Tingle accepts position with health foundation

BY CRYSTAL L.

Editor-in-Chief

Bruce Tingle, assistant director of student life, left High Point College Jan. 7 to begin work with the Area L. AHEC staff, a subsidiary of the UNC school of medicine.

Tingle will work for the Health Education Foundation of Eastern North Carolina, Inc. He will be the Associate Director for Special Projects.

According to Tingle, he will provide and promote quality health care centers and provide educational opportunities for doctors, in his new position.

"I regret the timing deeply," Tingle said of his leaving between semesters.

"But this was too good an opportunity to turn down," he said. "It is a better move professionally and I will have an opportunity to go back to school and get a Master's in Hospital Administration."

With the office of Career Planning and Placement empty, Mr. Michael Pittman, director of student life, said "I will be doing as much as I have time to do in Career Planning and Placement, but it will be very difficult maintaining what we have right now."

"I have to fill the position as quickly as possible, but with the most qualified person," Pittman said.

"I will be working with the new dean in finding someone to fill that position and there will be student involvement in the interview process," Pittman said.

"If I could leave anything to the student, Tingle said, "it would be to do the best you can and don't sit in the dorms and complain."

Winfield Bearce fills academic dean position

High Point College has a new academic dean. Dr. Winfield Bearce arrived January 10 to fill the position that had been vacant since the reassignment of Dr. David Cole to a teaching position last spring.

During the vacancy, Dr. E. Roy Epperson acted as temporary dean of the college. President Lucht reported earlier this fall that there had been "over 100 applicants for the job." The decision on the appointment of Bearce was announced last December by Lucht.

Bearce comes to High Point from Missouri Valley College where he served as dean of that college. Bearce was with the school for a total of 17 years, during which he took a leave to serve with the Peace Corps of Africa. Bearce went to Kenya, Africa as a chemistry lecturer at Nairobi University for two years.

Bearce is married and has two children. In an interview Wednesday, he commented that his family would be joining him in High Point in March. He also commented that he is looking forward to making his home here, having visited this part of the country for conferences in the past.

Bearce also feels comfortable with the size of HPC. He said that the school he came from is "very similar in size" to HPC. He said the students also seem similar.

Bearce further commented that his "primary emphasis would be on the high quality education offered by the college and its faculty."

His previous school was located in a small town with many of its students being from other parts of the country.

Bearce, himself, attended a small college in Maine, Bowdoin College, where he received his A.B. degree. He recalls being active in his student life program, also being involved in the Greek system as a Kappa Sigma Alumnae of that college. Bearce at this point, showed personal interest in the development of the Student Life program at High Point. "I feel this is where we can implement the personal touch of the college." Commenting on his prior experiences with programs such as the Greeks, he said. "I feel that such grouping gives an opportunity for a lot of strength within a college." "Thus, it can promote dedication to ones institution." With enrollment at small colleges, such as High Point decreasing, Bearce felt that the student life development may be a factor to keep students happy with HPC.

Bearce further commented that his "primary emphasis would be on the high quality education offered by the college and its faculty."

Overall, Bearce seems to be very excited about joining the staff here at HPC, he says he will start by "getting to know about he traditions and relationships that make High Point College."

Filling positions, admissions head Lucht's concerns

BY CRYSTAL L.
HEDGECOCK
Editor-in-Chief

Beginning the semester with a new dean, no business manager and an active admissions office are among the concerns of Dr. Charles R. Lucht, president of the College.

Other concerns, according to Lucht, include the appointment of a director of library services, the construction of the new library and the replacement of Mr. Bruce Tingle, assistant director of student life.

Dr. Winfield Bearce, the new academic dean began work Jan. 10.

"I would like students to meet the new dean," Lucht said. "The dean is the head of the academic program and often a student only meets the dean under adverse conditions, but I would like all students to meet the new dean."

The replacement of Mr. Ken Bulla, business manager of HPC, is being directed by a search committee, Lucht said. Members of that committee are: Mr. James L. Nelson, associate professor of Business Administration and Economics; Mr. Manyon Idol, assistant professor of Mathematics; Mr. Clete Kruyer, vice-president for college affairs; Dr. E. Roy Epperson, dean for administrative affairs; Mr. Fred Peele, superintendent of buildings and grounds and Lucht.

"We have received over 70 applications," Lucht said, "and have interviewed 12 applicants. We have now reduced the number to eight to ten callbacks for second interviews."

Lucht said after the second interview, the top two or three candidates would be brought back one more time.

"I don't expect it will take long to arrive at the number one person," Lucht said.

Innocence.

What better word describes the cold white residue that softly blankets the ground and anything else left unguarded? The small particles trickle out of the clouds and quietly turn the ugly grime of winter coldness into a virginal existence.

Yes, its innocence prevails, as long as we stay intact. Yes, its innocence is appreciated, as long as we can watch from our home windows and not from our car windows as we move recklessly down the road at 10 m.p.h.

How can we be so deceived by this tiny culprit we call a snowflake? Alone, the snowflake matters little. It flutters to earth for its melting death. (It's true -- just try to catch one of those critters!) But somehow, this insignificant snowflake, when gathered by many, fights harder for its survival and soon triumphs. And a triumphing snowflake is nothing but trouble!

Terror.

What better word describes the cold white residue that swiftly devours the ground and anything else left unguarded. The small particles gush out of the clouds and quickly turn the safe streets of yesterday into death traps.

Yes, its terror prevails, as long as we venture away from the warmth and security of home. Yes, its terror is evident, as long as we effortlessly try to steer our cars (or even our bodies) and realize we are no longer in control.

Oh boy! I can't wait --95% chance of snow! I just love snow -- all the fun we'll have! Maybe we'll make snow cream, or go sledding, or fix popcorn and hot chocolate, or fall down on the sidewalk, or run the car into a ditch, or...

To be missed by many

His mischievous grin was always there to greet whoever came by. He always had a friendly word to brighten one's day. He was always there when anyone needed him -- night and day. But what single quality really captured the essence of Bruce Tingle? Bruce cared.

As students returned to campus after Christmas break, many noticed the absence of a familiar face. Bruce Tingle, assistant director of Student Life, had resigned.

Tingle left the college on Jan. 7 to begin work with the Area L. AHEC staff, a subsidiary of the UNC school of medicine. He will be the Associate Director for Special Projects.

The mark Tingle made on the college and community will not soon be forgotten. He spent countless hours helping students find jobs and he was always available for counselling when a student had a problem. Tingle's affiliation with the High Point Jaycees and the local epilepsy association are just two examples of the fine work he gave to the community. He was recently honored with a special award from Governor Hunt for his outstanding volunteerism.

Why was Bruce Tingle so able to help others? Bruce had a true understanding of what it is like to have to overcome obstacles in life, so he knows that no problem is too large to overcome.

Another great thing about Bruce that will be missed at HPC was his desire to know each student personally. When he would see someone around campus, he usually knew his or her name and something about that person. Bruce truly cared about his work and those who he had to work with.

To fill the space Bruce Tingle left at High Point College will be impossible. However, it is impossible to erase the outstanding mark he left on our college and community.

New year's resolutions

To live to be two-hundred years old.

To change my name legally (some computer somewhere has already changed it extra-legally) from M.C. Hodge to M. Chodge. I might as well go along. How can you fight the Big C? Try saying it to yourself, though. Chodge. That's ugly. But don't say it out loud. That can cause all sorts of mischief. At the VFW the other day, I got a little excited and yelled out, "CHODGE!" The next thing I knew, a squad of South Carolinians, Green Berets all, had bayoneted half the guys around the bar.

To find at least one worthwhile thing at every faculty meeting.

To floss more often. The first time a dental assistant told me that, I thought she was perverted, you know how they look at you when they've got you strapped into that torture chair--and then she says, "You haven't been flossing regularly, have you?" Not only had I been failing to floss regularly, I had been failing to floss period. And the way the word sounded, I wasn't so sure I wanted to start. But I bought one of those little rolls of floss. And it said something like "500 yards." How do they get five-hundred yards of thread on that teeny roll? A computer must do it.

To be cost-effective, and to find out what "cost-effective" means.

To avoid being inter-faced by anyone, unless I'm wearing my old catcher's mask.

To preserve, within my limited capacity, the artistic integrity of the literature, and the integrity of the English-American language.

To read at least two pages of Finnegan's Wake.

To go into the cafeteria and talk to students. The Committee on the Retention of Students was advised last semester that we could keep more students at HPC if faculty members went into the cafeteria more often. I don't know if that works too well. I went in there a couple of times last year, but not a single blamed kid gave me a bite of anything to eat, and one guy got real mad when I asked him if I could have one of his spare ribs. He said the only spare one he'd ever heard of was Adam's, and it had already been used for something else. Smart-aleck religion major.

To stop leaving my kids out at Westchester Mall on weekends. They say it's okay during the day, but they get awfully bored at night, with only the night watchman to talk to and all.

To teach the past as an instrument, a resource, and a root source of knowledge, to be active in historical observing, in cultivating a perspective on the present.

To sink my hands into a mound of clay!

Never to leave home without it.

To make peace with the Big C.

To remember that the whole fight is for the conservation of the individual soul.

Computers at HPC prepare students for the future

Students, faculty learn computer use

BY LEWIS WHELESS
Associate Editor

As today's world is becoming more and more advanced by computer technology, colleges and universities are striving to give students experience in using technological machines.

High Point College is no exception.

HPC currently owns 24 Apple II+48k computers that are being used in the math, science, business and human resources departments.

Dr. Roy Epperson, Dean of Administrative Affairs, said the college initially purchased three Apple computers (Apples) at a cost of about $10,000 for the math department in the fall of 1981. This funding came from the High Point College Rawley Fund. Epperson said the Apple II is not very old - it first came to the market in 1976.

Epperson said the business department and the Continuing Adult Education Program (CAEP) requested the purchase of more computers. Dr. David Cole, former Dean of the College, wrote a proposal to HPC President Charles Lucht for a request of about $50,000 to purchase 20 more Apples. The request was approved by the board of trustees and the computers were purchased last spring.

The business department made a request to the Mobile Corporation for a $5,000 grant for a micro computer, software, and a card for Cobol computer language.

Epperson said there are 10 Apple II+48k computers in room six of Haworth Hall that are equipped with Pascal language for use in the math and science departments. There are also two Apples equipped for basic language in the physical science department. Nine Apples are being used for courses in the business department, and one computer is stationed in the psychology department.

Dr. Richard R. Bennington, chairman of the business department, said the department purchased one micro computer, software (computer accessories), and one card for Cobol language from the Mobile Grant. Cobol language, according to Bennington, was the first business-oriented computer language for management of information.

Students using the Apples will have the capacity to forecast markets and price movements. The computers also have the capacity to help in production marketing, as in laying out plans for a factory.

Bennington said the only business-computer course offered this spring is the fundamentals of data processing. He said no further courses will be planned until an institutional-wide study is completed. The study will determine what computer courses are necessary for the business curriculum and it will seek ways for the faculty to be trained in using the computers.

Mrs. Iris Mauney, Assistant Professor of Business Administration and Economics, is currently the only business instructor to teach a computer course (Business 352, Intro. to Data Processing). Mauney herself has been a computer student, as she is completing a data processing degree at Davidson County Community College. She has already completed 37 hours and will complete the full 60-hour degree by May while simultaneously teaching a full course load at HPC.

Mauney said there are three basic goals for the data processing course: the introduction to data processing, the use of computers and an introduction to programming and basic computer use. Mauney said she wants to "let the students see how the computer can be used in a particular area. They (the students) need to SEAN RUSSELL (L) AND VERNON HEDGECKOCK demonstrate use of the "Apples". (Photo by Marisa Firpi) know how to program (a computer) themselves." Mauney also said that "in today's world every student needs a computer," and the business department needs to offer more computer courses because a large percentage of the CAEP students are majoring in business.

Dr. Epperson said that Dr. Nelson F. Page, Chairman of the Mathematics Department, taught himself to use the Apple II computer. According to Epperson, Page was allowed release time to use the computer at home. Page developed and implemented four programs. Epperson said students in the computer programming course wanted to take an advanced course, so a new program was developed as a result of student demand. Epperson said the computer courses in the math and science departments are geared to teach three things: How to write programs, how to debug programs, and how to problem-solve. As for the future of computers at HPC, Epperson said at this point there is "no active written proposal for micros (Apple computers) - this does not say we do not need them or we are not going to move that way." He said the Educational Policies Committee asked the Dean's office to determine "the total philosophy of the utilization of computers in the undergraduate curriculum" before any requests for additional computers are made.

Computers help run HPC

Not only are computers being implemented at High Point College for educational purposes, but they also play a major role in the operations of the school.

Dr. Epperson said the college is now using a "main frame" IBM 32 Batch System computer for printing class roles, grade reports, etc. He said the computer has definite limitations because it has no on-line capabilities. The computer has the capacity for data entry, but cannot perform any other function while printing.

Epperson said the college needs to move to an interactive system so data entry is done by the office that is making the entry. He said, "In the calendar year 1983 we will purchase a new central computer." The new computer will "probably not be an IBM."

College Bowl gets underway Mon.

BY LEWIS WHELESS

Associate Editor

The first round of College Bowl will take place Mon., Jan. 31 with seven to ten teams competing in the "battle of knowledge."

The competition will consist of a round robin in which each team plays every other team twice. The finals will be double elimination (two losses in each round).

April Callahan, the coordinator of college bowl, said she was surprised by the fact that many people outside of fraternities and sororities developed teams. She said she expects seven to ten teams to participate.

Callahan said the HPC college bowl team is not eligible for tournament play because of a very limited budget. She said the teams have a swap-off set with UNC-G in order to get question packs for the games.

College bowl is a sport of knowledge and is very similar to the high school "High IQ Bowl". Rounds are played in eight-minute halves. A reader-moderator, scorekeeper, and timekeeper will all be present to run the games.

Callahan said that if anyone still wishes to sign up for college bowl they can possibly be placed with a team. If a whole team wishes to enter competition, they must provide Callahan with a roster containing no less than four names and no more than 10. A designated team captain and his or her post office box must also be sent to Callahan at P.O. Box 3134, phone 889-7806.

Bowling Club lists scores

BY DONN KESTER

Special to the HI-PO

Four members of the club have earned special awards this season: Liz Crawford earned a 200 Game patch for a high score game for women of a 206; Susan Durbano earned a 500 series patch for a high series for women with a 502 series; David Tomlinson earned a 600 series patch for a high series for men with a 604; and Donn Kester earned a 100 over average patch for a high game for men with a 256 game and also has the high series with a 679.

The club currently has ten active members. We lost five members last semester due to graduation and members not returning. The club has their own league which bowls on Saturdays at 1:30 p.m. The cost is $3.25 per week. But also included are some free bowling lessons. WE NEED SOME NEW MEMBERS!!

The club has four foreign students who have never bowled before and are learning during league play. Pat Victoria's average has improved almost 50 points within five weeks of bowling.

Don't be scared to come out and have fun with us and learn to bowl at the same time. This semester we are bowling on February 5 & 26, March 19 & 26, April 9, 16, 23, & 30 at High Point Lanes. If you have any questions, see Gerry Hill in the Bookstore.

Meanwhile, Lucht said "the operation is well-run. There is no problem, no emergency situation. Instead of going to Bulla, they see me."

Lucht expressed concern about enrollment, because the trend has been a decline every year since 1979.

"The decrease in enrollment was not as steep a decrease that might have been expected," Lucht said. "With only one exception, the other private schools were down more."

Lucht praised the admissions department, saying "Under (Jim) Schlimmer's direction, the college could do as well as any college in this situation (decrease in enrollment)."

"The three admissions counselors are intelligent highly motivated, energetic and well-trained," Lucht said, "and with Mrs. (Joan) Betsill and the other office staff, we will do as well as anyone."

Since Mr. Larry Keese, director of library services, left in June 1982, Mrs. Carol Aderholdt has been the acting director of library services, Lucht said.

"I told Dean Bearce to make the librarian search a number one priority," Lucht said, "With the new library scheduled to open early next fall, a new director of library services needs to be appointed so to be ready for the move."

"The library construction is right on schedule," Lucht said, "and the latest completion date is Sept. 27, 1983."

With the completion of the library, Lucht said it is "likely we will add some personnel, because of the size of the building."

Concerning the replacement of Tingle, Lucht said "Mr. (Michael) Pittman (director of student life) has a committee set up to find someone to fill the position. Mr. Pittman said the earliest he could fill this position is the week of Feb. 7."

Lucht added, in connection to enrollment, that the College can use "any positive help by the students by referring good students to High Point College."

"We need to attract people who will make the grade," he said.

The Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity presented a check for $500 to Big Brothers/Big Sisters, a United Way agency, on Jan. 20.

The check was presented to Rick Brown, executive director of Big Brothers/Big Sisters by John Van Horn, Pi Kappa Alpha president and David Tomlinson, Pi Kappa Alpha treasurer.

Also present, in addition to the other Pi Kappa Alpha brothers, were Robert Gates, HPC Pi Kappa Alpha alumnus who is a Big Brother, and Keath Efird, Gate's Little Brother.

The money will go toward the agency's normal operating income. Since the agency is a United Way agency, one-fourth of the $46,000 annual budget comes from the United Way. The other three-fourths comes from private contributions, such as the one given by the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Now is the time to apply for financial aid

BY LEWIS WHELESS
Associate Editor

Kay N. Stroud, Director of Financial Aid, is encouraging all students to file for 1983-84 aid as soon as possible. Students applying for aid should be certain to apply for the Pell Grant (BEOG) and N.C. Grants when filling out financial aid forms.

Mrs. Stroud said students should see someone in the financial aid office in Roberts Hall if they have any additional problems, etc. after the needs analysis is returned from the ACT.

Mrs. Stroud also said the outlook for student aid in 1983-84 is encouraging, as no cutbacks are foreseen at this time. The same levels that applied in 1982-83 will probably apply for 1983-84. "We are encouraging everyone to apply for aid," Stroud said.

The various deadlines for aid applications are listed below:

National Direct Student Loan, Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant, and College Work-Study. Complete the ACT Family Financial Statement (FFS), the CSS Financial Aid Form (FAF), or the Application for Federal Student Aid (AFSA) by March 1, 1983 for priority consideration.

PELL Grant. Complete the FFS, the FAF, or the AFSA by March 15, 1983. (Students are encouraged to complete one of these forms by March 1, 1983.)

North Carolina State Contractual Scholarship Fund (Available to NC residents only). Complete the FFS or the FAF by March 1, 1983 for priority considerations.

North Carolina Legislative Tuition Grant (Available to full-time, undergraduate students; NC residents only). Complete the NCLTG application form available in the Financial Aid Office. (The NCLTG application form for 1983-84 should be available by April 1.)

North Carolina Student Incentive Grant - (NCSIG) (NC residents only). Complete the FFS or the FAF. Students must have a copy of the results of the FFS or the FAF sent to College Foundation by March 15, 1983 to be considered for this grant.

Academic Scholarships -Complete the scholarship application form available in the Financial Aid Office by March 15, 1983. (These forms should be available by mid-February.)

Guaranteed Student Loans and PLUS Loans -Obtain a loan application form from your state agency. Most state agencies suggest that a complete application be received by June 15 for priority consideration.

On-Campus employment -Complete an application form available in the Financial Aid Office. (Students with a demonstrated need will receive priority in placement.)

Other Scholarships Start checking in your community for civic organizations, churches, clubs, employers, or foundations offering scholarships. Students should apply for as many as possible and as early as possible.

Organization of 1983 Homecoming underway

BY KAREN HERNANDEZ
Staff Writer

"Homecoming '83 will be very fancy this year. High Point College students deserve something more than just a dance with plain candles and a band," said Mr. Art Prillaman.

Prillaman and Ms. Tabbie Nance are in charge of organizing this year's Homecoming. They are planning to have hors d'oeuvres served for the first half of the dance, decorations and flower center pieces.

Entertainment for the Feb. 11 dance will be presented by "The Hollywood Brats". The band will play a variety of music, ranging from the Stones, Ray Parker Jr., Rick Springfield, Rick James, Gap Band, to Men At Work & The Steve Miller Band. The dance will take place at the "Top of The Mart," from 9:00-1:00 a.m.

As far as drinking is concerned, students will be stamped either "OVER" or "UNDER" at the entrance. There will be an open bar (pay bar) which will serve mixed drinks for those over 21 years of age, and beer and wine for those under 21 years of age.

"But don't get scared money wise because tickets this year will only be $5.00 per couple if purchased before the dance and $6.00 per couple if purchased at the door," said Prillaman. This is the one dance for all HPC students and alumni and everyone should be proud of it much time and money (over $3000) has gone into it to make it the best of all previous Homecomings.

Tickets for the dance will be sold starting this week and the next on Mondays & Wednesdays ONLY during lunch time. During the week of Homecoming, tickets will be sold throughout the entire week during lunch time. Sigs sponsor party for underprivileged

BY GREG FOX

For the Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity and nearly two dozen High Point children, 1982 Christmas celebrations came three weeks early.

The Sigs, in cooperation with the city's Parents Anonymous Group, sponsored a yuletide party for 22 underprivileged kids on Dec. 4. Cake, cookies, punch and other refreshments were provided while the youngsters enjoyed various games in the fraternity's lounge.

Debra Shaver and guitarist Anna Brady captured the crowd's attention with an array of Christmas carols. Afterwards, everyone got into the musical mood and joined in the singing.

A visit from Santa Claus (David Morse) highlighted the evening and all of the youths received candy gifts.

"All of the brothers enjoyed the event very much and we're looking forward to doing this on an annual basis," Sig President John McDonald said. "Everything went better than we originally expected."

Christmas activities for Delta Sigma Phi didn't end here, though. The brothers, pledges, Alumnis and their dates gathered for a holiday season party at the Holiday Inn Four Seasons on Dec. 6.

Panther cagers having down seasons

Men drop four of five games

BY MARK PHELPS
Sports Editor

The men's basketball team got the new year off to a good start with a victory over Lenoir Rhyne on January 8 but since then the Panthers have lost four of their last five. For the season, the Cagers are 4-11 overall and 2-5 in conference play.

In the Lenoir Rhyne victory, the Panthers were able to take the lead with 7.48 left in the first half and never looked back as they grabbed a 72-62 win. Robert Hutson led all scorers with 18 points while Terry Samuels and Butch Bowser hit for 16 and 11 respectively.

High Point lost to Belmont-Abbey on Jan. 10 in a game that saw the Panthers trail most of the game before tying it at 48 with 4.50 remaining to play. Abbey then was able to regain the lead and never relinquished it as they hit on seven of eight foul shots in the final minutes.

After a 78-57 loss to S.C.-Spartanburg, the Panthers fell victims to conference foe Catawba 97-79. The contest had the Indians take an 18 point lead in the second half before High Point cut the margin to seven with six minutes left. Catawba then hit 12 of 17 free throws in the closing minutes to take then win. Hutson led 11 scorers with 23 points while Danny Murphy added 18.

High Point then defeated Elon 86-79 to gain their fourth win of the season. Murphy led a balanced attack with 24 points while Mike Everette and Samuels combined for 22 and 16 respectively. On Saturday night, the Panthers lost to Pfeiffer 85-65. Hutson paced the losers with 16 points, Everette added 12 and Bowser scored 10.

Women's record 2-7

BY MARK PHELPS
Sports Editor

With a lackluster record of 2-7 overall and 1-4 in conference play, coach Nancy Little's goal for the rest of her women's basketball season is to improve on each game, particularly at two major aspects of the game.

"The problem is not that we aren't working hard," revealed coach Little, "but that we are making too many mental mistakes and are not getting the shots to drop." Against conference opponents, the Lady Panthers are shooting just 36% from the floor and 52% from the foul line.

A major reason for the poor shooting is the loss of three possible starters at the beginning of the year. Third team all-American Becky Coles did not return to High Point, while two key recruits, both expected to attend the college this year, did not come.

In addition, Ursulla Watt, the leading scorer returning, broke her hand a few days before the season began and did not begin to play until after Christmas.

Track team begins season Thurs.

MARK PHELPS
Sports Editor

With the 1983 Track season getting underway Thursday at an indoor meet in Lynchburg, Virginia, coach Jim Davidson is hoping this year's team can match the fourth place finish in the district of last year's squad. This will undoubtedly be a challenge as quite a few of the top performers from the '82 team are now gone.

"On paper, we look to be weaker than last year because we lost some really key people," said coach Davidson. "We have many question marks in the running events because three of our top runners will not be returning."

Two of these performers were lost through transfers while one dropped out of school. Jeff Doerr, the leading hurdler, was also lost because he did not return for the second semester.

To compensate for this, coach Davidson will have to get a big year in the field events, which look to be the strongpoint. "Overall, the field events look pretty good, particularly in the long and triple jumps. We are going to be solid in the high jump, the javelin, and the pole vault."

The key to the team's success will lie in how well the returnees are able to produce. Leading the veterans is defending conference champion Jon Richardson in the javelin, Ralph Barnes in the triple and long jump, and Phil Dickerson, who placed in the conference in the pole vault. Other returnees include 6-8 high jumper Jack Songster, Dan Wiborn in the field events, distantmen Jeff Norris and Mike Duffy, and sprinter Kent Sides. Coach Davidson said he expects a big year out of Sides.

The story of the newcomers is transfer Chris Brown. Brown has been out of athletics for two years while attending a junior college, but coach Davidson says that he is an outstanding triple and long jumper.

"With the exception of Brown, we really don't know much about the new kids, but if some of them come through and produce, it would be a real shot in the arm for us."

Among the newcomers are distantmen Joel Moebius, Jeff Henry, and Steve Hatt, long and triple jumper Terry Aiken, long jumper Jeff Collins, sprinter Mike Lemmo, and Tom Scott and Barry Peronteau in the shot and discuss.

Asked about the competition in the Carolina's conference this year, coach

Rule changes spark controversy

BY MARK PHELPS
Sports Editor

Amidst the controversy surrounding the proposal for new standards for athletes, I decided to begin my stint as sports editor with yet another opinion on the issue.

For those of you who are unfamiliar, Proposition, which it is called now, is a set of rules drafted by an all-white committee of university presidents which has been called by its supporters as "the answer to the deterioration of American higher education." The proposal says that athletes of Division I schools (High Point in Division) must have completed a core curriculum of three English courses, and two of Math, social science, and natural science. They must also have kept a 2.0 average and scored a minimum of 700 on the S.A.T. or 15 on the ACT exam.

I must first state that I agree with the proposal in that something had to be done about the evident lack of concern many colleges have shown toward the athletes' educations. Those opposing the new rules, many of which are black educators, argue that blacks and rural isolated whites will be hurt by them because of their economic backgrounds and the opportunities these youths have. I do agree that if the rules were put into effect now, this would be true. But the new proposal will not become into effect until 1986, which allows adequate time for the school systems to upgrade themselves. In my opinion, it is going to take two things to make No. 48 work. First, the subject requirements are going to put more responsibility on the high schools. The schools are going to have to get themselves to the level where they can prepare perspective athletes, white and black, to do well in the classrooms. The second thing lies with the students. I think that if a kid really wants to attend a top school, he will work hard enough to maintain a 2.0 average. I don't see any reason why a C student should have any trouble getting a 700 on the SAT.

Even if the student cannot meet the requirements, he still has the opportunity to attend a Division I school with what some have viewed as a loophole. The committee voted, in addition to Proposition 48, to allow athletes not meeting the new requirements to obtain an athletic scholarship but they cannot play during their freshman year.

In closing, I would like to add that I do not understand why the committee of university presidents was all white. With all the top black colleges around the country, there surely should have been some representatives for them.

lost 74-61 to Mars Hill in what was a foul-ridden contest. The score was close for most of the game but the difference was at the foul line, where Mars Hill hit 18 of 32. There was a total of 54 fouls called.

The Panthers then lost a double-overtime heart-breaker to conference for Pheiffer in a game which saw High Point hold a two point lead with 29 seconds left. "The Pheiffer loss was a game which we should have won," coach Little said,

"We just made too many mental errors."

Against Catawba, the Lady Panthers were able to rebound and gain their second win of the season with a 51-50 victory. This was a big win for the team because Catawba has previously beaten Lenoir Rhyne.

Poor shooting was the key to the loss to Winthrop on Jan. 17. High Point shot only 33% from the field while their opponents hit on half of their attempts, including 75% in the second half. On last Wednesday, the Panthers suffered their worst defeat of the season as they were blitzed by Elon 77-43.

Dance Friday, game Saturday

1983 Homecoming activities planned

BY TANA PARKER
Staff Writer

The 59th annual Homecoming activities at High Point College will officially start for the students on Fri., Feb. 11. It will be marked by a formal dance at the Top of the Mart, from 9 p.m.-1 a.m. Entertainment, sponsored by Student Union, will be the "Hollywood Brats" and beverages will be sold at a cash bar.

Tickets, $1.50 per person/$3.00 couple, will be sold this week during lunch and dinner in the cafeteria. Gert Evans, in charge of Alumni Affairs, has invited alumni to attend.

During the dance, the 1983 Homecoming Queen nominees will be introduced. The eight finalists vying for the crown will also be recognized. The alumni will find themselves very busy on Sat., Feb. 12, with an Executive Committee meeting and memorial service. Denise Watts, Vice-President of the SGA, and alumni will judge the annual banner contest which will be displayed in the Alumni Gymnasium. The students, faculty, and alumni will have a chance to show off their "talent" in the Hi-Pro Show at 2:30 p.m. The 20 acts, with openings for more, will gather together in the High Point Memorial Auditorium. First, second, and third place plaques will be given out by Mr. Evans and alumni who will be judging.

At 5:15 a "Pig-pickin'" will be held for alumni and the eight court members. Debbie Shaver and Bob Clark will sing during the dinner.

Certain groups will have open-houses for the alumni to attend between lunch and the Hi-Pro Show and after the night's basketball games.

At 6:00 p.m. the women's basketball team will host the Guilford Quakers. During half-time the court members and their escorts will be introduced. Immediately following the women's game, the 1983 Homecoming Queen will be crowned. At this time, it is not certain that the reigning queen, Jannell Welsh, will be crowning the new queen. President Lucht will present the new queen with a bouquet of roses.

During half-time of the men's basketball game, visiting alumni queens, dating back to the first Homecoming Queen at HPC, will be honored. The annual "Rowdy Crowd" plaque will also be presented at that time to the rowdiest crowd. The Spirit Stick, which is given out at every game to the organization with the most spirit, and the winner of the banner contest will be announced.

To end the memorable weekend, a special worship service will be held on Sun., Feb. 13 at 11:15 a.m. in the Hayworth Chapel.

Gabriele to present paper

BY BOB ROSSI
Staff Writer

Dr. John Gabriele, professor of Foreign Language, is flying to Tulane University Thurs., Feb. 10, where he will present a paper at the Louisiana Conference on Hispanic Literature, and Language.

Gabriele will present his interpretation of a famous Spanish play. His paper, entitled "The Grotesque, Self-Denial and Psychological Deterioration in Los Cuernos de don Friolera" deals with the effects of existentialism caused by the Spanish American War in 1898.

The High Point College professor will read to a number of experts on twentieth-century Spanish literature. Gabriele's paper was selected from over one hundred other applicants who also submitted papers about the Generation of 1898.

Over six hundred Specialists in Spanish will attend the conference and about four hundred will have presentations.

Gabriele stressed that professional development and a chance to keep up with what is happening in his specialty are the main objectives for going to the conference in New Orleans.

WWIH increases to 100 watts, listenership expands to 100,000

CRYSTAL L. HEDGECOCK
Editor-in-Chief

Friday, Feb. 4, 1983, at 2 p.m., WWIH's possible listenership increased by 100,000 people.

The increase occurred when the changeover to 100 watts finally became reality. The general managers at WWIH have been working on the change from 10 watts to 100 watts for the past three or four years, Pat Connelly, current general manager of WWIH said. "It's a shame it took so long, but now we're there," he said.

The increase in wattage allows the station to be heard to the outskirts of Greensboro, Kernersville, Archdale and the outskirts of Thomasville, Connelly said. Before, the station could only be heard to the Rail in Five-Points, High Point Mall and southern High Point, he said.

Connelly said when WWIH went off the air at midnight Thurs., Feb. 3 he, Dana Gilbert, programming director of WWIH and Tom BonDurant, chief engineer at WGLD worked until 6 a.m. Fri, Feb. 4 in order to be prepared for the 100 watts take-over.

Now that the possible listenership has increased, Connelly said the station is in the process of getting out in the community and letting them know the station is there for the community.

Gilbert said that several new programs were underway. "Closer Look" is a program where the WWIH staffer interviews a person on the spot, such as a ex-convict or a policeman. "Your View" contains community people's opinions on a subject. Gilbert encourages listener response to the programs.

Another program which is still quite new is the "Roll-your-own" program. Connelly said that the listener should write down 20 favorite songs by 20 different artists that they would like to hear played on the radio. After Spring Break, an entry will be randomly chosen and the one person chosen will be invited into the WWIH studio to "roll their own". He also said the winner would receive an album of his/her choice and a WWIH t-shirt. Connelly said the station would keep all entries to help with future programming.

According to Connelly, program scheduling is as follows:

"Wake up to WWIH" from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. on weekdays.

Other weekday hours are 2 p.m. to 2 a.m.

Weekend hours are 8 a.m. to 2 a.m.

Block programming of soul is Fri., 6 p.m. to 2 a.m.

Block programming of classical is Sat., 8 a.m. to 10 a.m.

Block programming of Contemporary Christian music is Sun., 8 a.m. to 2 p.m.

"The Contemporary Christian music is not gospel music," Connelly said, "It is soft rock with a message."

Along with the increase to 100 watts, WWIH has a new logo and bumpersticker design. The new logo, Connelly said, is "I-91, Your road to Music."

"We want more people to call up and tell us what they think," Connelly said, "We want more input with music and interviews."

Student Union seeks student involvement

Students at High Point College are some of America's worst investors it seems. Each year they spend $60 for a "Student Activity Fee" and then exercise no control over how this money is spent. The majority of this month (about $30,000 per year) is allocated to the High Point Student Union to plan activities for everyone at the college. However, few people attend Union meetings, and even fewer are active participants. The answer to the question "Who spends your activity fee?" is easily answered -- the High Point College Student Union does.

Student Union is one of the easiest organizations on campus to join. There are no sign-ups, no monthly dues, no RUSH periods. All you have to do is be a full-time student at High Point College (that means you are enrolled 12 or more academic hours). Voting privileges are almost as easy to obtain: attend three consecutive meetings, work activity on one of the standing committees, and receive a majority vote of the present voting members. That's it.

Many may ask, "Why should I join the Student Union?" or "What does Union have to offer me?" Well, the main reason students should join is to suggest how their activities fees are spent and to help decide what activities will be planned. They need to meet to plan and execute activities that all students can enjoy. The question "What does Union have to offer me?" doesn't need an answer. What is more important is "What do I have to offer the Union?". With more people involved in Student Union, more excitement is generated, more creative and diverse activities can be planned, and less time is required by each person for the activities' successful competition.

When I came to HPC, I went to Student Union as a curious freshman. At that time there were about 100 members, or 10% of the student body. The next year, that figure dropped to a whopping 12, or .01% of the student body. That year each member had power over $1,250 -- the same amount High Point College offered as its highest academic scholarship. So, a recruitment campaign was undertaken. This campaign helped boost membership to about 36. But now there is another problem.

The main issue we now face is the fact that no one wants to run in the upcoming elections. (Last year, all positions were filled without opposition). The main reason no one will run is that they have no one to support them as committee members. Without a Chairman or Business Manager, the SGA will not fund Student Union next year. Even if these positions are filled, funding is impossible for every committee that has no chairman.

So now the decision is in your hands. Will you idly sit by and watch Student Union fold? If you do this means: NO $1 movies, NO concerts, NO ski trips, NO dances (including Homecoming), NO campus skates, NO activities planned by and for students! Does this mean the administration will drop your activity fee? NO!

But you have another choice: become involved in Student Union. It only takes about 45 minutes a week. Then you have influence as to what movies we see, how many and what types of dances we have, who we see in concert, and when and where recreational activities are planned. You, the student, must save Student Union, or there will be a day when you can truthfully say "There's nothing to do at High Point College."

The decision is up to YOU!

Chairman

Student apathy reduction planned

Do we have student apathy here at High Point College? Most students, faculty, and administration here at HPC agree that apathy is a big problem. Students do not get involved in campus organizations such as the SGA or Student Union, consequently we all suffer. Last spring for example, 25 out of 28 offices in SGA were unopposed in the elections. Student Union ran into the same problem only to a larger degree. They did not have enough student participation to fill their chairmanship positions. To make matters worse, after talking to Mike Louia, President of Student Union, the organization will probably fold next year because of the lack of student participation. What's wrong?

Webster defines apathy as a lack of emotion or feeling. Apathy is NOT the problem. We, the students, have plenty of emotion and feeling about what's going on around here. All one has to do is mention the alcohol or attendance policy, living conditions, social life, the lottery, or almost any other concern and it becomes quite evident that these are emotional and highly motivated issues! Our problem is attitude and motivation. Often tasks seem entirely too large for us to do anything about, but that's not the case. The case is that most problems are too big for three or four students to do anything about them. To do something major requires support. Not your friend or roommate, but YOU!

Our problem is lack of effective planning and leadership. I am the first to admit that this has been one of my weaknesses, but I am attempting to work on it as I hope many other leaders will. It is quite difficult to have planning sessions because it involves extra meetings and most of us are already tired of so many meetings. I suggest to the leaders, simply use a regular meeting and use your entire group to plan; it is much more effective and everyone feels like they are contributing. This is important in keeping good people involved.

How do we solve the problem? First we must take a list of problems - all problems! Then select two or three which are related to what the group needs or wants. Develop a means by which one can get feedback as to how others feel about the problem or concern. It might be possible for several groups to work on the same problem if they have the same interest or goals.

The next step is where the effective planning comes into play. Talk about the problem as it is NOW. Follow this up by discussing what the ideal or goal of action would be. It then becomes necessary to develop two lists, one of positive forces and contacts as well as one of negative forces and contacts. Have the group analyze these lists and determine a plan of action, the procedure to be followed and those whom need to be contacted for relevant information. Finally, begin to work on the problem with everyone's help. HELP is the key!

The reason many of us get turned off to being involved is that we often do not see immediate results. Secondly, the whole problem is dropped on one person and it is up to them to address the problem by him/herself. This case is neither realistic nor fair. It results in being overwhelmed and oftentimes followed by feelings of failure.

I employed a few of the techniques I have just outlined at the last SGA meeting and was exuberant at the results. I contend that it was the best SGA meeting we have had all year. We are going to do something besides hand out money in the future. So you organizations who want money, Look Out!

SGA is going to be doing some exciting things in the near future. I hope that many of you will want to become involved. Elections are coming up soon, so start thinking about running for office in both SGA and Student Union. Our future is in our hands. It is up to us, the students, to make the difference in what we've got and what we want. For too long we have sat on our rear ends and not had the impact we should have had. NOW is the time for change! I challenge each student on this campus to get up and help determine the future.

Writing Center remedies English difficulties

Staff Writer

At the end of the 1982 Spring Semester a survey was taken which showed that students felt they had been helped greatly by the tutoring service offered by High Point College at the Writing Center. To show that this service is increasing from semester to semester, Mrs. Alice Sink, Director of the Writing Center, made an attendance chart from August-October 14, 1982, which showed that 108 freshman English students used the Writing Center (this is the first half of the first semester).

Sink has developed worksheets on grammar skills for students who have special problems with such matters as capitalization, subject-verb agreement, comma splices, run-on sentences, and fragments. Plus, paragraph and essay development and essay revisions are perfected there. Even if you have problems with vocabulary or spelling, the Writing Center is there for you. It doesn't matter if you are not a student from the basic English courses, whenever you need help writing a paper for another class just feel free to go to the W.C. The W.C. helps prepare students for the High Point College Proficiency Examination and also helps students who need to write job applications, graduate school applications and resumes.

The W.C. also has a special program called TRIP (Toward Reaching Intellectual Potential) which is designed to help students who have very low SAT scores or need extra help in English.

So, if you need help come by the Writing Center. You will find Lisa Stowe, Sharon Williams, Charles Burton, and Jennifer Burroughs who are your lab assistants, willing to help you. The High Point College Writing Center (Room 22 of Cooke Hall) is open from 11:00-12:00 on Tuesdays and Thursday mornings and from 2:00-4:00 Monday-Thursday afternoons.

His paper at Wake Forest will be published soon in a professional journal called the University of South Florida Language Quarterly.

Dr. Gabriele will go to Baltimore in April and to Virginia in October to present scholarly papers.

Gabriele, who has been at High Point College for two years, shows immense enthusiasm toward conference of this type. "It's a time for someone who has a specialty to do something with it."

Corrections

In the Jan. 36 issue of the HI-PO, the name of Judy Dixanne Jones was inadvertently omitted from the Fall 1982 Dean's List.

In a story entitled "Computers at HPC help prepare students for future," Mrs. Iris Manney was quoted as saying she thinks every student should have a computer; in actuality, Mauney said she thinks "each student should have access to a computer."

The HI-PO regrets these errors.

12,000 inquiries received

Schlimmer: Admissions outlook is positive

BY KARLA GREEN

Features Editor

Jim Schlimmer, Director of Admissions, has a positive outlook on the enrollment for the coming year. High Point College has attracted 12,000 inquiries concerning application to our college. Schlimmer said that the growth of the outreach of the admissions department comes through a three-fold plan started by the admissions team last fall.

The points of the admissions plan for development includes the areas of 1) publications, 2) personal contacts, and 3) post-application communications. The plan was developed after the staff conducted a marketing survey last fall. Results indicated that prospective students today were looking for "a small personal college which provides a quality education and responsive feel," according to Schlimmer.

By implementing this plan the "inquiry pool" has increased from 8,000 to 12,000 since last year. "Inquiry pool" is the term used for the number of students who have responded positively as being interested in knowing more about HPC, according to Schlimmer.

The increased number of inquiries came through the expansion of admissions contacts in the northeastern states. "More inquiries came from New York, New Jersey and Maryland," according to Schlimmer.

Admissions counselor June Forcum, David Hope and Neil Teague, working under the direction of Schlimmer, have been energetically following up on the inquiries.

The first step was the mailing that went out before the end of the year, according to Schlimmer. The prospective students received four publications from the Admissions Office concerning campus visitation, campus prospectus, a parent brochure and a departmental brochure. These publications helped to acquaint students and their parents with the school and what it has to offer. In the visitation booklet the student was encouraged to visit the campus. The students who had a special interest also received a departmental publication from the major area.

The second step was to increase the number of personal contacts as a follow up to the inquiries received. The counselors spent many weeks this fall on the road visiting the various states, attending college night programs and visiting area high schools. This is one the main ways of reinforcing the personal touch of HPC, according to Schlimmer, who stressed that the private visits to the high schools were made especially to talk with those students who had shown interest by mail.

The third step in Schlimmer's plan involves more contact directly with the students. After they have been accepted, the counselors' job is not finished. This is when they continue to contact the students by phone. "The first phone contact is a congratulatory one to let the student know that they have been accepted and they they made a good choice," says Schlimmer. This contact is to help them "feel a part of HPC."

This step may include visits here to familiarize the student with the college. Schlimmer has started a new program involving current students who serve as "admissions associates" serving as tour guides. The students who were chosen last week include 10 to 15 students who talk with the prospective students and "make them feel at home" at HPC during their tour and visit to the campus.

Schlimmer is very impressed by such student involvement in his program and said that he intends to use students in the future to promote the admission at the college. "The current students are our best sales people," said Schlimmer.

Schlimmer has also expanded the number of prospective students who may compete for the Presidential Scholarships offered by the college. He said, "We are expanding the amount of names that will be considered for the scholarships." He also said that letters were being sent to Methodist ministers for their nominations of students to be considered. "They will also be asked for their input on the selections for the higher scholarships," added Schlimmer.

Part of the reason Schlimmer has changed the approach of the admissions department is to encourage not only more inquiries but also to keep in contact with those students who have been accepted, because he says that "50 percent of all students accepted do not go to that institution." By encouraging involvement with the accepted students as well as prospective, he feels enrollment can be increased.

Editor's note: The following is reprinted from the Feb. 2 issue of the HI-PO.

BY LEWIS WHELESS

Associate Editor

Kay N. Stroud, Director of Financial Aid, is encouraging all students to file for 1983-84 aid as soon as possible. Students applying for aid should be certain to apply for the Pell Grant (BEOG) and N.C. Grants when filling out financial aid forms.

Mrs. Stroud said the outlook for student aid in 1983-84 is encouraging, as no cutbacks are foreseen at this time. The same levels that applied in 1982-83 will probably apply for 1983-84. "We are encouraging everyone to apply for aid," Stroud said.

Mrs. Stroud said students should see someone in the financial aid office in Roberts Hall if they have any additional problems, etc. after the needs analysis is returned from the ACT.

The various deadlines for aid applications are listed below:

National Direct Student

Loan, Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant, and College Work-Study. Complete the ACT Family Financial Statement (FFS), the CSS Financial Aid Form (FAF), or the Application for Federal Student Aid (AFSA) by March 1, 1983 for priority consideration.

PELL Grant. Complete the FFS, the FAF, or the AFSA by March 15, 1983. (Students are encouraged to complete one of these forms by March 1, 1983.)

North Carolina State Contractual Scholarship Fund (Available to NC residents only). Complete the FFS or the FAF by March 1, 1983 for priority considerations.

North Carolina Student Incentive Grant - (NCSIG) (NC residents only). Complete the FFS or the FAF.

Students must have a copy of the results of the FFS or the FAF sent to College Foundation by March 15, 1983 to be considered for this grant.

Academic Scholarships - Complete the scholarship application form available in the Financial Aid Office by March 15, 1983. (These forms should be available by mid-February.)

Guaranteed Student Loans and PLUS Loans - Obtain a loan application form from your state agency. Most state agencies suggest that a complete application be received by June 15 for priority consideration.

On-Campus employment - Complete an application form available in the Financial Aid Office. (Students with a demonstrated need will receive priority in placement.)

Other Scholarships Start checking in your community for civic organizations, churches, clubs, employers, or foundations offering scholarships. Students should apply for as many as possible and as early as possible.

Service fraternity reports on progress

During Christmas break, Alpha Phi Omega sent Tim Craven to serve as a representative to the fraternity's National Convention held in Kansas City, Missouri. Craven voted on important changes to APO's National By-Laws. High Point College APOs are now setting aside a special fund for the next National Convention in Washington, D.C. in 1984.

On Thursday, January 20, 1983, the fall pledge class of 1982 was formally inducted. The new brothers are Beth Bitcon, Colleen Farrell, Diedre Fleenor, Karen Ford, Marsha Manos, Art Payne, Eddie Snider, Lisa Staton, and Sandra Swoboda.

Alpha Phi Omega has four pledges in its spring pledge class. They are Claire Hall, Ray Hotz, Shazad Peters and David Riddle.

The fraternity has a busy schedule planned for this semester. In addition to service projects, Brothers are planning the fraternity's 25th Anniversary which will be the weekend of April 15th.

College guide for blacks

Campus Digest News Service

Everything a black prospective college student wants to know about over 100 colleges will be available this spring in print. The book, "The Black Students Guide to Colleges" was written from research compiled by Barry Beckham of Brown University.

Beckham's ratings of colleges are the results of questionnaires he distributed. The 100 campuses included in the book are mostly predominantly white schools but some all-black institutions are also included.

Early criticism of the research says that the guide is too subjective, thus possibly misrepresenting a school because of one or two students' feelings. But much of the information is objective, providing details such as tuition costs, black faculty-student ratios, and financial aid opportunities at each school.

Government getting tough on defaulters

Campus Digest News Service

Look out deadbeats! According to the U.S. Department of Education's Office of Student Financial Assistance, student loan collection efforts are being increased. A new law passed in October allows officials to report a defaulter's delinquent loan status to credit agencies.

The government is increasing its efforts by hiring collection agencies, as well as suing debtors, to attempt to recover over a billion dollars worth of defaulted student loans. Over $60 million is owed by federal employees, and the Dept. of Education is threatening to withhold 15 percent of those employees' paychecks til their loans are repaid.

"Godspell" production to stress "dramatic values"

BY TERRI LIVINGSTON
Staff Writer

Wonderful music, uplifting songs, and high quality entertainment are only a few qualities which combine to make the musical GODSPELL the exciting show its reputation demands. Paul Lundrigan, the director, has seen the show performed many different ways and was at one time part of a GODSPELL cast. Lundrigan feels that the "dramatic content" has been overlooked when portraying the GODSPELL theme. The show is filled with wonderful music and fast-moving action which can keep your attention. However, the theme is based on the Gospel according to St. Matthew and carries many "dramatic values," Lundrigan explains.

Auditions for the performance opened in December exclusively to High Point College students, the turnout was small. In January a second session of auditions began, this time open to the community. During the auditions Lundrigan was looking for combined talents of acting, singing and dancing. This combination of talent, which Lundrigan refers to as a "triple threat," was difficult to find. This problem was solved by casting an enough people to ensure these areas were strong. The final cast was decided upon after three series of call-backs. The show, which usually calls for 10 actors, will portray 12 personalities. Out of the 12-member cast, 9 are High Point College students. Lundrigan describes the auditions as "long and drawn out."

The cast includes: Jim Kilby, Erik Lundrigan, Anthony Jenkins, Anna Minear, Bonnie Pachasa, Tana Parker, Gary Stirewalt, Kim Thomas, Irene Tivald, Phil Yalente, Kim Woolsey, and Donald Wright.

The role of Jesus, played by Phil Yalente, remains constant while the other characters trade roles throughout the production.

The customary set for GODSPELL is a chain fence. Lundrigan does not like this set, describing it as "a combination prison or school yard, which is not consistent with the theme of celebration the production presents. The set for High Point's production will be a circus tent. The characters' costumes will be colorful to represent clowns, which will contribute to the feeling of celebration felt at a circus.

Preparation for the show involves 4 hours a night, with additional vocal rehearsals. Due to the apathy of the December auditions, the cast has a limited time to prepare the show, according to Lundrigan.

Lundrigan reports that rehearsals are going well and that the actors are picking up their individual songs easily. The songs will be emphasized by a live band which will be part of the scene, on stage.

Production dates are set for Friday, March 25, and Saturday, March 26. The following weekend shows will be Thursday, March 31, and the final performance will fall, coincidentally, on Friday, April 1, which is Good Friday. Good Friday represents the Resurrection as does the Godspell theme.

Writer's Club to hold "Worst Poem" contest

Do you think your poems are too rotten to be seen? Do you think you don't have enough talent to submit poems for publication? Then we have a contest for you.

The Writer's Club is having a "Worst Poem" contest. The prize is ten dollars to the absolute worst poem.

For those who are interested in the contest but can write, Dr. Piacentino has a copy of "How to write a rotten poem with almost no effort" to get you started.

As "How to Write a Rotten Poem" says, "Most people find it difficult to write a poem so they don't even try it." But why don't you try?

You have nothing to lose. If it's good you can submit it to the Apogee. If it's awful, send it to us. You could win ten dollars.

The deadline for the contest is February 25. Send entries to The Writer's Club, Box 3008.

A breath of dusty death

Campus Digest News Service

Dormitory residents at the University of Georgia-athens are sure that it's not raindrops that are falling on their heads. In fact, they have a sneaking suspicion that the fine white dust which is dropping from their dorm room ceilings may be asbestos.

Even though the university housing department spent over $93,000 this past summer to remove asbestos-laced ceiling material from several campus dormitories, frightened residents of Brumby, Creswell and Russell halls on the Georgia campus and an Environmental Protection Agency official believe that sufficient quantities of the cancer-causing substance still exist and could pose a serious health threat to student residents.

According to the University of Georgia student newspaper, The Red and Black, University officials first learned of a possible asbestos hazard three years ago when tests taken by the University Public Safety Division showed that 10 percent of the ceiling material in seven residence halls contained asbestos. Although not required to do so by law, the Housing authorities replaced those ceilings which they felt to be "most damaged."

University of Georgia freshman Lisa Massey and her roommate Susan Agan initiated the complaint when they reported the presence of a "baby powder-like" substance which fell from their Creswell Hall ceiling. They first noticed the problem of dust covering everything in their room after moving into the dorm in the fall.

Dan Hallenbeck, University Housing director, said he believed the dorm was safe, and the building wouldn't be open if it wasn't.

But Dwight Brown, Southeastern regional coordinator of the Environmental Protection Agency, said that if any breathable fibers are falling into the air as Massey and Agan claim, then a potentially serious health hazard exists, regardless of whether that material is asbestos or not.

It has been determined that asbestos only poses a

Cagers get ready for Homecoming battle

BY MICHAEL PISANO
Staff Writer

The High Point College Panther basketball team will be battling for more than just a Homecoming victory this Saturday night...they'll be scrambling to settle a conference score with Guilford College. In the previous two meetings between these teams, the Quakers have defeated the Panthers. "Guilford is a quick team," High Point College Coach Jerry Steele said in a recent interview. "They like to run the ball."

A big crowd is usually expected on Homecoming, which will be to the Panther's advantage.

"Emotions will be high, especially in front of a big crowd," Steele said. "But the players will approach the game as any other."

The rivalry between these teams is evident and High Point has played two tough games against the Quakers despite all the Panther injuries.

"We play well when we play Guilford," Steele said. "We've played hard all year and we'll continue to do so in this game. "The Homecoming game is a motivating factor to the senior players because it's their last homecoming game in front of their families and friends," Steele said.

Some senior girls will also be playing their final Homecoming game. The Lady Panthers will take on the Quaker women before the men take the court (5:30).

This year's Homecoming Queen will be crowned during the halftime ceremony of the men's basketball game.

Samuels' three-pointer gives HPC win

BY MARK PHELPS
Sports Editor

The High Point Men's basketball team dropped two of their last three games over the recent week, both of the losses coming at the hands of conference foes. The lone victory, a 72-72 win over Lenoir Rhyne on Feb. 19, was only the fifth for the Panthers this season and leaves them with a 5-14 record overall, 2-8 in conference play.

The Lenoir Rhyne victory might possibly have been the most exciting game of the year for the visiting Panthers. High Point had to come from behind in the second half and got their only lead of the game on freshman Terry Samuels' three point shot with nine seconds remaining.

The Bears had earlier gotten off to a fast start as they held leads of 16-3 and 29-13 before the Panthers close the gap to nine points at halftime.

During the second half, High Point got under control and were also helped by the late poor foul-shooting of L.R. as they hit on only 14 or 21 attempts. Danny Murphy led all scorers with 25 points, while Samuels and L.R. transfer Robert Hudson added 12 each.

On the following Wednesday, the Panthers fell victims to Pembroke 92-76, a team they had earlier beaten in the year. Pembroke's Ricky Melvin and Gray Davis combined for 46 points to lead the onslaught.

Murphy again led the Panthers in scoring with 23 points. Jimmy Robertson pumped in 15 while Samuels added 14. Melvin led Pembroke with 24.

On Saturday night, the Panthers lost to Catawba 90-71. The Indians, ranked 118th in the NAIA, hit on 10 of 24 attempts behind the three-point circle while placing six of their players in double figures.

For the season, High Point in shooting .457 from the field and .744 from the charity stripe. Murphy leads the team in scoring with a 14.2 average, hitting 38-48 three-point shots. Samuels is the leading rebounder with 120 boards and guard John Hamilton leads in assists with 60.

Lady Panthers extend losing streak

BY MARK PHELPS
Sports Editor

Coach Nancy Little's Womens basketball squad lost all three of their games over the week, extending their losing streak to seven in a row. The Lady Panthers are 1-8 in the conference and 2-14 overall.

On Jan. 31, High Point fell victim to Pfeiffer 87-72. The Panthers fell behind early and trailed at halftime by ten, 48-38. In the second period, they were able to rally and kept the score close for much of the last half.

The Falcons, however, were able to hold on with fine foul shooting as they hit on 25 of 40 attempts. Melanie Hamilton led the Panthers with 15 points.

The following Thursday, saw High Point lose to Campbell 61-52. The Panthers were able to stay within two points at halftime but could never get any closer. High Point was led by Jacki Gandy, who scored 14 points, and Ursulla Watt, who hit for ten.

The Lady Panthers lost to conference rival Catawba 73-59, on Saturday night.

Sandra Swaboda led all scorers with 14 points while Gandy scored 12. This was particularly disappointing to the team because they had beaten the Indians by one earlier.

As a team, High Point has shot only 36% from the field while being outscored by opponents 594-911. Ursulla Watt leads the Panther scoring with 14.4 average despite having missed five games earlier in the year because of injury. Sandra Swaboda holds the lead in rebounding with 139.

Since Massey and Agan's initial complaint, other dormitory residents, some from other halls, have reported similar worries. These students have banded together to form Students for an Asbestos-Free Environment (SAFE) in an effort to pressure the university into action.

The group has asked for the resignation of Housing director Hallenbeck for refusing to recognize the potential hazards of asbestos-laced ceilings.

Student attempts to arrange a meeting with University of Georgia president, Fred Davison, have been unsuccessful so far.

Hallenbeck's official response has been to suggest that unhappy residents transfer to other rooms. SAFE members are encouraging a "mass-transfer request," feeling that such a request by the 3,000 students housed in the halls under question would sufficiently demonstrate student concern to the institution.

Scoring for adults only

Campus Digest News Service

Scoring has taken on a different meaning in video games lately. There was the time when a high score was earned by shooting all the alien ships or chomping through a maze of dots. But now things have changed, for scoring has become something like running the bases on a first date with the action taking place on a television screen rather than the backseat of a car.

The names of the new video game cartridges, or "software," don't reveal very much about their adult content. "Bachelor Party," "Custer's Revenge" and "Beat 'Em and Eat 'Em" are a few of the early entries into this rapidly expanding market. And just as X-rated videocassettes became big in that industry, "for adults only" game cartridges are sure to make a dent in the home video game field.

Supporters of the X-rated games say sales should score high like the X-rated taped movies have done. With a retail price of $49.95 each, the maker of the games, American Multiple Industries, stands a good chance of reaching its first year sales goal of $1.3 billion.

AMI's entrepreneurial spirit is not without its detractors, however. The big boys in the business, Atari, are not happy and are filing suit to prevent AMI from marketing the games. Atari spokesmen say the company doesn't want the public to confuse the adult games with their own. They say AMI's campaign promotes compatibility with Atari computer systems and this will lead some people to think that Atari has something to do with making pornographic video game cartridges.

A spokesman for American Multiple says the games are just meant for a change of pace and to provide fun through cheap sexual jokes. AMI says the games are not meant to arouse anybody and they would wonder about anyone who did get turned on by the action on the screen.

Schaefer named Queen

BY TERRI LIVINGSTON

Schaefer is a senior Biology/Pre-Med major from Seaford N.Y. She is in Zeta Tau Alpha sorority, a Resident assistant, a member of the Dorm Council, Panhellenic Council and Student Union. She serves as president and treasurer of Zeta Tau Alpha sorority. She is valedictorian of the senior class, a Presidential Scholar, a member of the Alpha Chi Honor Society, a 1982 Junior Marshal, 1982 Homecoming representative and was nominated to WHO'S WHO.

Schaefer described her condition before receiving the crown as nervous; so nervous she jokingly recalls almost "falling while lining up with the court." After ac-

During the weekend of Feb. 18-20, there were approximately 50-60 prospective Presidential Scholars around the campus. These scholars were selected out of 450 other students, and out of these 60 students only 30 scholarship awards were available to be given. Each of these awards will be ranging from $1,000-$1,500, provided they keep a grade point average of 3.0, Mike Louia, executive chairman of Presidential Scholars, said.

In order to give these prospective students a clear picture of HPC, a series of activities were planned for them and for the student body, he said. Feb. 18, an ice cream social was held in the cafeteria and following this the movie "TAPS" was shown in the auditorium. Feb. 19 the prospective Scholars went through a series of interviews, tours, and meetings with faculty members. A dance was held that same day at 8:00 p.m. in the cafeteria.

The feedback received from the prospective students was very positive and honest. One prospective Scholar said, "I learned about HPC through a letter which asked me to come down and tryout for the Volleyball Team. When I saw the town of High Point I found it to be very pretty, but what impressed me the most was the campus. IT'S GORGEOUS! About the dorms, I'd say they are O.K. but the heaters are too noisy." Another prospective Scholar added: "I was surprised about High Point, I had no idea how it would look like. I found the organization was good, the people were nice, and people were there whenever I needed help. The only thing I didn't like were the auditorium seats; they are too hard."

cepting the crown, Schaefer says she now feels "surprised and flattered." Of all the honors she has been awarded in her four years at HPC she said this is the "nicest because it shows how people feel about you."

Also receiving honors were first runner-up Lynn

Fortaleza, a representative for Zeta Tau Alpha sorority. And second runner-up Deborah Shaver, representing the senior class.

Schaefer said she would "like to thank the Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity for sponsoring her and John Van Horn for escorting her."

Plans made for snow day compensation

Classes dismissed because of inclement weather on Fri., Feb. 11 and Mon., Feb 14 will be made up on Tues., Mar. 22, the day formerly designated as "Spring Fling," according to Dr. Winfield Bearce, Academic Dean of the college. Students will attend Monday classes on this day. The decision on when/if to make up the remaining day has not yet been made.

EDITORIALS...

Non-greeks react

To the Editor:

Apparently there has been much concern recently regarding student apathy. But has anyone stopped to think that some of us who have not chosen to join social Greek organizations have been discouraged from participating in supposedly "campus wide" events?

We are the non-Greeks, members of honorary and special interest groups. True, we may not be the most popular social circles, but we remain a vital part of campus life. Yet when we attempt to display school spirit and participate, we are either ignored or shoved to the back because we aren't wearing the proper "labels" on our shirts.

One annual event is "Greek Week," which one would assume included any organizations whose names are comprised of the letters Alpha through Omega. Wrong. Alpha Chi, Alpha Psi Omega, Kappa Delta Pi, Delta Mu Delta, and Sigma Delta Pi all have Greek names, as do Alpha Delta Theta and Alpha Phi Omega. But are they included in the festivities? No. The Inter-Fraternity and Panhellenic Councils do not include them, and this is a possible cause of the apathy problem -- it's almost like "If you don't wear OUR letters, you don't belong." Why bother to try to fight it? High Point College tends to cater to the Greek system. Instead of having a unifying effect, this divides the student body into two distinct little worlds.

A more recent example is Homecoming. We members of one such group wanted to participate in the banner contest and had kicked around ideas for it. When did we find out about the contest? In the last issue of the HI-PO. We were later informed that this Homecoming activity is a contest between the social fraternities and sororities. So that knocked us out of the Rowdie Crowdie contest, too. But the service organizations weren't excluded even though they are not recognized by IFC and Panhellenic. There are twice as many honorary organizations on campus as service, yet they receive hardly any attention. Is it because membership is selective that we are left out? But that's what makes it a honorary group -- we have worked for usually two years to earn membership. That's right, EARN. But don't think for a minute that we stand perched on a pedestal in an ivory tower somewhere. No, we cram for tests, party, occasionally cut classes, and sometimes struggle for grades just like the rest of you.

Perhaps one solution to the apathy problem would be to make campus-wide events even to the entire campus. Go ahead, invite the Day Students, Black Unification Movement, TV station -- and if they don't choose to get involved, okay. Just give us a chance.

Ten concerned students

Please, Dave...

Let's all go process some words. Maybe the result will be as good as processed chicken.

Oh, I know I'll get behind the times if I don't learn to program a computer -- input some input and all that.

I'm put out with all that.

I think I'll read some books and write some poems and contemplate my navel.

Oh, I know I won't be trained to teach The Collected Poems of Apple II, but there will be many who will.

But we'll be able to check out books faster. Yeah, when I'm in the library, there's a real battle for position in the line at the circulation desk.

But we'll be able to improve the fledgling CPA's imagination. An admirable goal, but a machine won't do it. He's got to do it himself.

But we'll have all the knowledge in the world at our fingertips. I don't want it at my fingertips; I want it in my mind.

But it's the wave of the future. Heck, I haven't got my intellectual surfboard on the wave of the past yet. (Remember how you felt when, in "The Graduate," the man told Dustin Hoffman that plastics was the wave of the future?)

But if we don't know how to use a computer, the government will control us easier. Friends, it's too late to worry about that now. I mean, it scares me thinking about what the computer in the Registrar's Office has on me. And won't it be grand when anybody can find out everything about anybody? Just one big family.

But the Russians have it. The balance of terror. The balance of input. The balance of processed words. The balance of most profound ignorance.

Here's D.H. Lawrence's creed:

That I am I. That my soul is a dark forest. That my known self will never be more than a little clearing in the forest. That gods, strange gods, come forth from the forest into the clearing of my known self, and then go back. That I must have the courage to let them come and go. That I will never let mankind put anything over me, but that I will try always to recognize and submit to the gods in me and the gods in other men and women.

Here's a poem by D.H. Lawrence:

For God's sake, let us be men not monkeys minding machines or sitting with our tails curled while the machine amuses us, the radio or film or gramophone.
Monkeys with a bland grin on our faces.

Everybody at a liberal arts college must understand these things.

(By the way, the title of this piece is taken from "2001: A Space Odyssey." It is the plea of the computer as it is being de-inputted/ de-outputted by a human being.)

This is the last regular "Hodgepodge." Back in the fall, I intended to write two or three until our editorial page contained editorials. Now it does. Also, a student newspaper should be written by students. Finally, the column has become something of a habit, and the worst thing a man can do is make a habit of something. Habit is machine-like. I mean, I need a new program. I need more bits. Remember what Goethe said as he died: "More k! More k!"

Communications SCIP internship expands

Communications majors are required to complete at least 6 semester hours of the SCIP Internship in a media business within the Triad Area. In the past, majors have interned at WGHP-TV (High Point), WGLD/WOKX (High Point), Greensboro Daily News, High Point Enterprise, Winston-Salem Sentinel, Thomasville Times, Mabe Realtors (High Point). Now four new media businesses are available for the internship: WXII-TV (Winston-Salem), WFMY-TV (Greensboro), WGGT-TV (Greensboro), and Davidson's Advertisers (Greensboro). In the fall, WMFR Radio of High Point will also be available for news and production.

This semester, Gina Cardone and Jane MacCannell are interning at WGGT and WXII in production and general management. Pamela York is working at Davidson's Advertisers writing copy, training on the phototypesetter, and designing basic ad layout. Art Prillaman also completed a short observing internship for the Good Morning Show at WFMY, Channel 2, in Greensboro.

WGGT, WXII, and WFMY do not offer an extended time for internships as does WGHP-TV in High Point for news and production. Students at these businesses must split the semester time among the three but will receive a much wider exposure to different production and news formats.

This past fall semester,

the following students completed their internships: Lisa Davido (WGLD/WOKX), Greg Fox and Tana Parker in news (WGHP-TV), and Delbert Hickman (production, WGHP-TV).

The media businesses used in the past will still be available to students, particularly WGHP-TV which has been most cooperative in the intern program. Because of the increasing number of majors and the solid reputation of the Communications program, many of the other media businesses are becoming aware of High Point College and are beginning to participate in the internship program.

Students planning to intern summer or fall of 1983 should contact Dr. Leleuw before February 28.

Four areas covered

Task Force studies underway

BY TABBIE NANCE

Staff Writer

Four areas have been chosen by President Lucht for the 1983 Task Force for Advancement to study. These areas are administrative evaluation, community and college relations, space utilization, and long range planning.

According to Dr. Head, who chairs this year's Task Force, the Task Force divided into sub-committees to address each area. After each area had been studied, the Task Force summarized the reports from the sub-committees and sent these, along with recommendations, to Lucht.

Reports on the administrative evaluation and community and college relations have already been turned in to Lucht. The sub-committee on administrative evaluation interviewed all administration members and learned that the faculty would like to be evaluated. From this a committee was formed and are seeking help in this evaluation process from a consultant.

A community out-reach committee was formed based on the findings of the community and college relations sub-committee. The reason, Head said, was to have a central focus on events that are community and college oriented.

After studying all the space on campus, the space utilization sub-committee drew up a set of recommendations for the Task Force. The Force sent a copy of these recommendations and a questionnaire to department heads to get their reactions. Based on the replies, the Task Force recommended that Lucht use the report as background material and consider making changes in phases.

"Space utilization is a very complex problem,"

Head said. "My personal feelings are that this study should be considered and used as background information. I feel a professional consultant should be hired to study the situation."

In long-range planning, the Force adopted a plan based on a workshop attended by Mr. Bulla, past head of Financial Affairs. This includes a method and time frame for long-range planning on a small campus and setting up a council for long-range planning. At this time, Lucht is in the process of setting up such a council.

Speaking of books. . .

BY KARLA GREEN

Features Editor

Everyone is talking about Book Talks.

"Book Talks" have become a very successful event at High Point College. According to Mrs. Charles Lucht, who was one of the originators of the programs, the book talks are a review of current books. The reviews are presented by a different speaker for each program. The programs not only present a book but also an entire program with visuals and refreshments from the period represented. The programs are held on Sundays at announced dates at 3 p.m.

"Book Talks" began out of interest shown by Mrs. Lucht and some other members of the High Point Twentieth Century Study Club. Mrs. Lucht said that the idea originated "in view of the new library going up on campus." The idea of reviewing books on campus also "brings the community on campus and acquaints them with the college and its staff."

"Book Talks" programs are put together by a committee which helps choose the book to review, the speaker, the program format and what visuals and refreshments will be used.

According to Mrs. Lucht, different community and campus persons are chosen to serve on these committees which change with each program. The committee chairperson is Mrs. Joseph Hayworth, who serves as a "liaison with the community," according to Mrs. Lucht.

Some of the people serving on the committees in the past have included Mrs. George Lyles, Mrs. Leonard Cashion, Mr. Raiford Porter, Dr. Edward Piacentino, Dr. James Stitt, and Mr. Paul Lundrigan. Mrs. Lucht also said that the Wrenn Library staff serves on each program setting up the visuals and the refreshments.

The first "Book Talk" presented a program of Russian literature with refreshments russian tea and "imitation caviar" according to Mrs. Lucht, who was asked to be the first of the speakers for the talks.

"I was asked to review a Russian spy novel entitled 'Gorky Park'. According to Mrs. Lucht, Ms. Shirley Rawley, head of the English department, also spoke on 'Criminology in Russian Literature.' Lucht said that there were about 60 people in attendance for the first program which was held at Wrenn Library.

On Oct. 2, Dr. Carole Head presented "The Last Unicorn." This is a fantasy novel which was recently made into an animated movie. According to Mrs. Lucht, over 100 people attended this second program and it had to be moved into the second floor of the Campus Center where they are currently held.

Mrs. Lucht said this particular program was "very well received" and said the visuals were "the best so far." Dr. Head used two medieval tapestries from her own personal collection which displayed unicorns as the theme of the program, according to Mrs. Lucht. Mrs. Lucht said that many of those attending this program brought unicorn paraphernalia from home.

Dr. James Stitt presented "The Murder of Napoleon" for the next program with an increasing audience of 120 people. Refreshments were french biscuits and visuals included a display of books from the Napoleon era. As the popularity of "Book Talks" continued to increase, Dr. Stitt was asked to present this talk again at Westchester Academy.

According to Mrs. Lucht, most of the people who have attended the programs so far have been community and faculty from HPC. However, Mrs. Lucht said that "students are welcome to attend."

She said "many of those who attend are donors and supporters of the college" and they "enjoy intermixing with the college students faculty, and administrators."

Lucht also said the reasons for choosing speakers from the different departments such as English, Foreign Language, History and Art was to familiarize the community with the faculty. According to Lucht, future programs will serve to introduce all faculty to the High Point Community.

The upcoming "Book Talk" will be presented by another member of the HPC faculty. Mr. Raiford Porter will be the speaker for the March 20 review. His topic will be announced at a later date. According to Porter, he is considering speaking on the subject of art investments in today's society, calling his topic "Wall Street Art."

The programs are announced in newsletters sent out to various book clubs and community people who have attended past programs. This semester's programs will conclude with the talk "Heroines in Shakespeare" to be presented on May 1 at 3 p.m. by the President of the College, Dr. Charles Lucht.

HPC Community TV to broadcast in March

HPC Community TV will begin broadcasting March 22 after spring break. In the fall, students in English 142, TV Practicum, taped the dress rehearsal of "Grease" by High Point Community Theatre. By permission of Sharon Robinson, Manager of the Theatre group, HPC Community TV was allowed to edit selected songs for a half-hour program. This half-hour program will be aired along with half-hour programs of selected student reports from English 140, Introduction to Mass Media.

Last spring, HPC TV made its debut with six half-hour programs advertising the programs of the College. Over the summer, twelve half-hour programs for a one-hour course in religion were taped and edited. Religion 83, Christian Denominations, was the first college credit course aired by the College over Cable Channel 19. This spring will mark the airing of the first program of a community event. Programs are limited somewhat on this public-access channel because of restricted editing facilities, but WXII-TV, Channel 12, and WFMY-TV, Channel 2, have been cooperative in allowing use of their editing and titling facilities.

Programs will be aired three times a week - on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons from 4-5 p.m. and Wednesday evenings from 7-8 p.m. The edited version of "Grease" will air the first half hour.

At other times of the day, public service announcements will be aired on the screen. Any campus organization can send a public service announcement to Cablevision of High Point-Jamestown two weeks before the event, but all announcements must concern an event to which the public or the community is invited.

Featured on the half-hour programs of Media Topics will be Communications majors Mary Gagner, Bob Rossi, Brent Holshauser, and Lisa Davido who taped 10-minute reports for English 140, fall, 1982. Other majors in English 140 in the CAEP PAEDA program will also be presenting reports. The last two weeks in April, interviews with CAEP students at High Point College will be featured.

HPC TV plans to tape selected portions of the college presentation of "Godspell" on Wednesday, March 23. The program may be edited in time for airing in the summer or fall, 1983.

In addition to working on this basic programming, students in English 142, TV Practicum have been working on the Senior Job Placement Prospectus, compiling material on the Communications major for an admissions mailing, talking with visiting prospective students, and preparing the studio set for production work in English 354, Broadcast Production. Current members in the practicum include Bill Sledge (Station Director), Glenn Groseclose, Karen Hernandez, Brent Holshauser, William Johnson, Terrance Lomax, Jerry Min, Art Prillman, Janet Temple, Craig Vans-teenburgh, Anthony Watson, and Chris Heenan.

HPC Community TV is available on Tier II to approximately 8,000 subscribers. Cablevision of High Point allocated the use of this public-access channel to High Point College for programs of community in-

Homecoming blends old, new

BY TANA PARKER
Staff Writer

Old faces, renewed acquaintances and memories were shared when High Point College celebrated its 59th Homecoming. Despite the snowy weather, the alumni who returned were greeted by banners and open houses.

The weather did not stop any of the activities though. HPC students, faculty and alumni "rocked" the Top of the Mart to the music by "The Hollywood Brats" on Friday night. To help avoid any accidents on the icy roads, the Student Government Association sponsored a shuttle bus service for students to take to and from the dance.

On Saturday afternoon, students and faculty showed their "semi-professional" talent in the First Annual Hi-Pro Show. The nine acts provided a good source of entertainment, ranging from six "Ugly Girls" to singers and piano players. The team of Irene Tivald and Anthony Jenkins won first place. They sang "It's Over" and "With You I'm Born Again," as Jenkins played the piano. Deborah Shaver was first runner-up. She played the piano and sang "Wandering Stranger." Second runner-up, John Higgins, made some of the audience shed a tear as he sang "One in a Million" and "Even Now."

The alumni and 1983 Homecoming Court members enjoyed a Pig-Pickin dinner Saturday in the Campus Center while Anna Brady and Deborah Shaver entertained.

At 6:00 p.m., the Lady Panthers hosted the Guilford Quakers. During half-time, the eight court members were introduced. The Lady Panthers showed their dominance with a final score of 72-68.

Immediately following the game, excitement flared as the 1983 Homecoming Queen was crowned. The queen, representing Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity, was Kathleen Schaefer. Lynn Fortaleza and Deborah Shaver, were first and second runner-up, respectively.

The men kept the crown going as they also battled the Quakers. During the men's half-time, three previous Homecoming Queens were recognized and awards were given out. The Phi Mu's, all in their "pink" shirts, won the Spirit Stick Award again. The annual Rowdy Crowd Award went to the Alpha Phi Omega service Fraternity. All the organizations showed their artistic ability by making banners, but the Alpha Gamma Deltas had that extra touch to win the Banner Award.

The men defeated the Quakers 82-79.

Denise Watts, vice-president of SGA, who is in charge of Homecoming, said this was one of the most successful.

Fowler featured at Finch Lectures

The Finch Lectures, an annual event held in conjunction with Ministers' Appreciation Day, features Dr. James W. Fowler as guest lecturer.

Ministers' Appreciation Day starts today at 11 a.m. in the Charles E. Hayworth, Sr. Memorial Chapel. According to information provided by the HPC department of Religion and Philosophy, Fowler will speak there on "Stages of Faith and the Evangelization of Children."

Following the lecture, ministers and guests will have lunch and presume with more lectures by Fowler at 1:15 p.m. in the Campus Center.

Ministers' Appreciation Day will conclude with a lecture by Fowler in the chapel at 7:30 p.m. The topic is

"Covenant and Calling: Adult Development and Christian Vocation."

Fowler, a native North Carolinian, is a professor of theology and human development in the Candler School of Theology at Emory University in Atlanta. He has held the following positions during his professional career: associate professor of theology and human development at Boston College; associate professor of applied theology at Harvard Divinity School; assistant professor and chairperson of Harvard Divinity School's Department of the Church; Director of Continuing Education and Lecturer in that same department; and associate director at the Interpreter's House in Lake Junaluska, North Carolina.

Defeat Quakers, 82-79 Panther cagers take Homecoming win over Guilford

BY MARK PHELPS
Sports Editor

After being beaten by Guilford on two previous occasions this season, the High Point Men's basketball team gained revenge on Homecoming as it defeated the Quakers 82-79 for the victory. The Panthers, which were led by Danny Murphy's five three-point shots, combined this win with two losses during the week to increase their record to 6-15 overall, 3-9 in conference play.

In the Guilford win, High Point held a 77-67 lead with 2:17 left to play and it looked like the Panthers had a win sewn up. Guilford, though, had other ideas as they rallied to score the next seven points. With the lead only three, Murphy went to the line and hit one of two foul shots. The Quakers responded with a follow shot to make the score 80-78.

ward Darryl Dozier on the rebound, and he went to the line with 14 seconds left.

Dozier made his first free throw to bring his team within one, but missed the second and Robert Hudson grabbed the rebound. With only eight seconds remaining, Murphy was fouled and sank both free throws to insure the win.

Murphy, who hit for a season-high 27 points, had previously made a 25-foot three-pointer at the buzzer in the first half to give the Panthers momentum and an eight point halftime lead.

For the game, High Point shot 50 percent from the field and hit on 24 of 34 foul shots. Two freshmen, Hoffman and Terry Samuels, scored 13 and 12 points respectively. Mike Everette also added 12.

On Wednesday night, High Point dropped a narrow loss to Pfeiffer, 68-67. Four Panthers accounted for 57 of the teams points in the losing effort. Hoffman continued his torrid scoring pace as he led High Point with 16 points. Everette and Murphy each hit for 15 while Jimmy Robertson scored 11.

On Saturday night, Elon outscored the Panthers to take a 83-77 conference win. The Christians hit more three-point shots than two-pointers as they converted 14 or their attempts. Both Mel Melton and Steve Page made six three-pointers, Melton leading Elon scorers with 26 points.

Murphy led HPC with 27 points and was able to convert three three-pointers. Hoffman again played well and added 16 points.

HPC runners take fourth in Lynchburg relays

BY DON WILBORNE
Special to the HI-PO

High Point College's track team finished fourth in the seven-team Lynchburg relays on Sat., Feb. 19.

The Panthers finished with 28 point. Christopher Newport won the meet with 54, followed by Lynchburg with 36½, Francis Marion with 31, High Point with 28, Roanoke with 20, Bridgewater with 16½ and Emory with nine.

Coach Bob Davidson's crew took four first places. Ralph Barnes took individual honors in the triple jump, setting a meet record with a leap of 46'3". Jack Songster won the high jump with 6'4", and two relay teams won. The 880 relay team of Kent Sides, Barnes, John Richardson, and Ian Lewis won in 1:36.8, and the triple jump relay team of Barnes, Songster and Angelo Stewart also won.

Second place finished for the Panthers included the sprint medley relay team of Lewis, Stewart, Richardson, and Mike Duffy and the 440 relay team of Sides, Barnes, Richardson and Lewis.

This meet concludes the Panther indoor season. The team's next challenge will be at Campbell College on March 15, followed by their first home meet on March 17, hosting Towson State and J.C. Smith.

Netters' veteran lineup looks solid

BY MARK PHELPS
Sports Editor

For coach Dr. Charlie Futrell's men's tennis team, the upcoming season looks very promising. The squad has a nucleus of starters from last year's team which finished third in the conference and fourth in the district.

"We have some people back so we should be strong all the way through the lineup," coach Futrell said. "That is something we haven't had in the last few years."

Senior Jim Holleran, the defending conference champion, will be playing in the number one position. He was named as an academic All-American last year.

Playing at the no. 2 position will be sophomore Pekka Makela of Finland. He, like Holleran, was a semi-finalist in the district last season in singles.

There will be a battle for positions 3, 4, and 5 between sophomore Matt Lange, sophomore Sami Narhi of Finland, and senior Griff Thompson.

"We could play any of the top five players at the first position and would not be hurt because there is not a lot of difference in skill among them," revealed coach Futrell. "We probably will do some switching around throughout the season."

There will be several players competing for the no. 6 position. These candidates are freshman Roy Heilbron, sophomore Kevin West, a transfer student from Florida, and freshman Francisco Bloch from Bolivia.

Sophomore Clint Osborne played the sixth position last season, but he has been hindered with back problems recently and cannot play right now. Senior Greg Fox, who also played last year, has been unable to practice much because of his job. Osborne has been the only player on the team who has suffered an injury.

High Point will face a tough 25-game schedule which includes such big-name colleges as Wake Forest, N.C. State, Virginia Tech, and West Virginia. The season gets underway with the Panthers traveling to conference-rival Wingate on January 24 and coach Futrell gave his feelings on the Carolina's Conference.

"I think Atlantic-Christian is the favorite to win the conference championship this year. Guilford and we ought to battle for second place, although, if we play well, we could surprise Atlantic-Christian.

Speight looks for banner year in '83

BY BOB ROSSI

Sports Writer

High Point College baseball coach Jim Speight forsee this year's Panther team going all the way, provided they can strengthen the infield and put the ball over the plate.

After a trip to the Area finals, a District 26 title last year, and a 29-13 record, Speight sees little reason not to match or surpass the team's record of a year ago.

Despite the loss of three outstanding infielders in Neil Van Asch (.335, 17 HRS), Ken Carter (.382, 23 rbi), Bob Hearon (.299, 47 rbi), and starting pitcher Tony Moody (9-3), Speight feels he can compensate for this by "Making do with what we have and what we have is something we can make do with pretty good."

Pitching can be a major factor in the success of this year's Panther team if control problems are eliminated.

Leading the staff is All-District senior lefthander Craig Humbert (8-1, 1.59) and junior righthander Andy Dupree (4-2, 3.56). As for the remaining pitchers, Speight says he'll "Flip a coin," to determine the rest of the rotation. Returning righthanders Barry Tilley (1-1, 4.19), Danny Mizell (5-2), transfers Jim Scott, from Montgomery C.C. (Md.), Jeff Collins, from Pasco-Hernando C.C. (Fla.), and freshman Rick Thompson are battling for the other open spots.

Regardless of who gets the jobs, the Panthers have excellent pitching depth which is a plus down the stretch and for late-inning relief.

Catching is a solid plus with the return of All-Conference catcher Stan Crews (.276, 2 HRS, 28 rbi), who Speight calls, "The best catcher I've ever had." Behind Crews is junior transfer Lee Whitney from Ferrum J.C. (Va.), who is hitting well this spring and should see plenty of action behind the plate as designated hitter or in the outfield.

The infield is solid at first base and shortstop but second and third base are giving Speight some concern, "I do have some concern about second and third right now in that I haven't made up my mind who's gonna be starting yet."

Andy Dupree starts at first when he's not pitching. Keith Rowand, a freshman, or Craig Humbert will play first when Dupree is on the mound.

Second base is up for grabs by sophomore Bob Barra, and juniors Mike Hornisk and Jim Sprinkle.

Shortstop belongs to senior Mike Pisano (.274, 23 rbi), who Speight calls, "the best defensive player in the conference." Pisano could see a professional career in his future if he swings the bat with some authority this season.

Junior Ronnie Lucas, sophomores Doug Shields and Rodney Speas, and freshman Mark Barnes are battling for the starting role at third base.

The outfield is returning strong with Charlie Waynick (.339), John Carty (.258), Mike Russell (.254), Steve "Weed" Furman (.193), Darrell Barber and freshman Neal Wilbourne.

Names to look for in '83 are senior catcher Stan Crews, junior outfielder Charlie Waynick, senior shortstop Mike Pisano and junior Andy Dupree, who

Speight says will see more action this year than he's ever seen before. "His bat will be in the lineup at all times and I'd be very surprised if he doesn't hit .350", said Speight.

The official season opens Saturday, February 26, at home against Virginia Tech. Sunday, February 27, takes the team to Duke and they return home on Monday for a doubleheader against Susquehanna.

The Panthers will play a 42-game schedule in '83, with thirty of those games being played at High Point College. There is a period of twenty-one consecutive games at home during the middle of the season. Coach Speight feels that this twenty-one game homestand will not have too much of a bear on the season, as the Panthers have had a tendency to play better on the road in recent years.

Providing the Panthers' pitching is under control and the infield holes are filled adequately, look for High Point to be right in the thick of things this spring.

Basketball concludes

BY MICHAEL PISANO

Sports Writer

The men's intramural basketball "A" league wound up their regular season games last week and start an eight team double elimination playoff tournament this week with the Lambda Chi "A" team as the number one seed.

Other strong contenders are Team X and the Pika "A" team.

The B league regular season will wind up this week and playoffs will begin at the beginning of next week. The strong teams in the "B" league are the McCullochs and Team XII, followed by the Delta Sig "B" team.

Intramural Bowling is in its third week of competition with many of the teams vying for the first place position.

The basketball games begin at 7 p.m. and 8:15 p.m. at Harrison Hall. The bowling teams roll on Tuesday and Thursday nights at 9:30 at High Point Lanes.

IRS seeks qualified applicants

The following is a letter sent to Michael Pittman by the Internal Revenue Service:

"We are recruiting to fill several Revenue Officer positions and since the Professional and Administrative Careers Examination has been abolished, we have been authorized to accept applications directly from qualified persons.

If you have six to eight 1982 graduates who are still seeking employment, we would be pleased to receive their applications. We are enclosing a supply of the forms that each applicant should complete. The application must be received by February 21, 1983, in order for the person to be considered. We are also enclosing a brief description of the duties of a Revenue Officer.

We prefer Business Administration majors with strong academic records; those with 3.0 averages will be given priority consideration. Accounting is not a requirement.

The positions will be located in various locations throughout North Carolina with the possibility of relocation after approximately one year of training. It is unlikely that any positions will be filled in the Greensboro area."

Applications are available in the Career Planning Office.

Few damages, no casualties

Arson suspected in McColloch fires

BY LEWIS WHELESS
Associate Editor

Arson is suspected in two small fires that caused minor damage in the third floor lounge and bathroom of McCulloch Dormitory at 6 a.m. Saturday, according to Ed Cannady, Director of Public Safety at High Point College.

"We (the safety office) have suspects" who are under investigation for setting the first, Cannady said. He did not specify whether or not the suspects are students of the college.

Cannady said the fires caused "very minor" damages because two dorm residents detected the fires before they spread. Damage includes the loss of a towel and the charring of a wall and part of a wooden stall.

Mark Cunningham, a McCulloch resident, heard the sound of a smoke alarm around 6 a.m. Saturday and discovered a fire in the lounge. He then ran to the room of a resident assistant, Keith Pierre, for help.

According to Pierre, he ran to the lounge and extinguished the flames "by beating them with (his) bare hands. I used what was there (to put out the fire), and what was there was me."

Upon returning to his room to call the security office, Pierre heard a second alarm nearby. He then discovered a towel burning on a wooden stall in the bathroom. He extinguished this fire by pulling the towel off the rack and stomping on the flames. "It was Mark's alertness" and Pierre's actions that stopped the spread of the fires, said Pierre.

"After putting the fires out, I pulled the alarm down and ran out and down the length (of the building)," Pierre said. Pierre saw "very few" other residents evacuate the building. "I guess they figured it (the alarm) was a prank," he said. Pierre cut off the alarm after making sure the fires were out. Fire fighters were not dispatched to the scene, but fire officials are investigating to determine the cause of the fires.

"Thanks to the college's investment in fire alarms and smoke detectors," the fire caused very little damage and, "at the bottom line, no loss of life," Cannady said.

Cannady attributed the work of Cunningham and Pierre to the brevity of the fire. "They did a fantastic job (in extinguishing the fire)," Cannady commented.

After months of stake-outs

Suspect arrested in six cases

BY CRYSTAL L.
HEDGECK
Editor-in-Chief

Following months of stake-outs, police arrested Douglas Ray Honeycutt as a suspect in six indecent exposure cases on the High Point College campus.

The arrest occurred Feb. 22, after Campus Security officer Ginger Foy observed a white male peep into three different windows in the courtyard area. Mr. Ed Cannady, director of Public Safety at HPC, said.

According to Cannady, Officer Foy was on stake-out duty when she observed the suspect. The stake-outs began last semester after the first case of indecent exposure was reported on campus. Within three to four weeks of that first report, four other cases were also reported, Cannady said. Cannady said one other case of indecent exposure and several peeping tom cases have been reported this semester.

When Foy observed the male, she approached him and identified herself, Cannady said. She asked him his name and he said "Honeycutt." She told him she had seen what he was doing and used her radio to call the High Point Police.

According to Cannady, Honeycutt ran as the police cars were enroute towards the tennis courts. Cannady said he arrived at the scene at the same time the police did.

At this same time, a black '73 Monte Carlo was discovered in Belk parking lot. The car was identified as belonging to Honeycutt, Cannady said. The College impounded the vehicle pending the subject's arrest.

Honeycutt got away and according to Cannady, the subject went to the Magistrate's office and turned himself in.

Officer Foy signed a warrant for the arrest of Honeycutt and the High Point Police added three additional warrants. Six HPC female victims positively identified Honeycutt's photograph out of a group of seven, Cannady said.

Honeycutt posted his own $1000 bond and was released.

"I would like to commend all of our officers and the High Point Police for a fine job," Cannady said in reference to Honeycutt's arrest.

Cannady also said "Even though we feel this person is responsible for all the indecent exposure activity and peeping tom cases, we have not stopped staking out and patrolling Women's dorm."

A court date has been set for April 8, Cannady said.

Tuition posted

BY LEWIS WHELESS
Associate Editor

The 1983-84 tuition rates have been announced recently by the college. The new rates were approved at an October, 1982 Board of Directors meeting, according to Mrs. Ethylene Charnock, Secretary in the Financial Affairs office.

Tuition rates will be increased to $3300 per year, a $300 increase over 1982-83 rates. Board prices will also be increased, from $1000 to $1100. Room rates are being increased as well. Fees (general, Campus Center and Student Activity), however, will remain at the 1982-83 level.

Following is a list of the new tuition rates and a comparison to this year's rates:

Tuition	$3000	$3300
General Fee	100	100

Fire alert goes unnoticed

What happened to the little boy who cried wolf? Did the wolf eat him? No! He burned up in McColloch dorm.

Such could have been the case when all, but a few, slept through the fire alarm that went off Saturday around 7 a.m. What possesses a person to hear a fire alarm and not react? Is the apathy (there's that word again) towards fire drills so prevalent that one chooses to ignore rather than react to an element as dangerous as fire? Have there been so many false alarms in the past that one naturally assumes another is taking place when the alarm is heard? This could be true, but why risk life by not finding out for sure?

The fire officer investigating the fire said, "The apathy problem that occurred when the fire alarm was pulled is serious. If it (the fire) had been more serious, the Nation would have known about it - the fire could have spread up and down the hall and many could have died."

Fortunately, the fire was very small and easily extinguishable, but that may not be the case the next time. The conditions of McColloch dorm are not conducive to fire safety. Persons living there should be especially sensitive to fire hazards and fire prevention. One type of fire prevention is fire drills. When taken seriously, they offer practice escapes from a serious situation. Ideally, Saturday morning each person should have gotten out of bed and filed slowly outside and away from the building. Instead, all, except the few who got up, rolled over in bed and left their fates to the blaze.

'Injustice' describes reaction to Watergate security officer verdict

"Ruminations" is a new column of the Hi-Po editorial page. The column will strive to comment on novel, interesting and noted events around the campus, community and nation.

It is somehow an injustice that the very man who discovered the Watergate break-in is now being sent to the penitentiary for a longer period of time than any of the men who carried out a conspiracy against the whole U.S. of A. Frank Wills, the semi-famous security guard who noticed tampering in the Watergate office building in 1972, lifted a twelve-buck pair of tennis shoes from a department store recently. How he's been sent to prison for a year. The maximum amount of time served by any of the Watergate conspirators was six months. Justice? Hardly.

Another injustice that has come about recently is the closing down of the 4077th. M*A*S*H has departed to syndication paradise, it seems. Millions of people became caught up in the hoopla Monday night as the last episode of the immensely popular t.v. show was aired. And a lot of tears were running down a lot of cheeks around the country (and world?) as T.V. audiences said goodbye to Hawkeye, B.J., Hot Lips and Klinger. After 10 years of superb programming, M*A*S*H created quite an impression on the tube. Goodbye to the 4077th. . . so long to tolerable television.

The last remnants of winter have been hanging around a lot this week, but warmer temps are bound to be on the way. Make it a great spring break, and get in gear for the last few months of the semester—summer vacation is just 1354 hours away!

To teach Spanish

Rodriguez joins Foreign Language Department

BY BOB ROSSI

Staff Writer

Mrs. Anne Rodriguez is High Point College's newest addition to the Spanish program of its Foreign Language Department.

The New Jersey native has been instructing at the college since January when Dr. Frances S. Hoch accepted a position with the state department of education.

Mrs. Rodriguez is entering her sixteenth year of teaching and her third year as a college instructor.

The list of schools which she has instructed at before joining High Point College is an extensive one: Indiana University, South Bend, Indiana; St. Mary's College, Notre Dame, Indiana; and the University of North Carolina in Greensboro.

The instructor stated that she was very impressed with High Point College and its language department.

"High Point compares very favorably with the other institutions. It's wonderful to be in a department where so many students are involved with language, where a major is offered, and I love the tie-up with the business department. It's very progressive and very practical."

Rodriguez is also strongly in favor of High Point College's mandatory year of foreign language. "I think it's excellent. Everyone needs the experience of putting himself in someone else's position language wise. We are so insular in the United States geographically. I think that through the classroom it gives the teacher a chance to spread the horizon a little bit more for the student."

High Point's newest staff member received her Bachelor of Science Degree in Spanish from Columbia University in New York. She continued her Masters work at Teachers College of Columbia University, Middlebury College in Vermont and at the University of Madrid in Spain.

Mrs. Rodriguez has spent a lot of time in Spain and is married to a Spaniard. Because of these experiences, she feels she can create interesting and informative situations that sometimes cannot be found in a textbook. Personal experiences, cultural insights, relationships with the family units and human reactions are all found in Senora Rodriguez' style of teaching.

"The more the student is involved, the more meaning it has for the student. I know the material already," she laughs. "The student is the important one in class."

The Varsity Sport of the Mind

Pika Gold, Lambda Chi's take lead

BY TERRI LIVINGSTON

Staff Writer

Vice-President of Alpha Chi Omega and head of the College Bowl program, April J. Callahan, describes the games as "fun and exciting." This year there have been eight teams in competition. In regular play, the leaders are Pika Gold and Lambda Chi Alpha with one loss each. Holding second place are the Simpletons, with Pika Garnet in third.

The questions for College Bowl have been taken from Time Magazine and cover the areas of literature, physics, biology, history, politics, current events, movies, and many other subjects, according to Callahan.

The regular season for College Bowl will wind up on February 28. A double elimination tournament will begin on Wednesday, March 2 at 6:30 p.m. in Meeting Room #1. All students are encouraged to attend.

"Day of Celebration" planned

BY TANA PARKER

Staff Writer

On Mar. 24, 1983, over 110 high school students will be visiting the High Point College campus. The occasion? The Society of Collegiate Journalists' "Day of celebration."

President of the Society, Art Prillaman, described the day as a journalism festival for high school and campus students. The students register from 9:00 a.m.-9:30 a.m. and attend various workshops throughout the day. The workshops include journalism, yearbook and photography work, news and copy writing, and layouts. In the afternoon, two workshops will be directed towards the college students. The first, or broadcast journalism, will be conducted by Carol Rogers, a graduated High Point College Communications major. Another alumna, Kim Darden, will discuss print journalism. There will also be a number of influential people conducting workshops. They include Wilford Kale, the past president of the National SJC; Sonny Hedgecock, High Point Enterprise; and representatives from the Greensboro Daily News and Winston-Salem Sentinel.

"The function of the society is to promote effective and ethical mass media," said Prillaman. The purpose for the day is to draw students, interested in the major, to HPC. Prillaman said the day is also an admissions tool to try and get more people to attend HPC and with more people, "we could probably get better facilities." Another purpose is to give students an angle

However, facility remains busy

Infirmiry operations spark complaints

BY KARLA GREEN
Features Editor

High Point College provides on-campus health service through the College infirmiry. Do many students use the infirmiry? Mrs. Joyce Isenhour, RN, says that they do. However, the infirmiry continues to be a subject the students disagree upon.

Isenhour said that the patient load varies from month to month, but that the first month of school is usually the busiest, with last September's patient count up to "900 students." She attributed the large number to the athletic physicals that are required at the beginning of the school year. Isenhour said that the estimated monthly average of patients seen by the infirmiry is "around 350 students per month."

Although many use the infirmiry facilities, students continue to complain about them.

One student commented about the school attendance policy, saying, "If I felt like walking across campus to be excused by the infirmiry, I could go to class."

The infirmiry staff maintained that the school attendance policy is an issue of the administration rather than the infirmiry, whose main purpose is to "treat the patients as needed." Nurse Isenhour said, "If we see a patient that has an elevated temperature or is said to be too ill to attend classes by the physician, then the patient is excused by the infirmiry."

Convenience to students is considered in the making of the infirmiry policy. One such service is the daily delivery of needed prescriptions to the college. According to infirmiry staff member Judy Green, "The Rite Aid pharmacy delivers all needed medications not on hand in the infirmiry to the campus daily so as to provide a more convenient service to the students, many of which do not have transportation." Green remarked that the fees for the medications is then charged directly to the students' account. "These medications are usually antibiotics not available in our office, and can be picked up around 4 p.m. on the same day in the infirmiry," commented Green.

This brings about another question asked by many students: "Why are these charges not covered by the Health Services fee that is paid by all dormitory students at the beginning of each school year?" Green agreed that this fee is used to help support the infirmiry and staff in order to provide continuing medical care within limitations on campus. However, Green said that "there are many lab tests that cannot be done on campus (such as the blood work for mono) and must be done at the hospital." The students are responsible for such bills aside from the fee previously paid to the college. The medications that are kept on hand at the infirmiry include the basic treatments for colds; other medications must be purchased by the student through the pharmacy.

Another student complaint was that "the infirmiry is only open during times when most classes are held, conflicting with the students schedules." According to Nurse Isenhour, "there is someone on-call 24 hours a day to aid the students."

THE HIGH POINT COLLEGE INFIRMIRY is the subject of student complaints.

Isenhour said, "If someone gets ill after hours, they need to contact the infirmiry for advice." Mrs. Rice, the night receptionist, is available by phone in the infirmiry after hours to advise any student who wishes to be seen. According to Isenhour, "She will talk with the student and then call the nurse and/or doctor on call if the patient needs to be seen." But this is the procedure to be followed only during the week. The infirmiry closes on Friday afternoons at 5 p.m. until hours on Monday morning, according to Dr. Alan Fortney, director of Medical Services. He advises that anyone with a serious illness should go the emergency room at the nearby hospital. "The student does not need to go through the infirmiry in this case," said Isenhour. In the event that the student needs treatment, they are responsible for any fees acquired.

According to Judy Green, an optional insurance policy is offered through the college by the Pilot Life Insurance Company. She said that the students should be aware, however, that "this is optional and is only a hospitalization and accident policy."

Dr. Fortney also felt that the students should be more aware of the importance of their pre-college physicals required for entry to HPC. He said that the staff's "biggest problem is getting adequate information on the students medical history prior to their entry of HPC." He stressed the importance that this has in giving the student effective health care while on the campus.

According to Fortney, the college infirmiry formally sees patients during the hours of 8 a.m. until 12 p.m. and then again from 3 p.m. until 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Fortney said that he is available to examine patients beginning each weekday morning around 9 a.m. According to his nurse, Ms. Joyce Isenhour, RN, "Anyone who is ill should be in the infirmiry by 9-9:30 to see the doctor."

According to Fortney, he stays in the infirmiry each day until the staff is "through seeing the patients," times which vary from day to day. On days when Fortney is unavailable, patients are treated by his physicians' assistant, Paul Craft.

Campus sorority celebrates 130th birthday

(Atlanta) -- Phi Mu from High Point College will celebrate the founding of this social sorority as the national organization reaches its 130th birthday on Mar. 4.

This celebration will be acknowledged sometime after spring break in conjunction with the new Phi Mu Chapter over at Appalachian State University. The theme for the party will be "dress according to how you imagine how our founders looked like." A special ceremony will be conducted to welcome the 85 new sisters. Phi Mu, one of the nation's oldest college organizations for women was found on March 4, 1852 at Wesleyan College, Macon, Ga. The principles of the sorority, upheld for over a century of change, remain as the ideals of truth, honor and love.

Although classified as a social sorority, Phi Mu emphasizes individual and collegiate chapter attention to high academic achievement. In 1982, the sorority and the Phi Mu Foundation, a philanthropic arm of the sorority, awarded over $22,222 in graduate and undergraduate scholarships and grants.

Phi Mu has been a consistent leader among national sororities, implementing a Career Development Department and being the first social sorority to publish an extensive Professional Directory designed for placement of college seniors as well as alumnae re-entering the work force.

Phi Mu denounces hazing of members and pledges in any form, and encourages individual social, leadership and personal development through group involvement.

One such aspect of Phi Mu leadership growth is the training of approximately 25 collegiate chapter officers, each one responsible for one facet of chapter operations. In addition, leadership training and fraternity business is conducted annually throughout the country. Future leadership training conventions are planned for Oxford, Mississippi in 1983.

Resume - pathway to a career

Résumé -- a French word meaning "summary" or an English word meaning probably the only way you'll ever get a job.

A resume is a way to advertise yourself on paper. A resume won't get you a job, but it will get your foot in the door for that all-important job interview.

There are four items you should keep in mind when writing your resumes: it should be brief -- one or two pages; it should be neat, with no errors; it should be easily understandable and it should be honest.

Most students use the chronological formula for their resumes in which they list their education and work experience in reverse chronological order. The chronological resume should begin with the student's personal data.

Included in this section should be your name, address, and the school and permanent phone numbers. You also may wish to incorporate such data as sex, age, height, weight and marital status. You should not attach a picture with their resumes, and it is illegal for an employer to ask for one.

Career objectives should follow personal data on the resume. List both your short- and long-term career objectives. Make sure your professional objectives are relevant to the job you are applying for, while keeping them broad enough for several job possibilities.

Education information should be the next section. You should list their educational background in reverse chronological order, starting with the highest level of formal education. The years of attendance at each institution should appear on the resume as well as the degrees earned. Your GPA and any special courses taken which pertain to career objectives should be included if they are impressive.

Following the educational background should be a work history section. Don't only list where you worked, but what you did while you were there. Use action words like "directed" and "assisted with," when describing your duties at a particular job. Although some employers are mostly interested in work experience that pertains to their job, others think part-time or volunteer work shows initiative.

The next section should include whatever related professional experience you have, including membership in professional organizations, internships, extracurricular activities and any honors, awards or scholarships earned.

The final section of the resume should have three or four references. Previous employers and professors are the best references because they can provide the work performance evaluation that future employers want to have.

It is a good idea to always send prospective employers an individually typed cover letter with the resume. You should send the cover letter and the resume to the department where you want to work, since the department, rather than personnel, will probably do the hiring.

The cover letter should contain an opening paragraph stating why you are sending the resume. The middle paragraph should briefly describe why you are qualified for the job, perhaps by highlighting education or skills that pertain to that particular job. Do not include all education or work experience because then employers won't bother to read the more detailed information in the resume.

Close the letter by thanking the employer for his time, and suggesting an interview in the future. Follow-up your resume with a phone call requesting an interview. Some firms wait for prospective employees to call them, reasoning that no call means no initiative... and no job.

On February 17 the faculty of High Point College approved the revised policy for satisfactory academic progress for Title IV financial aid recipients. Simply stated the policy is:

- A full-time day student must successfully complete 12 credit hours per semester or 24 credit hours per academic year.
- A half-time day student must successfully complete 6 credit hours per semester or 12 credit hours per academic year.

- A full-time CAEP student must successfully complete 12 credit hours per year (July-June).

- A half-time CAEP student must successfully complete 6 credit hours per year (July-June).

- The student must also be in good academic standing.

- A full-time student may receive Title IV funds for five years, and a half-time student may receive aid for eight years.

- Students not meeting the minimum standards have options to regain eligibility, and students always have the right to appeal. Students who appear (after a review of

Process from pledgeship to initiation comes to an end

BY KAREN HERNANDEZ

The long pledgeship of the majority of the Greeks has finally come to an end. Some pledges were seen carrying sticks, others carrying bricks, others carrying flowers. Another group had to dress up as their "Big Sisters", and others were seen with mud all over their "butts." All of the pledges who went through initiation are proud to be called "brother" or "sister" because they have gone through a long period of memorization, fund raising, and serving the community.

The Alpha Delta Thetas had 12 girls initiated. They are: Karen Bishoff, Kelly Brisentine, Jennifer Burroughs, June Craft, Sheila Craig, Ginny Dunn, Marja

Erickson, Selwyn Heintz, Kelly Lambert, Lisa Swing, Susan Warwick, and Alicia Wright.

The Alpha Gamma Delta's were proud to tell us that their pledges, as service altruistic project, visited the Mayfield Nursing Home. After every "kid" completed their requirements they became part of the sisterhood of Alpha Gamma Delta. They are: Jennifer Austin, Carol Biderman, Karla Green, Kelli Greene, Teile Hadsock, Melissa MacKenzie, Robin Pfeiffer, and Janet Temple.

The Kappa Delta's are proud to welcome seven sisters into their chapter. They are: Jackie Barner, Camille Davis, Wendi Hora, Lee Kroches, Jennifer Linquist, Kim Manness, and Pam McHone.

The Phi Mu's this year have been involved in many services. After these activities were completed, 10 out of the 13 Phi's were ready to become "Part of the Sisterhood." They are: Julie Beatty, Janet Freeman, Claire Hall, Terry Henderson, Ann Osterhout, Jennifer Palmer, Lolita Spencer, Grace Still, Ursula Watt, and Nancy Young.

The Theta Chi's might be few but they are proud to have initiated Matt Kohne and Steve Hatt. They are now part of the brotherhood and speaking of a few, the new Theta Chis Little Sisters are: Melissa Duncan, Mary Gagner, Dana Holmes, Millie Price, Sharon Sweeney, Lou Taylor, and Kathy Williamson.

Lady Panthers looking for sixth conference title

BY MARK PHELPS
Sports Editor

To improve on the previous season is the goal of any collegiate coach, but for coach Kitty Steele and her womens tennis team, there is not a whole lot of room for improvement.

The Lady Panthers have won five consecutive conference championships and taken fourth place in the NAIA national tournament over the past two years. This season, the team will be without the services of MVP Leslie Gianoplos. A freshman walkon last year, Gianoplos finished with a 19-3 record and won the conference championship at the number four position. Though her presence will be missed, coach Steele feels that her team has the capabilities to take a sixth title.

"Other than Leslie, last year's team remains intact. Losing her will effect us some, but the girls gained a great deal of experience last season and that should compensate for her absence."

Ana Medina, a junior from Bolivia, has played at the number one position over the past two years and she will be working to maintain that spot. Challenging her is junior Anneli Kiviniemi of Sweden, who played at the second position last year.

"Anneli is more motivated for this season and is better prepared physically as well as mentally," said coach Steele.

The next two spots are filled by junior Lynn Sharkey at the third spot and senior Helen O'Brian at the fourth position.

The rest of the lineup will be challenged for by a number of players. Sophomore Dori Johnson played the number sixth spot last season but has been sidelined recently by illness. She is expected to return to the court after spring break.

Teresa Sweatman played some matches last year at sixth and teamed with Gianoplos to win the conference championship at third doubles. "Teresa is one of the most improved players that I've had since I have been at High Point" recalled coach Steele.

Newcomer Anne Maryse

Lopez, a freshman from Puerto Rico, and sophomore Theresa Regnante will also be vying for a position.

"I am pleased with Annes strokes and attitude. She might well challenge for fifth or sixth," said coach Steele. "Theresa has a very strong serve, smooth strokes, and a good knowledge of the game. It will strengthen us throughout if she can fit into the top six and continue to play well at doubles."

Lady Braves take conference tournament in Alumni gym

BY MARK PHELPS

Pembroke State defeated Wingate 83-80 in overtime Saturday night to win the Carolinas Conference tournament held in Alumni gymnasium. The Lady Braves, regular season conference champions, outscored their opponents 12-9 in the overtime period after ending regulation play in a 71-71 deadlock.

Dee Major led all Pembroke scorers with 20 points while Donna Moody added 19. For the Lady Bulldogs, Harriett Suber hit for 25 points and player-of-the-year Dianna Monroe added 24.

High Point's Lady Panthers earlier lost to the eventual champion Braves in a first round game Thursday, 71-53. Pembroke had five players to score in double figures. Barbara Green, a 6-0 center, led the Braves with 15 points.

Sandra Swaboda and Ursula Watt led HPC scorers with 15 and 11 points respectively. Freshman Lisa Jones had a game-high 15 rebounds for the Panthers. This was the first time in seven years that High Point hasn't reached the finals.

The all-tournament team included Major and Moody of Pembroke, Suber and Monroe of Wingate, and Atlantic-Christian's Tyra Boyd.

Carolinas Conference Tournament gets underway

BY MARK PHELPS
Sports Editor

The Mens Carolinas conference tournament began last night at Elon College as High Point played regular season champion Catawba. The Indians came into the tournament with a perfect 14-0 conference record and the favorites to take the championship. Tuesday's second game pitted second place Pfeiffer and host Elon.

Tonight at 7:00, defending champion Pembroke State plays Atlantic Christian. Pembroke has won the tournament championship the last two years. Wingate and Guilford play the second game at 9:00. These two teams finished in a tie for fourth place in the conference standings.

The winner of the HPC-

Catawba game plays the Wingate-Guilford winner Thursday night at 7:00. The ACC-Pembroke winner plays the Pfeiffer-Elon victor at 9:00. The championship game is Friday night at 8:00.

SORRY--Due to an early press deadline, Tuesday's results of the HPC-Catawba game could not be covered.

Lady Panthers

High Point's Womens tennis team opened its spring season with a 7-2 loss to powerhouse Appalachian State University in Boone. The Panthers two wins came in singles play. Anneli Kiviniemi, playing at the number two position, took a 6-3, 6-3 win over Francie Robinson. Theresa Regnante, playing at the number six position, defeated Melanie Riley, 6-1, 6-3. The lady Panthers' next match is with Elon on March 16.

HPC netters take opening win

High Point College's men tennis defeated Wingate on February 24.

Winning for the Panthers in singles were Pekka Makela, 6-4, 6-2; Sami Narhi, 6-1, 6-0; Matt Lange, 6-2, 6-0; Griff Thompson, 6-2, 6-3; Roy Heilbron, 6-3, 6-4; Francisco Bloch, 6-1, 6-3; and Kevin West, 6-4, 7-5.

Combining for doubles, the Panthers boosted three winning pairs: Makela and Thompson, 7-5, 6-2; Narhi and Lange, 6-1, 6-0; and Heilbron and Bloch, 6-4, 4-6.

Panthers drop season finale

High Point College dropped its final regular season game Wednesday night to Gardner-Webb 89-79. The defeat left the Panthers with a 6-18 overall record going into Tuesday's Carolinas Conference tournament.

High Point led in the first half by as much as eleven and held a 45-36 halftime lead. But the Bulldogs roared back in the second period behind the scoring of 6-10 center Eddie Wilkins. Wilkins finished the game with 34 points, three of his shots coming on spectacular alley-oop dunks.

High Point trailed by only one with about three minutes left to play, but the Panthers then went cold on their three-point attempts and Gardner-Webb was able to hit eight of its last 12 free throws.

Robert Hudson, Mike Everette, and Danny Murphy led High Point scorers with 13 points each. Freshmen Jim Hoffman and Terry Samuels also contributed with 11 and 10 points respectively.

Elections to be Mar. 30-31 Vacancies dominate SGA elections

BY CHRIS HEENAN
Special to the HI-PO

As SGA Election Day draws closer, there are still a lot of vacancies in many of the SGA positions.

In one of the few contested races of the election, the office of SGA president is being sought by Mark Mashburn and Tom Leech. Judy Jones seeks the office of vice-president without opposition.

In the race for Senior Offices are Miriam O'Malley and Denise Watts for president and John Brown for vice-president.

In the race for class legislators, for the Senior class; Pat Connelly, Teriann Cleary, Wendi Hora and Sharon Sweeney. For the Sophomore class, Mary Van Horne is the only candidate running.

There are however, many positions still open in the elections. SGA President Mark Mashburn said, "Sean Russell, Chairman of the Election Committee, reported there are no candidates running for the following offices; SGA treasurer, four Junior legislators, three Sophomore legislators, Senior, Junior and Sophomore judicial representatives.

Mashburn called these vacancies a possible lack of motivation. Miriam O'Malley, a candidate for Senior class president, said, "The only way things will change around here is if people get involved."

Anyone interested in these positions must be a write-in candidate. According to Mashburn, this must be specified on any campaign material.

The elections will be Mar. 30 and 31 at lunch and dinner in the lobby of the campus center.

Lucht announces graduation speakers

Dr. Charles R. Lucht, president of High Point College, has announced that Bishop L. Scott Allen and Dr. Nicholas T. Goncharoff will be the college's 1983 baccalaureate and commencement speakers.

Bishop Allen is the resident bishop presiding over the Western North Carolina Conference of the United Methodist Church. Dr. Allen has a bachelor's degree from Clark College in Atlanta, a divinity degree from Gammon Theological Seminary in Atlanta, and a master's degree from Northwestern University.

He was elected and consecrated as a bishop of the Methodist Church in 1967.

Bishop Allen is a member of the boards of trustees at High Point, Brevard, Greensboro and Pfeiffer colleges.

Dr. Goncharoff is director of special programs for the YMCA of the United States. Born in Kiev, U.S.S.R., he studied at the Universities of Heidelberg, Marburg and Zurich, and in 1952 was awarded a doctorate in philosophy and history from the University of Munich.

He is an educator and specialist in the fields of political science, comparative history and international affairs. As a Danforth and McKinley Scholar, Dr. Goncharoff has been invited to more than 600 colleges and universities in the United States and Canada to address convocations, give lectures, and organize seminars and workshops.

Dr. Goncharoff serves as an advisor and consultant on foreign policy matters for the U.S. State Dept. Through 1981, he served as the permanent representative to the United Nations for the World Alliance of YMCAs.

The baccalaureate service will be conducted in Wesley Memorial United Methodist Church at 8 p.m. May 7. Commencement exercises will take place in High Point College's Alumni Gymnasium at 11 a.m. May 8.

Math, science teachers in demand

Campus Digest News Service

There is a serious shortage of math and science teachers across the country as potential teachers choose the private employment field instead of the classroom. Higher salaries and more advancement potential are the main reasons.

Another reason is found with the students themselves. Teachers have difficulty maintaining classroom behavior, and many teachers are afraid to teach in certain school districts. Some teachers say that parents are not strict enough with their kids at home, and the rowdy behavior continues in the classroom.

So with increasing problems of finding teachers, the city of Houston came up with a good (and simple) way to attract math and science teachers -- offer them more money. They decided to implement a bonus system to lure applicants. Math and science teachers receive a $2000 bonus if they teach in one of the poorer neighborhoods. If their school's test scores rise, they are eligible for an additional bonus of $1300. The bonus plan has two objectives: fill

HPC senior questions tuition increase

To the Editor:

As a concerned senior, I feel I must protest High Point College's recent decision to raise tuition for next year. Although economic conditions in the country are said to be improving, the move to raise tuition and fees seem particularly callous to me. Moreover, the areas of enrollment, campus activities, and lack of personnel in several areas calls for a decrease in tuition, rather than an increase.

An issue of the Hi-Po in February proclaimed that many new students (over a thousand) had been recruited, and that many had made definite plans to attend High Point College in the fall of '83. Now, even if only half of those students came, and if only half of the additional revenue from their tuition was applied to operating expenses and faculty and administration salaries, we would be well ahead of this year in terms of money on hand, or income. To use an analogy: if a drug store is selling alcohol at 69 cents a bottle, then runs out of stock and has to order more at 79 cents a bottle and passes that ten cents along to the consumer because, well -- we ran out and that's not our fault -- This is an admittedly roundabout way of saying that the logic isn't there for a tuition increase just because more people are coming to High Point College. Clearly, because more people are coming, there will be more money at the old tuition cost of $3,200 per year (The basic cost for day students). It seems a greedy windfall to expect more money from more students.

Secondly, it doesn't seem that we are getting what we're paying for at High Point College. Don't get me wrong -- the quality of instruction is high, and most professors care about academic progress and students' growth as people and citizens of the community. However, we have nothing like UNC-G's Concert and Lecture Series; our well-planned and diligently supported movies from the good intentions of the SGA are poorly attended; we have no official Library Director, no official head of the Religion Department, no official Chaplain, no person to fill Bruce Tingle's job. We're severely understaffed where it hurts -- in the student services. Yet, I've heard of no cutbacks in duplicating paper or supplies, no personnel cutbacks in order to save money, and no less flowers or bushes planted to save money. It seems to me as though the students and their families are being relied upon to finance High Point College's attempt to beat inflation and make money when families' costs of living are themselves at an all-time high. The education we get is superior -- again, our teachers are some of the best. As far as administration and student services are concerned, however, we aren't getting what we're paying for. Many of the people who filled those positions have quit.

According to their 1982 catalog, it costs $2,925.00 for tuition at Columbia University, compared to our tuition costs of $3,200. In other words, it costs $275.00 less to attend Columbia this year than what we're paying to attend High Point College. But in 1983, it would be $575.00 cheaper to attend Columbia (that is, unless Columbia raises their tuition drastically for next year). All of this is to say that those of us who care about High Point College and who want to see it survive and prosper (and prosper both intellectually and monetarily) had best raise our voices and urge that tuition rates be frozen at their 1982-83 level, that cutbacks in the purchasing of non-essentials be implemented, and that important positions be filled quickly. We have delayed too long with empty chairs in important jobs, while those who have important jobs at HPC often have empty minds about students' being able to afford the tuition here. I am ready to stand corrected on any matter on which I am unaware. . . My greatest hope of all, though, is that High Point College doesn't price itself out of the market.

Sincerely,
Charles Burton

Student Life Committee submits alcohol policy to Board

After many hours of discussion and committee work by the Student Life Committee, a proposal was given to the Board of Trustees which would permit the individual student the right to make his/her own decision about the use of alcohol. The proposal was initially submitted to the sub-committee on Student Affairs by Mr. Pittman and Mr. Price. Following discussion, the sub-committee unanimously approved the proposal and it was then placed on the agenda of the full Board.

Mr. Price made the presentation of the proposed policy to the Board and then the floor was opened for discussion. Bishop Scott Allen, present presiding

Bishop of the Western North Carolina Conference, wanted to add another paragraph to the proposal which would precisely affirm the position of the United Methodist Church and the college's position to that statement in conjunction with the goals of the institution.

There was some opposition to the policy, as might be expected. The result of which is that the proposal has been deferred indefinitely. The proposal for changing the alcohol policy is not defeated! It is simply going to be edited and altered by the Board before being approved.

After speaking with several administrators, the opinion is that the policy will possibly be changed either by the Executive Committee of the Board or at the next full meeting of the Board in October.

This effort on the part of the Student Life Committee is in the hopes of bringing the college into the real situation of the 1980's. It affirms the fact that students should face current social, moral, and ethical dilemmas and make their own decisions about them. It is believed, at least by this committee, that this is one of the primary functions of the college.

I hoped that I would have seen this policy change by the end of my term in office, but must realize that it is a major decision which Yellow journalism?

To the Editor:

In response to your recent editorial entitled "Fire Alert Goes Unnoticed" concerning the fires in McCulloch Hall and to only slightly change an old Waylon Jennings song: "Don't you think this apathy thing done got out of hand?" Now you are alleging the poor response to the fire alarm on Saturday Feb. 26 was due to the lack of concern of residents of the building. Perhaps this is the case in some instances, but not all.

By the time I had gathered my wits as to what was happening, closed my window, turned on the light, unlocked my door, and got halfway down the stairs, the alarm had been turned off. Several other people were in the stairwell with me, and when the alarm stopped blaring, we decided it was a prank and returned to our rooms.

Perhaps the alarm should have been left on longer to facilitate the exit from the building. To say that the unsatisfactory reply to the fire alarm was due to apathy is a half-truth. Yellow journalism such as that should be left to William R. Hearst.

Alpha Gams win Spring Rally '83

BY TANA PARKER
Staff Writer

An egg toss, suitcase relay, mattress carry and the three-legged jug race are just a few of the events in which over 150 girls competed this past Sunday. The event... The 3rd Annual IKA Spring Rally sponsored by the Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity.

The rally is a time in which the five High Point College sororities: Alpha Gamma Delta, Alpha Delta Theta, Kappa Delta, Phi Mu and Zeta Tau Alpha, get together and compete in various events. This year, the Alpha Gam's showed a little more strength and claimed the championship. Close behind in 2nd place were the Phi Mu's and the KD's, ZTA's and ADT's took 3rd, 4th, and 5th places, respectively.

Art Prillaman, coordinator of the rally, said, "The rally ran smoothly in that it was well organized and everyone had a good time."

The majority of the events were worth up to 15 points and were judged by some of the fraternity brothers. Each sorority chose two Pika's to coach them in their events. In one event, one of the coach's participated by letting the sorority dress him up in whatever they chose. The ZTA's showed their creativity by dressing coach Jeff Collins as a Chinese woman in a Kimono to win first place. With all their enthusiasm and yelling they also won the Spirit Award. The KD's used their muscles to pull a first place in the Tug-of-War event. By the looks of the Egg-Toss race, one would have thought hard boiled eggs were used. The ADT's claimed 2nd place with their egg that would not break even though it dropped, bounced, rolled throughout the event. The Phi Mu's showed their coordination and speed by pushing their way to a first place in the shopping cart relay. Despite the vandalism to the Alpha Gam's banner on Saturday night, they retouched it and took first place. The theme of the rally was "Greek Relations" and by the Gam's winning banner it can all be summed up as "HPC Greeks...A Package Deal."

the critical shortages, and improve the students' proficiency.

Both the math and science teachers shortage will probably get much worse, regardless of bonus plans. That's because of how few of today's college students are majoring in math and science education. Business is a much more popular field. And, as the economy improves, more current teachers may be attracted to other, more lucrative fields.

SCJ holds convention

BY MARIO WATSON

Special to the HI-PO

The Society of Collegiate Journalists, the nation's oldest collegiate journalism honorary organization, held its 1983 biennial national convention on the campus of William and Mary March 10-12.

According to Wilford Kale, advisor to the William and Mary SCJ chapter and convention director, representatives from 53 SCJ's from as far as Kansas attended.

Approximately 350 students participated in the three-day program of seminars, workshops, and speeches.

Helen Thomas, senior White House reporter for the United Press International, was the convention's keynote speaker Mar. 10 in the Campus Center Ballroom.

Miss Thomas joined UPI in 1943 as a cub reporter. She held a variety of assignments with the service until 1961 when she was assigned to the White House to cover Kennedy's administration. She has remained at that post for the last two decades.

As one of the most experienced women journalists, Miss Thomas has initiated a number of "firsts". During Kennedy's presidency, she was the first woman to close a press conference with the traditional, "Thank-you, Mr. President." She was the first woman accepted into the prestigious Gridiron Club, the first woman officer of the National Press Club and the first woman president of the White House Correspondents' Association.

Order of the Lighted Lamp announced

BY DONNA BURTON

Every year since 1935, High Point College has honored fifteen juniors and seniors who have distinguished themselves through their scholarship, leadership, service and character. To attain this honor, a student must maintain a high scholastic average for five consecutive semesters, render outstanding service and provide leadership in such collegiate activities as student government, religious life, athletics, theatre, departmental organizations, professional societies, and social organizations. Additionally, the student is recognized for excellence of character.

Nominated by members of the Order in residence, candidates are elected by the faculty. Those elected to membership in the Order of the Lighted Lamp this year from the class of 1983 are:

Charles Burton
Ronnie Chapman
Jimmy Lee Davis, Jr.
Gregory Fox
Dana Gilbert
James Holleran
Mary Hunter
Yvonne Hurley
Tabitha Nance
Charles Lee (Chan) Shaver

Who's inside the Purple Panther?

BY BOB ROSSI

Staff Writer

This year's High Point College basketball games had something new and exciting to watch beside the action and the cheerleaders. It's purple, stands well over six feet tall, and parades around the gym stealing balls, teasing children, messing the referees hair and most importantly, sending the fans home smiling despite the outcome of the game.

This is, of course, the Purple Panther, the official mascot at High Point College. Inside this harmless beast lives twenty year old junior Mike Horniak.

Sophomore class President Denise Metivier proposed the entire mascot idea early last fall. She went to the cheerleading coach Richard Hoffmann for assistance. Hoffmann loved the idea but financially it seemed like something for the future. Metivier refused to give up and together with Hoffmann and his cheerleading crew proposed this request to the Student Union who fronted two-thirds of the money while the cheerleaders picked up the remaining one-third on the tab. How does Mike Horniak feel about this, "I know it was expensive but it's worth every penny."

Charlotte-born Horniak approached Coach Hoffmann's secretary last semester when he heard the news about the possibility of having a mascot for the upcoming basketball season. "I told her that I'd like to do it and she said tryouts were based on interviews, personality and grades, and I said to myself, well, I guess that counts me out." Obviously it didn't and Mike received the job. Mike was inspired to do this because of the lack of enthusiasm of other mascots that he'd seen on college basketball games on television. "Some mascots would just be standing and cheering. Nobody knows who you are and you have an opportunity to make people smile. I'd give anything to do that. I was just so happy I got chosen for the job."

Horniak practices and travels with the cheerleaders but he insists that they are two different components. Horniak has few limitations as to what he can do to get the crown motivated as long as he keeps it in the good nature of High Point College. What looks like all fun and games can be excruciating pain for the man inside the purple mask. "It's super hard work. I lose between five and seven pounds a game. On some occasions I got on a roll and became so exhausted that I almost passed out."

Horniak seemed to adjust to his job well, so well in fact, that he began to give advice to some of his fellow mascot-competitors. At an Elon College road game Horniak noticed Elon's Fighting Christian not getting motivated and crazy like himself. Horniak approached him at halftime and said to the three year mascot, "You're gonna have to loosen up." He replied to Horniak, "How do you get the nerve to do all the crazy stuff you do?" Horniak smiled from inside of his mask and said, "Hell, nobody knows who I am."

The fans at High Point College certainly know who the Purple Panther is and the reaction has been extremely favorable according to Coach Hoffmann, who has received many compliments from fans at both home and away games.

Horniak transferred to High Point College from Harford Community College in Belair, Maryland last August. He is a member of HPC's baseball team and also played football, basketball and soccer in high school and junior college. He regrets not having the ability to play basketball for High Point College but as the team's mascot he tries to contribute as much as possible. Sometimes too much.

Take for example one home game last season when Horniak noticed that the flashbulbs from some photographer's cameras seemed to be bothering the shooting of High Point's players. I yelled, "C'mon ref don't you see those guys down there? They're throwing our shots off. I just wanted to call it to his attention." The next time the referee came down court he stopped the game, walked over to Horniak and said, "Listen son, I'm reffing this game and if you don't cut it out I'm giving both you and your team a technical foul." "That shut me up real quick," commented Horniak.

well-in-hand but what can we expect from him after High Point. "I'll probably end up teaching for awhile and I'd like to go to grad school. I have dreams of someday becoming an officer in the Air Force. I'd like to learn how to fly. It's always been a dream of mine. And if I make it that far, I'd like to get into politics."

If perserverance, sense of humor and a warm heart are the keys to success, then Mike Horniak will have no obstacles on reaching his plateaus.

"I feel I have something to give. I'm a non-conformist. I like to make people smile and be happy because the world needs a lot more of that."

will affect High Point College, the institution, for probably the rest of its existence once the policy is passed. My primary goal when I assumed the office of President of the SGA was to address this issue. I feel that I have done my best and now it is just a matter of time.

In the past, many have talked about the policy but have done little in concrete terms to change it. I, on the other hand, took it to Mr. Pittman, who in turn took it to the sub-committee of the Board. They then asked the Student Life Committee to examine our present policy and make a proposal to them to either affirm our present policy or recommend changes. The committee did so and consequently the Board now has a concrete proposal on which to act.

Finally, I wish to express my sincere thanks to the Student Life Committee for all its diligent time and work on the proposal. You, the students, are indebted to them as well. The members of this committee are: Mr. Ernest Price, Mr. Mike Pittman, Dr. John Ward, Mrs. Kitty Steele, Mr. Woody Gibson, Mr. Bill Cope, Mike Louia, Debbie Hutter, Victor Kosenski, and myself. Thanks for a job well done!

It's now up to the Board of Trustees!

SCJ convention

Thomas. "People can handle the truth, but not false information. It's worse if people know less about what is happening. How can we run a efficient democracy if the American people are not well informed," concluded Thomas.

Among the persons scheduled to speak at workshop sessions were Ron Edmunds, Pulitzer Prize winning photographer of the Associated Press; Nate Custer, WTKR TV, Norfolk, Virginia; Will Molineuh, Williamsburg Bureau Chief, Newport News Daily Press and The Times-Herald, Newport News, Va., and Dale Gauding, News Director, WTAR-Radio, Norfolk. Several other Virginia Journalists and broadcasters were available to discuss their respective fields throughout the convention.

Art Prillaman, president of the High Point College SCJ chapter, said his chapter will benefit from the convention. "It has help us to improve on our mass communication by seeing what others are doing across the country. The exposure of the national convention was beneficial to all delegates from HPC," said Prillaman.

The student body and faculty will be exposed to all aspects of effective and responsible mass communication tomorrow as the SCJ of High Point College will present the "Day of Celebration."

The annual event begins at 9 a.m. and will last until 4 p.m. A total of 125 high school students from 11 schools across North Carolina and Virginia will attend.

The focus of the day will be the competition between the various school newspaper and yearbooks. It will offer a great amount of information on all areas of communication. For the staff of a high school newspaper or yearbook, the festival will be a source of valuable comparative learning. The celebration stresses talking to others and seeing examples of their publications to help a student improve the quality of his or her work.

There will be seminars exclusively for H.P.C. students and faculty in Cooke Hall on broadcast and print journalism, layout, and design beginning at 1:00. The festival's motto encourages celebrating the power of the written word.

Cartoon characters to be displayed at HPC

If you're hunting for something unusual to do, it's open season on ducks, mice and wabbits -- wacky wabbits, like Bugs Bunny!

In fact, more than 250 unique and often humorous cel paintings of cartoon characters like Bugs Bunny are the subject of a special exhibit and sale.

High Point College will host this event Thurs.-Fri., March 31-April 1, 1983 from 10 a.m. until 7 p.m. in the Campus Center Lobby. The public is invited. This event will benefit the Student Union Board, the sponsor.

Animation cel paintings, called "cels," are the paintings actually filmed in making animated cartoons. Each character is painted by hand on a clear sheet of acetate, usually 11" x 14" or larger, then placed against a background painting and photographer, one frame at a time, to create the illusion of the cartoon characters in motion. Cels are the culmination of the artistic process -- the final image that is photographed by the camera. Today those cels are highly prized by collectors.

The current exhibit was authenticated by Gallery Lainzberg of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, an organization that specializes in original animation artwork. A representative of Gallery Lainzberg will be on hand to answer questions.

The Exhibit/Sale highlights the work of two superstars in the animation field: Chuck Jones and Friz Freleng. Both animators are veterans of the golden era of cartoons at Warner Brothers -- the 1940's. Both have contributed much to American popular culture. Freleng dreamt up Tweety and Sylvester and the irrepressible Yosemite Sam. Jones gave life to Wile E. Coyote, the Roadrunner and Pepe le Pew. Both artists helped to shape Bugs Bunny, Daffy Duck and many others. Now in their 70's, Freleng and Jones have contributed their considerable talents for over half a century. Both have received Academy Awards for their achievements as animators, but their original artwork has rarely been seen.

The Exhibit features signed and unsigned cel paintings by these two superb artists. Also featured is a collection of cels from some of Walt Disney's best-known animated films including "The Jungle Book," "Robin Hood," "Rescuers," and the very recent "The Fox and the Hound." A selection of vintage Disney animation drawings from the 1930's and 1940's, including a few choice drawings of Mickey Mouse, will also be available.

Original Disney artwork has been treasured by collectors ever since the late 1930's when San Francisco's Courvoisier Galleries first offered cels to the public.

In recent years, collectors' interest has broadened to include many other studios. According to Charles Solomon, writing in the L.A. Times (June 29, 1982), "Prices for material from other studios, especially Warner Brothers and the Fleishers, are also rising rapidly. However, it is still possible to obtain first-rate examples of animation art for less than $50.00 -- in some cases for less than $25.00."

The current Exhibit/Sale provides an exceptionally broad range of animation art. More than 25 different productions will be represented including cels from "The Secret of NIMH," "Gnomes," and "Tom and Jerry." Fleischer enthusiasts will be treated to meticulously hand-inked cels of Betty Boop, Krazy Kat and other popular 1930's stars. For the Fantasy buff, there is artwork from "Heavy Metal."

With the growing interest in original animation art, many people are investing in cels. According to Gallery Lainzberg Director, Edith Rudman, "People love the characters they select. Many people like the idea of owning their own fragment of American film history. And, of course, part of the attraction is the potential for appreciation. A signed Bugs Bunny we were offering at $65 four years ago now sells for $135 to $175."

In addition to the growing number of private collectors, institutions have accumulated impressive collections of animation art for public display and study. Substantial collections can be found at New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Museum of Modern Art. Special exhibits were recently held at the Library of Congress and at important museums such as New York's Whitney Museum of Art and the Montreal Museum of Art. In addition, many universities and colleges including Princeton, Vassar, Syracuse, Johns Hopkins, Rutgers and Oberlin have begun to build cel collections.

That wacky wabbit and his friends have come a long way!

A preview Talent dominates in "Godspell"

BY TERRI LIVINGSTON
Staff Writer

The 12 member cast of High Point College's production of "Godspell" is busy putting final touches on the show which will open this weekend.

The show displays much talent in the areas of singing, dancing, and acting. Each member of the cast adds his own talent which together creates a powerful production and much enjoyment for the audience.

The fast moving production and the energy of the cast keeps the attention of the audience. Each song is complimented by the professional choreography of Mallory Graham.

The cast is proud of the work they have done and are eager for the opening of the show. Phil Valente, who portrays Jesus, spreads His wisdom through stories and songs.

Paul Lundrigan, director of "Godspell", is also anticipating the opening. "The cast is having a good time which makes it possible for the audience to have a good time as well," Lundrigan said. The stage used for the production is surrounded by cloth panels to create the illusion of a circus tent; the actors being the circus performers, according to Lundrigan.

"Godspell" is thrilling for the audience. The talent may surprise you. Everyone is encouraged to see the show. A good time is guaranteed.

Production dates are Friday, Mar. 25, and Saturday, Mar. 26. The following weekend shows will be Thursday, Mar. 31, and Fri., April 1.

High Point ups record to 8-3

BY MARIO WATSON
Sports Writer

Usually a team feels more comfortable in familiar surroundings and it was evident in March as the High Point College baseball team increased its record to 8-3, only losing to N.C. State twice and falling to Western Carolina last week.

If the familiar surrounding of HPC is an asset to the team, Coach Jim Speight could be a very happy man during March.

Sunday afternoon the Panthers defeated Western Maryland 8-2 as they prepared to begin district action yesterday against Gardner-Webb at High Point. Sunday the Panthers will open conference action at home against crosstown rival Guilford.

The Panthers, picked to finished 2nd by the Carolina Conference coaches, have played well thus far. "I feel we have won all the games we should have won and some we shouldn't have won," said Coach Speight. "The weather has played a factor not only with us but other teams also."

Not only has the weather been a factor against HPC, but injuries are its biggest foe.

Panthers Mark Barnes, Steve Furman, Scott McPherson and Neal Wilbourne have all been plagued with early injuries.

"If we continue to keep our heads screwed on and get our injured back on the comeback trail, we'll do just fine," Speight said.

Coach Speight said the support of the fans is appreciated and hopes the support of the Panthers will continue.

Sass paces High Point College golf team

BY MARK PHELPS
Sports Editor

Three juniors head the High Point golf team as it enters the 1983 spring season that includes three tournaments, four matches, and the conference and district tournaments.

Third-year men Buddy Sass, Ted Barnhardt, and Jeff Zivic will make-up the top three positions on coach Woody Gibson's ninth Panther squad.

Sass, playing at the number one position, was named to the All-Conference team last year and coach Gibson feels he should be a mid-70's player this year.

Barnhardt will be playing at the number two position for the second year in a row and Coach Gibson revealed that in time, he can become an excellent performer.

Ted has a lot of talent and potential. If he can use this to its fullest, he can become a very good player."

Zivic, of Avon, Connecticut, will be at the third position. His play can be characterized as having been erratic over the past two years, but he should be able to settle down this year.

"Jeff hasn't reached his potential yet," Coach Gibson said. "He can be a fine player if he will take the game more seriously and work harder at it."

Freshman Matt Cohen, who was one of the top high school players in Maryland last year, will be at the fourth position. Cohen didn't play as well as expected during the fall matches but has shown improvement since and coach Gibson feels he has the potential to be a solid player.

Senior Todd Hilliard and sophomore Phillip Krimminger will play at the fifth and sixth positions respectively. Coach Gibson said that both have shown much improvement but need experience.

"Todd played baseball his previous three years and since switching to golf has worked hard to improve. Phil is a solid player who has also put in a lot of work. Both will get better as they gain experience through competition."

Freshmen Eddie Carpenter and sophomore Greg Shuskey, both newcomers to the team, will also contribute during the season. Carpenter underwent knee surgery during the winter and his play has been hindered somewhat.

The Panthers played an exhibition match with Wingate and UNC-Greensboro last week in preparation for the season. Sass had top honors as he shot an 82 while other High Point scores included; Barnhardt 86, Zivic 87, Kohn 83, Hilliard 86, and Krimminger 83.

The match was held at Oak Hollow Golf Course, High Point's home course, under high winds and cold temperatures. These conditions caused scores to be higher than normal.

Track team places second in quad meet

BY MARK PHELPS
Sports Editor

High Point College's track team finished second in a four-team meet at Campbell College on Tuesday, Mar. 16.

Campbell took first place with 112.5 points. The Panthers finished in the second spot with 56.5 points while Methodist and Elon landed the last two places with 10.5 and four points respectively.

Senior Ralph Barnes broke his own school record in the triple jump as he finished first with a leap of 47'10". Jack Songster gave High Point its only other first place in the high jump with a 6'4" jump.

The Panthers took eight second place finishes. These winners included Ian Lewis in the 400 meters, Kent Sides in the 100 and 200 meter runs, Hatt in the 5000 meter run, Jon Richardson in the javelin, Barnes in the long jump, and Phillip Dickerson in the pole vault. High Point also finished second in the mile relay.

One pleasant surprise for the Panthers was Tom Leech, who set a personal best and finished third in the javelin with a throw of 147'8.

Mens tennis defeats Wingate

The HPC mens tennis team split its two home matches over the weekend, bringing the Panthers' overall record to 3-4, 2-1 in conference play.

On Saturday, High Point took an 8-1 win over conference-rival Wingate. All six singles players took victories as Pekka Makela, playing at the number first position, led the way as he defeated Roy Miller 6-0, 6-3. Other Panther winners included Matt Lange over Mark Mitchell 6-3, 6-2, Sami Narhi over John Nance 6-2, 6-3, Griff Thompson over Kingsley Byerly 6-0, 6-1, Francisco Bloch over Jaun Baez 6-3, 6-1, and Roy Heilborn over Craig Culbreath 2-6, 6-0, 6-1.

In doubles, Lange and Narhi defeated Miller-Baez 6-4, 7-5, Makela-Thompson defeated Nance-John McDade 6-2, 6-2, while Heilborn-Kevin West fell victims to Mitchell-Culbreath 7-5, 3-6, 6-1, for Wingates lone win.

On Sunday, visiting Virginia Tech took a 9-0 win over the Panthers. Scoring singles victories for Tech were Jon Romthorn over Makela 6-0, 2-6, 7-5, Mark Stephens over Lange 6-0, 6-3, Kimbo Clark over Narhi 6-3, 6-2, Jerry Derenfield over Thompson 6-4, 6-0, Scott Sherman over West 6-0, 6-0, and David Wolfe over Heilbron 6-2, 6-2.

Doubles winners were Alan Cannady-Sherman over Narhi-Lange 6-4, 7-5, Romthorn-Clark over Makela-Thompson 6-0, 6-2, and Wolfe-Derenfield over West-Heilbron 6-0, 6-1.

Lady netters 7-2

The Lady Panther tennis team took victories in all three of their matches over the past week. The wins improved their record to 7-2.

On Mar. 16, High Point won all nine matches to defeat Elon in a Carolinas conference match. Singles winners were Ana Maria Medina, Anneli Kiviniemi, Lynn Sharkey, Helen O'Brien, Teresa Sweatman, and Dori Johnson.

Doubles winners were Medina-Theresa Regnante, Kiviniemi-O'Brien, and Sharkey-Sweatman.

On Mar. 19, the Lady Panthers defeated Mars Hill. Cory Johnson gave Mars Hill its only win as she defeated Helen O'Brien in the number four singles 6-4, 6-7, 6-1.

On Mar. 20, High Point took 7-2 win over visiting Trenton State. Singles winners for the Panthers included Medina, Kiviniemi, Sharkey, and Johnson.

High Point won all three doubles matches as Medina-Regnante, Kiviniemi-O'Brien, and Sharkey-Sweatman took victories.

ANDA STRAUSS IS MAKING AVIATION HISTORY IN THE ARMY.

"I'll be seeing Germany a way no tourist can. From the cockpit of an Army Chinook helicopter.

"I'm being assigned to a Chinook helicopter unit in Germany as a test pilot and maintenance officer, and I'm proud that I'll be the first woman to have that assignment over there. It's a real thrill for me.

"So was learning how to fly a helicopter. It takes a lot more skill than an airplane. If you think college is demanding, flight school is even tougher. It's not only academically demanding, it's really mentally demanding as well as physically.

"In Germany, I'll have a chance to use some of the leadership and management techniques I learned in ROTC. It's going to be a real challenge having command responsibilities.

2nd Lt. Anda Strauss was a political sciencemajor at Wake Forest and a member of Army ROTC.

"I'm also excited about living in Germany. I'm looking forward to travelling and doing some skiing. And I really want to learn the language and get to know the people.

"I got into ROTC really just to see what it was all about. For me, it all couldn't have worked out better."

Army ROTC got Anda Strauss off to a good start. Maybe it can do the same for you. To find out, stop by your Army ROTC office on campus. While you're there, ask about our scholarships and $1,000 a year spending money you can earn in your last two years.

And begin your future as an officer.

ARMY ROTC. BE ALL YOU CAN BE.

Language students serve as teachers

BY LEWIS WHELESS
Associate Editor

In the High Point College Foreign Language Department, students are not always just students -- sometimes they are teachers, too.

The Language Department has a two-year-old program in which students who excel in language have the opportunity to teach supplementary language courses.

The courses -- French 81, Spanish 81 and German 81 -- are one-hour credit/no credit classes taken by students on a volunteer basis. Kelley Ahl, Crystal Hedgecock and Anne Jarrett teach the French courses, Pat Connelly; Carmen Cottle and Camille Davis teach Spanish; and Suzanne Zuroff instructs the German class.

Dr. Carole Head, Chairperson of the Foreign Language Department, said the student instructors actually have the roles of "animators," rather than traditional-type teachers. They do not administer tests, but they do give some assignments.

Students who have excelled in language study are chosen to participate in the teaching program. "We try to pick someone who doesn't mind...giving a lot. They (the animators) have to be comfortable with students and out-going," Head said.

"The goal of the courses is maximum communication among students with no great emphasis on grammar. It is gratifying to see the kids communicate. Through peer teaching, students get encouragement from a model and they do not feel they are being judged -- the student teachers are motivators," Dr. Head commented.

Dr. Barbara Long, an HPC foreign language professor, said, "Activities in the classes are tailored toward things in regular classes, and the (81) courses give students added practice. We gave 13 A's after spring break."

The courses consist of several activities each class period. No activity lasts over 10-15 minutes, which adds variety to the instruction. Dr. Head said the animators' job is to get the activities going.

"a little nervous at first" about teaching her peers, but her students became very receptive to her teaching. "I like this age group because the students are volunteering to take the course -- they start with a good attitude because it (the course) is not a requirement. I think it's a great program and I want to see it continue," said Ms. Ahl. Sociology is Ms. Ahl's major, and French is her minor, but she says that teaching French is a "definite possibility" for her career.

Dr. Head said the teaching program is good for the instructor's record if he or she plans to pursue teaching as a profession.

Anne Jarrett, an International Business major and a French 81 teacher, said she enjoys her job because "it helps (her) relate to the students," and it helps her in the language. Ms. Jarrett has had the opportunity to experience the program from both teacher and student viewpoints because she is taking the German 81

Writers' Club announces 'Worst Poem' contest winners

BY KIM HIGGINS
Special to the HI-PO

The Writers' Club would like to congratulate the winner of the Worst Poem Contest, Scott Morgan, for his poem "Fleas". The first place award was $10.00.

Honorable mentions go to Karen Bishoff for "Little Miss Moppett" and Alice Browne for "Mr. Fish's Wish." Honorable mentions received $1.00 each. The poems are printed below for anyone wondering what a really bad poem is like.

Our next contest will be: Funny poems using the vocabulary from your major. Every major has strange terms like "floppy disc" or "corporeal". Next time you crack the book jot down a few words and then just create! The poems can be in any form. Send them to the Writers' Club, box 3008, by April 15. The prizes are $10 for first prize, $3 for second, and 2 for third.

Correction

In a story entitled "Who's inside the Purple Panther" in last week's issue, the funding source for the costume was erroneously reported. The sophomore class donated $100, the SGA gave $300 and the cheerleaders donated $200.

The HI-PO regrets the error.

It's that time again! What time? Time for SGA elections! WHOOPPEE! Right? Well, it should be an exciting time, but all too often, SGA elected officers are easy shoe-ins for anyone lucky enough to have friends that vote.

The trend for the past two years has been minimum participation at elections and then maximum complaining for the following school year. Complaining isn't the problem. Complaints about SGA procedures should be expressed when dissatisfaction occurs. And believe or not, apathy isn't what I'm getting around to either.

The problem may very well be apathy-related, but isn't everything? Apathy is like cancer -- Everything one does leads to cancer, just like everything one doesn't do leads to apathy. But I said I wouldn't discuss apathy, so I will not anymore.

The minimum voting participation at HPC, and also in the United States, is caused by people not realizing what they have. Voting is a freedom, and therefore taken for granted because we have never done without it. But just let the administration ban student elections and one can imagine the rioting, complaining and upset of the students. At least I hope that kind of action would take place. The same is true of our country also. The American people boast of a democracy, but each election shows fewer voters and decreasing interest in the event.

There have been numerous television interviews with people on election day, asking the people if they were going to vote, and if not, why they were not. The excuses are many: not enough time, my vote isn't important, never registered, et. As one can see -- all are valid excuses.

A person would find the time to be seen publicly noticed, and that is what voting is -- a citizen giving his opinion to the rest of the country. "My vote isn't important" the poorest excuse yet. Thank goodness everyone doesn't think like that. If they did, there wouldn't be any voters. Not taking the time to register isn't the best excuse in the world either. A person will stand in line for hours to get tickets for a concert or show, and those cost money. Registering to vote is absolutely free, and I can't remember a long line outside the Registrar's office for people to register.

People will still give excuses though when they have to drive a little out of their way to vote. That is why no excuses are accepted at High Point College's elections. The student doesn't have to drive anywhere. He or she just needs to mosey down the stairs to the cafeteria (on the way to lunch or dinner is a good time) and vote. In fact, elections are going on right now. Now's your chance.

Tennessee lives on

Dear Editor:

I dreamed I saw Tennessee Williams walking the ridges of east Tennessee, human dirt sparkling like true love in his wrinkles. Tennessee Williams said some dreams to the folks in my hometown. He looked over them, saw them up high so close to earth where they couldn't see themselves. They looked down, couldn't see him at all on that ancient stage, the mountaintop. Summit! Summits have given us some things we can live by, not rules, but dreams, a tongue, words formed by flesh and saliva, a way of saying and praying, the drama of the struggle up, Tennessee Williams. In Streetcar, Blanche says, "Daylight never exposed so total a ruin." That ruin is not the dead Tennessee, but the living Tennessee.

Goodbye Sherm, hello pizza man

BY DR. JOHN MOEHLMANN

Special to the HI-PO

Roll call. 7:02 a.m. Item 11.

Sherman Potter and his troops having come home from Korea, what's left of network television for me is Frank and Joyce, Belker, Howard, Bobby Hill, Phil, Faye, and the rest of an odd-ball assortment of characters all urging night to fall gently while minds, bodies, and spirits are still intact. It's not unlike M*A*S*H in that respect, and I look forward to Thursday night at ten like a kid looking for weekly birthday parties.

Yet I won't soon forget nine o'clock Monday nights, the home of M*A*S*H, the tent-city of the sacred and profane. What high comedy! What characters! Henry Blake and his fishing hat; Frank and Hotlips; Radar and his teddy bear; Klinger and his dresses; Father Mulcahy and his forbearance; Charles and his Boston ostentation; and that trio of tricksters: Hawkeye, Trapper John, an B.J. Who's missing, here among others, is ole Sherm Potter. I really liked him. Don't get me wrong. I liked them all; heck, I loved them all -- even the ingratiating CIA incompetent, and Sydney, the Jewish psychiatrist. I loved Sydney. And I loved Sherm, too. He didn't get much press because of the others' madcap flash and glamour. But there was about him a crusty dignity and a seasoned self-confidence that I liked. More than this though was his administrative panache. Administration? At the 4077th? That circus of malcontents and anti-heros?

Colonel Potter was a career soldier, a veteran of two world wars. Unlike Henry Blake who seemed to have bumped into the birds on his collar while playing golf with some general, Potter seemed to have earned his. Maybe he had gone by the book early on. But at the 4077th going by the book and saving lives -- and often psyches -- was like harnessing to a surrey a coal black stallion and a brown appaloose mare in heat: it was neither practical, manageable, nor aesthetically pleasing.

How then did he manage? I doubt this surgeon on horseback knew the Latin etymology of administrator, which is "to be an aid to," or "to serve": yet I sense he was this kind of noble servant, a servant, mind you, not of birds and stars on other collars, but rather a servant of his mission and of his troops. He succeeded not because of a grand scheme, but rather because he was inherently aware of who he was. Bruno Bettelheim says that to know oneself "implies an obligation to change oneself." An obligation. I like that. If anyone knew himself, it was ole Sherm Potter, Army regulations notwithstanding.

What was Potter's self? He was proud without arrogance. Oh, occasionally, he pulled rank, but ultimately it was to restore human dignity or to save a life. Unlike Frank Burns or Margaret, Potter never demanded unwarranted allegiance either to his rank or to his medical experience. He left narcissism to the others.

He was, moreover, comfortably conscious of his limitations as a surgeon. He was good, mind you, but never as good as Hawkeye, Charles, or B.J., all eminently more talented than he. His outstanding characteristic in this regard was that instead of feeling threatened or inferior, he recognized and respected not only their skill and dedication, but also their unique gifts.

All he had to do -- and I say all with some trepidation -- was to harness their ideas and energies and talents while giving them their heads only slightly reined. All he did then was to be himself. Even constant insubordination -- according to the book or his own vanity -- was insufficient cause to jeopardize the efficient saving of lives and restoring of spirits.

If he got angry occasionally, it was to further, not his role as colonel but, the cause of patching the wounded. He made up without grudges, for he recognized not only that his hot-shot band of surgeons was genuinely the best in its profession, but also that each member was a genuinely humane person who needed his self-styled individuality in order to produce under the worst of conditions. To hell with Army regulations and false propriety. The job was getting done.

Potter seemed to know that to lose responsibility was to lose authority. The question was decided to what or to whom he owed responsibility. Not difficult really. He earned authority by being responsible: by recognition, acceptance, respect, and clever guidance -- of himself (first of all), of his mission, and of his troops, though I hesitate to order them this way. They worked in concert, intuitively.

He may have been gruff, sentimental, boringly aphoristic, quasi-establishment; but, above all, he was smart that old soldier. Who didn't love old Sherm?

What's left for me now is Frank Furillo, who on Hill Street manges a precinct of crazies both in and out of uniform. The opening shot of helicopters flying in the wounded to Potter's hospital is a memory replaced now by Phil's avuncular, "Hey, HEY, HEY...let's be careful out there," an utterance of compassion as much as it is a statement of warning. You see, he and Frank care about their people. I like Phil and Frank. In fact, I love them. They...but maybe I'll leave that to another night.

HPC TV begins spring operations

HPC Community TV began its spring, 1983, programming schedule on Tuesday, March 22, at 4 p.m. over Cablevision Channel 19, the public access channel. Six one-hour programs will be aired each week - on Tuesday and Thursday, 4-5 p.m., and on Wednesday, 7-8 p.m. Each first half hour features edited songs from the fall production of "Grease" by the High Point Community Theatre.

The remaining half hour of each program features reports and interviews from media communications courses. On March 22, 23, 24, 29, 30, 31, reports from the fall class of English 140, Introduction to Mass Media, will be aired. The selected reports are presented by Mary Gagner, Bob Rossi, Lisa Davido, and Brent Holshauser.

Past programming has included six half-hour programs on the station and the unique programs of the College (spring, 1982) and twelve half hour programs for Religion 83, Christian Denominations, taught by Dr. Earl Crow (fall, 1982).

Five national and state organizations have responded to requests for prerecorded programming, particularly the Social Security office and the national Epilepsy Foundation. These programs can be aired later with brief introductions by appropriate College faculty. Students in English 354, Broadcast Production, taped the dress rehearsal of the College production of "Godspell" on Wednesday, March 23. Selected songs will be edited into a half hour program for possible airing fall, 1983.

When no programs are being aired, public service announcements are programmed on the screen by the character generator at intervals of 20 seconds for each announcement.

The following guidelines apply to programs aired over Channel 19. All material must 1. be consistent with the goals and objectives of the College, the Society for Collegiate Journalists, the FCC, and the American TV and Communications Corporation; 2. not duplicate commercial programming on any of the Triad television stations (channels 2, 8, 12, 45, 48); 3. give credit to any community organization or business participating in programming; 4. be informative and educational - an extension of any public service programming of commercial stations; 5. offer opportunity for airing of public service announcements by community organizations; 6. be applicable to the communities of High Point-Jamestown.

Present equipment and assistance have been provided by donations and grants from Mobil Oil, the HPC Rawley Fund, WGHP-TV of High Point, American TV and Communications Corporation, Cablevision of High Point-Jamestown, Channel 2, WFMY of Greensboro, and WXII-TV 12 in Winston-Salem.

In addition to being a community service medium, HPC Community TV also trains students in filming, writing, producing, and directing short programs before they enter their SCIP Internship. Auxiliary learning experiences include photography, phototypesetting, and ad layout since the station must advertise its programming in written form before programming begins. WFMY-TV in Greensboro recently donated a stat machine which will allow enlargement and reduction of any ad design. The TV station also serves as a small classroom for media communications courses and for foreign language courses in the CAEP Program for airing of lessons on video tape.

HPC Community TV will also air any public service announcements by the College. Any announcement must be received two weeks before date of the event. A maximum of 8 lines and 32 spaces per line is allowed. Mail typed announcements to HPC Community TV, Box 3111, Campus Mail. Only announcements concerning the community or to which the public is invited can be aired.

GLENN GROSECLOSE sets up the camera for an interview on the set of HPC Community TV.

GIL EAGLES will appear live in the auditorium Apr. 10 at 8 p.m. The Gil Eagles Show presents demonstrations of E.S.P. and Hypnosis to the audience. Eagles has already appeared on more than 600 college and university campuses throughout the U.S. and Canada.

course and teaching the French 81 course.

Brian Grieves, a German 81 student, said, "I like being taught by my peers. We play games in German, (such as 'password'). The course involves a lot of student participation."

Marisa Firpi is a senior enrolled in the German 81 course. "The class is facilitating my ability to express myself clearly and creatively in the German language, not just in using basic expressions, but by manipulating new vocabulary in order to use the language in a new, refreshing way," she commented.

Ms. Firpi said that having a peer teacher helps her to "relate without feeling judged or heavily pressured." She also said the course makes her feel confident in her ability to progress in the language.

The student animators are paid for their instruction through the Foreign Language Department hour's preparation time and budget. They are paid for an hour in class per week, an four-to-five hours for attending a workshop.

1983 SGA Elec

Two veterans vie for SGA presidency

Tom Leech

I am Tom Leech and I am running for the office of SGA president. I am a pre-law major for Gaithersburg, Md.

I have served as freshman, sophomore and junior class vice-president. Currently, I am the speaker of the student government legislature. The office of president requires someone who is willing to work for the students. This past year, the SGA has failed to meet this need. As speaker of the legislature, I have seen too much apathy, most of it due to lack of initiative. The SGA president must provide initiative, and if elected, this is exactly what I plan to do.

I am running for office because I think it's time for a change; the students' voice must be respected not as a complaint, but a desire for change.

TOM LEECH

My name is Mark Mashburn and I am running for re-election in the office of SGA president. I am a religion major from Tobaccoville, N.C.

I am running for re-election for the office of president of SGA because I feel that after a year of "learning the ropes" and establishing good working relationships with the Board of Trustees, the administration, the faculty and most importantly, the students, that I can be effective as president of SGA.

I have attended a conference on university gover-ment which has given me a lot of ideas for implementation which need to begin in the Fall. Along with the Student Life Committee, I have attempted to change the alcohol policy and this goal is very near. I might add that it was my primary objective when I assumed office last spring.

I have given SGA a new direction which will make SGA more than a giver of money which has been its mission in the past. Motivation is the key and the momentum is gaining. We've got a good thing going! Why change now!

MARK MASHBURN

Two vie for senior class president

JUDY JONES

My name is Judy Jones and I am running for the office of SGA vice-president. I am a communications and Spanish major from Boone, N.C.

I am running for SGA vice-president because I would like to work with Orientation and the plans for Homecoming. I want to be active in SGA, and my experience as sophomore class vice-president should be helpful.

Denise Watts

DENISE WATTS

I am Denise Watts, a biology/Spanish major from Kernersville, N.C. I am running for the office of senior class president.

Within my past three years at High Point, I have been extensively involved in the intricate workings of the College. The leadership and experience which I have gained through my various offices in campus organizations is essential for the job of senior class president. I have gained communication skills through my terms as Editor of the ZENITH and co-chairman of Entertainment and Hospitality of the Presidential Scholars. My organizational abilities have grown while serving as vice-president of Alpha Delta Theta and Coffeehouse chairman of Student Union. As sophomore judiciary, I enhanced my aptitude to reason. Active representation in the Retention, the Recruitment and the President's Advisory Committees have each increased my campus awareness. Presently, I am serving as vice-president of the SGA. I planned, organized and conducted both Freshman Orientation and Homecoming. My realms of leadership have led me to deal with students, staff, faculty and administrators. Thus, for all these various reasons, I know that I can efficiently, effectively and successfully handle the office of senior class president.

Juniors, this office entails Senior Class Banquet, Baccalaureate, Graduation, reunions and continued work as a class sponsor once an Alumnus. To ensure the success of your senior year and subsequent years as an Alumnus, WRITE-IN Denise Watts for senior class president.

Miriam O'Malley

I am Miriam O'Malley and I am running for the office of senior class president. I am a sociology major from Nutley, N.J.

Serving in the SGA for the past year has opened my eyes to the situations of the school and its policies. I realize that what this school needs is a sense of unity. I feel that the school must have participations in activities, such as graduation, dances and fund raisers.

If I get elected, I will attempt to make the senior class a more unified group of people; working together for the good of the school.

Each year when a class graduated, there really is not a sense of lost. People wonder what that class did to better themselves and the school, and the answer often is "They did nothing." I feel that this can be different and the senior class of 1984 can be a great asset to the school and leave the undergraduates something to remember.

Talley unopposed for SGA secretary

I am Renae Talley, a secondary education major from Woodleaf, N.C. I am running for the office of SGA secretary.

I am running for SGA secretary because I am interested in the processes of the College. This year I was legislator for the sophomore class. I would like to continue being involved with SGA, and in the position of secretary would give me this chance.

Metivier vies for jr. class president

I am Denise Metivier and I am running for junior class president. I am a sociology major from High Point, N.C.

I have represented the class of '85 as president for the past two years and hope to have the honor of representing my fellow classmates as their president, once again.

As president, in the past two years, the class aided in the purchase of the Purple Panther mascot, set up a fund for new equipment for the foreign language department and had a very successful night at Cheers. If elected, I will continue to encourage other class officers to do more as an organization and not to let the year fly by without an accomplishment.

Dennis for top jr. class position

I am Robert E. Dennis, Jr. and I am running for the office of junior class president. I am a business administration major from Greensboro, N.C.

Running for class office is a new experience to me. However, roles concerning abilities needed to run a class office are assets I have been acquainted with, and have displayed in my previous years of schooling. I strongly feel I can display the vital talents necessary to conduct and operate a class office. The most prestigious example exemplifying these leadership traits was an award I received my senior year in high school. The name of the award was WHO'S WHO OF GREENSBORO, GUILFORD COUNTY SECONDARY SCHOOLS. The award was based on numerous things such as academic and athletic excellence and extracurricular involvement. In concluding, I'd like to say I would, and will, if elected, do my best and give forth all possible time and effort in making the junior class of 1983-84 the best High Point College has ever known.

ROBERT DENNIS

Three candidates run for office of senior class legislator

Sharon Sweeney

My name is Sharon Sweeney, a political science and history major from Great Falls, VA. I am running for the office of senior class legislator.

My freshman year, I was a member of Student Union. My sophomore year I held the office of sophomore class president. As a member of SGA, I was elected to chair the Food Service Committee. I very much enjoyed participating in SGA and Student Union.

It is my belief that to have a strong and unified student body, you need to have a strong SGA filled with people interested in the school and the student body. I am very interested in High Point College and would like to have a chance to actively support her student body.

SHARON SWEENEY

Pat Connelly

My name is Pat Connelly, a communications major from Fairfax, VA. I am running for the office of senior class legislator.

Having been a member of SGA for the past two years,

I believe my experience will allow me to represent the senior class in a positive way. (The first year that I was a member of SGA, I was the representative for WWIH and the second year I was a junior class legislator) I would like to assume a more active role in SGA, especially in the areas which need the most improvement (Food services or campus awareness). In the past I have been noted for taking on responsibility and sticking with it. If elected, the seniors can be assured that I will work as hard as I can for the class of '84 and HPC.

WENDI HORA

Wendi Hora

My name is Wendi Hora, a intermediate education major from Hendersonville, NC. I am running for senior class legislator.

My freshman year I was a legislator, sophomore year I was the Student Union representative to the legislature and this year I have been the secretary of SGA. I have been to nearly every meeting of the Legislature since my freshman year so I know what's going on. Last fall, I attended the Student Leadership conference in St. Louis with Mark Mashburn. I believe this was a valuable experience which I hope to continue sharing in SGA.

John Brown for Sr. V-P

My name is John Brown and I am running for the office of senior class vice-president.

In my three years at HPC, I have been very involved with my fraternity, Lambda Chi Alpha. In my senior year I would also like to be involved in the college in general, namely SGA. This is the reason I am running for senior class vice-president. I feel that my experience in my fraternity will help me help the senior class as well as the College. I have held offices as student advisory correspondent, publication chairman, acting treasurer and president of the fraternity. I will do my best to improve the college and myself if I am elected.

SHANNON MOORE

Moore vies for jr. class legislator

My name is Shannon Moore, and I am a Communications major from Newtown, Connecticut. I am running for the office of junior class legislator.

I would like to be an active part of the student government here at HPC. In high school I was a class officer and a chairperson of several committees.

Although I am unfamiliar with the student government here, I am interested. I think I have many good ideas and would like to share them.

See Elections p. 8

BILL FRAMPTON

Frampton unopposed in Jr. V-P race

My name is Bill Frampton and I am running for the office of junior class vice-president. I am a religion/Christian Education major from Wilmington, De.

Although not presently a voting member of SGA, I attended all of the meetings this year. I voted at all of them, except one, in the capacity of alternate. SGA can, and should, be a vital part of the college community. I feel however, that its power as a motivating force on this campus has been very limited.

As junior class vice-president, I intend to work with the president in any capacity needed.

Medina leads lady netters

BY MARK PHELPS

Sports Editor

The High Point College womens tennis team ran its record to 8-3 overall, 5-0 in conference play, as it won two of its three matches the past week.

Ana Medina, playing at the Panther's top position, won all three of her matches and gave High Point its only victory in a 7-1 loss to Presbyterian on Tuesday, Mar. 22.

Medina defeated Kelly Shackelford 7-5, 7-6, for the lone win. The final tie-breaker was 7-5.

On Friday, the Lady Panthers breezed past East Carolina in an 8-1 victory. High Point's singles winners included Medina, Anneli Kiviniemi, Helen O'Brien, Teresa Sweatman, and Dori Johnson. Teresa Regnante subbed at the number three position for Lynn Sharkey, who was out with an ankle injury.

Doubles winners were Medina-Regnante, Kiviniemi-O'Brien, and Sweatman-Johnson.

match Monday. Singles winners were Medina, Kiviniemi, Sharkey, O'Brien, Sweatman, and Johnson.

In doubles, Medina-Regnante, Kiviniemi-O'Brien, and Sweatman-Johnson were again victorious. All nine Panther wins were taken in only two sets.

High Point is preparing take on conference-rival Guilford on Friday. The Quakers won the NAIA national championship two years ago and finished second in it last year. They are undefeated in conference play this season.

RECENT SPRING RALLY marked the beginning of spring for HPC students.

High Point track team finishes second in G-W Invitational

BY MARK PHELPS

Sports Editor

The High Point College track team finished second in the Gardner-Wedd Invitational on Saturday, Mar. 26.

The Panthers tallied 144 points, trailing only Francis Marion, which took first with 183 points. Finishing a close third with 139 points was Presbyterian College, followed by UNC-Charlotte, four points, Lenoir-Rhyne, three points, while Johnson C. Smith participated but did not score.

Leading all High Point individual scorers was Kent Sides, who took blue ribbons in the 100 and 220 meter runs. He finished with times of 9.96 and 22.81.

Other Panthers taking firsts were Ralph Barnes with a 43'5" effort in the triple jump; Jon Richardson with a 177'2" throw in the javelin; Phil Dickerson, with a 11'9" leap in the pole vault; and Jack Songster, with a 6' leap in the high jump. The High Point 440 relay team also added a first place.

At the Duke Devilrium on Wednesday, Mar. 23, Songster led the Panthers as he took first in the high jump with a 6'6" effort. He also placed third in the triple jump with a 43'1" leap.

Barnes finished just ahead of Songster in the triple jump with a 45' effort. Richardson's 170' javelin throw landed him a third while Sides added a second in the 100 meters in 11.0 seconds. No team scores were kept.

Not a lost art...

Intramural bowling coming to an end

BY MICHAEL PISANO

Sports Writer

The intramural bowling season will come to an end this week with either the Lambda Chi "A" team or the Chain Gang emerging as champions:

In the semi-finals last week, the Lambda Chi's defeated the Theta Chi "A" team (who finished fourth), and the third place Delta Sigma Phi "A" team.

The finals between the Chain Gang and the Lambda Chi's will take place later this week at High Point Lanes.

The intramural softball league includes nine teams fighting for diamond supremacy.

Leading the league so far are the Chain Gang 3-0, and the Brew Crew 3-1. Team

"X", Lambda Chi "A", and Pika "A" teams have 1-1 records. The Delta Sig "B" and "A" are 1-2 and 0-1. The Pika "B" team and the Theta Chi's are 0-1 and 0-2.

Zuroff vies for jr. class legislator

My name is Suzanne Zuroff and I am running for junior class legislature. I am from Fayetteville, N.C. and I am majoring in international business.

I have been one of my class legislatures since my freshman year. I am familiar with how the student government works and enjoy being a part of the organization. I was very active in my high school student council and held a few offices and chairmanships. I have ideas that I want to be heard and the only way is to be a member of the S.G.A.

Three run unopposed for sophomore offices

Peggy Draper

My name is Peggy Draper and I am running for the office of sophomore class president. I am a communications major from Milford, De.

I have served as freshman class vice-president at HPC. In high school I was president of the Student Council and vice-president of the junior class.

Tammy Riggs

My name is Tammy Riggs and I am running for the office of sophomore class vice-president. I am from

TAMMY RIGGS

Statesville, N.C. and I am majoring in business administration.

I was legislator for the freshman class on S.G.A. I feel that we need an interested S.G.A. - people who really care and want to work for the school. I am concerned about the problems at HPC and want to help change things.

Mary Van Horn

My name is Mary Van Horn and I am running for the office of sophomore class legislator. I am from Luther-ville, Md.

I have been the secretary of my sorority pledge class and the secretary of two clubs in high school. I would like to be sophomore class legislator, because I feel the need to be involved with activities on campus.

Terrorists bombard HPC and demolish library construction

BY SENSATIONAL
-SEEKING LEW

Staff Bum

Terrorists driving bulldozers and armed with wrecking balls, sledge hammers and axes bombarded the High Point College campus early today and destroyed the construction of the new library.

The terrorists, calling themselves the National Bulldozers Association, tore through a construction fence and immediately began demolishing the structure, which was more than 75 percent complete.

Residents in Women's dorm (a building located next to the construction site) said they were awakened at 6 a.m. by voices screaming "Death to higher education -- ignorance is bliss!"

Ayre Head, a Women's resident, said, "I had just dozed off after a night out at Cheers, and jumped out of bed when I heard a bunch of thunderous motors outside the window. Naturally, I thought the construction crews were getting an early start, but I never dreamed in a million years that it was the demolition crews that were getting the early start."

Women's resident advisor Sheeza Boss reportedly called the High Point Police Department, but police arrived too late to thwart the terrorist's destruction.

Police Captain Furmen Ruff said officers arrested three men and an elderly woman in connection with the incident soon after the officers arrived on the scene. The three suspects are identified as Ignoe Rance, 27, U. Sless, 19, Dee Stroy, 35, and Dinah Myte, 97. All the suspects live in Mayberry, RFD.

The National Bulldozer Association is a group that reportedly wants to wipe out higher education in the United States. The groups motto stresses that "ignorance is bliss, stupidity is divinity."

High Point College President, Dr. Charlie Lucky, labeled the destruction as an "abomination to education. As for the library, we can rebuild it, we can make it better -- bigger, stronger, more scholarly than ever before. We will call it the $6 million library," said Lucky.

The Library Building Committee plans to raise the funds necessary to rebuild the unbuilt library. HPC Bored member Fuller Mony said the library committee will initiate the fund-raising project by holding a car

Lucky said, "As long as the terrorists remain behind bars our college community will be safe. But if anyone hears even the faintest rumbling of bulldozers in the distance, he or she should call me immediately at 885-RUIN. Tha-tha-tha that's all, folks."

Two bars to open on campus

BY KARLA "SCOOP"
GREEN

Wasted Editor

The students in favor of alcohol on campus will be excited to hear this piece of late breaking news... a bar on campus is opening tonight! The Empty Space Theatre will tonight reopen as the Empty Space Lounge.

To raise money for future operation, admission will be charged in the form of membership at $2.00 per person. Students must show their student ID cards at the door. The opening is sponsored by the SGA.

This however, is the experimental project of the SGA under the supervision of the recently appointed Faculty Advisory Committee on Alcohol (FACA). In a private meeting with SGA officers earlier this week, the project was temporarily approved pending student and administration reaction.

The comments of the SGA President was, "If students really care about the success of the drinking on campus ruling, then they must abide by the rulings of the college." The Board felt that this project may bring about "better safety precautions" in the face of the recent publicity of drinking and driving laws in North Carolina.

So everyone come out tonight and support the SGA. Non-alcoholic beverages will be served as well. Tonight should prove to be a good night to open such a bar... being April Fools Day and all! Happy Fools Day.

Following weeks of controversy, President Charles Lucht announced today that a bar for all students will open in the former Faculty Dining room.

The bar, which SGA voted to name the "Wasting Space," will feature a 3 p.m. to 7 p.m. daily Attitude Adjustment Hour, followed by a 7 p.m. to midnight study break. The study break will feature 2 for 1 drinks.

President Lucht expressed relief that the much-discussed alcohol policy was finally resolved.

He said he hoped that the "Wasting Space" will benefit both students and faculty.

Special hours for faculty admission are 12 p.m. to 1 p.m.

One faculty member said he was "delighted the College opened up an area for true enlightenment."

The students at the College have planned the grand opening for the "Wasting Space" tonight at 6 p.m. For one night only, all students and faculty will be admitted into the bar together to celebrate a truly momentous occasion.

Football program returns to HPC in '85

BY BEAU THOMAS

Special to the HI-PO

The High Point College Board of Trustees and Athletic Department met Monday afternoon in a grueling, five hour session behind closed doors. The result set the pace for some of the most surprising news in the college's illustrious history.

In the fall of 1985 football will return to the sports program at High Point College. This comes after a twenty five year absence of the fall classic on the High Point gridiron.

The return of football is believed to be a catalyst in boosting the enrollment, which has declined drastically in recent years, and most importantly, to give High Point College a firm leg to stand on as far as athletic reputation is concerned.

Opening day will not be until August 28, 1985. This will provide ample time for the erection of the $1.76 million dollar Pantherdome, which will be completed in the early spring of 1985.

The dome will display a two million dollar video screen scoreboard, astro-turf playing surface, and accommodations for fifty thousand fans. The Pantherdome will not only be used for athletic events. The dome will be acoustically perfect for concerts and theatre productions. This is a big plus for High Point, which previously had sub-par facilities for major entertainment events. In the past the college lost many reputable accounts due to the poor accommodations for concerts and ridiculously stringent rules on obtaining the gymnasium for anything other than basketball.

A partial list of coaches was announced at the press conference and included: Mike Pittman, former fullback at Bowling Green University who set many NCAA rushing records in the early seventies, will step down from his Director of Student Life post to become head coach of the Fighting Panthers. "It is a great honor for me to receive this position," said Pittman, who was signed only a one year contract. Sources indicate that Pittman will resign from the team after only a year so that he can pursue his lifetime desire. "With one full year at High Point behind me, that should give me the experience I need to fulfill my lifetime dream of coaching a professional football team whose name doesn't end with the letter 's'. I've already been offered a job from the Chicago Blitz of the U.S.F.I. and boy am I, excited."

Pittman then tried on the official jersey of the soon-to-be Panthers, raised his right fist into the air and said, "Look out George Allen and go team." Reporters then looked at each other in confusion, wondering exactly what he meant by that last statement.

Ivy league wide receiver James Stitt was named the offensive coordinator. Stitt is most remembered for catching twenty-two passes in one game in 1968 as Boston University defeated Finster College, 107-6. The position of offensive co-ordinator is most appropriate for Stitt, whose offensive and abusive tongue garnered him the nickname "Trashmouth" in the 1969 playoffs at Purdue.

The Reverend Vance "Mad Dog" Davis, who was an All-American tackle at Yale in the late sixties, was named defensive coordinator. Davis was offered one of the most lucrative contracts by the Green Bay Packers in 1970 but elected to enter the ministry because of the guilt suffered when he single handedly was responsible for the deaths of six NCAA quarterbacks (including his own) during the latter part of the 1969 series. Hence the name "Mad Dog."

The remaining coaches include James "Fourth down and short yardage" Elson, Faiz R. Faizi, Jumpin' John Ward, Frank Whatley, and former High Point College football coach Dr. Louis B. Pope.

When Coach Pittman was questioned about the caliber of his new coaching he responded by raising his right fist in the air and saying, "Look out George Allen and go team."

The students and faculty at HPC are ecstatic since hearing the news of its newest sports team. Elaborate parties and ticker tape parades set the scene on Main Street late Tuesday afternoon as hordes of fans gathered to greet their newest team and coaches. However it was just coaches who rode down Lexington Avenue on the Tom's Brass Rail float since the team is non-existent as of yet. This was evident by all of the empty floats.

The community was also very happy upon hearing the news. One parade-goer who we'll call Hank stated, "It's good for the college and it's good for the students' morale. I mean what's a college without booze or football?"

Last Class Bash

The Rolling Stones, others to play at HPC

BY FUNNY FARMER

Staff Comedian

Student Union President Mike Louia today announced the Last Class Bash itinerary.

Because of a limitless budget provided by SGA, Louia said "For once we can really have what we want!"

The Last Class Bash will take place in Central Park in New York City and Louia said HPC has chartered five Piedmont 747 jets to fly all interested students and their guests there.

Once in Central Park, five bands will entertain throughout the day, Louia said.

The performers featured are Kool and the Gang, Hall and Oates, Toto, The Rolling Stones and Bruce Springsteen.

Louia said the bands were chosen by bidding. The bands bidded to play the job and the lowest bidders were accepted.

Louia said by using this method, more money was saved for "other things."

Steve Lucather of Toto said, "The band has never been more excited about playing anywhere than they are about playing for High Point College. Mick called me up when he found out about the gig and asked me how he could play there too. This High Point gig has the whole music world buzzing. Playing there really means you are somebody."

"We cancelled our European tour so we could play for High Point College," Darryl Hall said. "We wouldn't miss this for the world!"

Louia said the College seems "pretty excited" about this year's Last Class Bash. He expects a turn-out of about 125 people.

"That's a fair amount to expect from High Point College at something like this," Louia said.

According to Louia, plane departures are at 8 a.m., 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. from the Regional Airport.

Of course, none of the junk that appears on these pages is true. In fact, we found all this stuff sitting on the floor of the HI-PO office when we walked in this morning, and we got this great urge to go to Stone(d) Printing Co. and do some layout.

If anyone is to be blamed, it is not Crystal L. Hedgecock of 303-C Belk (phone 889-5883) or Lewis Wheless of 1414 Madison Ave. (Phone 882-4072) because those names do not appear above any of the articles in here.

We welcome the administration's recent announcement that the entire college will be computerized by next semester. When we return to school next August, say officials, we will find Apple II computers in the residence halls, classrooms, faculty offices, gymnasium, tennis courts, and baseball field. Also, the latest in artificial intelligence, a SuperSlash ZZX-4000, is to be installed in a central location to govern the VDT's and a corps of robots. Robots? Yes, when we return next fall, there will robots washing the dishes, mopping the floors, and distributing standardized modules in the Writing Center, among other things. All we'll have to do is watch.

In answer to charges that human beings will be replaced by machines, Systems Analyst Ahab Borgia said, "No. I prefer to think that we will gain efficiency." We must applaud such forthrightness. It's time HPC faced facts. Certain adjustments must be made in response to decreasing enrollment and a continuing poor economy. After all, why should students have to get up at an ungodly hour, put on makeup, get dressed, and get their books together to get to an 8 o'clock class when they could roll over, hit the "power" button on their VDT's and get all the information they need? A computer can read a textbook to students just as well as a human being can.

And the excitement is just beginning. According to Borgia, within a decade HPC will be admitting home robots themselves. Our money problems will be over!

Won't it be simply hypnotizing to watch a robot stand at mid-court and hit every single shot?

Plans underway for Last Class Bash

BY KAREN D. HERNANDEZ

Staff Writer

It's spring time!!! We only have two more weeks of school left and that great celebration called "Last Class Bash" is on a roll.

Jeanine Halverson, an intern working in student activities, has organized a series of activities which will go on throughout the week of April 25-29. She said, "nothing is definite yet but we want to list the possible activities and times so that everyone gets psyched to have a good time."

Possible activities include:

Monday - The group "Camouflage" will be doing mime through the day all over campus.

Tuesday - Who knows?

Wednesday - Campus Skate in the afternoon and a Laser Show at night.

Thursday - A person will be around the student center drawing caricatures for FREE!

Friday - The Jammer Frisbee Team will be holding exhibitions through the day. Regional bands will be playing through the afternoon. A lady will be taking old time pictures for $5.00, and a "Picnic" is going to be held at dinner time.

Halverson also said if any sorority or fraternity was interested in selling munchies around the campus during this week, they should contact her by Wednesday, Apr. 20.

Hartsoe fills position

BY TABBIE NANCE
Staff Writer

Charles Hartsoe became High Point College's new business manager on March 28. Hartsoe filled the position left vacant by Kenneth Bulla.

Although new to HPC, Hartsoe is not new to the area. He has lived in High Point 22 years, employed as a vice-president and treasurer for Adams-Millis Corporation. Before moving to High Point, Hartsoe worked as a Certified Public Accountant in Winston-Salem.

"I am impressed with the business office here," Hartsoe said. "It is very well run and I am fortunate to come into such a department."

Originally from Maryland, Hartsoe graduated from the University of Maryland with a degree in Business Administration and Accounting.

Back on the air at 10 watts

WWIH's license revoked due to false validity

BY KAREN HERNANDEZ
Staff Writer

On March 14 the Student Government Association held a special meeting due to the false validity of WWIH's license to operate at 100 watts on the frequency of 91.5mhz.

During this meeting, Pat Connelly, ex-station manager explained, WWIH, like any other station, has a lawyer who deals with the paper work and government agencies in order to obtain an operating license. The lawyer in charge for WWIH's business informed the station that he had received a letter from the FCC commissioning the college to transmit at 100 watts on the frequency of 91.5mhz.

About two months ago, the FCC came to the station to conduct a routine station check and obtain a copy of the license. Later that week the station received a letter from the FCC informing them that they could not broadcast because:

- The FCC had never commissioned High Point College to operate in the frequency of 91.5mhz at 100 watts.

- The signature of the man who supposedly authorized the application for this change had been an employee of the FCC five years ago, making his authorization illegal.

- The frequency in which the station was transmitting was interfering with WUNC-Chapel Hill.

- A suggestion was made that the college reapply for a license and conduct a frequency search within 50 days or else they (WWIH) would be taken off the air.

license to operate on 100 watts, meaning they had to go back into operating on 10 watts in the frequency of 90.3mhz. The FCC acknowledges that High Point College acted in good faith, therefore charges will not be brought against the college. Connelly requested the SGA to allocate $2600 to be used to conduct a frequency search by WGLD's engineer Tom BonDurant and other engineers. A new lawyer who will take charge of the reapplication of a license in order for the station to be able to operate at 100 watts.

Currently WWIH is operating on the frequency of 90.3, airing their shows from 6 a.m.-10 a.m. and 2 p.m.-2 a.m. during weekdays, from 10 a.m.-2 a.m. on weekends.

Editorials

Name omitted

Dear Editor:

I was deeply hurt and upset over the omission of my name from the article "Language students serve as teachers" (March 30, 1983). As a student instructor of the Spanish language for two years and as a Spanish major, I felt my name deserved to be mentioned at least once in the article. However, I was not mentioned, nor was I even approached for an interview.

Also in order to clarify one point: your article stated that the instructors were paid "four-to-five hours for attending a workshop." We were paid for only three hours.

Please strive for accuracy in the future.

Sincerely,
M. Elizabeth Myers

Editor's Note: Miss Myers' name was inadvertently omitted from the list of student instructors in the March 30, 1983 issue. The HI-PO strives for accuracy in its reporting, and therefore regrets any problems that may have been caused by the omission of Miss Myers' name.

The Hi-Po is distributed on campus by Alpha Phi Omega, a National Service fraternity. This is the fifth year they have provided this service.

Locked out

To the editor:

It seems rather disappointing to me that several times this semester I have prepared myself to go and study in the Campus Center and have found it to be closed or just simply not opened on time. I find this matter extremely irritating, since the dorm is often not a very quiet place to study in. Is this college student-oriented? Or am I a student who has simply failed to keep up with the Campus Center hours?

Doubtfully,
Marisa Firpi

Nominations being invited for Slane teaching award

Nominations are invited for the Meredith Clark Slane Distinguished Teaching-Service Award to be presented to the recipient at the 1983 High Point College Commencement exercises.

The Award recognizes outstanding classroom performance, interest in students as expressed through availability for advising, sponsorship of student activities organizations, community and church interest and activities, production of scholarly papers, articles, books, or monographs, evident interest in professional growth by attendance of professional meetings and participation in professional organizations.

Criteria for Eligibility:

1. Any member of the College community may nominate. The nomination should be accompanied by a description of the activities of the teacher which justifies the nomination.

2. The nominee must be a full-time faculty member.

3. The nominee must have been a member of the High Point College faculty for a minimum of three (3) years.

4. The nominee must have demonstrated intent to return to High Point College the year following the Award.

5. The nominee must not have been so honored within the past five years. The five most recent recipients are: Dr. Moehlmann, Dr. Weeks, Dr. Wheelless, Ms. Rawley, and Dr. Ward.

The selection of the Award recipient will be made by a Distinguished Teaching-Service Selection Committee composed of six persons appointed by the President of the College. The Committee will include two administrators, two members of the Faculty, and two students. The successful nominee must receive a majority vote of the six-member committee.

Nominations must be received in the Office of the President no later than 5:00 p.m. on Wednesday, April 27, 1983.

Pi Kappa Alpha to celebrate gala 30th anniversary

BY BOB ROSSIE
Staff Writer

The Delta Omega chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha has planned a five day celebration later this month in commemoration of their 30th anniversary at High Point College.

Since early April 1982, the Pika 30th anniversary committee began planning and preparing for what is about to be the fraternities most memorable and elaborate occasion thus far.

The committee members include Pete Gibson, Brent Stanley, Bill Johnson, Jeff Norris, Art Prillaman, Jeff Henry, and Dave Tomlinson.

About forty Pika alumni are expected to attend the celebration.

The scheduled activities kick-off on Wednesday, April 20 with a reception for local alumni, followed by a combined brothers meeting. Dr. L.B. Pope, Captain Jenney, Dr. Carl Wheelless and Dr. Everett Smith are special guests for the reception.

Thursday, April 21, there will be a "Night At The Rail". All High Point College students are invited to attend.

Friday night April 22 features a "Hawaiian Night Party" at the downtown Holiday Inn, High Point.

Saturday afternoon April 23 has an alumni luncheon scheduled, followed by a golf tournament at Oak Hollow. Saturday night will be the Pika 30th Anniversary Dinner Dance and Dreamgirl Celebration at Market Square, High Point. The band "Square Biz" will provide music and at midnight, Pika's first president at High Point College Bill Wright, will lead a toast to commemorate the grand occasion.

Pi Kappa Alpha was the first national fraternity at High Point College. Once called Delta Beta Alpha, they received their national charter as Pi Kappa Alpha on March 7, 1953. The scenery was a little different back then with the absence of the McPherson Campus Center, Hayworth Hall, Belk and Millis Dormitories and the Alumni Gymnasium. Meals were served in the basement of Roberts Hall. The Pikes lived in the G section of McCulloch Dorm and didn't have a lounge until they were given the old Teke lounge some years later. Charles E. Hayworth, another special guest for 30th anniversary, was a major contributor in the development of the present day Pika lounge in Millis Hall.

In the past 30 years, 365 brothers have taken the oath into Pi Kappa Alpha at High Point College and today as the largest fraternity on campus, they continue to serve High Point College and its community in the fine tradition of its predecessors.

Some special highlights of the 1983 chapter include a $500 contribution to Big Brothers-Big Sisters of High Point raised by selling raffles and the successful 3rd annual Pika Spring Rally held on campus last month for High Point College's sororities.

Was it a convention of grandmothers or a league of babysitters? No. It was the KD sorority who were rocking for the American Heart Association in front of the Campus Center April 9 to 10.

While sitting in rocking chairs donated by Chatham County Furniture, the KDs rocked from noon Saturday to noon Sunday. Through pledges and donations, the KDs raised over $700, surpassing their $500 goal. All the money will be contributed to the American Heart Association.

Every two years the KDs take time to sit down and rock for a cause. In 1981 this service project won the High Point College KDs Honorable Mention for the National KD Philanthropy Award.

While eating food donated by local restaurants, the KDs rocked and talked, rocked and listened to the radio, and rocked and rocked and rocked.

Student Academy of Science meets

The North Carolina Student Academy of Science District IV recently had its tenth annual spring meeting on the High Point College campus. The day-long meeting, which was attended by 150 junior high and senior high school students and their teachers, was held in the Haworth Hall of Science. Seventy science research papers were presented by the students in various areas, including biology, earth science, physical science, psychology, and technology and engineering. Members of the High Point College faculty, student science majors, and local high school science teachers served as judges for the paper sessions. In addition to the paper sessions a business meeting was held with election of officers and presentation of awards. The group also toured the science facilities of Haworth Hall.

Dr. John Ward, Professor of Biology, co-ordinated the meeting. Dr. Ward, who is also a co-director of the N.C. Student Academy of Science, expressed his appreciation to the members of the High Point College community, both faculty and students, who contributed to the success of the meeting.

Alpha Phi Omega to celebrate 25th anniversary

Alpha Phi Omega Service Fraternity will be celebrating its 25th Anniversary this weekend. APO brothers along with approximately fifth alumni will be engaging in an array of activities. Friday will be a day of registration with a Wine & Cheese that night at Kerner's Folly. Saturday afternoon, brothers and alumni will support the new Student YMCA by leading in and helping out with the Organization's New Games Festival. A formal banquet and dance will be held Saturday night at Bryan Park in Greensboro. Sunday afternoon, the APO's will wind up their big weekend with a picnic. Brothers and Alumni will paint the rock as a sign of twenty-five years of service to school and community.

Faculty veterans reflect on tenure at HPC

BY KARLA GREEN

Features Editor

Raiford Porter has been teaching at High Point College since before most of us were born. When he came to HPC in 1956, he started what we now know as the Art Department. What changes has he seen in the past 27 years here? "There was a much more formal environment in those days," says Porter.

He talked of days when every party had to have a chaperone. "The group actually had to have sheets signed by the chaperones saying where the party was held and that it had been properly supervised." He laughingly added that he was the "most party-going" of the faculty because at that time he was the youngest faculty member.

He recalled days of faculty/student receptions that were "black tie". He recalls enjoying those somewhat "stuffy" receptions when the faculty would have to form a reception line and introduce the professor to their right. He said, "I used to make up fake names for the people who followed me to entertain the poor students (who were required to attend)."

Among his outside interests is his love for sailing. "My favorite pasttime is hopping on my boat, 'Lakshmi' and sailing up and down the coastline." During summers he has travelled to Charleston and up to the Cheasapeake Bay area.

The next senior faculty member joined Porter at HPC in 1958. James Nelson came to the business department as an associate professor and the next year was named Dean of Students. According to Nelson, he spent the next three years being "3/4 teacher" with his added duties as dean.

Nelson is quite familiar with student life at High Point College, not only because he was dean of students, but because he was a HPC student himself. He is an alumni of the class of '48. What changes did he notice during his 10 years away from the college? "I came back to HPC as a teacher and there had been a major physical change." While he was away, the buildings of Wesley, North, Cooke, the gym and the Fine Arts buildings were completed.

Another major change was the accreditation of the college which came after Nelson graduated from HPC.

He agrees with Mr. Porter that the dances of that day were "rigidly chaperoned" and much more formal. He recalls that the school had a football team in those days which promoted school spirit. There were also more student academic functions outside the classroom such as poetry readings sponsored by the sororities on campus.

Mr. Nelson enjoys going to concerts in his spare time. His wife, also a graduate of HPC and a music major, shares his love for music. "We like to go to New York to the theatre and the opera." They also attend musical concerts at UNC-G and travel abroad yearly.

In 1962, three new members joined the faculty. Two of those were former High Point College students. Shirley Rawley and Robert Davidson talked about their years here.

"Coach Davidson" as we know him, has been at HPC as a member of the faculty for 21 years. When he was at HPC, he played baseball and basketball, the latter of which he was team captain for two years. He also ran track as a student. He was a member of the NDM club, which used to be somewhat of an athletic fraternity here, according to Davidson.

He agrees with Nelson that the buildings improvements was one of the major changes he saw upon returning to HPC. Davidson was a member of the graduating class of 1955.

He spends his time outside of college with parttime officiating, which he says "takes up most of his spare time." Other than that, he says he spends most of his time "on the golf course."

Shirley Rawley is now head of the English department. She came in 1962 as a replacement English teacher after one of the staff left suddenly. She was at that time the youngest member of that staff. She became head of the department in the Spring of 1979.

She is obviously appreciated by the staff she now supervises. Last week, she was recognized by one of the area radio stations as "Boss of the Week" with some prompting from her employees, who nominated her.

Mrs. Rawley is well-known for bringing back the night program to HPC. She started the Continuing Adult Education Program in 1978. She comments that the program has "introduced the college community to the older student."

During her years as a student of the college, she was a member of the Phi Mu national sorority. She remembers that when she was here "more of the students spent more time doing things together, like weekend trips, etc." She says that she finds today's students to be more serious about careers.

Rawley spends her time reading, which is her first love. She also writes poetry and enjoys cooking. She says that in her spare time she likes to "spend time with (her) kids." She has two children, aged 21 and 18.

Dr. David Cole was the third of the 1962 additions to the faculty. He has served as history professor and as dean of the college during his years here. During the absence of a college president, he served as acting President of the college.

These five people make up the faculty's most senior members. Most of them were HPC graduates and returned here to teach. They all agreed that they have seen a lot of students "come and go over the years" but generally find that students continue to be "much the same."

Campus Digest News Service

If there is one element missing in the epic Gandhi, it is surprise. By now we've heard how long it took to complete it; we've heard how dedicated the director, Richard Attenborough, was to its creation; we know it's already won many major awards, including the New York Film Critics honor for best picture. And once seen, it's not surprising why.

The film is extremely well made, with outstanding acting all around, especially from Ben Kingsley in the title role, and his Indian supporting cast. It's directed with a sure hand. The photography is beautiful. The story is interesting and clearly told. In short, from those expectations, it doesn't disappoint. But in a strange way, the strength of Gandhi is also its weakness. In spite of its spectacular dimensions, its faithful recreation of one of this century's great men, it is a movie that doesn't have any surprises, unpleasant or otherwise.

Films that are based on an historical event or character almost inevitably are compromised by the need to be true to facts. As a result, no matter how dramatic the events may be, or how monumental a person's life may be, the film is more a mirror than a creation. Gandhi deals with many explosive and highly dramatic events and yet, underneath the excellent acting, attractive photography and steady direction, the film itself is not overpowering or deeply moving or even illuminating.

There's no denying that it is impressive in many ways, but because it's less a fictional creation than a fictional account of facts, Gandhi is limited in its overall effect.

The film is structured around Gandhi. For three hours Gandhi is almost always in front of us. And yet, Gandhi, in spite of Ben Kingsley's excellent acting, is not a character most viewers can readily identify with.

Not only is Gandhi's modesty, courage and determination extraordinary, the way he is seen so directly emphasizes his uniqueness. In other words, we might have known more about Gandhi and what he did if his life was filtered somehow, through the eyes of another character. A character we could have related to and identified with. As it stands, we only observe Gandhi and marvel at him, and this lack of identification makes the film, in spite of its enveloping dimensions and epic sweep, seem as distant from our mundane lives as Mesopotamia.

In fact, we are left with little insight into his character. True, there are a few scenes which call our attention to his humanity: a fight with his wife (in which his equally saintly wife reminds Gandhi, and us, that he is human; but that is like telling Babe Ruth, after he

Theta Chi hosts bong show

BY TANA PARKER

Staff Writer

Once again High Point College students, faculty and staff workers had the chance to display their "talent". The event... The 8th Annual Bong Show sponsored by Theta Chi Fraternity.

On April 7, students gathered in HPC's Memorial Auditorium to view the 14 various acts vying for first place. The acts varied from singing, dancing, balancing objects to a Mae West imitation which was performed by Mary Hayworth, the only non-student act.

Judges for the event included Ms. Shirley Rawley, Dr. Marion Hodge and a very unique "two-headed" judge named B.O. Barfuouar which was comprised of Kenneth Douglas and Michael Duffy. The scoring compiled of a total of 30 possible points (10 from each judge). The winning first place act with a perfect score was the team of Deborah Shaver and Pam Sanchez. Miss Shaver played the piano and sang "The Days We Will Remember," while Miss Sanchez accompanied her on the flute. Second place was taken by singer John Higgins with "Wandering Strangers" and "Bridge Over Troubled Water." By singing the popular theme from the movie "Tootsie", "It Might Be You," Dana

Mark Mann, Chairman for the show, explained that some of the proceeds are to go to Easter Seals and the door prizes which were given out during the show were donated by area merchants.

Student comes to HPC to work as intern

BY TANA PARKER

Staff Writer

Internships and student teaching are a part of some High Point College students education. In this particular situation, instead of the student going to a certain establishment for experience, a student has come to HPC to work as an intern. That student is Miss Jeanine Halverson.

Miss Halverson is working in student activities under the supervision of Mr. Mike Pittman of Student Life. Halverson's internship is part of her studies in receiving her master's degree in Counseling, Guidance and Personnel Services.

After graduating from Westmar College, LaMars Iowa, with a Bachelor of Arts degree in Sociology and a minor in English, Miss Halverson became an admission counselor at the college for the next three years. Miss Halverson then began her master's work at Mankato State University, Minnesota and later transferred to the University of South Dakota.

Miss Halverson explained that student activities are "a necessary part of a student's college experience because it provides a variety for the students." Arriving at HPC Mar. 9, Miss Halverson has been busy compiling a master calendar of events for the student handbook, making plans for the soon-to-come Last Class Bash, reorganizing the equipment owned by the Student Union (i.e., tents, camping equipment, sound system), and booking various speakers and acts. Before leaving in May, Miss Halverson said she would like to try and make the campus center more comfortable for students and hopefully improve the game room by getting a few more video games.

Finding the job very challenging, Miss Halverson added that students need to have a professional to help and work with them. "There is too much pressure put on students. They are here for an education and they need someone to help them outside of their class." Miss Halverson concluded that she has found that the students are very cooperative and interested in the activities program.

Atlantic Christian takes championship

High Point claims second place in turnney

BY MARK PHELPS

Sports Editor

Though heavy rains prevented the doubles championship matches from being played Saturday night, the mens tennis team from Atlantic Christian piled up enough points to win its second consecutive conference tournament.

The Bulldogs tallied 24 points, almost doubling second place High Point's score of 13. The Panthers were the only other team to lock up a place prior to the bad weather. The matches that were not played will be played in conjunction with the District 26 tournament at Guilford April 22-25.

The other scores included: Guilford 9, Elon 8, Pfeiffer 6, and two points each for Pembroke State and Wingate.

For High Point, five singles players were able to advance past the first round, three of which made it to the finals. Pekka Makela, playing at the number one position, cruised to the final round before falling to Christa Lundberg of Pfeiffer, 6-4, 3-6, 6-4.

Number three player Sami Narhi fell to Thomas Linne in the finals 6-3, 2-6, 6-4. Matt Lange also made it to finals at the fourth spot before losing to Christa Eriksson 6-1, 6-1.

Two Panthers, Roy Heilbron and Griff Thompson, advanced to the semi-finals before being defeated.

In doubles, Jim Hollerman and Sami Narhi will play in the finals as they defeated the number one teams from Pfeiffer 7-5, 6-3, and Wingate through default. They will play the team of Mitchell-Bessler for the championship.

At the second doubles, Thompson-Makela defeated duos from Wingate and Elon and will play Guilford in the finals. Lange-Holloran advanced to the semi-finals by defeating Mitchell-Cullerman of Wingate, but were beaten in the second round at Guilford.

Lady Panthers take win over Pfeiffer

BY MARK PHELPS

Sports Editor

High Point College improved its conference tennis record to 6-1 with an 8-1 victory over Pfeiffer on Mar. 6. The team is 10-5 overall.

In singles, top seeded Ana Medina defeated Carol Darkin 6-3, 6-2; Anneli Kiviniemi defeated Cheryl Lazowski 6-0, 6-4; Lynn Sharkey lost to Pfeiffer's Jennifer Davis 1-6, 7-5, 7-6; Helen O'Brien defeated Liz Cullen 6-3, 6-2; Teresa Sweatman defeated Robin Campbell 6-2, 6-2; and Dori Johnson defeated Ann Cogliano 6-2, 6-3.

In doubles, Medina-Kiviniemi defeated Darkin-Lazowski 6-2, 6-0; O'Brien-Theresa Regnante defeated Cullen-Campbell 6-1, 6-0; and Sharkey-Sweatman defeated Davis-Cogliano 6-1, 6-0.

Three matches were postponed last week because of rain. The April 5 match at UNC-Greensboro was made up last Saturday. Matches with UNC-Charlotte and Appalachian State University, previously scheduled on April 8 and 11, are postponed until later determined dates.

Track team finishes second

The HPC track team finished second in its own tri-meet on Tuesday, April 5.

The Panthers' 69½ point total fell short to Francis Marion which scored 89. Garner-Webb finished third with 22½ points. Kent sides led High Point's individual scoring with 12 points. Sides won both the 100 and 220 meter runs. Ralph Barnes, added 11½ points as he won the long jump with a 21¼" leap and the triple jump with a 46'7" effort.

Jack Songster added 10 points with a winning leap of 6'2" in the high jump. Jon Richardson also took a victory in the javelin with a 179'5" throw. The 440-relay of Sides, Barnes, Richardson, and Jeff Collins gave High Point its final first place in the time of 45.14.

On Saturday, the Panthers competed in a non-scoring meet at The Citadel in Charleston, S.C. Barnes gave High Point its lone victory in the triple-jump with a 45'10" leap.

Songster finished second to Barnes in that event and took a third in the high jump. Sides took third in both the 100 and 220 meter runs and Richardson added a second in the javelin.

HPC golfers take ninth place

The High Point golf team finished ninth in a fifteen-team tournament at the Pinehurst Country Club in Lumberton last week.

Limestone took first place in the two day event with a 571 total. Atlantic Christian and Coastal College finished closely behind with 598 and 601 scores. High Point finished just nine shots out of third with a 610.

The Panthers posted a

301 in the opening round, leaving them in a tie for sixth. Junior Buddy Sass led the team with a 72 while Matt Kohn followed with a 75. Ted Barnhardt and Phil Krimminger posted 77's, and Jeff Zivic shot an 84.

A steady rain hampered most of the second day's action. High Point felt the effects of the bad weather as it could only muster 309 total. Kohn, and Barnhardt, though, were able to better their first rounds' scores as they shot a 73 and a 75 respectively. Sass posted an 80, Krimminger an 81, and Zivic an 84 to complete the Panther's scoring.

Rating the decade's best games

Campus Digest News Service

When rating the best games in any sport over any time period, it is important to remember that timing has a great deal of effect.

In attempting to rank the greatest college games of the past decade, the emphasis is naturally on games which had a great impact on the game as it is now played, as well as the true value of the individual game itself. Great teams may play in December or January, but great games are normally played in February or March. The dozen games listed as the best of the past decade are numbered only in chronological order. It was enough of a task to select the 12 without attempting to rank them in order of importance, timeliness or entertainment value.

(1) U.C.L.A. 87, Memphis State 66 (March 26, 1973).

In the greatest individual performance of the decade, U.C.L.A.'s Bill Walton hit 21 of 22 field goal attempts as the Bruins won their seventh successive NCAA title. Memphis State had advanced to the finals with a win over Providence (with Marvin Barnes and Ernie DiGregorio), but the Tigers were no match for the Bruins and Walton. Memphis State, led by Larry Finch and Larry Kenon, stayed even with U.C.L.A. in the first half, but folded after intermission.

(2) Notre Dame 71, U.C.L.A. 70 (Jan. 19, 1974).

The win by the Irish ended U.C.L.A.'s 88-game winning streak, the longest in college history. Guard Dwight Clay netted a jumper with 29 seconds left to culminate a rally in which Notre Dame outscored U.C.L.A. 12-0 in the last three minutes. Gary Brokaut and John Shumate combined for 49 Irish points and Walton scored 24 for the Bruins.

(3) North Carolina State 103, Maryland 100 (March 9, 1974).

In the greatest of the ACC tournament title games, the NC State team survived an overtime to defeat Maryland. Wolfpack center Tom Burleson (7'4") played the greatest game of his career, hitting 18 of 25 shots on the way to a 38-point night, and David Thompson added 29. Top-ranked NC State had to win this game to make the NCAA tourney field.

(4) North Carolina State 80, U.C.L.A. 77 (March 23, 1974).

In an NCAA semi-final, the ACC champs ended U.C.L.A.'s domination of the NCAA with a thrilling double-overtime win. The Wolfpack trailed by 11 late in regulation time, and by seven midway through the first overtime. But the pack refused to surrender as skywalking All-American David Thompson scored 28 and Burleson 20, while Walton netted 29 and collected 18 misfires for U.C.L.A. The win marked "a change in the order" of NCAA basketball, with U.C.L.A. finally losing and a renewed interest in eastern basketball (especially the Atlantic Coast Conference).

(5) U.C.L.A. 92, Kentucky 85 (March 31, 1975).

The last win of Coach John Wooden's great career saw his Bruins win the NCAA title for a rugged Kentucky team. Rick Washington and Dave Meyers combined for 52 points, but UK's Kevin Grevey took game honors with 34. Kentucky used four freshmen in the game who would play important roles in the 1978 Kentucky national title.

(6) Indiana 86, Michigan 68, (March 29, 1976).

The last of the unbeaten national champs, Bobby Knight's Hoosiers capped a 32-0 season with a win in Philadelphia's Spectru. Scott May and Kent Benson scored 26 and 25 points, respectively, for Indiana. This was the only time in NCAA history in which two teams from one conference met in the title game. Big 10 prestige understandably soared.

(7) Texas 101, North Carolina State 93 (March 21, 1978).

In the most entertaining of the 12 games, Texas got 33 points from long-range bomber deluxe Jim Krivacs and used a back-door offense (with all five offensive players beyond the free throw line) to defeat NC State in the NIT championship. Chunky Ron Baxter, unheralded Tyrone Brayan and guard Johnny Moore also combined for 62 points. UT Coach Abe Lemons topped off the week by challenging a New York City waiter to find a hen that could lay two eggs worth $4.95.

(8) Kentucky 94, Duke 88 (March 27, 1978).

This NCAA title game is remembered for two reasons: Wildcat forward Jack Gibens shot his way to a 41-point night; and Duke's three stars (Banks, Spanarkel, and Gminski) combined for 63. But never in the next two seasons did the Blue Devils live up to the promise seen in the '78 final.

(9) Michigan State 75, Indiana State 64 (March 26, 1979).

Two of the most charismatic stars of college basketball's recent past met when Larry Bird of ISU played against the Spartans' Magic Johnson. The MSU support cast was better and Johnson's team prevailed, ending the Sycamore's perfect season. Johnson scored 24 while the sub-par shooting Bird finished with 19.

(10) Notre Dame 57, Virginia 56 (Feb. 22, 1981).

Played in Chicago's Rosemont Horizon, the Irish upset the undefeated (23-0) Cavaliers. The winning basket was scored on a desperation shot by Orlando Woolridge, as the Irish upset Virginia's best team. Kelly Tripucka led all scorers with 15 points.

(11) North Carolina 47, Virginia 45 (March 8, 1982).

While probably not a great game, this contest caused more rule changes than is usually seen in a quarter-century. Carolina held the ball in the second half, and the Tar Heels won this ACC title game. James Worthy scored 16 for the

(12) North Carolina 63, Georgetown 62 (March 29, 1982).

UNC, the best program in the country since U.C.L.A. stopped winning titles, won a first NCAA title for Coach Dean Smith. This game was unique as it matched the two teams playing the best basketball in the nation at the proper time. It took a place the size of the Superdome to handle a supergame won by Michael Jordan's jumpshot with 17 seconds remaining. Worthy scored 28 for Carolina while the Hoyas were led by 23 points from Patrick Ewing.

Honorable mention:

DePaul 95, U.C.L.A. 91 (1979 West regional final)

Notre Dame 76, DePaul 74 (1980)

U.C.L.A. 75, Louisville 74 (1975 nat'l semi-final)

Marquette 51, NC-Charlotte 49 (1977 nat'l semi-final)

Duke 73, Maryland 72 (1980 ACC final).

Promoting from within

Campus Digest News Service

According to a University of Michigan "Management Succession" study, job-hoppers do not usually get to the top of corporations.

The best way to get to the boardroom is to stay with the same companies. Most companies promote presidents and vice presidents from within the company.

So once you get that job after graduation, plan to stay with it and prove loyalty to your employer.

Gandhi

has struck out, that he is only a ballplayer), some nice touches of humor, a few moments of doubt, and so on. But for 99 percent of the film, Gandhi is presented as more angel than man. The latter half of the film is especially intent on this quality. Not only is Gandhi now a venerable old man, but he has choirs of admirers quietly speaking his praise, gazing longingly at him and spiritually genuflecting in his presence. The film indirectly raises some interesting question on occasion: Is there a streak of megalomania in Gandhi? Is there a touch of the opportunist in him? But these flickers of inquiry into his character are swiftly extinguished by the repeated images of his humility.

The result of all this is a very polished, almost pristine, film.

Gandhi has abundant virtues, of course. Ben Kingsley is thoroughly convincing. The Indian cast members are equally credible and skilled. Some of the most distinguished British actors (including John Gielgud, John Mills and Trevor Howard) make cameo appearances and give fine performances. Ian Charleson, who was outstanding in Chariots of Fire, gives another excellent performance and is one of the few western characters to appear for any substantial time. Martin Sheen, and regrettably, Candice Bergen, both make cameo appearances as American journalists. Bergen, never a formidable actress, provides Gandhi with its only whiff of inauthenticity.

The rest of the film's creative qualities, especially the photography, are first-rate. This film is well crafted, not inspired. Attenborough has created an homage to Gandhi the figurehead, not a film about a man, a remarkable man, but a man just the same.

DR. ALAN PATTERSON, chairman of the Health, PE, and Recreation dept., will leave High Point College to assume the position of head of the athletic dept. at Catawba College in Salisbury, N.C. Patterson, who has been with HPC since 1977, will begin work at Catawba this summer. (Photo by Marisa Firpi)

College Bowl season ended

The 1982-83 College Bowl season came to a close with a bang on April 6, 1983 with a competition between the year's champs and the faculty. Dr. E. Roy Epperson issued a challenge to play the students, and after a double elimination tournament where The Simpletons took the title, they squared off with a team from the faculty. The winners of this year's College Bowl (The Simpletons) consisted of James Parker (captain), David Matzko, Tony Matthews, Lane Sapp, Art Payne, Mark Mashburn, and Bill Cotham.

Bowman.

The first game between The Faculty and The Simpletons was a clear win for The Faculty. Intimidation (several of The Simpletons are in those professors' classes) seemed to set the scene with The Simpletons only buzzing in to answer one question.

Editorials

A farewell. . .

The question has crossed my mind numerous times. It crosses it again. Still, there is no answer.

But what will I write my final editorial about?

As I approach the end of my editorship, I admit that I feel somewhat indifferent. It has been a hard year, yet not quite long enough to do what I had to do, and too long when it came to doing those little favors one can't refuse.

My indifference is not a malicious one. I am stepping down with a hopeful feeling for the future of the HI-PO. I am leaving the HI-PO in excellent hands.

At the moment, I don't feel sentimental, but that will inevitably come. So, assure yourself that I am not writing this editorial with tears in my eyes. The feeling is more like a vagueness in my stomach.

I didn't intend for this editorial to turn into my farewell. I don't have a farewell—I'll be back next year. But I suppose that leaving the paper is reason enough for a farewell anyway. In a way, I do feel like I am leaving the college. At least, I am leaving my free communication with the College. Through this editorial column, I have kept in tune to the concerns of the students and administration. I have also had a viable means by which to express my opinions, and one that would be acknowledged, even if it wasn't agreed with.

I couldn't possibly complete my farewell without thanking the appropriate people. That's just tradition! THANK YOU EVERYBODY! I guess that pretty well covers it. Actually though, the HI-PO and I could never have existed without the support of the campus. I am not omniscient, so I needed you, the readers, to keep me informed of events on campus. Without that help, there would have been very little news, even a smaller amount than we have now.

Of course, I must thank my diligent workers who trudged through the snow, ice and rain to meet the deadlines, stayed up all night writing stories and sat through the monotonous Tuesday morning staff meetings.

My most important co-worker, aside from God, (since every issue was truly a miracle) was Lewis Wheless. Lewis was always there, even when I wasn't, to keep things running smoothly. Even though he failed in his endeavors to keep things running smoothly, things would have definitely been worse off without him! Lewis was responsible for my maintaining my sanity in many instances, and I'm still not sure if I thank him or not.

Thank you, also, Dr. Marion Hodge. Although I didn't employ your services as advisor very often, just the knowledge that you were there eased the pressure that arises from being editor.

So this is it -- my final editorial, my farewell.

Ruminations

A tribute to Crystal

"Mushiness." As I try to write this column, everything that oozes out of my pen is "mushy."

You see, I'm trying to create a tribute to someone who can only be described in "mushy" terms like "friendliness." After all, friendliness is the core of her personality; "cooperation" is a trait she was born with. "Dedication," "patience," "kindness," and "understanding" -- she's blessed with all these and more, but if I wrote all that here, I'd sound too doggone "mushy."

If Crystal Hedgecock, my editor, found out I was trying to print something real "mushy" -- especially something real "mushy" about HER -- she would probably refer me to the eighth commandment of the Associated Press Stylebook, which reads "Thou shalt not be 'mushy' when writing tributes." Luckily, though, Crystal doesn't know I'm writing this, so it'll all be a big surprise to her on Wednesday as she reads the editorial page.

Now, all "mushiness" aside, I want to congratulate Crystal on the remarkable work she has accomplished during her two-year tenure as Editor-in-Chief of the HI-PO. Crystal and I have worked as a team since last spring, so I've been lucky to get to know her as a person, and not merely as someone who assigns me articles to write each issue.

Crystal has donated countless hours to this publication and often without any tangible rewards. This year, Crystal and HI-PO advisor Marion Hodge developed a weekly format for the newspaper, and the reader response has been tremendous. Seeing to it that campus news and activities were covered accurately and objectively has been Crystal's main goal -- a goal she has more than accomplished.

To her staff, Crystal has been a guide, a teacher and a confidant. To the college, she has been a truth-seeker, an advisor and a person who CARES. She has given unselfishly her time and talents to produce an outstanding newspaper for the past two years.

Crystal Hedgecock, I salute you. The HI-PO and the entire college is better for having had your dedicated service at High Point College.

Chairman search sparks upset

Dear Editor,

I am writing as a former student in the Religion and Philosophy Department, a graduate of High Point College, and a member of the staff of the college for the last three years -- all of which, I believe, qualify me to speak to a current issue on campus.

I understand that a search committee has been formed to recommend someone from outside the Religion and Philosophy Department as Chairperson of that department. Given the qualifications of the current faculty members of that department, Dr. Earl Crow, Dr. Vance Davis, and Dr. Charles Teague, I cannot see the justification for the committee's charge.

I think this action is unjust because of what I learned while a student in the Department of Religion and Philosophy. I came to have a clear understanding of the many meanings of philosophy. I learned that philosophy attitude is the searching and critical attitude; that it is also the open-minded, tolerant attitude expressed in the willingness to look at all sides of an issue. Philosophy is a method of reflective thinking and reasoned inquiry; it presses its inquiry into the deeper problems of human existence beyond what eye hath seen or ear heard: What is truth? Is my life controlled by outside forces, philosophy asks, or do I have a determining or even a partial degree of control? Why do persons struggle and strive for their rights, for justice, for the improvement of society? What do concepts like "right" and "wrong" and "justice" mean? What are the genuine values of life and how can they be attained? Is there really a fundamental distinction between right and wrong, or is it just a matter of one's own opinions?

In the Department, I learned that if I am to decide wisely and to act consistently, I need to discover values and the meaning of things. Life forces me to make choices and to act on the basis of some scale of values. I have to decide questions of truth and falsity, of right and wrong. Philosophy refuses to disregard any authentic aspect of human experience and seeks to formulate standards and goals in the most reasonable way. Human beings, I have learned, do not live only by bread and technological discoveries. They live by values and realities which are above time and are worth knowing for their own sake. For if a person acts as he or she does merely because of custom or tradition or the law or the rules, that person is not genuinely free.

When I was in secondary school, I had been mentally bending over my desk; when I came to High Point College I began to stand up and look around. I came to see that one of the functions of a college is to enable me to shed details in favor of principles, not verbal formulations, but principles that thoroughly soaked in, that are mental habits rather than formal statements. A principle, then, becomes the way a person reacts to the appropriate stimulus in the form of illustrative circumstances.

The Department provided an atmosphere in which I learned that knowledge which adds greatness to character is knowledge so handled as to transform every phase of immediate experience. The habit of active thought, with freshness, can only be generated by adequate freedom. If growth has properly taken place, the principle of progress has come from within: the discovery is made by ourselves, the discipline is self-discipline, and the fruit

Long accepts position at Bridgewater College

Leaves HPC after three years

Students enter and leave High Point College every year, but it is not every year that professors leave. This year one of those professors is Dr. Barbara Long.

After teaching French and Spanish for the past three years at HPC, Dr. Long has accepted the position of acting head of the Foreign Language Department at Bridgewater College in Virginia. Dr. Long said

She felt through the hard work of the language department and the high profile that it has received that she was given consideration for the position.

"I've got a lot of work ahead of me to try and revitalize their language program and to get things going," said Dr. Long. She explained that Bridgewater College is similar to HPC in that it too has a small enrollment which enables the professors to interact closely with the students and she thinks that is important.

"It's going to be sad to leave all the friends and the fabulous department here (HPC) but it will give me a chance for some professional advancement. I hope to spread the success and techniques from HPC to Bridgewater," said Dr. Long.

No comment has been made as to who will replace Dr. Long but she stated that the decision is being made very carefully.

Debate team being formed

BY LEWIS WHELESS
Associate Editor

The Sophists were Greek migrant teachers who taught grammar, public speaking and held debates just for the sake of being able to debate. Several student and faculty members on the High Point College campus think the school needs to pursue the Sophists' art by forming a debate team.

Dr. Earl Crow, an HPC religion professor, and John Smith, an HPC sophomore biology major, have joined forces to try to assemble such a team.

The details of the team's formation have not yet been worked out. Crow said, "We want to test the interest and get response" to determine if enough people are interested. The team would officially begin in the fall of 1983. The team would be composed of about 10-20 persons, but there does not have to be a set limit. "Officers" of the team would include a moderator and a secretary. It (the debates), would increase in formality as we go on," Crow said.

According to Crow and Smith, team members would debate on issues of current interest, political and social issues and, possibly, moral issues. The debate format would "give the student a chance to debate a faculty member without fear...A by-product of the debates would be a blow against anti-intellectualism" on campus, according to Crow.

The team's organizers said debating will increase the participants' speaking and research skills and would give the participants self-confidence in front of a group. The debaters "can learn from each other and learn not to be embarrassed" in presenting arguments for or against a particular subject.

Smith said he is interested in asking Bill Sapp, the President of the Dialectic and Philanthropic Society to talk to the team after it gets underway. Sapp has much experience in the art of debating.

The team would be open to any student or faculty member. Interested persons should contact Dr. Crow in Roberts Hall or send him a note through campus mail for more information.

Campus safety office car/washing materials

There is now available in the Campus Safety office a 75 ft. hose, buckets, brushes, (and water) for students to 1) wash their cars, and 2) wash other people's cars.

After a recent incident in which two students were written up for washing their cars in the wrong place, Ed Cannady, director of Safety, secured the items mentioned above for student use. Any student wishing to borrow these needs to give his/her I.D. card to the officer on duty. Upon return of the equipment, the student can receive his/her card.

There are designated spots on campus to wash a vehicle. They are: 1) between McCulloch Hall and the auditorium, 2) In the maintenance parking lot (on weekends only), and 3) behind Haworth Hall.

Selected photographs by students in the two sections of English 360, Photographic Communications, are on display in the lobby of Roberts Hall. The photographs use a variety of special effects, including vignetting, sabattiering, diffusion, double exposure, and color tinting. Special recognition goes to Erika Allion and to Jeff Collins for the best 8x10 prints and to Renee Marsh for the best 8x10 hand tinted black and white photograph. All black and white prints were shot with Tri-X B&W, ASA 400, film and printed on Kodabromide FH paper. Color prints were shot with Kodacolor II, ASA 100, film.

The prints will be on display in Roberts Hall until the first Monday of exam week.

Two High Point College students are presently displaying artwork in the lobby of the Campus Center. The students are Matt Rogers and Marisa Firpi.

Rogers, a senior Art Education major, is displaying his pottery, drawings, woodcuts, silkscreens, sculpture and weaving.

Firpi, a senior studio art major from Puerto Rico, is displaying a series of woodcuts.

Rogers, who is from Greensboro, NC, plans to teach high school level art when he graduates in May. He has his own studio in Greensboro at the Sternberger Center. He has interned with M.L. Owens Pottery in Seagrove, NC and did his student teaching at Page High School in Greensboro. Rogers wants to eventually become a full-time artist.

Firpi plans to pursue her art by going to graduate school next fall. She hopes to gain a M.F.A. in graphics of painting and become a professional artist.

Senior party planned

Combining their time, money, and efforts, the Freshman, Sophomore, and Junior classes are hosting a farewell party for the Seniors. The event will be held Thursday, April 28, 1983 at the High Point Armory. The party is set to start at 8:00 p.m. and run until 1:00 a.m. Music will be provided by the Lambda Chi Alpha sound system. Snacks will be served, but you must bring your own beverage (beer and wine only). Directions to the Armory are available in the cafeteria and around campus. Being part of the Last Class Bash Week, the event is FREE to the whole student body and faculty. So Please come out and help us celebrate with our graduating seniors.

Emotional strain characterizes role

BY CRYSTAL L. HEDGECOCK
Editor-in-Chief

Jesus: Believed by many to be the greatest man who ever lived. How could an actor ever portray such a demanding character?

Phil Valente recently undertook that task when he portrayed Jesus Christ in High Point College's production of "Godspell."

"An actor has to be able to go from being himself to being that person," Valente said as he explained his preparation for the role.

"I was having a very hard time being Jesus Christ," he said. "The lines could be read 500 different ways. At first, I read the lines damning. The cast told me to be nicer; to be warm, smiling."

Valente said being nicer helped him do the part better, because he never could imagine Jesus actually being mean.

"It (the play) wouldn't work with Jesus being mean. I wanted Jesus to lead them, not order them," Valente said.

The blond college freshman said he wanted the part of Jesus when he auditioned for "Godspell," but he didn't know if he would get it or not. He also knew very little about the play, when he decided to audition.

"I knew it was religious-based, but that was all. Very few of the cast knew anything about it. It (the play) was one surprise right after another."

"A celebration of all that happened to Jesus" is how Valente views "Godspell." The audience, he said, should feel all the pain that Jesus felt and feel the joy, because He rose.

"I have a great respect for Jesus," Valente said, "and I wanted it to come through."

However, Valente said, he had to first learn a lot about himself before he could successfully do the part.

"At first," he said, "I was acting like a pompous ass. Then I had to open myself up to the audience, and that is very humbling experience."

Valente credits the other cast members with helping him the most.

"I felt a real magic between the people in the cast. They were so nice."

Valente said the cast members would suggest ways to do the different scenes he had. They were honest with him and would tell him if something he said was good or bad.

"That play was 12 people working as one," he said.

The Last Supper scene was the hardest to do, Valente said. In the scene, Jesus went from one disciple to the next, telling them good-bye for the final time before His cruci-fion. For the scene, Valente had to be emotionally upset for it to work.

"I tried to have mental pictures to get in the mood, but they didn't work," he said. "I thought about breaking up with my ex-girlfriend, but nothing was going to work for me unless I was actually going to say good-bye to these people."

"There are real tears there. The last night (of the show), I had to stop for a second and I took 15 deep breaths. . . From that point on was the hardest part of the play."

The scene following the Last Supper is Jesus on the cross.

"I did it intensely," Valente said of the scene on the cross. "On the cross, you have to remember why He was there, what He had gone through."

"I was so emotionally drained after that scene," he said.

After the cross scene, Valente had to leave the stage and go to the front of the auditorium to prepare for his re-entrance as the risen Jesus.

"I had to go outside and run to the front," Valente said. "I could have walked, I had a few minutes. But if I didn't have that stupid little run, I would have been a fruitcake."

The run, Valente said, helped him vent the emotional pressure that had built up during the previous two scenes.

The production on Good Friday was the most successful and the most draining, Valente said.

That Friday Valente didn't have a voice. His parents were in town from Florida and he said he visited them at the hotel, hoping to get some tender, loving care from his mother.

His voice got gradually better, but he knew that after the first song his voice would be gone again. The other cast members knew about Valente's voice, so they were waiting to hear it too.

"When I came out (on stage) and started singing, everything was great," Valente said with a smile. "My voice was great. Our eyes lit up and I knew something special was going on. By rights, I should not have been singing that night, but I did."

"There was magic there that night. The crucifixion was the most draining it had been. When it was over, I thought 'Wow-do I know what I've just done?' I just wanted to be alone."

A warm glow surrounded Valente as he talked about the "magic." He claims the play has changed him and that he feels "nicer."

"I haven't come down yet. I still have a high from it," he said.

Biology prof helping to prevent moldy clothing

Which chemical works best to keep our cotton or cotton/polyester clothing from mildewing? Dr. John Ward, Professor of Biology, spends a considerable amount of his time trying to answer this question.

For over 25 years textile mills have used a common fungicide called e-phenylphenol to do the job; however, with the advent of strict Environmental Protection Agency regulations, it has been necessary to find substitutes.

Dr. Ward has found that the molds that most commonly infect cotton or cotton containing cloth in the local area are Aspergillus niger, Chaetomium globosum and a species of Penicillium. Using these molds as test organisms, he has compiled several conventional techniques to determine the effects of 25 different chemicals in controlling mildew. This control is especially important to the textile industry while yarn or cloth is in storage.

As a result of his work, several chemicals have been added to the list of effective fungicides in the textile industry. Among these chemicals are dichlorophene and dimethoxane.

Ward recently presented some of his findings to the North Carolina Academy of Science at its annual meeting at UNC-Chapel Hill.

Ward said he is often asked when he has time to work on research activities. The answer, he said, is "in the very little spare time I have available - weekends, evenings, Friday afternoons. It (conducting research) is fun, interesting and stimulating."

The instructor said he is also asked his opinion concerning research in a small liberal arts college. "I feel that a limited amount of research by a faculty member is desirable. It tends to keep me abreast of developments in my field, stimulates my enthusiasm for the subject and helps to generate student interest as students observe me genuinely involved in my subject area. However, I must be careful not to conduct research at the expense of my teaching.

Ward said he feels a certain amount of research is necessary for students. "Here at High Point our majors in the sciences have . . . a requirement which provides a means of adapting learning experiences to their own needs, interests and capacities as they become involved in the scientific process."

Seniors continue family tradition as future alumni

BY TABBIE NANCE
Staff Writer

Jane Needham, Sally Davis, Todd Hilliard, and Susan Pierce are seniors at High Point College; but they also have something else in common.

All four have a parent who graduated from HPC. However, all chose to come to HPC, not because of tradition, but for other reasons.

An English major from Thomasville, NC, Jane Needham chose to come to HPC because it was close to home. Needham's parents, Rita (Ward) and W.H.

Needham, met during college and were married after they graduated.

"Mom told me when she was here, girls had to sign in and out whenever they left campus," Needham said. "Girls had to let the receptionist know where they were going, when they would be back, who they were going with, and how they could be reached."

Needham's mother, an education major, and father, a business major, often double dated with Murphy Osborne, past HPC vice president of student affairs, and his wife, who were students at HPC at that time also.

Sally Davis, an education major, chose to come to HPC because it was a small college and she felt there was a better chance to become involved. Her mother, Ellen Faulkner Davis, attended HPC and majored in Christian Education.

"When my mother attended HPC, girls had to wear raincoats over their gym suits because they were not allowed to walk across campus with only their gym suits on," Davis said. Davis and her mother both are members of the same sorority, Zeta Tau Alpha.

Mrs. Davis was a member before it became nationally recognized at HPC.

Choosing to attend HPC because of baseball, Todd Hilliard and his father both majored in business administration.

Hilliard, a day student, said his father had some of the same professors he has had. "My father was a day student also so we have that in common," Hilliard said.

"Todd attended my graduation in his mother's stomach," Hilliard's father, Bob, said. "Since I was there the campus has grown with additional buildings being added."

Susan Pierce, a business and furniture major, came to HPC after receiving a scholarship. Both her parents are alumni of HPC. Judy Williams Pierce, her mother, completed a two year secretarial course the college offered and John C. Pierce, her father, majored in business.

"My parents told me when they were here chapel was mandatory every Sunday and each person had an assigned seat," Pierce said. "My mother was a member of Kappa Delta and she said the college is more liberal now than it was when she was here."

Language department to attend conference

BY KARLA GREEN
Features Editor

The Foreign Language Department of High Point College will be well represented again this year at the Northeastern Conference on Teaching of Foreign Language. In attendance will be Dr. Carole Head, Dr. John Gabriele, Dr. Frances Hoch, and Dr. Barbara Long. Together they will present a workshop called "Foreign Languages and the Liberal Arts College: The New Integration."

In this workshop the members of the department will demonstrate means by which the foreign language department can contribute in these four areas: Literature and Civilization; Oral Communications Skills; Written Communications Skills; and International Business Program.

According to Dr. Carole Head, who helped in organizing the workshop, "We will show how the foreign language program is a vital and integral ingredient in the liberal arts curriculum."

The goals cited for the workshops include: to recognize the means by which a foreign language department can become revitalized and exercise an important role in the general college curriculum. To learn specific techniques and examine course plans which link foreign languages to various aspects of the curriculum; and finally to discover the ideas and skills taught in literature, culture, conversation, composition and business must not be isolated in the language classroom but rather form an integral part of the liberal arts instruction.

Dr. Gabriele will speak in the first part of the workshop on Literature and Civilization. He will relate Humanities to the core of liberal arts curriculum whereby students can develop an awareness of the foreign culture and at the same time gain an increased understanding of their own culture, by maturing thought processes and examining values.

Dr. Head will take the topic of Oral communications skills and discuss a series of games and other activities that create a participatory classroom where the student is encouraged to express himself fully and exercise his creativity.

Dr. Long will discuss the written communications skills in her talk as Part Three of the workshop. She will stress how the student in foreign language is taught to write freely as in English composition class, using correct grammar and syntax as tools rather than goals.

Dr. Hoch will discuss the International Business Program. Its curriculum combines a business major, a core of foreign language courses and courses in supporting areas.

The entire workshop taught by the instructors from HPC will last 80 minutes, with each presentation of 20 minutes. This is the 30th annual conference its type. It will be held the weekend of April 28-May 1 in Baltimore, Maryland. The conference will bring 24000 educators together to interact and to observe the state-of-the-art of foreign language and international studies education.

Kier says "consider me"

CRYSTAL L.
HEDGECOCK
Editor-in-Chief

CONSIDER ME -- the title of a newly-released album, and the plea from the artist who recorded it.

Kier, a solo act from Greensboro, recently released his first album. He has played on college campuses all over the North and South during the past and played at High Point College several times, the most recent being the 1982 Last Class Bash.

The album offers thought-provoking, retrospective lyrics about a life that appears to be filled with heartaches and disappointments.

Although the lyrics aren't particularly upbeat, the album isn't depressing. Instead, the album is soothing and provides a calming effect.

The title song is particularly retrospective with several references that obviously aren't meant to be understood by the average listener. A reference to Hamburg, Germany is left unexplained, but I didn't worry about it enough to ruin the rest of the song. The piano solo is robust and melodic. In fact, all of the solos on the album are strong.

Kier creatively uses a few instruments on the album that surprised me. A complete string quartet is used on "My Final Invitation." Steve Coble, of "Brice Street" plays saxophone solos on the "This Time Love Will Stay." "Convenient Memory" is played solely by the acoustic guitar, and the smoothness of this song provides a pleasant transition between songs.

The entire album is really a look back at the artist's life. Three songs on the album refer to Kier's brief, but apparently impressive, stay at a college in Boston. The first song on the album, "Secondary Plan," refers to his elementary years in school. The album is a culmination of Kier's life, put to music.

CONSIDER ME is a definite answer for the listener who is ready for some sincere, thought-provoking lyrics with equally sincere and talented music for accompaniment.

High Point takes conference, district titles

Netters gain confidence

BY MARK PHELPS

Sports Editor

As the old saying goes, a little confidence can go a long way: and for Coach Kitty Steele and her Lady Panthers, it did just that.

A week before April fifteenth's conference tournament, the High Point netters were faced with the uphill battle of three consecutive matches against Davidson, UNC-Greensboro, and Appalachian, the latter two having defeated the Panthers earlier in the season 7-2.

Now, two weeks later, they can proudly look back at three 5-4 comeback victories, their sixth straight Carolinas Conference championship, and their first ever District 26 title.

"Before those three matches, I wasn't pleased with our performance and neither were the girls," said Coach Steele, "but those wins gave us the confidence heading into the tournaments."

The main story in both tournaments was the individual battle between High Point and Guilford. This rivalry has grown during the last two years as High Point won both conference tournaments while Guilford took both district titles.

Going into the conference tournament, Coach Steele admitted to having more than a few worries of the Quakers.

"I thought that for the first time, Guilford might have a slight edge in depth. We matched up evenly in the top three positions, but they have stronger players at the fourth and fifth spots than last year and are very solid at the number six position."

Though these weaknesses showed up, the Panthers were able to overcome them and outscored Guilford 22-21 for their sixth consecutive conference championship. This winning streak is the unofficial record in any sport in Carolinas Conference history.

Ana Medina won the number one singles flight, automatically giving her the player of the year award. She defeated Monica Hamm of Pembroke 6-2, 6-3.

Anneli Kiviniemi won the number two flight as she defeated freshman Julie Tupper of Guilford with a pair of 6-4 sets.

Guilford won all four remaining singles matches, but the Panthers were able to clinch the tournament with two doubles victories.

In the number one doubles, Medina and ANNELI KIVINIEMI has been named Conference Player of the Year and is on the All-District tennis team.

Kiviniemi defeated Pembroke's Byrd Britt and Hamm 6-2, 6-3. High Point's Helen O'Brien-Theresa Regnante tandem downed Melanie Bischoff and Lili Carpenter 6-3, 7-6 for the title at the second doubles.

In the third flight, Terri Strickland and Lisa Miller of Guilford defeated the Panther's team of Lynn Sharkey and Teresa Sweatman 3-6, 7-6, 7-6.

The District 26 tourney, in which 14 teams participated and an open draw of singles players was used, took place Thursday through Sunday in Greensboro. High Point outscored Guilford 36-33 for the title. Pembroke and Campbell finished a distance back with 14 and ten points respectively.

The Quakers actually held a three point lead entering Sunday's finals, but needed to win all of their matches that day to win the championship.

Guilford's Tupper avenged the loss to Kiviniemi in the conference tournament as she defeated her counterpart 6-3, 6-3 for the singles championship. Kiviniemi, a junior from Sweden, may have been affected by the pressure that was put on the match.

"Anneli was uptight and felt a great amount of preasure because she knew

For a moment, imagine you are a freshman athlete. While daydreaming in orientation class, your mind ponders about your goals and what your collegiate sports career will be like.

If you number one priority is to be a leader by example and be honored by your teammates, coaches and even receive national honor, maybe you would like to talk with Pepe Perone to pick up a few pointers.

Perone came to High Point College from Long Island, he has been known as being a go-getter and having a zest for life.

His personality, a mixture of friendliness and confidence but no cocky attitude, has left its mark at the campus.

Perone, a four-year starter for the men's soccer team, has built up an impressive collegiate record.

During his collegiate career, High Point College has won 42 matches, two conferences championships and competed in the district finals his last three years.

"He has consistently been the hardest worker day in and day out during his career here," said Woody Gibson, soccer coach at HPC.

"He directs and helps everyone else to think on the field. He has both skill and soccer sense."

The last three years Perone was an All-Conference and All-District selection in the Carolina Conference. The honor is voted on by all the conference coaches.

After being named to the NAIA All-American team his senior year, Perone talked of his four years at HPC.

"It's been an experience for me meeting the different people at High Point," he said. "I have grown as a player and a person through the different situations and relationships I've been involved with."

Perone first heard about High Point College from a former athlete from his high school, Marie Riley who later became an All-American in volleyball and basketball at High Point College.

"He has the ability to make others laugh," said Riley. "He gets along with everyone and has a nice personality."

"The most important thing that ever happened to me is attending school at HPC," admitted Perone.

Perone is a business administration major who enjoys being with his friends and being active in tennis and basketball.

HPC teams disappointing in tournaments

Track team takes third

High Point College failed to win an event and finished a disappointing third in the tree-team Carolina Conference Tract Meet April 21 at Pembroke State University.

The host, Braves, easily won the meet as expected, scoring 118 points, followed by Elon College with 33 and HPC with 29.

"I really thought we'd take a couple of firsts," HPC

Coach Bob Davidson said. "The big difference was in the weight events. Elon had some people (from Spring football) that we'd never seen before."

Davidson cited a poor exchange on the 440 relay as a key to the Panther's third place finish.

High Point College managed five second places. Ralph Barnes was second in the triple jump with a leap of 46'9"; Jon Richardson was second in the javelin with a throw of 169'; Phil Dickerson was second in the pole vault at 13'; Glenn Jones was second in the 440 hurdles in 59.52; and the mile relay team of Kent Sides, Richardson, Jones and Jeff Norris also finished second.

Sides set a new school record of 21.45 in the 200-meter dash, finishing third.

Ralph Barnes was selected High Point College's most valuable performer for the season.

Weather hinders golfers

Though a 25 degree temperature and steady 30 mph winds hampered play in the combined Carolinas Conference and District 26 golf tournament on April 18-19, coach Woody Gibson feels his players were possibly hurt more by the conditions mentally than physically.

"I'm dissatisfied that we didn't play a little better," coach Gibson said. "I think some of our golfers were mentally affected by the weather. They thought they would be slowed and they in turn were."

High Point finished a distant fifth to first-place Guilford, which lead the field with a two day total of 609. Elon was second at 611, followed by Atlantic Christian with 623 points, Wingate with 638, and the Panthers with 641.

Juniors Buddy Sass and Ted Barnhardt led High Point as each shot for a two-day score of 156. Sass finished with totals of 75 and 81 while Barnhardt turned in a 76 and 80.

Phil Krimminger completed the tournament with a 163, having individual scores of 82 and 81. Matt Cohen finished with straight 83's and a 163, while Jeff Zivic landed a 170, splitting a pair of 85's.

we needed only one point to win," said coach Steele. "She also was nervous since the game was being played indoors and on Julie's homecourt."

The clinching victory for the Panthers was in the doubles semi-finals, as Kiviniemi and Medina combined to defeat Guilford's Bishoff and Carpenter 6-4, 6-4. The High Point team then beat Guilford's number one ranked tandem of Tupper and Cary Kennedy 6-4, 4-6, 6-4 for the championship.

The key Panther victory in the tournament, though, may have occurred during the first day. High Point's fourth ranked singles player, O'Brien, upset Carpenter, the number five seed for the Quakers, 6-4, 6-2. She was then able to advance three more rounds, which included having to defeat her singles partner, Regnante.

O'Brien, Regnante, Kiviniemi, and Medina were included on the all-district team. Guilford also had four players named to the squad, including Tupper, Bishoff, Carpenter, and Kennedy. Pembroke's Hamm and Campbell's Carol Dirking completed the list.

Both High Point and Guilford will compete in the NAIA championships at

tion is the outcome of our initiative. This is the atmosphere in which I learned.

My teachers in the Department had a double function. They elicited the enthusiasm by resonance from their own personalities, and they created the environment of a larger knowledge and a firmer purpose. Their ultimate motive power was the sense of value, the sense of importance. It took the various forms of wonder, of curiosity, of reverence, of worship, of tumultuous desire for merging personality in something beyond itself.

Is what I have learned to be denied now? Is the college not approving of what I and hundreds of other students have learned? The Administration did not hesitate to appoint someone within the Foreign Language Department as Chairperson when that position was vacated. Is it the opinion of the administration that the Religion and Philosophy Department professors are incompetent? Is the administration saying that it does not approve of the fact that the Religion and Philosophy Department faculty members are doing the job that they were hired to do in their discipline?

And what of the faculty members in other departments? Can they not voice their support of their colleagues in the Religion and Philosophy Department with the intensity and conviction with which, were any of them in the same position, the Religion and Philosophy faculty would support them? Can the faculty of HPC not see the ironies - one of which is a man standing up for a principle, (not only for himself, but for the entire faculty) which should be the backbone of any institution of higher learning, and which is characteristic of one who is hired in his particular discipline.

Can I not make the assumption that this faculty has the academic credentials and humanitarian qualities that would enable it to see the injustice taking place? Or am I guilty of violating the mature philosophical attitude - that of looking at all sides of an issue?
