) dorm," senior Claire Cump said. The situation seems to be the reverse for sophomore Lisa D. Mickey, a resident of Yadkin Dorm. She doesn't approve of the playing because the noise from the games would often last until 8 p.m.

Eight o'clock was just too late for me to begin my studying, I often had to leave the dorm and go to the Campus Center just to get my work done.

To the frisbee players, the area is perfect for playing the game, senior Randy Larzeler said. "The strategy of the game lies in hitting it (the frisbee) off the walls... anybody can throw a 'bee in an open field... Anyway, we'll be willing to pay for any damages... I think that's only fair."

Larzeler apparently has the support of many students. A survey taken last week indicated students in North-Yadkin and Belk dorms felt the games should not be prohibited. Of the 67 students surveyed, 54 wanted to see the games continue.*

Some of the comments from the survey are as follows:

- The game is mentally stimulating, physically wholesome, and socially sound.
- High Point Frisbee is second only to Duke Basketball.
- Let them play where they want to; they pay tuition, so they should be moved to a safer place.
- The grass can grow back; the memories cannot.
- It is dangerous to personal property.
- Too many accidents to people and property. It should be moved to a safer place.

In addition, five frisbee players attended the student legislature meeting Tuesday, November 7, and asked the legislature to support the players.

The Student Personnel office has been aware of the frisbee games for some time, Hanson said. "As long as the students were being responsible, playing between the dorms was fine, but all the sudden, the matter had got out of hand... We hope that the memos will help students become more aware of the dangers before we have to take more formal action. The various accidents could have been prevented."

She added that it "is disgusting always to be told 'no', but they were previously asked to be more considerate (of other students)."

Larzeler, Belk Dorm Council President, said he was not aware so many people were complaining about the frisbee games. There have been four dorm council meetings, and Mrs. Young, the Resident Counselor, never mentioned a problem existed concerning the games.

A couple of months ago, the resident counselors have been writing down the names of any students violating the rule. According to Hanson, "When you live in a community-type environment, as the students do at HPC, rules must be enforced for the good of everyone."

Saturday morning, Young was informed some students were playing frisbee, and complying with the directive from the Dean's office, made a list of the offenders. "I just took down all the names and I'll turn them into the Dean's office. I don't know what they'll do with them."

To replace frisbee playing and football throwing, a new past-time had been taken up by some students. Donning green suits and hard hats, and carrying toy machine guns, the students now engage in playing - WAB! They crawl beneath the bushes, sneak around the buildings, and finally shoot the enemies.

It has been said that the mark of a good song is that it keeps coming back year after year. Maybe, the same can be true for theater plays as the college gears up for its first mainstage production of the year, THE GLASS MENAGERIE.

The play will open tonight in the auditorium beginning at 8:15 p.m. and will run through Saturday night. Admission is $1.50 for students and $3.00 for the public.

"It's an American Classic that people have been doing since it first hit Broadway," said Mr. Forrester, a faculty member of the Theater Department and director of the play, "and one hundred years from now, people will still be doing the play."

The Glass Menagerie first hit Broadway in the early fifties and was later made into a film. It was written by Tennessee Williams in 1947 and was his first outstanding public play.

Forrester describes the play as a domestic melodrama, meaning it centers around private lives of people and has a serious content.

There are four main characters: Amanda (mother), played by Pat May; Tom (son), played by Craig Meisner; Laura (daughter), played by Heide Swartztrauber and Jim played by Mark DeFranco.

Being basically a depression story, the plot briefly involves the efforts of the mother to hold the son at home in order to have him support the family until she can find a husband for the crippled daughter.

"The play was selected because it is well known, can be easily produced, and has been around for a long time," said Forrester, "and I think everyone will find it a very entertaining evening."

The play is also scheduled to be entered into the American College Theater Festival. Two judges will be present from the festival and if the play comes off well enough, High Point College may be selected to take the show to Athens, Georgia on the campus of the University of Georgia at Athens for the regional festival.

The Glass Menagerie will be the third theatre production put on the HPC campus this fall. The other two were student productions of Under Milkwood and two Woody Allen short plays in the Empty Space Theatre at the old student center.

The fund drive is being conducted by the public relations and finance class. Their goal is $15,000.

A letter has been sent to prospective students concerning fall weekend, Nov. 17-19. Many campus activities will take place to involve these prospective students.

A meeting will be held today, Nov. 16 for all those who want to help with the weekend.

Caryn Reinhart vetoed the bill passed by legislature at the previous meeting to fund the Run-for-Fun club. Reinhart stated that the club had had adequate time to raise funds, that they were not actually representing HPC in races, and that they only have 15 "semi-active" members. A motion was made to hold a revote on the bill in attempt to override the veto. The motion was tabled, however, because of a question in the club's charter.

The varsity sport of the mind, "College Bowl," which enjoyed popularity as a T.V. and radio quiz game from 1952-1970 is coming to High Point. The game is making a rapid comeback; earlier this year hundreds of U.S. college students participated in College Bowl, competing for $32,500.00 in scholarship cash awards.

Sixteen regional champions won all-expense paid trips to Miami Beach in the College Bowl National and World Championship Tournament during College Bowl week. Stanford College won the National Championship and $5,000.00 in cash.

Competition began November 13 at the intramural level and will lead to inter-collegiate competition in February. Four students (each one representing a major) will make up each intramural team, along with a coach (faculty member) and one alternate.

Funds Head SGA Discussion

The motion, however, was not recognized by Speaker Norris Woody. Before the meeting, Norris secured the information from Mr. Earle Dalbey, Vice-President of Financial Affairs at HPC, that the school does not fund any sororities or fraternities because they do not appeal to everyone. Also, ADT's charter states that it is open only to females, so SGA could not fund it. The group is considering revising their charter.

A total of 19 traffic tickets have been tried in three sessions of court. Eleven were upheld, and eight voided. Mr. Cope, Dr. Wheelless, Ms. Burton, and Dr. Patterson have been selected as the faculty members of the supreme court.

A motion was made concerning the providing of information booklets concerning incoming freshmen. Panhellenic is already considering this project so the idea was put under the legislation committee to see what they are doing.

Also represented at the meeting were some of the frisbee players to defend themselves and declare that frisbee playing is enjoyed by all. The players have recently been reprimanded for breaking windows and injuring cars.

This past weekend, Delta Sigma Phi was presented with an award from the national fraternity at a convention in Atlanta, Georgia. The award, known as the Phi Award, was given to the Delta Zeta Chapter for third place in the nation in the annual Chapter Leadership Contest for 1977-1978. Dondie Groseclose, Mark Poore and Bill Booth accepted the award from Executive Director Allen James on behalf of the HPC chapter. The plaque was presented during the convention of chapters from the southern region only.

The three representatives from High Point's chapter also attended meetings on leadership and financing. The convention was held on the campus of Emory College.

Students Attend Poetry Festival

BY LINDA CAIN

Writing means finding a new way to do the old and never being ashamed of your creativity. These were the ideas expressed in the panel discussion last Friday at the Phoenix Poetry Festival. The Festival was attended by nearly 130 area high school students. Students participated in several workshops dealing in fiction and poetry lead by Dr. Marion Hodge of Piedmont College in Georgia; Ms. Sally Buchner, writer-in-residence at Peace College in Raleigh, North Carolina; and Dr. Thomas Walters of North Carolina State University in Raleigh.

All poems and short stories submitted to the Festival were judged. The winners were The Phoenix Award-William Kennes, Dave Fairley Award-Chip Aldridge and James Groce, both students at High Point College: and the Doris Betts Fiction Award-Mary Ganthier. Special Awards went to James Groce, Robin Newell, and Gina Mariett, all of High Point College, for their work on the Festival.

An evening Poetry Reading was given by the American poet, Charles Simic. Simic has published numerous volumes of Poetry, his latest of which is Chiron's Cosmology (1977). He has also published numerous translations of French, Russian, and Yugoslavian poetry. Simic is currently on the faculty at the University of New Mexico.

Verna smells like mountain oaks --
A cousin come to stay awhile
With a slightly balding spot a hat would hide;
She straightens her skirt
With an awkward dignity of another age
When she rode with stately dark daguerreotype parents
In horse drawn rig to
The family home of dark varnished
Beaded panealing, marble fireplaces
And wicker porch planters.

Verna smells of lamp oil
A dozen years old,
And has a pillow of quilted squares
That is a memory of mother and grandmother
By a warm stove kitchen winter fire;
An evening before
Darkness forced back
The family light.

Shyly she joins in a few meals
And hardly answers a direct question --
Just a cousin come to stay awhile;
Until a resting place with parents

Soccer Bows in District Finishes Season 5-11

BY GREG NORMS

The High Point College soccer team ended the season with a 3-2 loss to Guilford College last Tuesday in the first round of the Division III playoffs.

The Panthers, who were fourth in the conference and seeded sixth overall in the tournament, scored first on a goal by Jeff Sloan, a freshman from Bowie, Maryland. Guilford then tied the score with five minutes remaining in the first half and took the lead for good with two goals in the first three minutes of the second half of play.

The team finished the year with an overall 5-11 record and was led in scoring by Tony Nielubowicz with eight goals and four assists to his credit.

Captain Walter Roe said that it was a very disappointing season but a season that will be beneficial in future years.

Roe, a junior, stated that the team needed for next year are some confident players that can put the ball in the net. Roe’s feelings were that even though it was a disappointing season, everyone on the team were the best they could do with.

The only person that is graduating is co-captain Todd Miller. He will be sorely missed but Mike Bradley has begun to fill in well. Bradley has 36 saves, .50 goals scored on him per game and had two shut-outs to his credit.

Miller felt that it should have been a more productive year. The team was young, well-skilled, and expected to do better. The problems this season were a combination of inexperience of both coaches and players.

Gibson did as well as could have been expected. Miller said, as a first year coach. The fact that Gibson lacked experience and knowledge of the game hurt the team in some aspects, but Mahler helped pick up the loose ends. After learning a lot from their first year, the coaches will do a better job in coming years.

“I would like to thank those fans that faithfully followed HPC soccer for their dedication; in making my four years of playing soccer more enjoyable,” Miller stated, “Also I’d like to thank the players over the last four years for sharing and teaching me the game of soccer.”

After a rebuilding season, the Panthers are expected to have a stable foundation to progress with next year.

Panthers Finish Third In Field Hockey

BY COLLEEN BLACKNEY

The High Point College field hockey team was very proud to accept third place in the regional tournament this past weekend in Hollins College, Virginia. In doing so, they have proved themselves to be the third best of all hockey teams in five states (Kentucky, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Virginia.)

On Friday, November 10, the Panthers defeated Louis-ville, Kentucky by a score of 1-0 in overtime on a goal by Debbie Weber. That afternoon, the Panthers played one of their best games of the season but they were defeated by the University of Virginia (1-0) in regulation time. The University of Virginia went on to win the tournament by defeating the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill 1-0 in the finals.

Then on Saturday, November 11, High Point College swept Old Dominion University by a score of 4-0. The very impressive Panthers dominated the game with goals coming from Debbie Weber, Alyson Wilk and two goals by Pati Wootten.

Senior Linda Ensey summed up the tournament very well as she said, “Even though we have had our ups and downs, we proved ourselves in the tournaments. It was an excellent way to end the season.”

Intramurals Enters Winter Season

The High Point College intramural fall season came to a close with three championships decided.

Lambda Chi Alpha claimed its second straight soccer championship with a 1-0 victory over Delta Sigma Phi. The Lambda Chi’s scored the winning goal in the first half to take the title over the Sigma for the second season in succession. The Lambda Chi’s finished the season with a 7-2 mark.

Freshman Dago Pinol was the winner in the intramural singles tennis tournament. The Doubles team of George Bradley and Jeff Lessard were the stalwarts of the defense.

The winter season has started its respective seasons. Men’s volleyball is being played in Harrison Hall four nights a week with matches at 8 p.m. and 9 p.m. Three-on-three basketball is being played at mutual times for the teams also in Harrison. The teams participate in a double elimination tournament.

Incredible Ethel
Good things never die, they just get better. This is a statement that well describes Senior Ethel White. A student and athlete from Greensboro, N.C., she has contributed a lot to the building of High Point's women's athletics.
Her career started with volleyball in which she feels she has excelled tremendously. "Playing a little bit more with enthusiasm and getting better involved mentally has been my biggest goal this year," Ethel said.
"My freshman year was a building year, perfecting my playing abilities to play on the college level. For example, my spiking techniques had to be changed so that I could get on top of the ball better." Volleyball has grown considerably and I'm proud to have been a part of that growing process.
Making the All-State and All-Conference was a big thrill and accomplishment during her years of volleyball at H.P.C. Ethel is known as one of the hardest hitters in the state and phenomenal player on the court. She was chosen to the All-Tournament team for Carolinas Conference and State Tournament.
Her talents don't stop at volleyball but contribute to basketball as well. She feels that this year's basketball team could and should do as well as last year's. "I have a very positive attitude about playing the best I can and about the team overall," states Ethel. She wants to be able to contribute herself fully to the team mentally and physically. Says Ethel, "The biggest and most exciting was the first time I made All-American. I wasn't expecting it to happen." After making All-American for the second year in a row she felt that it was a great honor to accept the recognition. "I feel I was not playing for myself but for the team as a whole."
The future for Ethel consists of first graduating then looking into the prospects of playing pro-ball. If able to play she will continue as long as she is young and able. States Ethel, "If this doesn't work out I'll try my hand at coaching, preferably college teams. "But before I'm able to do this I would like to assistant coach and work on my master's at the same time." "Job offers play a major roll in my future. I'll miss the college life but I feel I'm able to venture out and face the world with my well acquired knowledge."

Regions Upcoming
The High Point College Panthers volleyball team advanced to the Southern Region II Tournament next weekend as they won the NCAIAW Division II Tournament for the third straight year.
The Regional Tournament, which High Point has won the past two years, is being held at Francis Marion College in Florence, S.C., November 17-18.
High Point will play the number 2 school from South Carolina, Erskine College, at 9:00 Friday. The Panthers will also play the number one school from Kentucky (which has not been determined as yet) at 12:00 that day and will finish the first day's play at 4:30 as they take on hostess Francis Marion.
The finals of the tournament are scheduled for Saturday at 2:30.

Student Charged With Turkey Theft

BY RAY DANIEL

A 25-30 pound turkey was taken from the college’s cafeteria on the night of November 15. One student has been charged for the theft. Event hough payment for the turkey has been received from the accused, charges are still being pressed by Dean Guy.

The student allegedly violated two rules of the Student Handbook. The first appears in the Ethics Code of the Student Government Association, Section VII. This prohibits anyone from taking into his possession articles owned by the college or by another person. The second violation is found in the eighteenth rule of the General Rules of the College which says, “Students may not take food, trays, dishes, glasses, or silverware from the cafeteria.” The student chose to be tried by the Supreme Court, rather than having the case processed by the Dean of Students. If he is found guilty, he may receive no less than three weeks or up to one semester of suspension. However, if extenuating circumstances are discussed with the Chief Justice, the sentence may be lightened.

Dean Guy believed that it is the duty and responsibility of his office to press these charges. He feels, that in these cases, he must go by the handbook. This must be done, “to maintain a sense of community in the college.” Dean Guy says that he wants only “whatever is fair.”

He wants the students to understand that he does not go out and hunt for these instances, but when they are brought to him, he cannot ignore them. He “has no choice but to go by the book!”

Even though several people are suspected to have been involved with the accused, there is not sufficient evidence to charge anyone else. At this time, no further investigations are visible.

Rediscovering Christmas

Taking the Pricetag Out

Christmas. What does it really mean anymore? It means spending approximately $10 billion yearly on United States Christmas consumption. It means worrying for three weeks about what you should get your great Uncle Henry in Idaho about—what you should get your great Uncle Henry in Idaho that you haven’t seen in the last seven years. It means wiping out the checking account that you built up all summer at Sears. It means out-doing your brother’s gift to mom with your own.

In case you haven’t noticed, Christmas isn’t Christmas anymore. There’s nothing religious about shopping from August to December for gifts that aren’t needed anyway. There’s not even anything fun about being pushed through the mall by a mob of people. In fact, there are very few people around these days that truly experience the real meaning of Christmas. Children are born into the world everyday that never understand anything more about it than Santa Claus and eggnog.

Christmas? Is it all that it shouldn’t be. It should be a non-commercialized, unexploited time of the year when the greatest gift under the tree is concern for fellow man.

As this holiday season nears, I would like to encourage each of you to seek new meaning in Christmas. Take part in an Alternative Movement, or organize one of your own. Better yet, give a gift of love to all around you and try to bring to your loved ones an understanding that Christmas greetings cannot be found on a price tag, but only in the heart. I wish to you all a new awakening of the heart and mind.

Interim’s Benefits To Be Missed

BY SUZANNE KARRPPINEN
No interim! ... NO INTERIM??!! The elimination of interims is the ‘78-’79 student topic that seems to be a popular topic for discussion among the upper classmen. But why the controversy if the administration has already decided to do away with interim?

Even though interim has been abolished it seems that the majority of the student body feel we should still have it.

Interim was a period when many different and beneficial classes were offered that could not be conducted during the normal school year. It always offered the student a chance to travel or to take classes that were very useful to a particular major. The classes offered at interim were always very thought provoking because the classes were taken every day. By taking a specific class everyday for a month in much more profitable than taking a variety of classes at once. Many students also felt that the opportunity of traveling that was offered at interim could never be replaced by a simple class.

Although the administration feels interim was nothing but a time for students to party and waste time, the advantage of interim outweighed its downsides. Even though a lot of students didn’t take full advantage of interim the majority of the students did. What one puts into a class is what one gets out of a class, and during interim a student could get much more out of a class than during a semester course.

Sure, there will always be people who party and get by on as little as possible, but these same students party throughout the semester as well as through times such as Christmas.

I feel the administration should reconsider interim because its many benefits surely outweigh its minor pitfalls.

Give Yourself As A Christmas Present

BY JILL CHRISTIANSON
A teenager asked her older sister what she wanted for Christmas. She responded that she wanted Love, Peace, and Understanding for Christmas.

The gift first seemed as though it was a joke, yet there was true thought behind the request. Christmas is often so materialistic, that people seem to forget the ideas of life in the bustle of Christmas shopping. Selfish thoughts block one’s conscience towards others.

Try to imagine a Christmas without materialistic wants. What would one give instead of store-bought gifts? A good conversation, a poem, or the act of volunteering for an organization would be good gifts.

There are many ways for one to show her/his loves and understanding towards others. One way would be to sit down with a friend or loved one in a warm, comfortable situation. Talk openly about your feelings towards others. “Hygge” is the Danish word for circumstances like this. The end result is a beautiful, warm feeling towards the other person. This would be a very memorable Christmas gift, especially between a young person and her/his parents.

Poetry is a good mode of expression. The more difficult it is to write poetry, the more meaningful the poem will be for both parties. Write a poem on the meaning of love or friendship, the poem will surely be cherished by the recipient.

The gift of change is one which many people can benefit from. Take time to volunteer for a cause which you believe strongly about and tell a friend why you are doing it. Great social change could occur if more people actively took the same causes which they believed in.

Spend some time volunteering for NORML (National Organization to Reform Marijuana Laws), UNICEF, and ACLU (American Civil Liberties Union). Helping these organizations will provide a better understanding of the cause and in the long run will help others across the nation and in other countries.

Volunteering could be done on a local level also. Visiting elderly people, the mentally retarded, and under-privileged children would be good projects in town. There are many who need to be reached out to, who are in need of a friend.

These unusual Christmas gifts involve the giving of oneself towards the cause. A good conversation, a poem, gifts of social change are ones which are often well remembered by the recipient and the giver. These are gifts of Love, Peace, and Understanding.

Christmas Service To Be Held

The Service of Lessons and Carols will be held on December 8th at 7:00 p.m. in Hayes Hall. This is an old-fashioned service that is based on the traditional observance held each year at King’s College in Cambridge, England. The service will include nine lessons to be read by various members of our college community, and will also include the singing of carols and several pieces of music performed by the High Point College Choir and High Point College Singers. Dr. James Elson will be the director of music. Mrs. Pat Moore May will be the organist, and Teresa Williams will be pianist. Since this is our major observance of the Christmas season, everyone is invited to come and take part.

The Service of Lessons and Carols will follow the annual Christmas dinner to be served in the dining room from 5:00 - 6:15 p.m.
Semester Is Drawing To A Close

BY BOB LOWDERMILK
Student Personnel Office

As the twelfth page of the calendar appears before us, we are reminded that the arrival of December means many things to different people. Everyone is keenly aware of the anticipation of Christmas and all of the things that are done to prepare for it. For those of us in higher education, December signals the near-completion of the first semester of the academic year, with its flurry of last classes, cramming for final exams, and occasional celebrations of the season with others. As we move toward the conclusion of the fall term, several things come to mind that we would like to share with you.

One of the major concerns, if not the major concern for all of us this semester, has been that of campus security. Thefts of personal property within residence halls and from automobiles have prompted energetic attempts to evaluate our situation and consider the best possible means of reducing theft and destruction on campus. Student Personnel staff members have been involved during the past three weeks with others in the college administration in an attempt to bring to light the facts of the matter and to suggest means of improving the security of buildings and automobiles. The Student Government Association has been one vehicle for input into the matter, and a variety of possibilities have been discussed and reviewed. Matters related to the purchase of additional communication equipment and additional staff persons for security have been mentioned on several occasions and are still being pursued. Hopefully we will be able to see some results from all of the talks in the very near future.

All of us realize that security within the residence halls is a matter for students themselves to consider. We cannot possibly have a campus security force that is able to be at every door of a woman's residential complex after lock-up hours, and for this reason we appeal to students to help us reduce potential problems by observing the guidelines for the use of certain doors after hours. It does no good to lock a door only to have it propped open or left open once someone has used a late night key. We recognize, also, that students have been most helpful to us in identifying off-campus automobiles and other evidences of unusual activity regarding auto thefts. We commend students who have aided our security and the city police in the efforts to patrol and watch parking lots. The students are our best security initially, and the hope is that additional measures can be taken to strengthen the over-all security within the residence halls and properties.

Appreciation for student involvement in other campus activities is offered for the work done to host prospective students during "Fall Weekend" in November. We find that increasing numbers of prospective students who decide to attend High Point College point to the warm and friendly reception given by our students. To those of you who worked to plan and carry out "Fall Weekend," and to all of you who work to welcome visiting prospective students, we thank you. Certainly, we look forward to upcoming activities of a similar nature in the Spring and to the opportunity to work together to strengthen the student body of the college.

The involvement of Student Personnel in the total range of college activities prompts us to recognize the involvement of persons in many areas of college life. It is exciting to see the response of students in service oriented projects on campus, and particularly to note the response of students to the library fund campaign. It is encouraging to see healthy competition in the College Bowl program and to see the involvement of so many persons in student government, residence hall government, intramurals, and similar activities.

Nearing the end of the semester means that some of our students will be completing 2-year requirements in December. For persons who will graduate this month, we encourage you to make use of the resources and expertise of the Career Planning and Placement Office. A variety of opportunities await you if you will take the time to use them. Remember, writing, placement information, and additional types of assistance are available, along with study guides for everyone facing final exams! Be watching for the occasional "Career Planning Bulletins" distributed for your information. These provide information on many full and part-time employment positions.

Fall Weekend Terrned Successful

BY STEPHANIE HIGGINS

Congratulations is at hand for Jorge Laguerruela and the SGA for the success of their Annual Fall Weekend. Forty-two prospective students from high schools as well as many from out of state, took part in the festivities of the weekend.

The support of campus organizations and the time given by committee members were major contributing factors in making the weekend a success. Opportunities for the students to experience first hand what the college was about were given by the faculty's cooperation in allowing the students to attend classes on Friday, and the students on campus unselfishly lending out their rooms. Social events scheduled for the students included the Animal House Disco and Ice Cream Social sponsored by the Student Union, Co-Rec afternoon sponsored by the P.E. Major's Club, and the opportunity to attend the Fall Theatre Production, "The Glass Menagerie." There was a nice turnout for each of these activities, and all who were involved were pleased by the pleasant and informal atmosphere of the weekend.

Fall Weekend was a definite plus for the campus as the Admissions Office has gotten good feedback from these students. Preparations are now under way for Spring Weekend which will be held on March 23rd and 24th. As a greater number of students are expected to attend, it is important that we, being students at High Point and an important source of recruitment, are aware of this upcoming weekend in the Spring.
Tower Players Try Their Hand At Classic Play

BY LINDA CAIN

Tennessee Williams' play, "Glass Menagerie" is one of illusion. It is a drama composed of memory, sentiment, and compassion. The play featured the fine acting talents of Pat May, Craig Messner, Heidi Swartztrauber, and Mark LaFranco. It was directed by James Forster, the newest member of the High Point College theater department. Williams' play concerns a young handicapped girl, Laura (Heidi Swartztrauber) who lives in a world of her own. Her world is one of old phonograph records left to her and her family by their father when he left, and an array of glass animals -- Laura's "glass menagerie." Laura's mother, Amanda, (Pat May) is always wishing that Laura would have a gentleman caller. She is constantly reminiscing about her days in Blue Mountain and how popular she was with the young men there. She asks her son, Tom (Craig Messner), to find some nice young man at the place where he works to come over and get acquainted with Laura. Tom is like a father image to his sister. He understands her condition and is sympathetic to her needs. Despite his compassion to Laura, he resents his mother's constant talk about the past. He dreams of leaving home and joining the merchant marines.

The catalyst in the play is the gentleman caller, Jim, played by Mark LaFranco. Jim brings Laura out of her shell, but in doing so he breaks one of her class animals. Laura's world is shattered.

The action of the play is set in the past and Tom is the link. He is seen as the Narrator (merchant marine) and family member. His role is like that of the Narrator in Thornton Wilder's "Our Town," except for the fact that he is an integral part of the play.

Forster's rendition of this Classic lacked a unity between cast members. They were four separate people performing four separate roles. Throughout the production there was a lack of audience involvement. The audience knew they were watching a play and reality was not suspended.

The lighting was good when it worked. Cues were missed and the set appeared to be inadequately lighted at times.

The play was by no means spectacular. The cast and crew appeared to have very little theatrical experience, but they all must be commended for trying.

Library Fund Exceeds Goal

BY LESLIE DAVIS

After a vigorous week of campaigning, High Point College will finally receive a new library. The "campaigning should be attributed to many caring individuals, but most of all to the aggressive Public Relations and Finance class taught by Mr. Price.

It all began as a learning experience for the class. They were told to raise money for a cause on campus. After discussion, it was decided that a new library was in great demand. Therefore, a campaign was launched to raise $15,000 from November 8-16.

At first it seemed impossible. Since the fund raising was limited to one week, the students had to work extra hard and personally approach others for donations. There were various slide presentations to show the University of North Carolina-Greensboro and Guilford Technical Institute's libraries. The slides convinced many students that High Point definitely needed a new library.

Certain guidelines were set. It began with the initial funding of $4,000 from the faculty. Any organization that donated over $1,000 was rewarded an engraved plaque to be hung in their honor in the new library.

Many campus organizations participated and contributed to the cause. The response was overwhelming. Pledge cards were coming in left and right from the students, faculty and staff members. They were accepted in any amount and quarterly, monthly or yearly payments were available over a three year term. As a result of the enthusiastic response, $22,969 was raised. Thanks is due to the people who were so supportive.

Rash Of Break-Ins Hit HPC

BY LINDA CAIN

"Students are the best security we've got," is the conclusion reached by Lt. Don Walton, head of security at High Point College, after a series of automobile break-ins on campus. The thefts totaled approximately $1500. Much of it took place in the parking lot behind Bell Dormitory.

"Most of the items taken were in-dash radios and FM stereo receivers," according to Walton. Many times these thefts could be prevented if students had been more alert. If a student sees a suspicious person, they should get in touch with security and if they cannot be reached, the student should notify their resident counselor, who will know how to reach security.

"It is important for anyone to know before it is too late," said Lt. Walton. He advised students to put their social security or driver's license number on all valuables, especially CB radios, and to write down the serial number appearing on their in-dash radios. He also stressed putting some type of identifying mark on hub caps.

Checking one's car everyday and removing all valuables is essential to guard against theft.
Security Topic Of SGA Meeting

BY NANCY REICHLE

The issue of campus security dominated the Nov. 21 meeting of student legislature. Rev. Bob Lowdermilk and Dr. Murphy Osborne spoke to the legislature regarding the problem of security. The recent security interest resulted from the vandalizing of five cars in the parking lot behind Belk dorm during the weekend of Nov. 17-19.

Rev. Lowdermilk, in speaking to the body, emphasized two major problems: the problem with off campus people and internal problems such as theft in the dorms. Rev. Lowdermilk also stressed that students must help and share in the responsibility of security. He especially emphasized the closing of the late doors in the women's dormitory complex.

Dr. Osborne reported that the school plans to study the security systems of other schools. He also mentioned the murder and rape incident at Florida State University of last year to make students aware of the personal responsibility of security. He stated that he was more concerned with people than CB's.

The legislature itself passed a resolution proposed by Mike Showalter, pro-temp. It stated that the legislature wished to see the campus security of HPC improved in the following areas: more equipment for the security force, additional full time security guards for each work shift, and better lighting at frequently walked locations on campus. It further stated that the Administration should take immediate action to implement these improvements and continue to do whatever is necessary to provide above average, if not superior security for the campus and students of HPC.

Also, Caryn Reinhart presented an act to amend the constitution of the SGA. The amendment concerns Article VI, Section L of the constitution. As amended it would state: "The executive council shall decide on all money matters of the student government treasury up to fifty dollars. Amounts over fifty dollars shall require both a 2/3 vote of the legislature and passage in the executive council. Amendments require two readings before voting so the motion was tabled until the next meeting."

The legislature also decided to fund the Run-for-Fun club, an issue which has been pending for several weeks and is tentatively planning a Security Emphasis week for January 22-29.

College Bowl Update

The last College Bowl game of the semester was held Monday night, December 4. So far, the student response to the competition has been positive. "There has been more interest than I thought," said Tom Burke, director of the Student Activities.

ALTERNATIVES, a lifestyle education group, is sponsoring a nationwide Alternative Christmas campaign this year. The Campaign will be protesting the commercialization of Christmas, and publicizing the more human and socially responsible ways to celebrate, work and live. The Campaign is also encouraging people to divert money from over-consumption at Christmas to projects and organizations dealing directly with human needs and social change.

As part of the Campaign, the half-satirical/half serious "Alternative Santa Claus Movement" is hunting for hundreds - and hopefully thousands - of students, activists and church people to go out to communities and campuses to spread the word about the Alternative Christmas idea.

Become a Santa Claus with a cause, and help make this year's Christmas a meaningful and socially responsible celebration. Write or call us today: National Alternative Celebrations Campaign, 1500 Farragut St., NW, Washington, DC 20011; (202) 723-8273.

Ghost Inhabits Theatre

BY RAY DANIEL

He's there; creaking in the strange and lonely shadows of HPC's theater. He is Herschel Farquar, the usually friendly, but mischievous, ghost of the theater.

As legend has it, the ghost, which can be best described as a poltergeist, came originally to High Point's theater with a theater professor, named Carolyn Rauch. She was head of the department about five years before Dave Christovich took over. When she left the College, some claim that she took Herschel with her, but others believe that he remained and recent happenings tend to support them.

Several people have 'experienced' strange things in the theater, especially when they were alone, late at night. Bootsteps, (not regular footsteps), have been heard coming down the aisles by many. Robin Henson says that these are not just memories, but actual footsteps.

"The theater is such a movie. Every so often there's a movie that people relate to in a special kind of way. The Paper Chase is such a movie."

Reinhart Speaks Out

BY NANCY REICHLE

When interviewed about the progress of SGA this semester, Caryn Reinhart, SGA president, stated that she feels it has gone pretty well. She feels that SGA has received a positive response from the administration.

Caryn stated, "We've been trying to act on some of the problems students have been interested in." Some of these issues include the frisbee throwing, the requests of more varied food in the cafeteria, and the latest issue of restoring the concession area and rooms of the stadium.

Caryn also expressed disappointment that the students complain, but they don't come to the right people. She sincerely wants to hear what the students are concerned about.

Caryn mentioned that one of the biggest problems in the student government was the friction between herself and Norris Woody, speaker of the legislature. She feels that her veto of the Run-for-Fun bill caused a lot of this friction.

Regarding legislature, Caryn feels it is running smoothly but that too many personal conflicts are hurting the government.

She stressed that the big issue in SGA now is security. The administration has been working on the problem of security and hopes to soon have a crime prevention unit here to talk to representative students on security matters.

Caryn also expressed that she was upset about the abusing of the addition of fresh fruit, cheese, and eggs at meals. She stated that a few students' abuse could cause all to lose the privilege.

The first annual fraternity all-star football game was held last Saturday on the soccer field and the two teams played to a scoreless tie before a fairly good sized and enthusiastic crowd.

The four fraternities on campus are divided into two teams with each fraternity sending nine players to the contest. The Delta Sigs and the Pikas teamed up to face the Lambda Chis and the Theta Chis. With the cooperation and help of some of the faculty and administration, the fraternities were able to borrow equipment from Allen Jay High School, use the soccer stadium for the contest, and charge a 50c admission. The proceeds from the game are going to be donated to the Library Fund in the names of all four fraternities.

After getting the equipment the teams practiced all week and held blackboard sessions to devise the plays they wanted to run. Volunteer referees were found along with line men, an announcer, and statisticians. The soccer field was lined off to resemble a regulation football field and everything was ready for the game.

Defense dictated the outcome of the game as the defenses of both clubs were noticeably more organized than the offenses. Turnovers were abundant and plagued both teams. The Chis fumbled five times but lost the ball only twice while the Sig-Pika team fumbled the ball away on three occasions. Both squads managed to put together a few good offensive drives but each was stopped by turnovers or penalties.

Each team did cross the goal line one time but penalties nullified both scores and continued on page 11.
HPC Netters Receive Rejection

BY DENNIS TUTTLE

High Point women's coach Wanda Briley had two angles on the Lady Panthers' recent rejection to the National AIAW Volleyball Tournament slated for Orlando, Fla., later this month. Even though bitter disappointment was obviously expressed on Briley's face, she took the decision within stride.

The AIAW pairings are managed in such a manner that the top six teams of the tournament from the previous year gets an automatic bid for next season. If that team does not qualify the next year, then its region gets the bid. This was Briley's first angle since High Point placed tenth a year ago.

The other viewpoint which the second year coach pondered about was the over lapse of volleyball into basketball — which she coaches successfully enough in her first season to take the AIAW National Championship.

"Yeah, I looked at the decision with a very disappointing angle when I first got the news," Briley said. "Or at least I did until I heard all the circumstances." Only one at-large berth was given and High Point was not the recipient. Florida Southern was awarded the at-large bid and will take a 36-0 record into the tournament. Other teams in the state are Florida State, Alabama, Florida Tech., to mention a few.

Floyd Continues To Star

After Four Straight Wins, Panthers Fall To 5-2

BY DENNIS TUTTLE

A stunned reaction hit the High Point basketball team as the clock ticked off the final 19 seconds following guard Danny Anderson's missed 15-footer last Saturday night. And, as Elon's Charles Dickerson went to the foul line with two shots following an HPC foul on the rebound of Anderson's lastHope for High Point, it was obvious from the hugging scoreboard what the outcome of the Panthers' Carolinas Conference seasons opener was - a 63-62 loss.

A one time nine point second half lead quickly turned into an Elon lead with 1:15 left to play on Larry Scott's basket and later, two free throws that dropped the CC favorite Panthers record to 5-2 overall, 0-1 in the conference.

Elon, who led only once in the opening half, 14-12 trailed 37-30 at intermission. Right at the beginning of the second half, Panther John O'Brien dropped in a basket for a 39-30 HPC lead, which would be the largest Panther margin. But Elon, 0-3 overall going into the contest against the Nationally ranked Panthers, regained the lead 49-48 on Dickerson's jumper with 7:41 left to play. Elon then went to the tough 2-3 zone that slowed HPC's offense.

A contributing factor in the outcome was the 6-8 O'Brien, who is averaging 14 ppg for the season. O'Brien went scoreless the last eight minutes of the game while All-America Charlie Floyd scored 18 points, only eight of which came in the second half. Dickerson led all scorers with 26 points on 13 field goals.

However, the Panthers have had their bright spots going into this winter. Floyd, the Street & Smith All-America pick is starting the season where he left off last spring. After seven games, Floyd's scoring at a 17.6 ppg clip, averaging ten rebounds per contest and hitting 86 percentage from the charity stripe-all team leading stats.

But with one without Charlie, Floyd, High Point's offense has yet to get into full throttle. Gardner-Webb's 96-81 thrashing of HPC (snapping HPC's winning streak at four) in the finals of the High Point Thanksgiving Tournament is one example. But, like High Point, Gardner-Webb is ranked among the Nation's elite in the NAIA.

High Point trailed 47-40 at the half and quickly fell behind 62-52 with 13:07 left in the game. But even if straight Panther points closed the gap to within 62-61 with ten minutes to go.

But G-W went to its stall tactics and 6-9 tourney MVP K.C. Graham began to penetrate the lane for baskets. If it wasn't Graham, it was Gardner-Webb's 'Mr. Everything' Lewis Young hitting the Panthers for 24 points. John Borders also scored in double figures for G-W with 17.

But High Point wasn't finished until with six minutes remaining when Graham's basket and one hand slam dunk gave Gardner-Webb a 72-65 lead. The Panthers never caught up. O'Brien led HPC with 15, Floyd pumped in 14, Charlie's freshman brother, Bruce, scored 14, and Anderson added 13.

To reach the finals, HPC handled Wingate 99-72 in the opening round. The Panthers breezed to a ten point lead in the first half and Charlie contributed 18 points in the winning Panther effort. Steve Wheless added 16 points while Charlie and O'Brien each hauled in eight rebounds in a game that HPC dominated on the board 40-27.

High Point opened the season with a 74-54 win at Fort Bragg. But HPC retaliated the slim margin over Fort Bragg with a 103-70 romping three weeks later here at Alumni Gym. But two close games after the opening win gave coach Jerry Steele a few more nervous blisters on his infected hands — something that has been with the eighth year HPC coach throughout his 16 years of coaching.

In Marietta, Ga., the Panthers scored 16 of his game high 23 points in the second half while the Panthers shot a blistering 67 percent from the floor, connecting on 31 of 46 field goal attempts.

Danny Anderson led HPC with 23 points while Charlie Floyd had 19 and O'Brien 13 points.

And then, down in Conway, S.C., two Bruce Floyd free throws with 21 seconds left iced the Panthers third straight win - 72-71 over Coastal Carolina.

Briley and her Lady Panthers have no reason for disappointment. This season's version of HPC volleyball was by far the most successful ever-finishing 42-10 (leaping the 42-10 mark set during Briley's 1977-78 rookie season) -- and the play of freshmen by far exceeded Briley's anticipation for this year.

"From what others have told me, this is the best team we've ever had here," the coach said. "We're just pleased with the overall record, and the outcome of the season. I said at the first of the year that it might be a rebuilding year because we had six freshmen that would play considerably. But the freshmen showed me they could play," she added.

Even though HPC wasn't offered the AIAW bid, Briley isn't sure if the college would have been able to afford the trip. High Point athletics works on such a limited budget that even if the Panthers were to receive a bid this year, or any other year, the decision on the trip would have to be taken into deep consideration by college officials. Nevertheless, Briley is proud of her girls. She talks with optimism for next year knowing that many of the same objections that produced this fall might also appear again next year. It's just a chance she's taking.

Glover Content With Position

Unlike other assistant college basketball coaches who see assistant coaching as a pedestal to head coaching position, High Point AC Mike Glover is content where he is. Ask him and he'll remain under Coach Jerry Hoele for some time.

Now in his second year as Hoele's assistant and the head tennis coach, Glover has no ambitions whatsoever for a head basketball position. The tennis team is tough of a challenge without it being a major sport. "I'm content where I'm at," said Glover. "There's no way I'm ready to coach basketball. I'm very happy where I stand."

Glover never entered the thought of taking a high school position like Kevin Billerman (Durham Hilsid High School) did after his graduation from college ranks. It's something about the younger kids that is thrilling to Glover's patience. "I don't think I would have a lot of patience with high school kids. I'm just content with my position here," Glover added.

Glover's position under Steele is at times exasperating and hazardous to Glover's health, who has back problems any how. But Glover likes his recruiting duties and the other aspects of coaching. "It's a hard job. Travel is rough and finding players becomes a task. But I've been around here for eight years now and I know pretty much what coach Steele likes and what he's looking for," Glover said.

Glover's fondness for young people, not high age but the age college kids are, was a factor for his return to HPC. He saw the opportunity to come back to High Point when Steele's assistant Jim Gough, gave up the basketball and head tennis duties for the insurance business.

"I had a great time when I went to school here," said without hesitation. "It was just one of those offers you can't refuse. I like kids and I'm very fond of the people here. It was just a good situation."

Glover took a big hand in recruiting HPC's Anthony Parrish, the freshman guard, who Steele is counting on quite heavily for leadership after senior Charlie Floyd's graduation this year. Glover is now looking at prospects for next year-possibly two players-one to replace the 6-6 Floyd.

Glover was a splendid athlete while at Ragsdale High School in Jamestown. Glover played the three major sports-football, basketball and baseball-and he played them with expertise. Glover went to High Point to play basketball under coach Steele after his graduation from Ragsdale in 1972.

But Glover played sparingly during his career at HPC, which in a prognosticators eye is a good indication of coaching abilities: The man who watches from the sideline is the most observant of the special qualities of the game. Glover started off-and-on during his sophomore year and played considerably at times his junior and senior seasons.

Yet, when Glover graduated in the spring of 1976 with a degree in Human Relations, he went to work for his father, who is a grading contractor. Glover never realized that he might return to HPC, especially as a coach.

"I went to work for my father in the grading business right after graduation," Glover said. "I had worked with it all my life so I knew pretty much what I was doing."

An interesting fact about Glover's coaching duties is his tennis team that was 12-10 his rookie season. Glover never played tennis in high school nor did he play here at High Point. But he landed the head position after Gough's departure. Glover is pessimistic about his playing abilities but has confidence in his knowledge of the game.

"I'm not a good player but I know the game. Last year we had no money to recruit but we had a good team, anyhow. I've got my hands full trying to be a good coach in tennis and be a good assistant basketball coach. It's all very tiring."

Glover teaches P.E. and along with coaching, he feels that time is sparse to be devoted to both. His wife of three years, Karen, sees him very little but like a good coach's wife, she totally understands the leadership standpoint.

But Glover is unlike other assistant coaches. Many seek a bigger position and former N.C. State assistant Eddie Biedenbach (now at Davidson) and former UNC Charlotte assistant Mike Pratt (now the head coach there) have a head coaching job. Glover has no aspiration for anything bigger than he has at High Point. He's taking the days one at a time.

"I spend very little time thinking about next year," noted Glover. "I'm interested in doing a pretty good job here. I have no aspirations to have a head coaching job. I don't want to coach high school and I don't think I'm ready to coach college. Both basketball, tennis and teaching takes up so much time. I'll just take the days one at a time."

Even though Mike Glover might change his disposition about coaching in the next few years he's content where he's at with High Point College athletics. What ever it may be, Glover's going to "jump into it with two feet."
